MOVE TO PROCURE ARTIFICIAL LAKE

For some time there has been talk of trying to procure a body of water for Hicksville that would make an artificial lake with boating, bathing and fishing facilities, and now the matter is taking form.

At the point where a branch of the Casebeer creek runs through a pretty little valley between the B. & O. railway tracks and the Spencerville road is an ideal location for such an enterprise, the question resolving itself to the proposition of a sufficiency of available and procurable water.

Hicksville business men are interesting themselves in the possibility of the lake and are going into the matter with their conservation department.

Geo. D. Simmons offers the land for such a purpose.

CUTS FINGER OFF IN LAWN MOWER

Junior Curie is the owner of only a little over 3½ fingers on his right hand, since Saturday forenoon.

He was on his way to the Mrs. Jennie Sechler home to mow her lawn, and stopping on the street to talk to Vernie Collins, he bagan to take grass out of the machine.

Blood began to show up soon and it was discovered he was minus a portion of his little finger, but yet Junior did not know he had cu it off, because it did not hurt him.

He ran home and was rushed to thee doctor by Frank Aikins.

Junior has not suffered any great amount since the accident.

TOURNAMENTS SPONSORED BY EMERGENCY SCHOOLS

Buster Hetrick, Instructor of Recreation in the DeKalb County Emergency School, has received word from Indianapolis, announcing that Mr. Alfred Campbell, President of the Indiana Recreation Association, and organizer of our 1933-1934 State Softball tournaments, has been added to the recreation staff of the Emergency Education Division of the Governor's Commission on Unemployment Relief for the purpose of developing local, district, and state tournaments. Interest in softball has grown to such an extent that it will be necessary for the person in charge to spend much time over the state in an effort to promote the best district and state tournaments possible.

Tournaments in Tennis, Horse shoe pitching, Softball and Base Ball, for the county are being planned for the months of July and August. The time and place of holding the tournaments will be announced later. Any one interested in these sports should see Buster Hetrick at Auburn Ball Park, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday evenings, from 5:30 to 8:30, or at the Garrett High School Athletic Field on Monday and Thursday evenings, from 5:30 to 8:30. The Tennis players will meet on the Garrett High School Tennis Court on Tuesday and Friday afternoons, from 2:00 to 4:00. Beginners in Tennis as well as any of the other sports are invited to attend any of these games. A Tennis tournament for ladies is being planned and the time for this tourament will be announced later.

The winners of these County tournaments will probably go to state tournaments, to be held sometime later. Announcements will be made later, in regard to the time and place of these tournaments.

VERY STRANGE THINGS ARE DONE BY MANY PEOPLE

Did you ever stop to think that a man will exercise great care in selecting a family physician or surgeon; he will use utmost caution to prevent bringing animals on his farm carrying contagious diseases; he will be very careful in his choice of a mechanic to work on his automobile, but he will wear a pair of glasses that he picked out of a basket in some racket store, or a pair that were purchased many years ago?

In other words, the most valuable possession he has is usually neglected more than any other. He can buy a new car if necessary, but he can never buy a new pair of eyes.

Just give this a little thought and then come to "the store with the street clock" and have a thorough examination to prove that your eyes are not also being neglected.

F. G. GETROST, Optometrist,
Hicksville, Ohio.

SOME RASPBERRIES

Hart's Nursery at Spencerville started Wednesday to harvest the largest and finest crop of raspberries ever raised in the St. Joe Valley. From thirteen acres Clyde Hart estimated that between 30,000 and 40,000 quarts will be picked. One hundred and thirty pickers have been employed.

CHURCH CELEBRATES 75th ANNIVERSARY

Bethel Lutheran Church of Maumee Township, Allen County, will celebrate its 75th anniversary on Sunday, July 7, 1935, with a morning, afternoon and evening service.

REV. A. K. MUMMA
Pastor Since 1921

The Sunday School begins at 9 o'clock, Standard Time, followed with morning worship at 10:15 and basket dinner at Noon.

The afternoon service at 1:30 will be of a historical nature, when Mary Husted will give a history of the church, followed by a report of church organizations, greetings to visiting pastors and friends, and special music throughout. A basket luncheon at 4:30 will conclude the program until 7:30, when Dr. E. E. Flack, Hanna Divinity School, Springfield, Ohio, will bring the closing sermon.

GROSS INCOME TAX PAYMENTS DUE

Indianapolis, Ind., July 3.—Payment of state gross income tax for the second quarter of 1935 began this week at the State House and at nearly four hundred auto license branches and sub-branches throughout Indiana. The payment period closes July 15.

Prospects indicate a quarterly collection considerably larger than that for the second quarter last year, according to Clarence A. Jackson, director of the Gross Income Tax division, who announced that with the closing of collection records on the first 1935 quarter, an increase of 17 per cent was shown over the same period of 1934.

Gross Income Tax payments for the first quarter of last year totalled $2,532,484, Mr. Jackson said, while payments tabulated for the first quarter of 1935 amounted to $2,954,461 or $421,977 more than the total last year. The average payment for the first quarter of 1934 was $32.81 and for the same period of 1935 was $42.

The second quarter of the year, based on past experience, Mr. Jackson said, should exceed any other quarterly paying period. This is attributable, he said, to the fact that in addition to the regular number of persons who file quarterly returns there are so many taxpayers who choose to file semi-annually in order to avoid the necessity of paying the full year's tax with their annual returns.

The gross income tax law permits persons who owe less than $10 a quarter to file only annual returns. However, in each quarterly period, the tax division receives thousands of returns from small taxpayers who elect to pay their tax in installments.

Blanks can be secured at News office.

FARM BUREAU MEET AT FRED HART HOME

The hopes of weeks of planning were fully realized Tuesday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hart were given their largest crowd at their lawn party. People from all over DeKalb county, and representatives from Farm Bureau organizations of other counties were present to enjoy the program and to visit with their friends. The Orphan's Home Band of Ft. Wayne furnished the music in most excellent fashion. The Harmony Boys of the St. Joe Valley also furnished some music in their most pleasing way and a number of readers appeared on the progrm. Larry Brandon made a talk at the conclusion of the musical program. All were made welcome by Mrs. Grace Dilley.

Ice cream was served and everyone had a pleasant evening together.

LESLIE INLOW WRITES FROM MONTANA CAMP

Basin, Montana.
June 24, 1935.

Dear Fred:

Well, I just got back from the Fort with a load of supplies and on the way back, just missed being in an accident, by a few feet. A car was passing me on a curve and he run into a car coming up the hill. There were four in the one car and two in the other. Two of them died before they got to the Butte hospital, and the others were hurt bad. All in all it was real exciting. The roads have so many hills and curves that you have to watch all the time.

We have our camp all up now and it is really nice. It is hot in the day time and cold at night. We have had two fires already but they were small. It is awful dry and windy here as we are so high.

Well it is time for me to go after the milk so I will be closing for this time, hoping this finds you all well.

As ever—Chuck.

A BUNK PARTY

Miss Annamae Leavell was greatly surprised Thursday evening upon her return from luncheon with Miss Virginia Poper to find her house filled with pajama clad girls. They announced that they had come to spend the night with her in celebration of her seventeenth birthday.

The fore part of the evening was spent in playing games. At midnight the hostess, Harriett Coburn, and her assistant, Mrs. Donald Miller, served a lunch consisting of sandwiches, salad, hot chocolate, ice cream and cake, nuts and mints. After lunch the top floor was turned over to the girls and they were all put to bed but not to sleep. Many were the pillows that flew through the air and many the ghosts who walked through the rooms and crawled under the beds.

At six o'clock the breakfast table was spread in the dining room. The breakfast consisted of hot buns, bacon, eggs, and cocoa, spiced with many yawns.

Those in attendance were the Misses Virginia Poper, Naomi Ayers, Edith Sylvster, Lucile Hart, Alice Hart, Alice Miller, Pauline Buss, of Garrett and Ruth Leavel, of Fort Wayne.

Shortly after breakfast a car was brought to the door and the girls climbed on front, behind and all sides and were delivered to the various strawberry patches of the neighborhood. All of the girls expressed their thanks for a joyous time to the hostess and wished Annamae many more happy birthdays.

GRABER—LIKE

The marriage of Miss Helen Like, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Like, of St. Joe, and Wayne Graber, son of Mrs. Mabel Graber, of Defiance, Ohio, was solemnized in a quiet ceremony at 2:30 o'clock Sunday, June 30, at the St. Joe Christian Church.

Rev. H. K. Schondelmayer read the nuptial vows in the presence of a group of relatives and friends of the couple.

Mrs. Hollis Akins attended the bride and Mr. Hollis Akins the groom. Mr. Earl Kinsey presided at the piano.

The bride chose white satin formed on princess lines with waist length veil. Her flowers were baby roses and white sweet peas. Mrs. Akins chose a pink jacket suit and her flowers were pink roses and sweet peas.

They will make their home in Defiance, which they have furnished and ready to move into.

They have the best wishes of their many friends.

SUCCESSFUL CONVENTION

The Tri-Township convention held at the gym last Sunday afternoon and evening, proved to be most successful from point of attendance and interest, so much so, that they voted to have another convention this fall. J. Raymond Schutz, of North Manchester, was the speaker at both sessions and the program was made up of young people of the district.

Every pastor was present during the session.

A far more successful convention can be held if every school will cooperate to its fullest extent.

A number of the county officers were present.

WIDNEY REUNION

The 16th annual reunion of the Widney family was held Thursday, June 27, at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Dilley, with about fifty members of the clan present to enjoy the day. The forenoon was spent in visiting and at the noon hour a bounteous basket dinner was enjoyed by all. At the business session following, letters were read from relatives at a distance unable to be present, and short responses from those at a distance who we were very glad to have with us namely, Mrs. Carrie Hull and Mrs. Helen Hull, of Colorado Springs, Colo.; Mrs. Myers, of Toledo, Ohio; Mrs. Zelpha Barnes, of Three Oaks, Mich., and Mrs. Cora Nicloy, of Fort Wayne.

Mrs. Alice Lewis, of Auburn, gave a short talk in which she informed the reunion that our ancestry had been traced back very much farther than ever before known and that there was a movement on to put this information in book form for the family all over the country.

Merritt Sechler invited the family to his home next year and officers were elected as follows: President, Merritt Sechler; vice president, Grace Dilley; secretary and treasurer, Ralph Sechler.

A short program was rendered consisting of readings by Shirley Widney, Mary Lou Widney, and Patty Carpenter; duets by Helen Tustison and Louise Sechler, also Merritt Sechler and Edith Cole. Guests departed at a late hour feeling the day had been very well spent and thanking Mr. and Mrs. Dilley for their fine hospitality. Deaths during the past year for which a few moments of silent memoriam were taken, are, Otto L. Widney, Mr. and Mrs. Embler Nimmons, Mrs. Samuel Lawmead and Charles Imhoff.

FARM LADY INJURED BY BACKING TRACTOR

A startling and unusual accident happened on the Brewster farm, on the Hicksville-Antwerp road, last Friday, the farm being occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Long and family.

It is reported that they were at the time using a tractor for supplying power, using a belt to convey same.

A son was operating the tractor, and the drive belt ran off the pulley.

Mrs. Long undertook to put the belt back on the pulley, while the son moved the tractor to shorten the distance until the belt was back on, and then take the slack ou of it so it would work efficiently.

It is reported that a mistake was made in handling the gear shift, and the tractor unexpectedly moved the wrong direction and caught and jammed Mrs. Long against a post. She suffered a broken left shoulder and also a couple of broken ribs, and her chest and arm were badly bruised.

At the time it was reported that the injury would prove fatal, but report says that she is recovering from the shock nicely, and that the injuries are getting along fine.—News-Tribune.

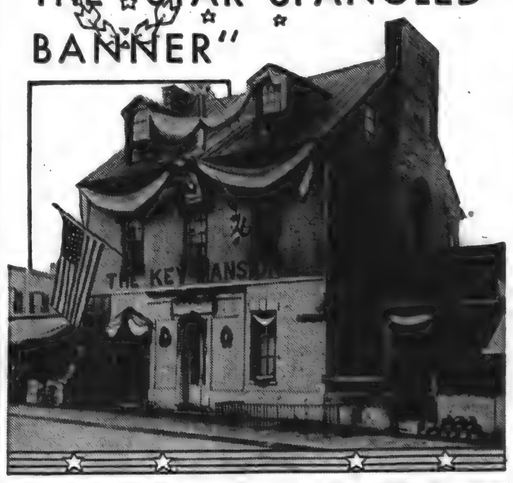
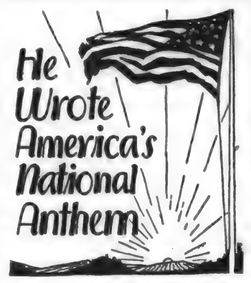
Home of the Author of THE "STAR SPANGLED BANNER"



He Wrote America's National Anthem



"LADIES and gentlemen," began the man as the sightseeing bus lumbered across Key Bridge, "on your right may be seen the home of Francis Scott Key, illustrious author of 'The Star-Spangled Banner,' after which is named this bridge."

Necks were craned, and the passengers were rewarded with the view of a drab building which proclaimed itself to be the quarters of a hardware store. Inquiring glances were directed at the guide, but that worthy plunged into a glowing description of Arlington cemetery. Francis Scott Key and the house he lived in were left behind.

History has been impressed upon every street in the older part of Washington and it is the city of forgotten memories. Many historic landmarks have been swept away.

Such is the fate which has befallen the Francis Scott Key house in Georgetown, now remodeled into a store building.

Shortly after 1800, Francis Scott Key moved into the Georgetown house which was his home for thirty years. It was from this house that Key started to rescue William Beans from death at the hands of the British, and by so doing witnessed the bombardment of Fort McHenry, which inspired him to write "The Star-Spangled Banner."

When in 1833 the Chesapeake canal was dug directly through the center of his terraced flower garden stretching to the Potomac river, Key abandoned the Georgetown home.

Soon the thoroughfare lost its name and also its residential character. In time it became the main street of Georgetown, lined by unpretentious store buildings.

In this evolution the old house suffered vicissitudes mostly unrecorded. About 1907 the owners decided the place must yield to the demands of trade. To save the dwelling, a memorial association, whose ranks included Admirals Dewey and Schley, was formed. Only $25,000 was needed to rescue the house, but the money, for some reason, was not forthcoming. In 1912 the house was largely torn down, although its shell was used in the erection of two small stores.—Washington Herald.

Most Precious Document Is Carefully Preserved

CONGRESS appropriated $12,000 for the construction of the shrine in which are housed the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. Of this amount, $7,452.37 was spent. The shrine was dedicated February 28, 1924. It was designed by Francis H. Bacon of Boston and New York. "The background is of grayish black York fossil marble," says the Library of Congress. An upright frame or case with gold-plated bronze doors contains the Declaration. Below and in front of the upright case is a much larger one in the form of a desk with claw feet. It contains the five sheets of the Constitution. In front of this case is a small carved stool, both cases and stool being executed in Asbury pink Tennessee marble quarried near Knoxville, Tenn. Two sheets of plate glass with specially prepared gelatin films between the two plates protect the documents.

Fourth of July Picnic Food Easily Served

SET the picnic scene under a big shade tree or on the screened porch, with a table for the food and a few comfortable porch chairs or cushions. Place at one end of the table, the paper napkins, plates and cups and just the necessary flat silver. If you'd like to make a real party of it—you can purchase picnic knives and forks with bright red or blue composition handles for a very small cost.

Of course, the food is the big consideration, for everyone is hungry at an informal out-of-door meal.

Visualize a big salad bowl with a crisp vegetable salad, a tray of cold spreads and sliced meats for sandwich fillings, a cutting board holding all the necessary cut bread and crackers to fill the biggest appetite, one hot casserole dish, if the day is not too warm, and a big pot of hot coffee or pitcher of ice tea with a tray of paper cups close by.

Everyone helps himself—makes his own preferred sandwich with all the dressing, mustard or lettuce he desires, dips liberally into the salad and pours his own beverage, ice tea, lemonade or punch.

Dessert may be a big cake—brought out at the close of the meal, or a big bowl of fresh fruit, a shortcake or frozen dessert.

The gayety of such a meal lies in the easy, informal, atmosphere, the tasty attractive food and the lack of long preparation, packing baskets and filling thermos jugs. Any holiday guest will enjoy such a picnic supper.

Try this menu:

Assorted breads—Rye, white, graham and finger rolls.

Assorted meats and spreads including veal loaf, salami cut in thin slices, spiced cold tongue, ground ham with grated pineapple and chopped walnuts spread, cream cheese and green pepper spread, cold fried chicken.

Arrange on a cold meat plate with the sliced meats around the edge and celery dressed with French dressing. Arrange in large crockery or wooden bowl.

Potato Chips
Jelly and Pickles
Bowls of Creamed Butter and Mustard Butter
Shoe String Potatoes
Coconut Cake with Orange Custard Filling
Tea or Coffee or Iced Drinks
Ice Cream

A different sort of porch picnic menu might include:

Hot Ham Shortcake or Fried Chicken
Pineapple and Cucumber Gelatin Salad
Ripe Olives—Cheese Crackers
Iced Tea
Raspberries and Sliced Bananas on Ice Cream
Ice Box Cookies
Lemonade or Punch

Ireland Long Land of "Saints and Scholars"

There is no encyclopedic record of the exact phrasing of the tribute so long accorded Ireland, "Island of Saints and Scholars," but perhaps the following facts will be enlightening:

The introduction of Christianity into Ireland was not attended with bloodshed as in many other countries; indeed, afterward the nation seems to have enjoyed a season of repose from strife, although southern Europe was being over-run by the Germanic hordes. This repose favored the growth and expansion of Christianity and the progress of learning. The schools and monasteries founded by St. Patrick and his bishops in the Fifth century became the centers from which went forth many scholars, and even as early as the Sixth century Ireland became the seat of western learning. Its monasteries were the schools whence missionaries who disseminated the Christian faith throughout continental Europe proceeded. Diocesan organization as understood in countries under the Roman law was unknown in early Ireland. Consequently there was not that limitation of the number of bishops that territorial jurisdiction renders necessary, and the number of bishops increased beyond all proportion. St. Mochta, abbot of Louth, and reputed disciple of St. Patrick, is stated to have had no less than 100 bishops in the monastic family. These facts may give some light on the possible appellation of "Land of Saints and Scholars." In the Eighth and Ninth centuries the scholars of Ireland were among the most distinguished at the courts of the kings, especially that of Charlemagne. But when the Northmen made their descent on the country some of the schools were destroyed and Irish monks and scholars fled to the continent, carrying with them their books. Among them were many of the greatest lights in the world of letters of the time, such as Sedulius Scottus and Johanes Scottus Erigena. The oldest Irish university is Trinity college, Dublin, founded in 1591, which by no means is the oldest university in Europe. The National University of Ireland, with three constituent colleges, Dublin, Cork and Galway, was founded in 1909.—Indianapolis News.

LOWER COST PER TON MILE
DUE TO FIRESTONE EXTRA CONSTRUCTION FEATURES

QUESTION No. 1—"Will the non-skid tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"

ANSWER—The patented construction feature of two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread makes it possible for Firestone to use a wider, flatter tread with higher shoulders, that puts more rubber on the road. This, combined with the scientific non-skid design, gives greatest non-skid safety and traction ever known.

QUESTION No. 2—"Is the tire body protected against destructive internal heat, the chief cause of premature tire failure?"

ANSWER—Every cord in Firestone Tires is soaked and saturated in pure, liquid rubber by the patented Gum-Dipping process. This process, not used in any other tire, soaks every cotton cord and insulates every strand, preventing internal friction and heat, giving extra strength, longer life, greater dependability.

QUESTION No. 3—"Will the tread give me long wear at today's higher speeds?"

ANSWER—A new and tougher tread compound developed by Firestone gives you longer wear at lower cost per mile, even at today's higher speeds.

Call on the Firestone Service Store or Firestone Tire Dealer in your community today. Let him tell you about the exclusive construction features of Firestone Truck and Bus Tires which will give you lower operating costs and greater safety.

Washable Silks of New Importance

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WASHABLE silks have a new importance because of the wide variety of types which are fashion firsts. No longer is it simply a decision between a tub silk crepe and a washable silk shirting, now that so many new and intriguing weaves have entered the field of silks that launder.

First in the present fashion ranks are the new silk linens and the silk shantungs in versatile weaves. The silk linens closely resemble linen except that they have more luster, but being made of silk they have the natural elasticity of silk and therefore are easier to keep fresh and unrumpled. Then too, the new silk linens have the advantage of taking strong dyes easily and are at their loveliest in the vivid peasant colors which are so voguish this summer. They also come in some very smart modernistic prints. The latter favor bold plaids and geometric treatments, the technique radically different from that used on silk crepes. For sports hats, beach and daytime bags, for belts and for separate scarfs, the checked and plaided silk linens are doing things with a dash and go that fits right in with the spirit of summer gaiety.

Silk linen is particularly to be commended in all white. Its smartness is evident in the two-piece suit to the left in the picture, which has a black skirt and a jacket-blouse of white silk linen. A polka dot silk ascot is worn with it.

The very attractive two-piece sports dress centered in the group is fashioned of a gold colored silk linen. The accordion pleated skirt allows for motion. The top is bloused and has alternate pockets, with mother of pearl buttons and a wide attached belt presenting chic style accents.

The oriental influence which is so apparent in the new mode is reflected in the popularity of silk shantungs for sportswear. The very newest shantungs are heavily ribbed. Both solid color and printed version are shown in these sturdy shantungs especially for strenuous outdoor wear, while in the softer types of prints a very supple light shantung is being used. See the effective model to the right in the illustration. It is made of a greenish-yellow silk shantung, with a shantung coat in orange and red regimental stripes.

A surprise entry in the washable field is mousseline de soie. One can find no prettier material than this sheer and dainty weave. While all mousselines are not washable, some very new versions just put on the market have been specially processed for washability. They come in plain weaves, also in types with delicate shadowy self-color patternings, the latter proving irresistible when once you glimpse them.

Silk broadcloth is also a washable fabric that is being enthusiastically used in better-type active and spectator sportswear.

A revival of interest in the lovely washable silk damask and silk jacquards is also noted. Entirely new patterns are available this season, stressing especially clever nautical motifs, and a series of sports patterns showing different games.

Washable silk crepes now showing are enlivened by amusing little patterns in vivid colors on light grounds, showing articles of sports equipment such as golf tees, polo mallets, beach umbrellas and so on. As to the very fine-quality plain washable silk crepes they are made in well-tailored shirtwaist types with embroidered monograms on the scarf, bosom or sleeve.

$40,000 in Pearls

By SPENCER A. SPENCER

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

ARNOLD MILLURN had worked every confidence racket from the artificial eye dropped into a gullible fruit dealer's basket of grapes, to selling mythical oil wells to wide-eyed tourists in California. Of medium height, was Arnold Millurn—suave, and with a face so honest that it fooled astute judges of human nature. Conscience, he had none, taking the insurance money of widows with dependent children as readily as he did the Broadway playboy's allowance.

Strolling in the environs of Times Square one late afternoon, he stopped before a shabby bookshop and idly examined the dusty volumes on the outside display rack. While glancing through the grimy pages of a tattered expose of card tricks, his alert eyes were arrested by a sealed envelope. It was addressed to Mrs. Cynthia Rodgers in Brooklyn, but bore no stamp or sign of postmark. He studied the envelope furtively. Perhaps it contained something of value. With one deft movement that defied detection, he transferred the envelope from the book to the inside pocket of his coat.

When he was alone in his hotel room he brought it forth for closer inspection. The envelope which had once been white was yellow and brittle. Carefully he tore off the end and shook out the letter. It had been written from Pago-Pago, and was dated July 14, 1892.

"My dear wife Cynthia (the letter began):

"It seems at this time to be the will of God that this letter must be my last. My ship is at anchor here, undergoing repairs. Upon our arrival I was carried ashore suffering from tropical fever. The port doctor, a worthy man, has advised me to put my worldly affairs in order.

"At one time, having lost considerable monies in a bank failure, I secretly constructed a small vault in our home. It is directly above the carved figure on the left side of the mantel in the back parlor. By pressing the right eyeball of the figure you will release a spring which will cause the door of the vault to open. Inside you will find $21,000 in American gold, and pearls whose value is estimated to be $40,000. It is my earnest hope that these monies and jewels, with God's help, will protect you from want all your remaining days.

"I am sending this message to you by my loyal and trustworthy mate, Mr. Jack MacDonald.

"Your loving and faithful husband,
"Captain Peter Rodgers."

Arnold Millurn's hands were trembling as he finished reading the letter. It was evident to him that since Cynthia Rodgers had not received her husband's letter the gold and pearls were still in the vault.

As he taxied across the long bridge to Brooklyn doubts crept into his mind. Perhaps the house had been razed to make room for a modern structure.

All doubts slipped from him, however, when a half hour later he found it. A weather-worn brownstone it was, in a once fashionable neighborhood where the streets sloped sharply toward the busy waterfront. He walked slowly past the house, then catching sight of the ROOMS FOR RENT sign in the window, retraced his steps and rang the doorbell. Luck was with him!

The great, heavy door was opened by a little, white-haired lady whose lively blue eyes and quick smile beamed up at him.

"I'm looking for a room," he said. "Something on the first floor, if you have it."

"The only room I have vacant at present is the back parlor," she explained, stepping aside for him to enter. He struggled to keep this good news from showing in his face. "The back parlor has a lovely view of the harbor," the little woman continued. "My husband was a seafaring man. Captain of the Silver Swan, he was, before she was lost with all hands aboard." He had followed her into the back parlor. "I used to watch for his ship through these windows, but that's been a long time ago." As she talked he saw nothing but the marble mantle above the fireplace with the carved figures on both sides.

"How much is this room?" he asked.

"One hundred dollars a month. Rooms with a view of the harbor are scarce. You'll find there's a breeze, even on the hottest nights."

Reluctantly he selected five twenties from his wallet and gave them to her. The moment she was gone he hung his hat over the doorknob, closing the keyhole to prying eyes. Then he pulled down the shades. Walking to the mantle he pressed the right eyeball of the figure on the left. Instantly a small section of wall swung outward. With a moist, shaking hand he reached into the opening. It was empty! No—there was a piece of letter paper inside. He carried it to the window, and pulling back the edge of the shade, read:

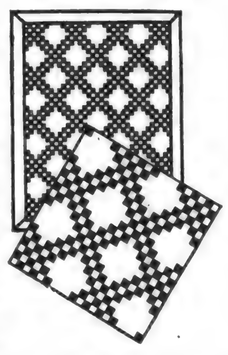
"My dear Treasure Hunter:

"The envelope which you found in the book was only one of many that I placed in several bookshops. I find this an excellent method of advertising my rooms. I hope that during your sojourn under my roof you will be comfortable and happy. In the event, however, that you decide to leave before you decide to see me again, please refrain from slamming the front door.

"Yours truly,
"Mrs. Cynthia Rodgers."

Strong Favorite of Quilt Makers

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK



The "Irish Chain" quilt can be found in almost every collection, and quilt makers will make at least one of these simple chain patterns. The single, double, or triple Irish Chain has one, two, or three blocks in the chain. The background is white and the squares are a solid blue, red, or other dark mixed colors to give contrast. The squares in this quilt measure 1¾ inches without seam, and they are appliqued on two different nine-inch blocks; one all checked, the other with a square in each corner. These are assembled alternately to give above effect. Seven 9-inch blocks are used across top and nine blocks on side. With a 6-inch border quilt will measure finished about 72 by 90 inches. This quilt is simple to make but cutting of patches and blocks must be accurate to produce good results.

This quilt is one of the 33 popular quilts shown in book No. 23, which will be mailed to you upon receipt of 15 cents. Cutting charts, instructions and valuable information for quilt makers will be found in this book.

SEE SPIRITS OF CRATER VICTIMS

Ghostly Visitors Bring Fear to Japanese.

Curling up in the smoke which rises from the crater of Mihara, Japan's famous suicide volcano, the ghostly images of three girls were seen by terror-stricken villagers on the island of Oshima. Remembering that Mihara rose to fame as a lovers' death tryst following suicides of three high school girls, the villagers said the specter of the girls was an ill omen.

Frightened, the superstitious said the volcano's "nushi" (master) was about to "rise from the land of fire" to lure visitors to "jigoku" (the abode of the devil).

Three days later visitors from Tokyo, just across the bay, swarmed to the island, partly out of curiosity and partly because it was Sunday and the island's natural beauty and warmth attracted them.

At 10:30 a. m. about 100 spectators were gathered on the spot from which persons committing suicide plunge to their death. Suddenly a young man, scarcely twenty-five, ran forward and flung himself headlong into the crater. As the spectators, horrified and speechless, looked at each other, another man, a few years older, came out from the throng and, without saying a word, walked as though in a trance and dropped into the fiery pit.

Nervously the spectators moved away, afraid that some unseen hand might pull them into the smoldering inferno. Suddenly another youth, about twenty-three, ran to the edge of the crater, stripped himself of his kimono and, with nothing on except shorts, stepped over the brink into the world beyond.

Hardly had the talk of these suicides died down when, two days later, three more men flung themselves into the fire-emitting abyss, one after another, as many spectators looked on.

The police have decided that hereafter all visitors to the island will be questioned before being permitted to land. Those suspected of suicide intentions will be barred from landing. All visitors must buy round-trip fares.

Officials of the home office in Tokyo are frankly pessimistic.

Last year more than 800 persons lost their lives in Mihara's crater despite every effort to put a stop to the suicide craze. The crater is seven miles around and it is not humanly possible to net-in this vast territory as have been other suicide-trysting places.

Did That, Anyway

A motorist crashed through the front door of a house and landed in the parlor, where a woman sat reading. It must be said to his credit that he had the courtesy to remove his hat.

SILKS DE LUXE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The sentiment for high-quality fabrics is notably on the increase among women. This trend is particularly reflected in the demand for grand and stately silks reminiscent of the days in the long ago when silk was really silk. The beautiful lady pictured is wearing gorgeous silk taffeta in a warp print. If one were not told, one might think, at first glance, that this garment of queenly grace was one of the new full-skirted evening gowns such as Paris proclaims to the world this season. In reality it is a most glamorous bouffant evening wrap, which goes to show the out-of-the-ordinary things which designers are doing in way of formal fashions.

Veils Move Back

Hang your veil off the back of your hat if you wish to be both "different" and chic.

JADED WARDROBE IS EASILY SPRUCED UP

There are endless possibilities of what one can do for a jaded wardrobe, and we are always on the lookout to discover things that can be added to an old dress to give it another season's wear. This year it is a change of jacket. Patterned ones contrast with the plainness of the gowns.

The idea of putting bright prints on top of dark dresses is a welcome change from the all-print ensemble that begins to pall after so many months of wearing. A short jacket makes a dinner dress out of one that would otherwise be extremely formal. When it is a wrap that is to be removed it is swagger to the hips or fitted to the floor. Anything goes in the way of a design for these new wraps, the smallest of pin dots to large floral patterns that are vibrant with life and exotic colorings. If the dress is white or a pastel, a print with a dark background is chosen for contrast.

Fall Woolen Card Gives Two New Groups of Colors

The regular edition of the 1935 fall woolen card, portraying 48 colors in woolen fabric, has just been released to members of the association, it was announced by Margaret Hayden Rorke, managing director. In addition to basic shades, the card contains two color groups designated as "Rustiques" and "Touchdown and Ski Colors."

The first-named collection consists of hazy pastels and rich autumn tones especially suitable for dresses and children's wear. The "Touch-down and Ski Colors" have special merchandising appeal for the football and winter sports seasons.

Choice of Belts

Pigskin, patent leather and colored leather belts are fashioned on wide designs—sometimes clasped snugly around the waist in a model which resembles that worn by Tyrolean mountaineers, or again crushed softly around the waistline like a fabric.

TO LICENSE USED CAR DEALERS

Indianapolis, July 1.—A new law designed to reduce the number of auto thefts and requiring Indiana dealers in used automobiles and automobile parts to obtain state licenses became effective today, (July 1,) according to an announcement issued by Clarence A. Jackson, director of the Gross Income Tax division, which will handle the collection of license fees.

Blanks on which dealers will make applications for licenses have been made available at all state auto license branches, Mr. Jackson said. License fees are $2.50 for the remainder of 1935 and thereafter will be $5 annually.

The license law requires that each dealer keep a daily record of purchases of all used cars and parts, including a description of the articles purchased and the names and addresses of the persons from whom they were bought.

Dealers' records, as well as reports which will be required, will be open to inspection by state police, local police and all other peace officers. Enforcement of the law will be in charge of Donald Stiver, superintendent of state police.

STREET FAIR CLOSED WITH SUCCESS

The street fair sponsored by the firemen last week came to a satisfactory close Saturday night and St. Joe has again settled into its regular routine of business.

The crowds were good each night and spending was reported by the merchants as extra good.

Mr. Erbine, the manager, is to be congratulated on having such a clean bunch of people in his organization.

The children were well taken care of with three nice rides and concessions galore for the rest of the crowd.

ECLIPSE OF MOON JULY 15-16 TOTAL IN TWO AMERICAS

Romance will have to do without the moon on the night of July 15-16, when that body is scheduled to disappear in a total eclipse.

Both North and South America, except the extreme northern part of Norh America, will be in the best position for observation of the "celestial show," described as "one of the finest astronomical events of the year."

The eclipse will start at 9:15 P. M. (EST) and will last about five hours. By 11:09 P. M. all of the moon's surface will have passed into the shadow of the earth and the total phase of the eclipse will start. It will last one hour and 40 minutes or within four minutes of the maximum possible duration of a total eclipse of the moon.

Near 12:50 A. M., July 16, the total phase will end the moon gradually will emerge from the earth's shadow.

LEGION SOCIAL

An Ice Cream Social will be held on the Lutheran Church Lawn next Saturday evening, July 13th by the Ex-Service men of St. Joe and community. There will be plenty of good ice cream and cake, also some good wholesome entertainment for all. Plan to spend Saturday evening in St. Joe, meet your friends, eat ice cream, and thoroughly enjoy yourselves. Last minute preparations will b e made Thursday night at the Town Hall and all Veterans are urged to be present.

PIERCE—GARTON

Miss Zora Mae Garton, only daughter of Mr. Hershall Garton, now residing at Coldwater, Mich., and Zolvy Roosevelt Pierce, were principals in a marriage ceremony which was solemnized Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Brown, 1155 Bresseau St., Elkhart, Indiana.

The bride chose white crepe Elizabeth ensemble with matching accessories. She wore a white hat with nose length veil.

The home was beautifully decorated with the season's lovely flowers, white lilies, blue delphinium and achillea.

Rev. Frank Lineberry, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant Church at Elkhart, read the ceremony.

A reception was held after the ceremony and the following guests were in attendance besides the bridal party and the host and hostess, Hershall Garton, Mrs. Mary Goss, Coldwater, Mich., Rev. Lineberry, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Keller and daughter, Elkhart; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hart, Mr. and Mrs. John Hart and family, of St. Joe.

The Garton family were residents of St. Joe for a number of years, Mr. Garton following the carpenter trade, later they moved to a farm near Coldwater, where they have since resided.

TO PICNIC SUNDAY

The annual picnic of the Young People of DeKalb County Sunday Schools will be held in the Dills grove, 1 mile south of St. Joe, on next Sunday.

A special Sunday School session will be held, always of interest to the crowd. A noon the basket dinner will be spread and then followed by special afternoon program.

Anyone will be welcome, but the young people are especially urged to come.

TEN DOLLARS REWARD

For information leading to the identity of the person, or persons who destroyed School property of Concord Township.

A. W. TROSTEL, Trustee.

An Ice Cream Social will be given by the Loyal Sons and Daughters of Christian Church, on lawn between Barber Shop and Filling Station, July 18. 28t2.

TWENTY-TWO MORE AGE PENSION GRANTS

The county commissioners at their July session held in Auburn granted twenty-two additional old age pension applications.

The first payments to these pensioners will be made Aug. 1. County Auditor Frank E. Lyon's records disclose that 219 persons received pensions for the month of June, the outlay being $1,894, or an average of about $8.65.

The maximum payment is $14 and the minimum is $8. Most of the pensions being paid are for the benefit of single persons, with $8 allowed.

The state reimburses the county for half of the amount paid, excepting for burials. The county commissioners are allowing a maximum of $75 for burials.

The number on the pension roll is reduced each month, mainly by deaths. However, others are added quarterly and the list effective August 1 will set a new high record.

The law provides that persons receiving pensions are not entitled to poor relief, except for medical aid and hospitalization.

GEORGE STRONG AND TWO CHILDREN INJURED

An investigation of an accident that took place late Thursday a half mile south of Butler on Road No. 1 was made by Sheriff Herbert N. Grimm.

Elmer Keller, of Wilmington township, was trying to run around another machine when his car side-swiped one coming from the opposite direction driven by George Strong, living just east of St. Joe. The collision took place in front of the Olds house.

Strong had his face cut and lost some teeth. Two of his children, who were in the car with him suffered minor cuts.

The cars went into the ditches on either side of the highway, but did not overturn. Both machines were badly damaged.

REPORTS IN ST. JOE AND ASHLEY BANK LIQUIDATION

Current reports of the St. Joe Valley bank and the Ashley State bank have been filed in the DeKalb circuit court by Paul Heichelbech, special representative of the state department of financial instiuions in charge of liquidation.

The report for the St. Joe bank shows that the unliquidated assets naw amount to $29,902, including $22,370.40 in loans, $1,000 in bonds and securities, $17.44 in overdrafts and $6,514.16 due from other banks.

At the Ashley bank, the unliquidated assets aggregate $58,458.23, including $36,771.16 in personal and collateral loans, $11,574.23 in mortgage loans, $6,400 in bonds and securities, $1,200 in real estate and $2,337.13 due from other banks.

HERE'S A PECULIAR TRAIT AMONG MANY PEOPLE

A great many people will express themselves as greatly concerned by the activities of banditts, kidnappers, the rise in taxes or the cost of necessities, and will expend considerable worry in futile worry. At the same time they may not be giving a thought to a real condition they are facing and do not realize it, namely, defective eyesight.

It is a fact that at this very moment numberless people are neglecting their eyes. Are you? You will never know until you have the assurance of an eye specialist as to their condition.

Come to "the store with the street clock" for an examination. Be sure of your eyes. If they need attention much damage could be done by delay.

TUSTISON—PETRO

Shades of pink formed the color scheme for the wedding Saturday evening at 6 o'clock at the Wee Kirk o' the Heather when Miss Gemma V. Petro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Petro, of 6801 Miles Ave., became the bride of Harold Tustison, of 11711 Peach Street, Lynwood.

The bride, who approached the altar on the arm of her father, wore a picturesque frock of pink organza with ruffled skirt and ruffled cape. Her turban and face veil were of pale pink and she carried a bouquet of pink roses, gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Eleanor Petro, her sister, gowed in pink organza with cape cape collar and ruffles, was the maid of honor. Her bouquet was of pink sweet peas and roses. The only bridesmaid, Lee Russo, wore pink organza with ruffled skirt and carried a bouquet similar to Miss Petro's.

Little Beverly Erwin, in pink net with a wreath of Cecil Brunner roses in her hair, was the flower girl.

The bridegroom was attended by Charles Covellone as best man, while Edward Petro, brother of the bride, ushered.

The ceremony was read by the Rev. Charles Weaver, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, in the presence of 75 guests.

Preceding the rites, Ella Sarka, organist, played "Annie Laurie" and the wedding marches.

Later a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where 150 guests were entertained. The home was decorated with palms and flowers, and a three-tiered wedding cake formed the centerpiece for the table where refreshments were served.

After a wedding trip in the northern part of the state, the couple will reside at 6244 Hood Avenue, Huntington Park.

The bride, a graduate of the Huntington Park High School, is well known in the district. The groom was educated and graduated in St. Joe, Indiana, with the class of 1922.—Huntington Park, (California) Signal.

The young couple will visit here next spring with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tustison, and other relatives.

Men are at work on the Bear Creek bridge on the B. & O. They will raise the abutment over a foot from the old level and two new bridges will be put in. The gang will be here for about two months.

Joe Hull is home again after a few days visit with some friends north of St. Joe, the Wall Wasson and A. H. Rinehart families. Lewis Wasson and daughter, of Bucyrus, Ohio, were also guests in the Wasson home.

An attempted robbery was reported for night of July 4th in St. Joe. Screens were cut at the Hull barber shop rear door, the postoffice, and entrance was gained at Hurni's store and some articles taken.

Forty-four persons were present at the annual dinner of the James Draggoo children, held at Eckhart Park, June 30. The event was rather unique due to seven of the children having birthdays in June. The dinner was carry-in and a real visiting party was enjoyed.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

DANNY MEADOW MOUSE IS GLAD HE IS SMALL

IF EVER in all the Great World there was a startled Bear, that one was Buster Bear when Danny Meadow Mouse ran straight at him. Beechnuts were in Buster Bear's mind, sweet little beechnuts and nothing else, when he reached out a great paw to rake over that little pile of leaves. It didn't enter Buster's head that there might be anything but beechnuts under them. So, when Danny Meadow Mouse with a frightened squeak darted out from under Buster's very paw and straight towards him, Buster was so surprised and startled that for a second or two he didn't know what to do.

Now it seemed an absolutely crazy thing for Danny to run straight at Buster, but the truth is it was the wisest thing he could have done. It wasn't wisdom that made him do it. No, indeed, it wasn't wisdom at all. It was just pure fright and nothing else. Danny was so frightened that he didn't have any idea at all where he was running. He just ran, that was all. And because he happened to be facing Buster Bear he ran straight at him.

Now if he had run away from Buster things might not have turned out at all as they did. Buster would have seen just where he went and the instant he recovered from his surprise would have been after him. As it was, Danny darted right under Buster's big paw and right across the toes of one of Buster's big hind feet. Buster is a big fellow and he looks clumsy, but he isn't nearly as clumsy as he looks. In fact, Buster isn't clumsy at all. He is surprisingly quick in his movements for such a big fellow. The instant he recovered from his surprise at the sudden appearance of Danny Meadow Mouse, Buster whirled about. A fat Meadow Mouse would go splendidly with those sweet beechnuts he had eaten.

But by the time Buster had turned about Danny had darted behind a big tree and there he stopped. He stopped because he didn't know which way to go. It happens that that was the wisest thing he could have done. You see, if he had continued to run he would have rustled the dry leaves and Buster would have known just where he was. But because he stopped as he did there was nothing to tell Buster which way he had gone.

For once in his life Danny Meadow Mouse was glad he was little. Right then he would have been glad to be smaller than he was. Many, many times he had wished he was big, but now he was very, very thankful that he wasn't. Had he been big, as big, let us say, as Peter Rabbit, the chances are that he wouldn't have been able to slip out from under Buster's big paw as he had done. He was glad that he was little. Yes, indeed, Danny Meadow Mouse was glad that he was little.

Mother's Cook Book

SUMMER MEALS

DURING the warm weather is the time to let down on all unnecessary work so that mother may have a little vacation as well. Informal serving—letting the youngsters do the work—it will be a change from school work, and it is a good thing to train them to do all kinds of household tasks. The girls, of course, are expected to have this training before they go into their own homes, or how will they know how to deal with household matters and spend the money given to them for the upkeep of the home? Boys, too, should begin early to learn how to cook simple foods, be able to make a good cup of coffee, prepare a crisp piece of toast, and serve a well-cooked egg. These accomplishments are not only helpful but often necessary in cases of illness or absence of the housewife.

It is not always easy or agreeable for a good housekeeper to turn over the work to her children, but it is most gratifying in results. Now is the time to serve the meals on the porch or in the garden; the young folks will enjoy taking the extra steps and the novelty will serve to delight the whole family.

Serve breakfast buffet style as the English do. Everybody has a few covered dishes to keep things hot, and with hot coffee and toast, one may make a fine breakfast. Scrambled eggs, sliced bacon, sausages—even hot griddle cakes or waffles may be made on the porch.

A perfect picnic is one where everybody does his share of the work and mother has the rest—from work.

A ripe banana with a glass of good milk is sufficient luncheon for a light meal.

Bananas as fruit are used so frequently that it is hardly necessary to mention how well they serve in salads. Peel a banana, roll in chopped nuts and lay on a lettuce leaf or in a nest of water cress. Serve with a rose of mayonnaise. The banana should be dipped into french dressing to moisten it before rolling it in crumbs; this adds a special zest to it.

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

In our little town there has started a movement which is called "The Own Your Own Home Movement." Can you tell me what this is and why it is called a Building-Loan Scheme?

Truly Yours,
ANN APARTMENT.

Answer: The idea is a simple one. The building companies advance the money to build you a house and you pay them so much money every month. By the time you have become absolutely disgusted and dissatisfied with the place, it is yours.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Yesterday I happened to be on the East Side, and just as I passed two men, I heard one man say, in a loud voice, "I'm a brick." In an instant the other chap punched him in the jaw and layed him flat in the sidewalk. How do you account for that?

Sincerely,
U. WOOD RUNTOO.

Answer: One man said he was a brick, and the other fellow must have been a bricklayer.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I took my first trip to Chinatown and the Bowery last Sunday. The funniest thing I think I ever saw was a sign in front of a Chinatown hotel which read, "Rooms 50c and 55c." Now what could possibly be the difference between a 50c room and a 55c room?

Truly yours,
I. TOOKABUS.

Answer: They put mouse traps in the 55c rooms.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I just received a letter from a friend of mine in which he says he intends coming clean from Denver, Colo., to New York on a bicycle. Do you believe he can do it?

Truly yours,
HANSEN FEET.

Answer: He can come that far on a bicycle, but not clean.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Two friends of mine left yesterday on a camping trip. As they left me I noticed that each one had a stone jug in his hand. They told me they were taking them along to use for their pillows. Don't you think stone jugs are rather hard things to sleep on?

Truly yours,
MARY N. JUNE.

Answer: Your friends probably intend filling the jugs with straw to make them soft.

SOMEBODY SAID A LOVING WORD

By ANNE CAMPBELL

SOMEBODY said a loving word!
The dark skies turned to blue.
Upon Hope's harp-strings brave tunes stirred,
And every aim was true.

Somebody spoke a thought that made
Into a kindly one,
And pathways opened to my gaze.
That led me to the sun.

Somebody spoke a thought that made
The gloomy outlook fair,
And scattered light where there was shade,
And gladness everywhere!

Mining, to be successful even in a small degree, requires knowledge of geology, metallurgy and experience, which cannot be acquired in a short space of time.

Plants Stimulated by New Chemical Compound

"Auxin" is a word destined to be bandied about like "hormone" and "vitamin." For auxin has an extraordinary effect on plant growth. Cut off the tip of an oat sprout and growth ceases. Apply a trace of auxin—it can be extracted from the cut tip—and growth is resumed. Rub auxin on one side of the sprout and growth occurs only on that side.

Interested in such experiments as he was, A. E. Hitchcock, working at the Boyce Thompson institute for plant research, decided to experiment with a commercially available compound known as indole-3-n-propionic acid, and this for the reason that the compound is chemically similar to auxin. He found no difficulty in making the leaves and stems of tomato, marigold, buckwheat and tobacco plants bend. A little of the chemical caused a bending away from the point of application, and much chemical, toward the point of application.

Carbon monoxide, ethylene, acetylene and propylene—all gases—brought about similar responses. This naturally raises questions. What happens to the plant when it is smeared or treated with gases? Why should such widely different chemicals and gases produce the same results? Can it be that all have just one common active agent? If so, what is it? And what is its relation to life processes?—New York Times.

Simplicity and Chic in Morning

PATTERN 9316

It's as fresh as the morning dew! And it was designed for all those clever women who like to put in a smart appearance at the very beginning of every new day. Three or four dresses made up by this pattern would solve all your house frock problems. And the expense will prove trifling. Moreover, this pattern has been designed so simply that to follow it will seem like a first lesson in sewing. The yoke and sleeves all-in-one with a bit of bodice fullness below, and the decorative pocket make this frock very smart indeed! Percale or gingham in gay plaids or small geometric designs would be effective. Add nobby cork or wooden buttons.

Pattern 9316 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards 36-inch fabric.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, Diagrammed Sew Chart included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth street, New York.

Novelty's the Word for Swim Suits

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

JUST what, do you suppose, "are the wild waves saying" in regard to the whimsical, colorful and sometimes amusing water sports fashions which are so merrily splashing, dashing, swimming, bathing, diving and floating and frolicing in ocean blue, or lake or river or new fangled swimming pool or wherever enthusiastic water fans happen to be?

Well, one thing is certain, if they are saying anything, they are undoubtedly holding an exciting conversation as to the trend to novelty which is so outstandingly characteristic of the latest in swim and beach suits. This is especially true in regard to media and materials, which are that novel they deny the theory that there is nothing new under the sun.

There's lace, for instance, which as a charming innovation, so far as bathing suits are concerned, has set the fashion world aburz this season. Dikusha, a youthful French designer of renown, conceived the idea. The lace makers obligingly followed along with a fabric that could be used with assured modesty and pleasing effect. Comfortable to swim in, attractive in appearance, lace threatens to be a leader in the race for beachwear popularity. In the picture, the suit to the left is fashioned of lace of firm dependable quality. Even the bathing clogs are of lace, closely woven and snug-fitting.

Another sensation is the debut of velvet as medium for the bathing suit. Of course the velvet has been processed to resist the ravages of water. Then, too, it is crinkled instead of smooth and shakes out and dries, moisture injuring its appearance not in the least. See the velvet suit pictured in the center of the group.

Knits will prove grand choices. While there is nothing new in the idea of the bathing suit which is knitted yet there is everything new in knitted effects as brought out this season. Their chief claim to novelty is in the daring and bizarre colorings and patterned effects instead of plain solid tones. The new print or jacquard knits are so spectacular that they easily add as much color to the beach panorama as do the gaily striped parasols and deck chairs.

The style tide in knitted suits is running strongly to the maillot, or skirtless swim suit, because it permits the greatest freedom of action and exposes a maximum of skin surface to healthful sun rays. Maillots are also most flattering to fine figures, which is another argument in their favor. A smart version of the maillot, in a jacquard knit with a deep U-back, halter neck and the fitted uplift (characteristic of the majority of 1935 suits) is shown to the right in the illustration. Huge bubble dots, alternating outline and solid, contribute splotches of striking color to its patterning. Among the beguiling combinations are white dots on a skipper blue ground, sulphur yellow on brown, rouge on glory blue and white on tropic green.

Many fashionwise water-fans will do their swimming and sunsoaking in skirtless or skirted, if you so prefer, one-piece suits which have backs formed by adjustable straps drawn together at the back in a ring or some other ingenious and attractive device surrounding the waist as a self belt, carelessly tied at the front to give the smart and casual touch.

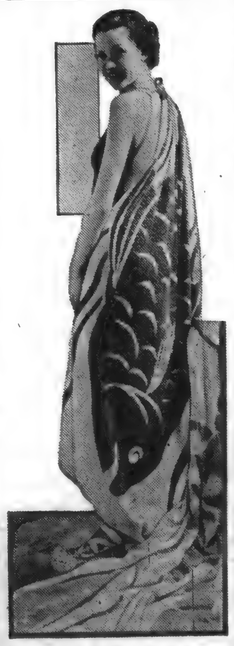
BEACH TOWEL WRAP

By CHERIE NICHOLAS



Immense bath towels with fantastic designs, fish, lobsters, and palm trees being their decorative motifs done in eye-appealing colors are being used at leading summer resorts as rugs and beach wraps. The picture shows how smartly and artfully they wrap themselves about scanty bathing suits. Measuring 88 by 72 inches as they do, these enormous bath-and-beach towels serve as ample rugs on sandy shores, lending color and tone to the scene.

NEWEST STYLES IN OUTFITS FOR BEACH

From tailored severity to lacy laziness, the newest beach clothes range, with in-between numbers of quaint pastoral quality and daring modern themes.

There's a gay nineties air about a swim suit of polka-dotted red lastex woolen with white ruffles around the top and bottom, and forming the shoulder straps, which cross in the back.

Then there is the English schoolboy outfit, so popular with beach lollers this season, which usually consists of tailor shorts and shirt of navy or polka-dotted twill, a matching ascot and a tailored white pique or linen jacket.

The Bavarian note is with us, too, in pastoral beach frocks of flowered glazed chintz, with lace bodices and sometimes even milkmaid aprons.

There is the Tyrolean trend, in gay chintz shirts and skirt-length slacks, with suspenders and gay belts. You wear these with a plumed Alpine hat.

Summer Prints Are Using Flowers as Big as Plates

Prints splashed with the biggest figures Paris has ever used—flowers the size of a large dinner plate—are next on the summer style scene.

Black or white crepes printed with huge plate-sized yellow and green sunflowers fashion slender gowns whose hemlines and trains are encircled by diagonal flounces. Their tops are sometimes without shoulder straps, leaving shoulders and back bare, the decollete often rimmed by a big ruche of the flowers cut from the material and strung with loops of horsehair ribbon. More prints, this time patterned in saucer-sized tulips, fashion other gowns cut along similar lines.

Gaudy Ornaments

Ornaments for afternoon and evening wear are gaudy and often introduce a contrasting color. Quaint jewelled belts are daring and sometimes have bracelets or other ornaments to match.

Still Love and Romance in Life

Proof of Inherent Nobility of Mankind Seen in Everyday Life.

"Hollywood—Sitting up on her portable bed, Margherita Rouse, an invalid, became the wife of Chester Conklin, film comedian. The marriage ceremony was read in St. Alban's church here.

"The unusual romance began two years ago when Miss Rouse, bedridden by arthritis for 23 years, was brought to Mr. Conklin's house with a score of other invalids for a concert.

"Soon after they met, Conklin suggested that Miss Rouse try again to become well. Her case is responding to treatments and she is now able to sit up and use her hands. Their physician predicts she will be walking within a year.

"Miss Rouse is forty-one years old; Mr. Conklin, forty-six."

Exultingly, a noted woman writer draws these conclusions from the foregoing:

"I read that news item just after leaving a group of women who were disgusted with life. They were disillusioned with the thought of nobility in human beings. They laughed at the ideas of love and romance. Romance, they said, was dead, and all love today a matter of self-interest.

"Most of our readers doubtless have their times of doubt about all those things, for it is easier to prove human selfishness and greed than to show examples of the inherent nobility in men and women. An economic depression is not the soil in which romance flowers where all who run may read, and modern sophistication has even given new connotation to the word 'love.'

"That is why I feel that nothing I could ever say to my readers would be as worthwhile as passing on that story of the forty-one-year-old invalid who became the bride of a well-known movie actor. Those facts have a message more potent than anything words could say."

YOU ALWAYS GET BETTER QUALITY
AT NO HIGHER PRICE WHEN YOU BUY A FIRESTONE TIRE WITH FIRESTONE NAME AND GUARANTEE

TIRES may look alike on the outside, but on the inside where blowouts start, they are different. Firestone Tires are made blowout-proof by Gum-Dipping, a patented extra process which soaks every cotton cord and insulates every strand with pure liquid rubber. In fact, every 100 pounds of cotton cords absorb eight additional pounds of liquid rubber. This special process prevents internal friction and heat, the main cause of blowouts. No other make of tire is Gum-Dipped, yet you pay no more for Firestone blowout-proof protection than you are asked to pay for tires built without this patented safety construction feature.

The make of tires you buy for your car becomes a matter of vital importance when you realize that there were 882,000 automobile accidents in 1934 injuring 954,000 people and killing 36,000 and that 43,000 of these accidents were caused by blowouts, punctures and skidding.

Firestone High Speed Gum-Dipped Tires hold all world records on road and track for safety, speed, mileage and endurance. These records emphasize the undisputed evidence that Firestone Tires are not only blowout-proof but give greatest protection against skidding.

THERE ARE THREE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS THAT WILL SOLVE YOUR PROBLEM OF WHAT TIRES TO BUY

1 "Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"

Recent tests by a leading University show that Firestone High Speed Non-Skid Tires stop a car 15% quicker than any other of the leading makes.

For eight consecutive years Firestone Tires have been on the winning car in the dangerous Pike's Peak Race where a skid means death. This is undisputed evidence that Firestone gives car owners greatest protection against skidding.

2 "Are they blowout-proof?"

Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have the most amazing records for being blowout-proof of any tires ever built. In the gruelling 500-Mile Race at Indianapolis, May 30th, every one of the 33 cars was equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. Kelly Petillo won the race and broke the record over this 26-year-old rough brick track without tire trouble—in fact, not one of the 33 drivers had tire trouble of any kind.

Ab Jenkins drove his 5,000 pound car on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires over the hot salt beds of Utah, 3,000 miles in 23½ hours, at an average speed of 127.2 miles per hour, with temperatures as high as 120°, without tire trouble of any kind. These are most amazing proofs of blowout protection ever known.

3 "Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy!"

Firestone High Speed Tires not only give you more than 50% longer wear, but also lowest cost per mile. This is made possible by the tough, wear-resisting tread built with higher shoulders and a wider, flatter contour. This thick, rugged, scientifically designed tread is held securely to the Gum-Dipped cord body by Firestone's patented construction of two extra layers of cords under the tread. This is a special construction feature not used in any other tire. Unequaled mileage records by thousands of car owners add undisputed evidence of the longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.

1 University tests show Firestone High Speed Tires stop cars 15 to 25% quicker.

2 Gum-Dipped cords give greater blowout protection. Gum-Dipping is not used in other tires.

3 Wider, flatter tread gives more than 50% longer non-skid wear.

CHANGES URGED IN BANKING BILL

Business Men and Bankers Agree in Objecting to Political Control Over Banks.

AMENDMENTS ARE SUGGESTED

Political Domination of Federal Reserve Board Declared to Be Undesirable for Depositors as Well as Their Banks.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Business men and bankers alike who have appeared before committees of Congress to present views regarding the Banking Act of 1935 have found common cause for criticism in those provisions which they agree would create the means for undesirable political control over the Federal Reserve System and thereby over individual banks throughout the United States. They have made the point that this undesirable condition would affect depositors in banks even more than the banks themselves.

This view has been stressed in criticisms by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and the question of partisan control over banking was the central theme of a statement presented by R. S. Hecht, President of the American Bankers Association, who appeared before the Senate Sub-Committee on Banking and Currency hearings here. Mr. Hecht declared that his organization is actuated by a desire to be helpful to Congress "in enacting effective and workable banking legislation in the interests of all our people." He said in part:

"If it is finally decided that it is necessary to carry this legislation through at this session, we are strongly of the opinion that special care should be taken to keep our credit control and banking mechanism free from any sort of political considerations.

"In making this statement I do not wish to appear to question the propriety of the Government's exerting a certain amount of control over banking operations so far as they affect the nation's currency and general monetary policy. Nor do we object to broad powers of supervision over the operation of our banking institutions because of the semi-public responsibilities they carry. But when it comes to such matters as the granting of credit and the making of investments by our banks, these are questions of business policies that surely should not be under the sole control of a board so constituted as to be dependent upon partisan or political considerations under any administration.

The Basis of Sound Credit

"The real conditions that create the necessity for the expansion or contraction of credit arise from the needs of agriculture, industry and trade themselves, wholly independent of the administrative policies of the party which happens to be in power. We feel that the financial requirements of the nation's business constitute a continuing economic process that is not related to political changes. The fundamental principles of sound credit do not vary with variations in public thought. All experience teaches that the quality of credit is sound only so long as it is based purely on the requirements of sound business. It is not sound when any other considerations or motives enter into its composition.

"The Banking Act would centralize in the Federal Reserve Board at Washington means aimed to control the supply of money in the country, which term includes the sum total of currency in circulation and demand deposits in the banks which become current through checks. The powers which it is proposed to give the Board are intended to enable it to influence the quantity of this deposit money through open market operations, the discount rate and reserve requirements.

The Need for Independence

"That is the reason why we are so strongly in favor of making the Federal Reserve Board a body of such independence and prestige that it would be definitely removed from all political thought, influence and dictation. Its members should be free to study and to act in accordance with the needs and conditions of agriculture, industry and trade. The policies of the board should have no reference to the politics or the changes in politics of the national administration.

"In our studies of the bank bill, we have been strongly impressed with the fact that it would set up a situation under which the Federal Reserve Board and its policies might be subject to control from the political administration of the country. In saying this I do not charge that it is the intention of the present administration to bring about any undue control over the nation's banking mechanism. The point is that if the bill passed as now proposed, opportunity for control would be there for the use of the present or whatever future administration might be in power.

"Our criticisms of the bill are not aimed, therefore, at the motives of the present administration, but they are wholly impersonal and non-political and are aimed entirely at the basic principles involved."

Desirable Changes Proposed

Careful study by his organization, Mr. Hecht said, had resulted in a number of suggestions for constructive revisions in the bill which he submitted to Congress. On the other hand, he declared that many of the changes proposed by the act in existing laws "are of a constructive nature and should have the support of bankers, if the method of appointment and the tenure of office of the members of the Federal Reserve Board, in whose hands it is planned to concentrate greater power than ever before, could be so altered as to insure, as far as possible, the absolute independence of the Board from partisan or political considerations." He added:

Supreme Court of Banking

"Since the passage of the Federal Reserve Act over 20 years ago, opinion in Congress and among bankers has been striving towards the ideal of making the Federal Reserve Board a body of such independence and prestige that it might be described as the Supreme Court of Finance and Banking. We believe there is greater need now than ever before for realizing this ideal."

R. S. HECHT

Mr. Hecht emphasized that it is "the genuine desire of the banking fraternity to be helpful and constructive in making suggestions in connection with this pending legislation. The changes we are urging are we believe essential to the continued independence of the Federal Reserve System."

"We have made it clear that we do not object to a measure of public control in the national interest for proper coordination of our manifold credit operations," he said, "and we do not believe the sponsors of the legislation desire any political domination over these activities through our Federal Reserve System.

"Under such circumstances we feel that our recommendations should be favorably acted upon because they would enable the reconstructed Federal Reserve Board to function freely as a nonpolitical body actuated only by the dictates of sound financial and economic policies conceived in the interest of all of our people.

"The adoption of our suggestions would both place operation of the Federal Reserve System wholly and distinctly apart from the fluctuations and vicissitudes of political conditions and free from undue influence by banking opinion only. Such a solution would thus have a stabilising and confidence inspiring effect on the entire business situation."

Banks Rapidly Reduce Debt

Although the sum of $1,860,000,000 has been advanced to banks and trust companies by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation since it began operations in February, 1932, down to April 30, 1935, these institutions have repaid no less than $1,340,000,000, or more than 72%. This rate of repayment is reported as being considerably in excess of that made by any other type of borrower.

Loans were authorized by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to 7,396 banks and trust companies in an aggregate amount of $2,850,000,000, but of this sum $345,000,000 was withdrawn or cancelled and $140,000,000 has not yet been taken out by the borrowers.

Simplification of Bank Checks

New York.—In a bulletin issued by the Bank Management Commission of the American Bankers Association, plans are described for carrying on the simplification of bank checks, notes, drafts and similar instruments in respect to size and uniformity of arrangement of subject matter.

Detailed recommendations for this end were formulated by the association about ten years ago, the bulletin says, and promulgated by the United States Department of Commerce among banks, business houses using large numbers of checks, commercial stationers and lithographers. As a result about 85 per cent adherence to the recommendations was brought about. The present bulletin, which describes the standard specifications in full, is issued to maintain this high level of adherence to the recommendations.

National Bank Notes

Changes in our money on the scale of about $800,000,000 are now going on through the retirement of national bank notes. This is reflected in increasing deposits in the Treasury of lawful money to replace bonds held against outstanding notes which will require some time for withdrawal from circulation.

The change in the currency will require a considerable shift of bank funds in many cases, but it is doubtful if so large a volume of currency has ever been retired and replaced in any country with so little disturbance.

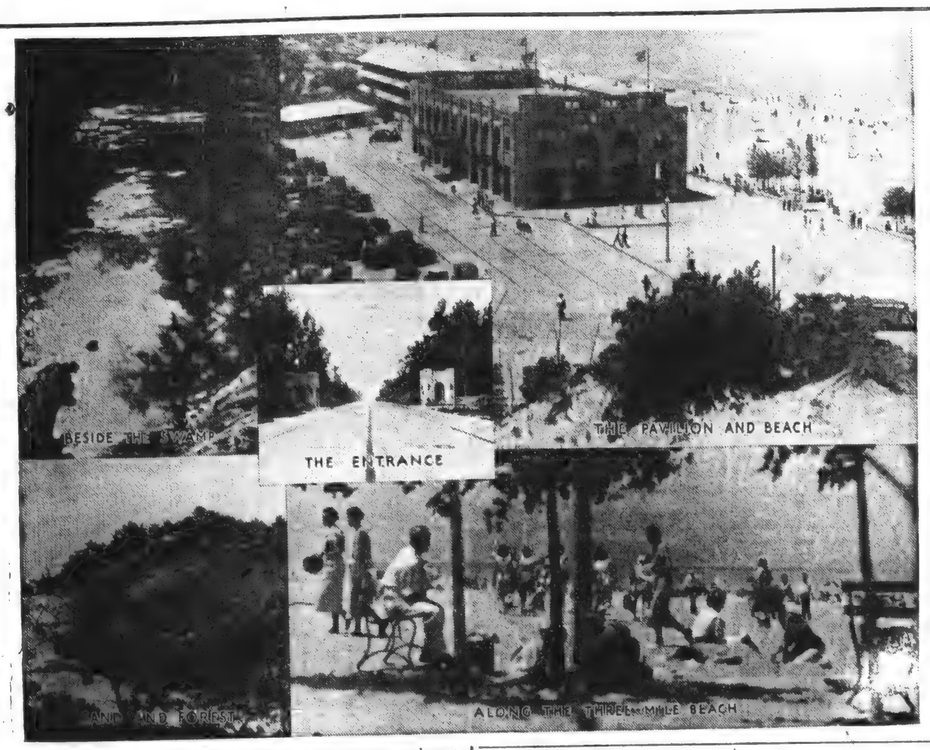
VISIT THE INDIANA DUNES STATE PARK

SWIMMING - HIKING - PICNICKING - CAMPING



To reach Indiana Dunes State Park from St. Joe, take State Road 1 to Eliss, joining No. 20, thence west to Chesterton, thence right to the Park entrance which is on Road 49, near Chesterton. It is 148 miles from St. Joe to the Park.

On the southern shore of Lake Michigan and in the heart of the Calumet area with its dense population, is the Dunes State Park with every attraction of a seashore resort as a weekend outing place or a vacation for the entire family.

One of the major attractions is the three-mile beach bordering the lake, where the white sand and the waves form an incomparable playground. Towering behind the beach are the dunes, majestic mountains of sand which have been formed by the action of waves and wind during the centuries and still subject to the whims of these elemental forces. Back of the dunes lies a forest of nearly a thousand acres, traversed by a network of trails for the convenience of the nature student and containing thousands of species of tree and plant life.

Covenient to the beach and the paved parking area, is the Pavilion where meals are availble, and the Arcade hotel. On the eastern side of the park is Duneside Inn with its cottage quarters for the vacationist. Then too there is an attractive camping area with its cooking ovens, ample supply of pure drinking water, and modern sanitary facilities. A new and enlarged picnic area is equipped with benches and tables, ovens, drinking fountains, and comfort stations, while a grocery with a complete stock of foodstuffs is nearby.

The Dunes is one of Indiana's most unique state parks and leads in the number of visitors registered each season. It was established in 1925 and covers an area of 2,220 acres.

E. S. PRIDDY, WARREN IND., PRESIDENT OF THE INDIANA BOARD OF AGRICULTURE MAKES FOLLOWING STATEMENT

"With general conditions throughout the State of Indiana being better, especially for the farmer, and together with the large amount of cash prizes offered at the Indiana State Fair this year, we are preparing for the greatest Fair in history with the largest attendance ever recorded.

"The Indiana State Fair will be held from August 31st to September 6th. We are offering $114,778.78 in premiums and purses this year, nineteen thousand dollars more than last year.

"Grand Circuit Racing will be one of the main features during Fair Week, with nearly $34,000 in purses. Some of the best racing stakes in the country have been added. Also lovers of saddle horses will have an opportunity to view in the Coliseum one of the finest Horse Shows in America, with $18,750 in premiums.

"Every space in the Machinery Field has been sold, and we are expecting the largest number of exhibits ever assembled in the Manufacturers Building, as I understand more space has been sold to date, than was sold last year at the opening of the Fair.

"The above mentioned features, together with many more, make the coming Fair a real exposition. We are having 125,000 tickets printed and will place them on sale in advance of the Fair, at 25c each. If you wish to purchase tickets at this special price, you better place your order early, as there will be no more at this price after this amount has been sold. Last year, 100,000 tickets were sold in advance and could have sold several thousand additional tickets.

"As president of the 1935 Indiana State Fair, I am extending a cordial invitation to both farmers and city folks and hope they will have an opportunity to spend at least one or two days attending this coming Fair—August 31 to September 6th."

The Dressel family, of Holgate, Ohio, are visiting in the Carleton Shull and Max Dressel homes a few days.

SPORTING NEWS

VALLEY TEAM WINS

The recently organized St. Joe Valley Semi-Pros defeated Garrett there Sunday, by the score of 5-2, behind good pitching by John Dilley, who also contributed a very timely three-base hit in the seventh inning to help win his own ball game.

The Valley team has played only two games thus far and are playing away from home until the first of August when the St. Joe field will be in shape for playing. By coming out victors last Sunday, the Semi-Pros evened their percentage and are hoping to have a very creditable average when they appear before the home-town folks against Garrett on Sunday, August 5th.

The line-up is composed of: Woodcox, 1st base; Coburn, 2nd; Stewart, 3rd; Simanton, SS; Collins, Monroe, Siebel, and Richmond, out fielders; Kinsey, Catched, and Dilley, Pitcher, with Stewart also filling the role of relief pitcher.

All players are comparatively young and so are displaying a fast brand of ball which can be witnessed by anyone accompanying the team to the County Line Diamond located on Road 427 south of Auburn, next Sunday, July 21. Your support is needed and will be appreciated.

HIGHER TAX LEVIES IN DEKALB COUNTY

A forecast of higher tax levies in practically every local unit of DeKalb county for the year 1936 except the schools was made Friday by County Auditor Frank E. Lyon.

The increases will be due chiefly to mounting poor relief expenditures. The law provides for levies to pay the deficits owed the county and these debts have grown greatly in the last year.

The higher assessment of personal property will help the situation only a trifle, as the increase in valuation is less than 5 per cent. This raise was a development of better market prices this spring for grain and livestock.

Mr. Lyon is preparing estimates of valuations for the use of the various units in preparing their annual levies. The officers of the units will get their budgets ready in time to give legal notice next month and the levies will be made early in September. The budgets and the levies will be reviewed by the county tax adjustment board.

Real estate was not reassessed this year. The total lands, lots and improvements is $7,157,680. The number of acres of land is 227,237 and the average assessment of lands and improvements is $44.97 an acre.

BIDS DEFIANCE TO HOT WEATHER

PATTERN 2319

The hot weather brings us to the problem every woman of generous proportions must cope with—how to keep cool and fresh looking on those wilting days? Well—Looking Cool goes a long way, and pattern 2319, with its loose, easy cape sleeve, soft treated waistline gives you a mighty cool outlook on life. And very flattering, too, are the graceful folds of the cape that does wonders to equalize proportions. The darts over the bust and at the waistline cleverly contrive to avoid a too-fitted look at the strategical points. Pick a summery printed voile or other sheer.

Pattern 2319 is available in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 3¾ yards 39 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York.

CHINA STARTS BIG WAR ON OPIUM EVIL

Hopes for Complete Eradication in Five Years.

Tientsin.—The deadline for the eradication of the opium evil in China has been fixed as 1940 by Gen. Chiang Kai-shek in a set of new regulations governing the production, distribution and use of the poppy product.

The first step in the program is the careful registration of all opium growers, distributors and smokers by provincial authorities within a period of six months, with severe penalties to be inflicted upon those who fail to complete this task.

Poppy planting is to be prohibited in the eastern provinces, but permitted in the frontier provinces under regulations which provide for gradual decrease of production until completely eradicated in 1940. Opium then may be manufactured and distributed only by registered and authorized agencies.

To Treat Addicts.

Transportation will be intrusted solely to the opium suppression supervisory board, and will be stored only in government supervised warehouses. Opium dealers will be registered and gradually suppressed. Clinics for cure of the habit will be established throughout the country.

The provinces, municipalities and hsiens will organize official committees to supervise the task. They will be responsible to provincial authorities, who will be responsible to Chiang.

A visit by the correspondent to one of the numerous narcotic treatment clinics now being operated by Chinese authorities gave a clew to the strenuous efforts being made to eradicate the illicit use of narcotic drugs.

Hundreds of these institutions are being opened by the government and provincial authorities quietly and without publicity. The Tientsin Narcotic Treatment center maintained by the Chinese administration in this city may be taken as a typical institution.

Volunteer Patients.

About 300 patients can be accommodated in the center, and additional wards are being rushed to completion. Approximately 50 per cent of the patients voluntarily submitted themselves for the cure.

Each patient is tattooed with a special mark indicating he has taken the cure. If later he is caught using the drugs again he is shot. Excuses and alibis are futile. Patients are impressed with the deadly seriousness of the government's intention to stamp out the narcotic menace. They are warned that they sign their own death warrants by using the narcotic a second time.

Mongol Chiefs Forsake Ponies for Racing Cars

Peiping.—Princely descendants of Genghis Kahn no longer gallop across their steppeland domains in Inner Mongolia on wiry, shaggy Mongol ponies.

Mongol princes today are, as a rule, too stout to enjoy such energetic and vigorous travel. But the real reason is that nine out of ten of these prairie noblemen prefer the speed and comfort of their American-built automobiles.

The makes and models of those royal conveyances vary widely. The eccentric ruler of one minor banner owns one of the prize exhibits, a model of the early 20s. Unlike his more patrician fellow-princes, Prince Ma usually drives himself. The start of one of his royal progresses is a sight worth watching. The battery having gone long ago, Prince Ma's ancient vehicle is always started by being pushed across the prairie by a half-dozen of his ragged, colorful bodyguard. The prince snaps the switch, the motor spits and backfires, then with a grin as it catches, Prince Ma clatters on his way.

Other princes have more up-to-date cars, some sporting even the latest 1935 streamline models. High Lama dignitaries also usually travel from monastery to monastery in their own sedans, gifts of devout princes or purchased with contributions from Mongol worshipers.

Gasoline is an ever-present problem. The princes maintain their own dumps, usually brought in by camel caravan.

Iowa Pig Has Two Mouths and Eats Well With Both

Oelwein, Iowa.—C. A. Cummings, farmer living four miles northwest of here, has a pig he would like to sell to a museum. The freak porker has an oversized head, three eyes and two perfectly matched snouts and noses.

The pig can eat with either mouth, Cummings said. Physically, it is perfect, except for the super-abundance of noses and snouts, according to its owner.

Fireman, Save My Hide, Moos Bossy Amidst Bees

Bloomington, Ill.—A fire hose saved the hide of a cow on a farm near here. Bossy, tethered to a tree, dragged against three beehives and upset them. The bees swarmed up. Her terrific bellowing brought the fire department with a pumper into action. They played a hose of water on the bees, finally washing the cow free of them after she had been stung almost to death.

Magpies Slaughtered

Boise, Idaho.—The state game department ended a 30-day drive to exterminate magpies, with an estimated death toll of 150,000 birds.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Instead of going to the theater or the movies, many New Yorkers now spend entire evenings in broadcasting studios. For a complete evening, planning and forethought are necessary since so many of the broadcasts are so popular that requests for tickets must be made well in advance of the desired date despite the fact that some of the studios seat 1,400 persons. Also it is not possible to enjoy a continuous show since the visitor cannot get from one studio to another in time, especially since the tickets are not goood later than 15 minutes before the broadcast. But the breaks serve the same purpose as do intermissions in the legitimate theater and are specially welcomed by smokers since smoking is forbidden in the studios and ushers are on hand to enforce the rule.

Many out-of-towners are included among the broadcast audiences. Not only are there those who obtain their own tickets, but also many whose tickets have been obtained for them by New Yorkers. It is a thrifty way to entertain guests, as the tickets cost nothing. Also the visitors get a kick out of seeing in the flesh those whom they hear at their own firesides. Not infrequently, stage stars appear on the programs and thus, there is double return for the time expended. One out-of-towner on a recent evening, saw and heard stars, who, if seen from a theater seat, would have necessitated an expenditure of about $20 at box office prices. On occasions, stage stars are to be seen in the audiences.

Autograph collectors find the studios excellent hunting grounds. As a rule, the stars are ready to sign as many cards as possible. Ed Wynn is the most accommodating of all. He usually doesn't get out of the studio for more than an hour after his broadcast. Rudy Vallee sneaks away by means of some unwatched elevator. Joe Cook gets out the quickest of all. He makes his exit during the sign off.

Strolling along Fifty-eighth street, I had the chilling sensation of seeing what looked like a truck load of headless human bodies. Investigation revealed the fact that they weren't bodies—just dummies for use in store windows. That reminds me that a retired actress makes a living of sorts by bathing dummies and renewing their make-up.

Then there's Hal Conklin. He plays the part of the body in "If a Body," a current thriller with laughs. He certainly earns his money. Not long after the first curtain, he is crammed into a closet. He falls out of that as well as several windows. He is stuffed into a truck and carried downstairs to the cellar where he is buried under a pile of coal. After being all but thrust into a furnace, he is taken back to the closet. At the conclusion of the play, he looks as if he suffers a lot for his art.

Persistent people, the Finns. There was the servant girl who was defrauded out of her life savings, $1,000, by three slickers. She didn't know their names but she did know that one of the men had a big red nose. So she kept hunting for that nose—and found it. Now three young men are in jail and the police say they have the gang who made a practice of swindling Finnish working girls.

Chicken Rides Rods on 100-Mile Rail Journey

Bellefontaine, Ohio.—Big Four railroad employees, who watched a hen "ride the rods" of a caboose in the railroad yards here recently, thought she might be bumming her way back to Rhode Island. The chicken, according to Conductor C. O. Heilman, hung on for more than 100 miles en route to Cleveland, but hopped off at Rockport, Ohio, to look around.

Girl's Life Saved by Daring Surgery

Prague.—All Czechoslovakia is thrilled by a daring piece of surgery by which a beautiful girl, shot through the head by a jealous sweetheart, was restored to life.

Dr. Anton Timko performed the operation on Franziska Csernos.

The bullet pierced the forehead and penetrated the skull.

Doctor Timko trepanned the skull, removed the bullet and stopped the bleeding.

Franziska recovered ten days after the operation and has now been released from the hospital. This is the first time on record in Europe that such an operation has succeeded.

Common Duty to Wage Warfare on House Fly

Effort to change the name of the common house fly to typhoid fly is the motive behind a movement started by Dr. L. O. Howard, government entomologist.

The name, house fly," is too tame. The fly is accepted as a nuisance, but not considered as the dangerous insect it is. Government health authorities have proved that the common flies that buzz about homes and kitchens carry bacteria which can infect human beings with at least a dozen diseases in addition to typhoid.

Doctor Howard states, "Even if the fly were a creature difficult to destroy, the failure on the part of people to make any effort to reduce its number could properly be termed criminal neglect. As it is now an easy matter to do away with flies, this neglect becomes an evidence of ignorance. . . . It is the duty of every individual to guard against the occurrence of flies upon his premises."

As Doctor Howard says, it is no longer difficult to rid a house of flies. A reliable fly killer when sprayed in a fine mist is the most effective method of ridding the house of flies and other insects.

LET US MAKE YOUR VACATION TRIP SAFER

BEFORE you start on your vacation trip, let us completely inspect your car. There is no charge for this service and it will assure you of a safer and more enjoyable trip.

For the convenience and safety of car owners Firestone has established more than 500 Auto Supply and Service Stores throughout the country, and thousands of Firestone Dealers are also equipped with complete Auto Supplies and complete Service Departments, to test and service your tires, brakes, batteries, spark plugs, in addition to power lubrication and crank case service.

AVOID THE DANGER OF BLOWOUTS

Firestone removes the danger of blowouts by preventing their main cause—internal friction and heat. This is accomplished by Gum-Dipping.

THERE ARE THREE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS THAT WILL SOLVE YOUR PROBLEM OF WHAT TIRES TO BUY:

1 "Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"

— Recent tests by a leading University show that Firestone High Speed Non-Skid Tires stop a car 15% quicker than any other of the leading makes.

For eight consecutive years Firestone Tires have been on the winning car in the dangerous Pike's Peak Race where a skid means death.

2 "Are they blowout-proof?"

—Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have the most amazing records for being blowout-proof of any tires ever built. In the gruelling 500-Mile Race at Indianapolis, May 30th, every one of the 33 cars was equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. Not one of the 33 drivers had tire trouble of any kind.

Ab Jenkins drove his 5,000 pound car on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires over the hot salt beds of Utah, 3,000 miles, averaging 127.2 miles per hour, with temperatures as high as 120°, without tire trouble of any kind.

3 "Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

— Firestone High Speed Tires not only give you more than 50% longer wear, but also lowest cost per mile. In fact, unequaled mileage records of thousands of car owners add undisputed evidence of the longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.

Equip your car with a set of Firestone Gum-Dipped Non-Skid Tires, the safest tires ever built and avoid the dangers of skidding and blowouts.

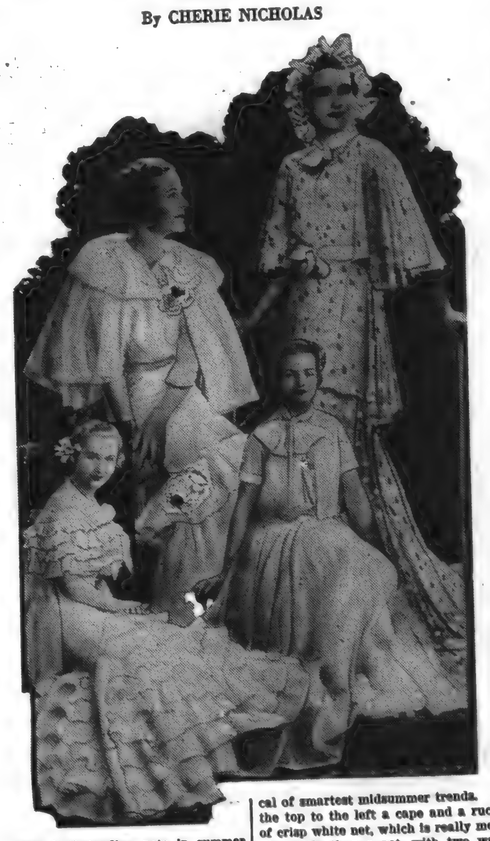
White Sheers Keynote Summer Chic

By CHERIE NICHOLAS



THE forthstanding note in summer fashions is the increased interest in femininity. Wherefore the glory of diaphanous materials of rapturous loveliness once more, as in the picturesque days of old, hold sway in the realm of pretty summery apparel. Everywhere dotted swisses, embroidered or plain organdies and nets, chiffons and dainty sheers of multi-type flatter the summer landscape. The call for white is insistent in these weaves of elusive ethereal beauty with new and delectable colors putting forth rival claims.

First and foremost among the new sheers is mousseline de soie. The important message about these voguish mousselines is that modern science has succeeded in producing a washable type—comes from a tubbing as fresh and lovely as ever was. Every woman who heretofore lamented the fact of the un-washability of the exquisite mousselines which are so dear to her heart will rejoice at the good tidings that there is a new mousseline de soie which actually can be laundered.

And here's some more good news—a mousseline de soie which is shadow-patterned in self-color. You'll love it! Makes up adorably over a taffeta foundation. Comes in white or pastels, with first honors going, however, to white, since white keynotes to summer chic. For that "one more" party frock to add to your summer collection, why not choose plain or shadow-patterned mousseline de soie?

The lovely, white frothy, filmy, vaporous frocks in the picture are typical of smartest midsummer trends. At the top to the left a cape and a ruche of crisp white net, which is really more of a tulle than a net, with two waxwhite camellias, lend enchantment to a gown of the same tulle posed over white moire. A cluster of camellias snuggle in among the tulle flounces of the skirt.

The young girl seated below is wearing a darling ingenue gown. For this dainty frock Chanel uses yards and yards of ruffles edged with fine val lace on the cape and skirt of white mousseline de soie.

The pretty creature sitting opposite is gowned in finest of cotton net. The bodice top is modishly shirred. The bolero of matching net ties with a big casual bow at the throat. The voluminous skirt is the very picture of grace, walking, dancing or sitting down. There is a belt trimmed with gold kid leaves with garland to match in her hair.

Speaking of embroidered net, for a party frock which goes formal, who could think of anything more entrancing than the ensemble worn by the charming girl standing to the right in the group! Dots embroidered in delicate bonbon colors, pink blue and yellow, look confetti-like on their sheer white background. Pink satin ribbons tie the throat and the waist. In the graceful matching wrap with full cape sleeves, Mainbocher revives the "fascinator fashion" which is making a big hit with debutantes this season. The dainty tulle hood frames the face with an aureole of crisp little ruffles. It can be thrown back off the head with perfect ease.

FOR GARDEN PARTY

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Quaint, old timey frocks are new fashion for garden party wear. This one is of white mousseline de soie (a favorite fabric this summer). It is piped with mulberry. The broad-brimmed violet colored bally bunti hat is flowered in violet shades matching the corsage bouquet. It is a very pretty custom which has been revived—that of wearing flowers to match the posies on one's hat. Imagine a soft white straw encircled with a wreath of real African daisies about your neck mounted on a velvet ribbon or a stiff old-fashioned bouquet posed at the front of a navy straw sailor, with a matching boutonniere in your buttonhole. And here is the real thrill to this story—the very fashionable set is wearing real flowers in this way, fresh plucked from the garden or the florist shop.

FROG FASTENINGS USED EXTENSIVELY

Frogs have hopped into the middle of the fashion swim this season.

Frog fastenings are used on everything from evening gowns to summer suits, and lend an opportunity for original color contrasts and a new casual air for more or less formal costumes.

Time was when the field of the frog fastening was limited to pajamas, but that time is no more.

You'll be seeing them on the newest shirtwaist frocks this season, on suits of wool and linen, on blouses and summer coats, on beach frocks and evening gowns.

Schiaparelli uses gold frog fastenings down the front of a green dinner gown, in a manner both decorative and military.

Evening gowns often employ one huge frog fastening at the neckline, and lightweight woolen coats for summer are shown with frogs all the way down the front.

London Fashions of 1910 Influencing U. S. Styles

Fashions of 1910, arriving via London and the silver jubilee, are influencing the styles of 1935 in the United States.

Flowers, feathers, silk ribbons, laces, lingerie touches, are being worn in the 1910 manner. The vogue for outdoor dining has transformed the afternoon dress and garden party frock of 1910 into the daylight dining ensemble of 1935.

Cartwheel hats, reminiscent of "Merry Widow" days, accompany dainty printed silk suits, with the most feminine of blouses. Black silk taffeta slips rustle under cream-colored lace daytime coats and dinner gowns. Accordion pleated silks in the manner of Fortuny make hostess gowns to be worn against tufted sofas and modern Victorian interiors.

"It Was Somebodies' Birthday"

By JAMES BOSTON

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service.

JOSEPH WHITING was having a nervous breakdown. It was quite simple, really. Nerves like guitar strings, a dull "thump-thump" where his heart should be—and then, hallucinations!

That had decided the matter. Cold sweats and twanging nerves were one thing—seeing things that didn't, and shouldn't exist, was another.

So Joseph Whiting was setting out for a peaceful sojourn in the wilds of the Canadian Rockies. His doctor had advised sternly that it was "the only thing"—and Joseph Whiting was beginning to feel that "the only thing" wasn't such a bad thing, after all.

He almost felt himself relaxing as he reclined luxuriously in the comfortable lobby of one of Toronto's finest family hotels. The trip from New York seemed really to have rested him.

Languidly he watched the people passing in and out of the revolving front door. He observed with awakening interest the graceful progress of a young girl who swung in gaily with her escort, and watched her until she passed into the sumptuous banquet hall at the other end of the lobby. He noted with a feeling of pleasure and appreciation her tall, graceful figure, her vivacious smile and the delightful quality of her fresh, brunette beauty. He appraised her evening attire approvingly; the striking contrast of red spangled evening dress and red satin slippers against a black velvet evening wrap.

Other immaculately dressed couples entered and strolled into the banquet room; evidently there was a formal dinner scheduled for the evening.

Joseph Whiting turned his head back sleepily toward the revolving door, then started.

Another young girl was entering, chatting merrily with her male companion—a young girl, tall, delightfully brunette, and attired in a red spangled evening dress, red satin slippers and a black velvet evening wrap.

The victim of nerves and hallucinations stared wildly, fixedly, at the beautiful apparition until it disappeared into the banquet hall.

Grimly trying to keep his nerves under control, Joseph Whiting again turned his head toward the revolving door.

Two young girls were entering. They were tall, beautifully brunette—and garbed in red spangled evening dresses, red satin slippers and black velvet evening wraps. They were as alike in appearance as two peas, and identical with those other two young girls who had just passed into the banquet hall!

Joseph Whiting groaned—and collapsed.

An elderly gentleman in full evening dress was brought hurriedly from the banquet room. He asserted his professional authority by taking the bundle of nerves by the wrist. The rest was routine.

"There," he said finally, as he took off his glasses and surveyed his rueful patient, "how do you feel now?"

Joseph Whiting cast an apprehensive glance toward the revolving door then managed a sickly smile. "I guess I'm all right now, doctor," he murmured, embarrassed. "Thanks for fixing me up—"

Suddenly, Joseph Whiting stiffened and jerked erect. He gripped the arms of his chair and turned a wide-eyed stare full on the revolving door.

A young girl of tall, brunette loveliness was entering with her escort. She was attired in a becoming ensemble of—red spangled evening dress, red satin slippers and a black velvet evening wrap.

With a cry, the victim of "thump-thump" sprang to his feet and swooned over a smoking stand.

Resignedly the good doctor again opened his little black bag.

• • • • • • • •

Some minutes later, Joseph Whiting ventured to open one eye, then the other. But what he saw caused him to close them with a groan.

Slowly he opened them again and gazed unbelievingly at the five young girls grouped solicitously, around his chair. He observed, with a sinking feeling, that they were attired in red spangled evening dresses, red satin slippers and black velvet evening wraps. He couldn't help noticing, too, that they were beautiful, tall and dark—and as maddeningly, unreasoningly alike as five peas!

Joseph Whiting felt himself a wreck, and about to break up.

"You have quite a case of nerves," commented the good doctor. Then, as he observed his patient's fascinated gaze and its fair objects, the doctor paused.

"Perhaps you would like to meet the young ladies who helped to bring you to?" he suggested pleasantly. "May I present—Marie, Annette, Yvonne, Emilie and Cecile Dionne? I am Doctor Dafoe."

As the five charming "hallucinations" curtsied prettily and smiled at him, their lovely dark eyes soft with concern, Joseph Whiting, nervous wreck, felt something go "thump-thump" inside of him.

"I'm sorry you can't join us for the party," continued Doctor Dafoe sympathetically, as he steered his furiously "thumping" patient toward an elevator. "I'm sure the girls would be delighted to have you. I suppose you know," he concluded proudly, "that we're giving them a grand birthday party tonight—it's the Quintuplets' eighteenth birthday—!"

NEW AND USEFUL CROCHET DESIGN

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

This beverage set can be crocheted at very little expense. It consists of six six-inch tumbler doilies and six cups to hold glasses. The crochet work is simple and the inexperienced should have no trouble crocheting it. It's practical and also adds to the refreshment service appearance. If not wanted for your own use give it a thought as a gift for someone who will appreciate it. It is a very popular number with crochet workers who are ever on the lookout for something useful in novelties.

Package No. 730 contains sufficient size 16 cream Mountain Craft crochet cotton to make the entire set, also illustrations and instructions, and will be mailed upon receipt of 40c.

Illustrations and instructions only will be sent for 10c.

Religious Ratios

If the population of the world, approximately 2,000,000,000 people, were reduced proportionately, according to religious faith, to 100 persons, the Columbus University Press has estimated, there would be 33 Christians, 19 Confucianists and Taoists, 12 Hindus, 11 Mohammedans, 10 Animists, 8 Buddhists, 1 Shintoist, and 1 Jew.

NATION BECKONS SOCIAL PIONEERS TO NEW FIELDS

In the Civil war period it was Horace Greeley who bade young men, "Go West." Many of those who had worn the blue in the great conflict sought the frontier in the hope of finding livelihood and then going on to fortune. It was their presence which made the West different from the East in ways which have never yet been reconciled.

For modern youth there is no great area of land awaiting settlers. If a college graduate seeks a place upon a frontier he must select the only frontier that is open. He must become a social pioneer in the field where urgent problems are to be taken apart and then recast in a form that shall be workable. An entire nation is waiting for adjustments in its vital affairs.

These new degree holders are equipped psychologically for the work that demands attention. During four formative years they have realized day after day that human arrangements good enough in the past have failed to continue the comfort and the security of which America has boasted.

By slow and painful steps the most able of the young people will make their way to positions of authority. As the opportunity appears they will apply their talents to the reorganization of the country in which they will be dominant.—"Uncle Dudley," in the Boston Sunday Globe.

PIGS THRIVE ON BANANAS

There's a faster way of producing hams and bacon than feeding pigs all the corn they will eat. "Give them some bananas," says Hawaii producers.

As in other parts of the United States, the agricultural experiment station is an important feature in the territory of Hawaii. Prof. L. A. Henke, animal husbandman of the University of Hawaii, has just announced the results of a banana diet for pigs. A 25 per cent ration of the fruit puts on weight more rapidly than a full grain ration.

French Take to Baseball

American baseball is enjoying a boom in France to the extent that a nation-wide organization has been formed known as the "Federation Francaise de Baseball et de Theque." Four hundred teams are playing in various parts of the French nation.

VOL. L. (50 Years) (In The St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JULY 25, 1935 NUMBER 30

DEKALB COUNTY GETS SCHOOL MONEY

Indianapolis, July 24.—Checks totalling $4,021,600 for payment of teachers' salaries will be mailed this week to schools of Indiana from funds made available by the gross income tax, it was announced today by Floyd I. Murray, state superintendent of public instruction.

With the gross income tax distribution, the amount of state funds distributed to schools from the gross income, intangibles and liquor taxes during the school year which closes July 31 will be brought to $10,641,849, or $33,511 more than was sent to schools from the same sources during the previous school year.

It was pointed out that if the sum distributed by the state had had to be raised through local property taxation, property tax rates averaging 29 cents per $100 higher than those now in effect would have been necessary. Another distribution, consisting of the schools' shares of liquor license fees collected since March 1, will be made before the present school year ends.

Distributions have closely followed estimates furnished school officials by the State Board of Accounts when local property tax schedules were being prepared last fall.

Gross income tax distributions this week are being made on a basis of $200 for each 20,108 teaching units. A teaching unit is based on an average daily attendance of 25 pupils in High Schools or 35 pupils in Grade Schools.

Schools of DeKalb county, with 168 teaching units, will receive $33,600, bringing the total for the year from the gross income, intangibles and liquor taxes to $87,074.72.

Distributions received by schools of the county were as follows:

October 15, 1934, intangibles tax, $3,777.11.

November 1, 1934, liquor tax, $10,010.62.

January 1, 1935, gross income tax, $33,800.00.

April 15, 1935, intangibles tax, $1,452.65.

May 1, 1935, liquor tax, $4,343.-34.

July 22, 1935, gross income tax, $33,600.00.

Total, $87,074.72.

A property tax rate of 32 cents per $100 of property would be necessary in DeKalb county to raise the sum received by schools from the three replacement taxes.

TO INSTRUCT FIREMEN

A regional school for firemen will be held in Auburn on Friday, July 26th, Mayor Lodie Potter has been informed by Don F. Stiver, Indiana director of safety. Instructions on different subjects of fire fighting will be given members of the local department and fire department members from nearby towns and cities are to attend and get the full benefit of the school. St. Joe firemen will attend as many as possible.

At the meeting in the town hall Monday night, members from Garrett, Auburn and Butler departments were here and talked about the advantages of the firemen's association and the boys voted to join the Northeastern Indiana Fireman's Association.

SPEND A WEEK AT BROWN COUNTY STATE PARK

SWIMMING - HIKING - PICNICKING - CAMPING

In preparing routing for this trip, Road 46 is closed for surface treating west from Columbus. Traffic that would normally go through Columbus to the park, must be routed over Road 135 which runs approximately north and south through the county and passes the park entrance, intersecting Road 44 west of Franklin and Road 50 at Brownstown.

A tradition has been built up in Indiana that autumn is the only time to visit the Brown County state park but have you ever visited the park in the summer and seen the hills clothed in mottled green? Brown county is beautiful in the autumn but its summer beauty is worth traveling miles to see. The park and the adjacent state game preserve, have a total area of 15,000 acres, forming the largest single area open to the public.

The park has attractive picnic areas in which tables and benches are available with outdoor and shelter ovens, shelter houses, nearby supplies of pure drinking water and sanitary facilities, all ready for use. There are equally attractive and convenient camping areas while cottages, completely equipped, are available. The Abe Martin Lodge, around which the cottages are grouped, is famous for its menu and the view from the terrace.

Brown County park has a roomy, modern swimming pool and bath house, tennis courts, an archery range, a stable where visitors may secure horses for rides over the more than a hundred miles of bridle paths, and a nature guide to lead hikers over the miles of trails. There is an 80-foot fire tower to climb for a broadened view of the landscape; the exhibit of deer, elk, buffalo, bear and other wildlife; the Civilian Conservation Corps camp; the two artificial lakes and the 1,500-acre tract which is being opened this fall to archers for hunting with bows and arrows. In this area is a vivid demonstration of the value of low log dams. Jimmy Strahl Creek is again flowing the year around as a result of dams built along its course, instead of immediately after rains.

Brown County State Park was established in 1929 and has an area of 3,821 acres.

VALLEY TEAM AT HOME

Due to a change in the schedule, the St. Joe Valley Semi-Pros will play their first home game at the St. Joe field, next Sunday, July 28. The opposition will be furnished by the County Line team, an aggregation of young players from south of Auburn, who have a fast team in the field.

The support of the home town folks is solicited by the Valley team and a good crowd of fans is expected, so come out next Sunday and see the boys in action.

The Valley team lost a hard fought "slugfast" last Sunday to the County Line team by the score of 17-13, when the County Liners got off to a big lead in the first inning by scoring eleven runs against a patched up lineup for St. Joe. After the second inning, with the regular team in the field, the Valley boys went to work to cut down the long lead, but didn't quite manage to catch the County Liners, whose lead was a little too much. Playing at home next week, it can be promised that the regular lineup will be presented at the start of the contest and during the whole of it.

The Valley team's valiant attempt to catch the opposition when behind by a score of 14-2 was featured by some long hitting and excellent base-running. John Dilley and Jim Stewart with three hits apiece, each including a double, and Woodcox with two hits lead the attack on the County Line pitcher.

With the AAA facing a possible supreme court decision which may bring it to an abrupt end by outlawing processing taxes, AAA officials have revealed that rental and benefit payments to DeKalb county farmers totaled $273,102.-99 for the 11 months, from July 1, 1934, through May 31, 1935, according to word received in Auburn Monday from Washington. Of this sum $25,717.13 represented payments on wheat contracts, and $247,385.86 payments under the corn-hog reduction program.

OPEN AIR CONCERTS DRAW BIG CROWDS

Colored Male Quartette From Ft. Wayne To Be Here For Saturday Night

Two band concerts have been given in St. Joe this season and have attracted nice crowds considering the lateness in starting this season.

The first was given by the Legion Band of Hicksville and sponsored by the local legion boys. Last week the Butler Band, directed by Mrs. Lida Stage, gave a very fine program.

This week on Saturday night a program will be given of interest to everyone and the committee in charge of making the appointments announce a high class colored Male Quartette and Pianist that will entertain the crowd for one hour.

Come to St. Joe Saturday night and meet your friends.

Rouses Sleepy Drivers

Automobile drivers who fall asleep at the wheel will be awakened and their car stopped if they have equipped it with a device just introduced in Germany. According to report from Hamburg the device consists of a false rim or covering for the steering wheel which is connected by electric wires with the horn and ignition and arranged in such a manner that the removal of the pressure of the driver's hand on the rim will instantly sound the horn and shut off the ignition. The operation is based on the assumption that drowsiness in the driver relaxes the muscles of the hands on the wheel. A switch is provided to shut off the device in case it is not needed.

Knit Outfits Are Ideal for Vacation

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHETHER you spend your summer in town or in country, on the golf course, or at the beach you will find it the better part of wisdom and good taste to have at hand one or several of the prettily colorful, porous, airy knitted outfits that have been developed in wide variety to keep you cool as the mercury mounts. They'll keep you fashionable at the same time because of their graceful, silhouetting lines, smart tailoring and casual appearance.

For vacation purposes knits are ideal. Throw them into your valise at home and take them out ready to wear when you reach your destination, as crinkles and wrinkles disappear with a shake. Their sporty appearance, too, tunes them to practically all daytime requirements whether your program calls for active recreation or just lazing about.

The vast majority of these creations for warm weather wear are two piece dresses coming in linen, featherweight zephry, silky and cotton knits. Sweater blouses in openwork effects, many with self belts and novelty tie girdles, are undeniably in the lead. These are generally set off by skirts in plain stitches. A new touch, which is seen with increasing frequency is a match of sleeves with front blouse panels. Sleeves, by the way, are usually short and of the puffed type.

Ideal for bridges and teas on sultry afternoons and suited as well to spectator sports is the two-piece ensemble, knitted of a silk frill, shown to the right in the picture. Hand fashioned throughout, it is marked by a lacy knit bosom which matches split umbrella sleeves. A novel touch is provided by a braided neckline running into a tie effect, with two crystal clips for adjustment purposes. The neckline theme is carried out in a braided cable cord ending in a long graceful tassel. Other details of interest include the rib bottom of the blouse and the novelty rack hemline of the skirt. Dusty pink is a becoming color for this smart, serviceable costume and it is also definitely modish in bijou blue, wheat gold, antique mauve and white, also other summery shades.

Simplicity is the keynote of the two-piece cotton knit, shown to the left, rendering it perfect for golf and tennis and just as good for morning shopping on these cloying summer days. It is an almost imperceptible bird's eye knit with a unique straight collar line developed in a rib effect, similar to the treatment of the brief puff sleeves and the bottom of the blouse. Ample freedom of action is permitted by semi-concealed pleats, front and back, which make walking no battle against skirt restrictions. At the same time the skirt is fashioned so as to retain its trim effect. A decorative touch is introduced by a self-belt which may be casually and even negligently, tied at either side in accordance with your whim.

As a pert addition to your beach wardrobe you will find that a knit pajama outfit, as centered in the illustration, will give you endless comfort and satisfaction. The garment, which is in a corduroy stitch, is distinguished by the wide knit rib waistline which assures close fit. The contrasting stripes of the waist are carried out in the wide opening club collar, which is also in a rib knit. Interesting details are the button closing in the now-so-voguish shirtwaist effect, the pocket monogram, the wide pants and the backless treatment. Gray is an unusually effective shade for this pajama, the contrasting stripes being red and blue.

LACE AND CHIFFON

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Lace and chiffon make a charming combination and one that is most fashionable at the present moment. For the model pictured silk lace goes partner with navy silk chiffon, the matching jacket being entirely of the lace. The V-decolletage in front can be adjusted high or low.

SUMMER PARTY TOGS NOW HOLD INTEREST

Summer party dresses are absorbing the attention of the younger set these days. Sleek sophistication is out for summer evenings, so far as the youngsters are concerned, and fluffy ruffles are the rule of the day. Sheer confections of lace and net and organdie are blossoming in shop windows, with plenty of frills and furbelows.

Consider, for instance, an evening gown made entirely of diagonal ruffles of Chantilly net lace, mounted on tulle. In petal pink or baby blue it is about as fetching a costume as ever was donned by a dewy debutante.

White also is on the up and up for summer evenings, what with the new epidemic of organdies and organzas and such. Ruffled white net is a sure-fire summer dance frock number, with a black net jacket, if you must be sophisticated.

"Something Different" Is Slogan for Accessories

"Something different" is the slogan for the accessories which accent the new clothes. Almost every one has changed its shape and design a bit.

Gloves are shorter, bags are deeper, belts are wider, handkerchiefs larger and all marked by new touches and trims. Short gloves of pigskin, doeskin or suede are the last word in chic accessories to the new tailleur. They extend only about one inch higher than the wristbone, sometimes slashed briefly up the back and buttoning on the back of the hand.

Button Trim

Tiny buttons of crochet or pearl are part of the dainty detail of sheer lingerie blouses. Rows of them range down front frills or along the sides of cuffs.

Why Permit Men Monopoly of Fun?

"In this corner (we are describing a boxing bout) is Myron Emory, weight 132 pounds. And in this corner Charlie Young, weight 114. The boys are known as the Cuban Flash and the New Hampshire Wildcat. They will now fight four rounds for the whiskerweight championship of the world."

The reporter, in a popular magazine, goes on to describe the fight; how the boxers, lean, tanned, eager, advanced to the center of the ring; how the crowd applauded wildly; how they battled, now boxing cleverly, now slugging hard, the crowd shrieking encouragement. Twice one of the fighters was knocked to the canvas, but twice he arose and earned himself the decision of a draw.

And now, says a woman writer, whose widely read articles are not usually devoted to prize-ring activities, the point of this boxing report in this space. It was really a very strange contest. For the fighters, Emory and Young, were seventy-nine and seventy-eight years old! The referee was a hundred and three.

The bout took place in St. Petersburg, Fla., a popular haven for old people. It was managed by the Three Quarter Century club, all of whose members are over seventy-five, all active in some sport.

And no old-time athletes are these men. Just elderly people who when they retired to that city in the sun found all sorts of diversions—for young people. They realized that if they were to have any fun there they would have to organize activities for themselves. So they founded the Three Quarter Century club—"not to turn back the years, but to utilize fully the years they have left." It appears they are adding to them.

But—the Three Quarter Centurians are all men. My thought is, what about the women? They don't have to box, or join the baseball team, but there are goodly activities in that city of the sun that would give them no less fun. Have they been so preoccupied all those years before that they can't learn now how to take fun like their men? That's an idea for the generation to follow them. Let this July 4th be remembered as an Independence day for a Woman's Three Quarter Century club!

BUSINESS GIRLS WILL LIKE THIS

PATTERN 2230

The smart business girl has her own rules for chic—tailored feminine simplicity. And here's the frock that obeys the dictates of fashion and utility. There's a world of youthful charm in that simple collar and flattering curved yoke that cuts into a bodice with the very new "bosom and back" fulness. The paneled skirt breaks into pleats just in time to give you lots of walking freedom. Wear the sleeve puffed or flared—let your "type" be your guide. Because every smart business girl will choose this pattern and run up several in the evenings, the frock pictured has been kept especially simple. Choose a cheery flower print silk on a dark ground—or a washable pastel.

Pattern 2230 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3⅝ yards 39-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 248 West Seventeenth street, New York.

Where There's a Will

There never has been a great or even a successful man who did not have abundance of will power.

You can do nothing worth while unless you try, and keep trying.

Read the lives of men who have succeeded greatly.

Every last one of them had strong wills, and kept them exercised.

They met with discouragements, of course. Everybody has.

They had moments when the future looked black, and the attainment of their purposes impossible.

Washington at Valley Forge had as much reason to be discouraged as any commander who ever lived.

His troops were starving and ill clothed.

There were desertions. Many of his followers believed that success could never be attained—and they had abundant reason for that belief.

* * * * * * *

But the calm, imperturbable commander, even though he himself may have harbored doubts was patient and cheerful. No man under him so much as dreamed that he too may have had misgivings.

Those were probably the darkest days in the story of the winning of American independence.

But because the great general always was outwardly cheerful and serene, his men took heart, and you know what was the result of the war.

If you find yourselves distrusting your own capacity, buck up and make a new start.

Put your mind on the job. Think things out. Look discouragement in the face and do not be afraid of it.

Bear in mind that there has never been a great man in this world who had not sometimes had doubts of his ability, not one who was not at one time or another a bit afraid that all his efforts might prove vain.

But they summoned up their resolution, worked and thought harder, inspired others with the faith that they had in their cause, and won out in the end.

* * * * * * * *

The world is gradually working its way out of an extremely bad situation.

It is doing that because great leaders in many lands are putting all their thought, all their faith into getting this wobbly old planet running smoothly once more.

Already there is evidence that they are winning. They cannot fail to win as long as they have courage and determination.

Keep up your grit, keep up your hope, and don't be afraid to use your brains a little more than you have been doing. They can stand the strain.

Good Habits

A next door neighbor of mine who had a beautiful lawn used to say that every time he found a weed in it he pulled it up and sowed a handful of grass in its place.

I have often thought that one might do the same thing with bad habits.

I am not going to set down a list of the bad habits that ought to be dug out and replaced with good ones.

But most people have some of them, so I am going to suggest that the same thing might be done with them as my neighbor did with his lawn.

Why not?

Supposing you are one of the husband species who is always picking on his wife about little things—such as dinner a bit late, or your coat stowed away in a closet where you can't find it the instant you want to put it on.

Why not, instead of making a row, find your coat yourself, and get into the habit of putting it in the same place every time so she won't be compelled to look for it?

* * * * * * *

Suppose you have been complaining that dinner wasn't ready the instant you want it.

Why not get into the habit of remembering that a household is quite a complex institution, and that, inasmuch as you are always fed, stop making a racket when it is fifteen or twenty minutes late.

Why not get into the habit—or return to it, if you once had it—of complimenting her when she gets you a good meal. You may not think that the cook is deserving of praise for that, but there is not one cook in a hundred who can prepare a man's meal the way he wants it if she is not instructed in advance exactly the way to do it.

* * * * * * * *

Naturally, if your wife has any spunk, she is not going to listen to your complaints without complaining back now and then.

But you are more likely to be in the wrong than she is; husbands usually are.

Husbands ought to remember that life around a house is much duller and wearing than life around an office or wherever a man happens to be while he is earning his bread.

He is freer to go where he likes, and to do what he likes.

He is not bound by the responsibility of looking after children all day long.

Let him think this over and become a husband of good habits, and he will find that such complaints as his wife may make about him will diminish.

He may grouse about his troubles. But he has them only occasionally.

His wife is never free from them.

The Right Girl

By MARGARETTA BRUCKER

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

"WHEN the time comes I'll pick the right girl," Don Farrell had said. "You'll see."

Don had come to Gatesville on a government engineering job. He was a tall loose limbed fellow with deep-set gray eyes, and an infectious smile.

He had made the quoted remark on his first day in Gatesville. Bob Haines had just told him he'd better watch out for his heart for we had the prettiest crop of girls south of the Mason and Dixon line.

Don had just grinned—picked up his grip and asked: "Which way to the best boarding house?"

"Mrs. Ann Nelson's over on Myrtle street," Bob had replied. Then he'd winked at the fellows standing about the soda bar in the drug store. "What you bet you'll start picking that girl before you're 24 hours older?"

"I'm pretty hard to suit," Don had called back over his shoulder.

"Wait 'til he meets the Nelson twins," Bob had said then. "Wonder which one he'll fall for?"

Don hadn't been in Gatesville two days when he had them both down to the drug store and it didn't take half an eye to see that he was falling fast . . but which one? that was the puzzler.

Carrie Lou and Emmy Lou were their names and when their own mother couldn't tell them apart how was a long-legged Yankee going to come to any decision? He had the whole town wondering.

There's no romance can get under way with three principals. Somebody's got to drop out. One of the twins had to be disqualified. Evidently the strain began to tell for gossip had it that the girls were snapping at each other. Two weeks after Don's first appearance he turned up at the drug store one evening with one twin . . . but which one?

Bets began to run high around the soda bar.

From betting on Don the whole community started betting on the twins. They'd flirted before, with fellows from Georgia to the Mississippi basin and never had had a heart flutter. Now this gangling Yankee engineer had sunk them both.

Then one afternoon a man from the T. V. I. drifted into town and said something about Don's wife. Say . . . that burst the town wide open. It was about four o'clock in the afternoon when the twins came into the drug store. Both were in white—just their belts different, one blue and one red.

The preacher's wife was in the store buying catnip for that big Maltese that always sits in her front window. She marches right over to the girls.

"There was a man in here a minute ago who said that young Mr. Ferrell has a wife," she says. The preacher's wife is all right but she feels it her duty to look after the morals of the young.

If Don hadn't followed right at her heels it wouldn't have been so dramatic. As it was it knocked all the home talent shows in Gatesville right into a cocked hat. Don burst through the screen. His eyes were almost black. He came right over to where the girls were sitting.

The preacher's wife backed off but the fellows around the soda bar stuck and stared and figured that all that money they'd bet on the twins was as good as gone.

One of the twins was beating a regular tattoo on the floor with her slipper and the other was fiddling with a soda straw and breaking it into little pieces. I guess they felt pretty queer.

"What have you heard?" Don demanded. He didn't sit down. He stood leaning across the table and his glance included both the twins. His long brown fingers gripped the edge of the table.

"That you were married," said one. She said it quiet-like, but there was a lot behind her tone. Some folks don't show their emotion by being noisy. The other twin did. She said: "Yes. . . . that you were married." Her voice was thin and sharp. "Is it true?" she demanded.

"Yes, it's true."

The one with the blue belt who had spoken first opened her lips, closed them and sank back into her chair. The soda straw was torn to chaff and lay scattered about the chocolate soda which she hadn't tasted. The twin in the red belt burst into a regular torrent of abuse. She told Don what she thought of him . . . what she thought of all Yankees . . . well . . . it was almost as if she'd stripped off her clothes and stood there naked. Most of the fellows slunk out of the store ashamed for her. Being the soda jerker I had to stick.

Finally the twin in the blue belt began to cry. Dan stepped right around the table and took her in his arms. He kissed her.

"You . . ." the twin in the red belt started screaming and clawing him with her soft little hands. Don didn't seem to mind. He was grinning and showing his white teeth and saying: "I always said that when the time came I'd pick the right girl . . . now I know I've made no mistake. Carrie Lou and I were married last Friday. . . ." I didn't hear the rest for his head was bent and he was saying it into Carrie Lou's soft dark hair.

I turned around and pretended to be busy polishing some soda glasses. I heard the screen door bang behind the twin in the red belt. After this she wouldn't need to dress different for everyone in town to know her. She'd always be the twin that Don Farrell didn't pick.

Important Foods That Are of Western Origin

Talking about what the people eat and where it came from, the Charleston News and Courier says that much of the world's menu is American. Quoting from the acting curator of botany, for the Field Museum of Natural History, B. E. Dahlgren, the newspaper tells that while many of the standard food stuffs were discovered on the western hemisphere they are now raised and used everywhere on earth. For instance, it is remarked that the Irish potato originated in South America, and was introduced in Europe more than 100 years after the discovery of America. Doctor Dahlgren says that "the tomato, known as the 'Peruvian apple' as far back as the Sixteenth century, a native plant of South America, was first introduced into Europe as an ornamental plant and only in recent years has been grown in many parts of the world as an important food. Corn, kidney and lima beans, pumpkins, squash, cranberries and peanuts were all originally American, but are today cultivated the world over. Plants of medicinal and narcotic value which are included among the New world contributions include quinine, cocaine and tobacco."

According to this authority, Concord and Catawba grapes are development of the wild fox grape found in the New world by early Colonial settlers. "And another essentially American fruit is the pineapple, which is popularly associated with the Hawaiian islands, but originated in northern South America, notably Brazil." The News and Courier declares that these and many other fruits, first contributed to the tables of the world by America, are now successfully grown in many parts of the world and their American origin is forgotten. And it is to wonder how the people of Europe got along without some of the things which they adopted after Columbus' trip.

But America had need of things that were not originally growing here. It is shown by the article from the Charleston newspaper that this continent had to import coffee—and later found it admirably adapted to the climate and conditions existing in South and Central America. Wheat and other small grains were brought here—in Bible times wheat was called corn, and what we now designate as corn, was first known as Indian corn or maize. It is claimed that corn was introduced in Europe by Columbus, in the Sixteenth century, brought from America—but some records indicate that it was known in Asia and Africa before that time.

THE NEW FIRESTONE GROUND GRIP TIRE WILL ENABLE YOU TO USE YOUR CAR, TRUCK AND TRACTOR IN ALL KINDS OF WEATHER

THE body of this tire is built with patented Gum-Dipped Cords, giving it extra strength and greater flexing ability without creating heat, the greatest enemy of tire life.

The extra-heavy super traction tread on this tire is scientifically designed to prevent the bumpiness on smooth roads that is so objectionable in other tires designed for traction in soft ground. This heavy self-cleaning tread, required to withstand unusual pulling traction and strains, is securely locked to the cord body by Firestone's patented construction of two extra Gum-Dipped cord layers under the tread.

These new and unusually effective Firestone super traction tires enable you to operate your tractors, trucks and passenger cars for all kinds of farm work and over ground and roads that could not be traveled with ordinary tires, even equipped with chains.

GOLDEN WEDDING CELEBRATED

Friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Manford Smith, of Hicksville, Ohio, helped them to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary last Sunday at Sylvan Lake, Rome City, Indiana. A potluck dinner was enjoyed under the trees by the lake, and ice cold watermelon was served during the afternoon.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Smith and their daughter, Lucile, the following were present: Mr. Roy Scott, of Hicksville; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Wyatt, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith, of Fort Wayne; Mr. and Mrs. Max Norman, their three children, and Aileen Gaff, of South Bend; Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Washler and daughters, Helen and Garnet, Mr. Reign Schondelmayer, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wyatt, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gaff of Newville; Mr. and Mrs. Coral Simanton and three boys, of Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Marian Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. George Simanton and son, Merlin, and Mr. and Mrs. George Simanton Jr., of St. Joe.

SCHOOL REUNION

The old Cheesetown school reunion was held last Sunday, and not a very large attendance was recorded. A few brought their basket dinner, while most of the crowd came after noon. At the business session, C. A. Woodcox was chosen president for 1936 and Mrs. Inez Hadsell, secretary and treasurer. The next reunion will be held the last Sunday in July, 1936. Ice cream was served. Roscoe Conine and wife, of Hicksville and John D. Milliman and family of Alvordton, Ohio, were guests from the greatest distance.

FIREMEN AT AUBURN

C. F. Fox, a representative of the state fire marshal's office and J. J. O'Brien, who has been a member of the Indianapolis fire department during a period of forty years, held a school of instruction in Auburn on Friday for members of volunteer fire departments in towns and cities in DeKalb county. The Auburn, Garrett and St. Joe departments were the only ones represented and in order to have all firemen of the county given instructions, another school will be held, at night, so those working during the daytime may take advantage of the important information which is given from the state fire marshal's office.

VISITING SISTER

S. E. Snyder, of Logansport, brother of Mrs. P. A. Walker, spent last week in her home. He was in town calling on old friends. In 1900 he bought a barber shop of Freeman Abel, and by this identification he will be remembered by many. He is a railroader now.

Social Saturday Night

The Lutheran people will have a social on the Church lawn Saturday night, Aug. 3rd. Chicken sandwiches, ice cream, cake, pie and coffee will be served. Each article 5 cents.

Take the Family to See TURKEY RUN STATE PARK

SWIMMING - HIKING - PICNICKING - CAMPING

How to get there: To reach Turkey Run State Park from St. Joe take State Road 1 to Fort Wayne, there take Road 24 to Peru, then Road 31 to Baker's Corners at junction of Road 47, then west to the park entrance which is on Road 47, near Marshall.

Turkey Run holds the distinction of being the foundation of Indiana's state park system for it was the movement to acquire this area that led to the establishment of the parks which have made the Hoosier state known from coast to coast.

The popularity of Turkey Run has grown from year to year, the annual attendance running into the thousands with an increasing number of the visitors drawn from Illinois. In fact, many Illinois residents claim Turkey Run as their park.

Visitors to Turkey Run find exceptional provision for their accommodation with attractive picnic and camping areas complete with outdoor ovens, firewood, shelter houses, pure drinking water and modern sanitary facilities. Those who prefer will find comfortable rooms and appetizing meals at the Turkey Run Inn.

There are miles of trails for the hiker, bridle paths and a stable of fine horses for the equestrian, a recreational field for baseball and softball, and the Swimmin' Hole in Sugar Creek where a lifeguard is on duty throughout the day, one of the most attractive beaches found in any of the state parks.

Turkey Run is noted for its scenery; the deep gorges with their overhanging cliffs, the acres of forest which includes large tracts of virgin timber, the views from the mountainous hills, for the many species of trees and plants and for the variety of the bird life which finds refuge in the park.

This state park was established in 1916 and covers an area of 1,301 acres.

REPUBLICANS AT OLIVER LAKE

A large number of DeKalb county republicans attended a meeting of party members and workers of the fourth district at Oliver Lake, LaGrange county on Thursday night.

On the speaking program were H. H. Evans, of Newcastle, David Hogg, of Fort Wayne, former fourth district congressman, Raymond Springer, of Connersville, defeated for governor, and Prof. Andrew Cordier, of Manchester college and county chairman of Wabash county.

Another district rally will be held late in August at Hamilton Lake, Steuben county.

HOME BUREAU

The Concord Township Home Bureau meeting was held Friday, July 19, at the home of Mrs. Carrie Morr, for an afternoon meeting. The meeting was called to order by the vice president, Mrs. Hattie Draggoo. Opening song led by Mrs. Mary Krise. The business part of the meeting was taken care of and secretary's report read by Mrs. Laura Washler to which 20 members and one guest, Mrs. Cleota Crick, responded to roll call by giving their favorite recipe. Two contests were given by Mrs. Iva Yeiser and Mrs. Emila Hallabaugh, which were enjoyed by all.

The committee served ice cream, white and dark cake and coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Neff and three children, of Fort Wayne, were Sunday afternoon guests of Mrs. Wm. Randall.

Harvey Hull and son, Calvin and Joe Hull drove to Clear Lake Sunday afternoon and they stopped at Cold Springs in the evening. They reported large crowds of people at both places.

Mrs. Glen Kinsey and children are at Lake, Michigan, for several weeks visit with relatives. Her mother, who has been working in Auburn, is with her. Glen and DuWayne Kinsey accompanied them on the trip Saturday night but returned Sunday.

F. G. Gauntt and his daughter, Mrs. Mahan and her son, of Boston, Mass., returned Monday from an auto trip to Petersburg, Ind., where Mrs. Gauntt has been staying with her mother. Mrs. Gauntt returned with them. Mrs. Mahan and son left yesterday for their home.

VALLEY TEAM WINS FIRST HOME GAME

The St. Joe Valley Semi-Pros won their first home game Sunday, from the County Line team by the score of 8-7. As in their previous meeting, the first inning was rather wild with the County Line scoring five men in their half and Kinsey contributing a home run for St. Joe.

After this bad inning the game settled down and in the eighth inning with the score tied, Collins singled and scored on a double by Woodcox for the winning run.

Every member of the Valley team had at least one hit, with Collins and Stewart leading with three each. Dilley pitched another good game after the first inning when errors by his mates rather unsettled him.

Next Sunday the Semi-Pros play again at St. Joe, this time meeting the Robinson Chapel team in a return game. In the first game of the season, St. Joe was defeated by Robinson Chapel 10-7.

Come out and see the boys play next Sunday.

WITH AN EYE TO COOL SIMPLICITY

PATTERN 9354

The smart girl has one eye on the budget and the other anticipating a rise in temperature—and makes a cool decision to include several summer sports in her wardrobe right now. It took a lot of ingenuity to design that clever yoke-cape-panel in one. It makes sewing so easy, and briefly, that cape is much cooler than a sleeve. Pattern 9354 sports an action pleat back and skirt just to help you "get places." If you find a simple flat neckline becoming, omit the dashing revers (but we like 'em). Very correct for spectator sports, office wear or week-end jaunts. Make it up in washable sport silk or shantung. Try a novel "cork" buckle and buttons.

Pattern 9354 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 4 yards 36 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York.

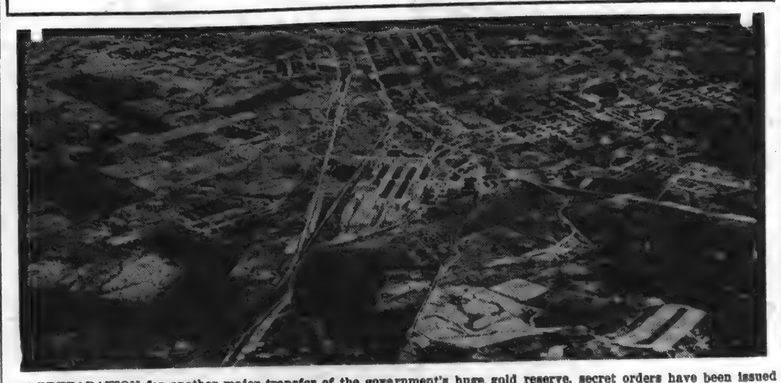
Where Uncle Sam Will Bury Billions of Gold



IN PREPARATION for another major transfer of the government's huge gold reserve, secret orders have been issued in Washington for the rush construction of a subterranean vault in the center of Fort Knox (shown here from the air), an army post 31 miles from Louisville. Into the vault will be transferred a good portion of the billions in gold now held by the government in New York and Philadelphia. The structure will be built in continuation of the policy of moving precious monetary reserves away from vulnerable cities on the coast to more isolated inland territory.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

DANNY FINDS A REFUGE

AS DANNY MEADOW MOUSE anxiously looked this way and that way for a place to hide from Buster Bear, a sharp, squeaky voice almost in his very ear made him jump. "What are you doing over here, Cousin Danny? Aren't you lost?" said the sharp, squeaky voice.

Danny turned quickly to find a little round hole in the ground between the roots of the tree, and just inside was the trim little head of his cousin, Whitefoot the Woodmouse.

"Oh!" cried Danny. "Buster Bear is trying to catch me and I don't know what to do."

"Come in here," replied Whitefoot promptly.

Danny didn't need a second invitation. He darted in just as Buster Bear reached the tree on the other side. Buster promptly tried again the trick by which he had so nearly caught Danny. He reached a great paw around the trunk of the tree and brought it down swiftly. But he was too late. There was no one under that big paw. Buster watched and listened, but he saw nothing and heard nothing. Then he walked around the tree to investigate. There was no sign of Danny Meadow Mouse. But between the roots of the tree was a little round hole.

"Huh!" grunted Buster Bear and began to dig furiously.

Now Buster Bear's claws are long and stout and when he sets out to dig

"Now," Said Whitefoot, "You Have Nothing to Worry About From Buster Bear."

he makes things fly. But Whitefoot the Woodmouse knows all about those great claws of Buster, and when he made that little round hole he made it right under the big roots of that tree. It didn't take Buster long to find out that it was quite useless to try to dig out Danny Meadowmouse. You see, those big roots were in the way. So after a minute or two of useless digging Buster gave up. It was foolish to waste time there when he might be hunting for and finding sweet little beechnuts. So, grumbling deep in his throat, Buster walked off and once more began to rake over the leaves in search of beechnuts.

Meanwhile Danny Meadow Mouse had followed his cousin, Whitefoot the Woodmouse, along a little tunnel among the roots that led him some distance away from where he had entered. It was a very nice little tunnel. Danny said as much as he scampered along after Whitefoot. Whitefoot was pleased but he didn't say anything. He just scampered along and Danny followed. After a while they came out in the heart of a big, hollow stump.

"Now," said Whitefoot, "you have nothing to worry about from Buster Bear. Tell me what happened and what you are doing so far away from home."

OUTDOOR MEALS

AS PICNIC days are here again, we turn to our lists of good things which we have enjoyed and plan a picnic lunch. Those who find some food hard to digest will enjoy them and have no discomfort when eaten out of doors after a brisk hike, or even a stroll through the woods.

When packing a lunch, remember to put some of the goods that add zest such as green onions, fresh radishes, cucumbers and a few pickles, sweet and sour. Pickled beets, onions, chow, are all relishes which are enjoyed with the other food.

The sandwiches may be cut and made just before serving, with lettuce, a slice of cucumber and onion, as filling. Baked bean sandwiches are always enjoyed for a hearty meal. Serve them with sliced sour pickle.

Most picnic lunches are made up of starchy and sugar foods. Some of these are needed but the alkaline foods will be needed or headaches and indigestion will result.

Fruits, green vegetables, celery, tomatoes, are all good to combine with the sandwiches, rolls and cakes. Meats are acid forming foods and should be used sparingly.

With the crisp lettuce carried in a towel, well wrapped, add sliced oranges or tomatoes or apples and serve with a french dressing all prepared and carried in a tight jar or bottle.

With all the disadvantages, snakes, mosquitoes, poison ivy, the more we go on picnics, the more we learn what to avoid and the more pleasure we get from them.

Where there is a stream of clear water or a spring, all the green things may be kept cool and fresh as if taken from a refrigerator at home.

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a coed, at a well known college, and am crazy about a boy my own age who goes to the same college. He gave me a lovely cigarette holder for my birthday and his birthday is next Saturday. I saw a whisky flask, in a shop window, which was made to look like the seven of spades. Don't you think that is a cute present to buy him?

Sincerely,
LILY KUPPS.

Answer: The present is all right, but he's liable to leave it on a table in some fraternity house, and some other student might come along with the eight of spades and take it.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have been engaged to a young man for nearly six months and we were to be married in June, but last night he confessed to me that he had a wooden leg. What shall I do?

Yours truly,
DORA KNOB.

Answer: Break it off.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

My wife and I had an argument last night about the army. My wife says, in order for a man to be buried with "military honors" he must be a captain, while I say he must be a general. Which if us is right?

Yours truly,
LEW TENANT.

Answer: You are both wrong. In order for a man in the army to be buried with full military honors he must be dead.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Every month, a club I belong to, holds a meeting at which all the members have to tell a story on a subject which is told us a week before the meeting. The subject, for our next meeting, is: "The Stingiest Man I Know." Will you tell me the stingiest man you ever met?

Truly yours,
O. COMM TELLMEE.

Answer: The stingiest man I ever heard of was a man who fell overboard and as he was swimming ashore a policeman hollered to him that it was $50 fine for swimming in that river and when the man heard that he just threw up his hands and sunk.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I bought a new suit, the other day, and the first time I put it on, the coat split up the back. How do you account for that?

Yours truly,
I. PICTICT.

Answer: The buttons were sewed on too tight.

A LITTLE NEW SOUL

By ANNE CAMPBELL

A LITTLE new soul came down today
On a sunlit cloud, from far away.
She stole the blue from the morning skies,
And a star for each of her pretty eyes.
She grasped at the dawn, and in her fingers
The rosy glow of the morning lingers.

A little new soul came down to lift
Our weary hearts with her hopeful gift.
She brushed by the sun and plucked its gold,
And she brought God's love for our arms to hold.
A little new baby, with dreams in her eyes,
Came to show us the pathway to Paradise!

Good Samaritan Aids Helpless Birds

THEY were just three baby sparrows in need of protection when Frances A. Urban, fourteen-year-old high school girl, saw them flopping about helplessly in her back yard in Hollywood, Calif., and decided to befriend them. At her home, the girl placed them in a cage near a window. A day later she heard a flutter and saw a grown sparrow, then two, beating wildly against the screen. Suspecting the visitors were the birds' parents, she placed the cage in the yard and opened the door. One of the grown birds flew in with worms and fed them. Each day, now, they are taken into the yard to be fed in that fashion. The girl plans to release the birds as soon as they are able to fly.

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

If you can get a vacation, use it. Go somewhere.

Time Out

It may not be farther away than the next town, but at least that is somewhere.

If you can afford the money and the time, go to Europe, or South America of preferably across the American continent.

See people who have different manners and customs than yours.

They may be strange and surprising, but it is useful to know that there are other ways than your own, and that some of them may be very good ways.

If you can't go any long distance away, get as far from your job as you can.

Don't be like the laborer who, when given a week off with pay, stood around and watched his friends toiling at their jobs, and was content to think that for a time at least he didn't have to wield a pick and shovel.

Meet as many people as you can. Talk to them. Get their ideas about things.

* * * * * * *

Our bodies often need a change. So do our minds.

We get into ruts without knowing it. If we stay there they get deeper and harder to get out of.

Find out what other people think. Talk politics, if you can talk politics intelligently.

That will lead to wider knowledge of the affairs of the country you live and work in, and will make you a more discriminating voter when election day comes 'round.

Everybody needs a perspective on life.

It helps to meet people you have never known or seen before.

* * * * * * *

You know what it means to get muscle bound. Getting mind-bound and soul-bound is far worse.

Somebody, Pope, I think, said something to the effect that the proper study of mankind is man.

Take up that study. You will find it more interesting than many of the books you read just to while away the time.

We all need change, variety. We all need as wide an acquaintanceship as we can get.

You'll never get more than three or four real friends, the kind that will "go through."

But you can make many congenial acquaintances, who will talk and argue with you.

Step out among them. You'll be glad you did.

* * * * * * *

I am not sure that we are very deeply indebted to Columbus.

We're All Debtors

In the first place he went forth on a private venture.

In the second, the Western continent would have been discovered very soon anyway.

As the Englishman said after he had traveled across the American continent—"It wasn't so remarkable that Columbus found America. But it would have been remarkable if he had missed it."

The men to whom the world is most in debt are first the men who preserved the Bible for posterity; after that the long line of inventors who have increased happiness by promoting physical comfort and convenience.

Of these James Watt, Stephenson, Samuel F. B. Morse, Edison and Marconi are especially prominent.

None of these stumbled on their inventions. They worked them out carefully and scientifically. And they all had in mind the fact that if they succeeded they would be benefitting mankind.

* * * * * * *

I give all credit to the Wright brothers, but Professor Langley and a number of others had experimented with flight before them.

Langley, had he lived a little later when light gasoline motors were in use, would have succeeded.

Indeed, the Wrights, not at all jealous of his fame, took the Langley ship, equipped it with a modern engine and made a flight with it.

You and I sit down and take all these modern conveniences, and think nothing at all about them, wondering sometimes why progress is not more rapid than it is, even if people can now travel from New York to Los Angeles on a regular liner almost between sunset and sundown.

* * * * * * *

Why don't we all do our part in progress?

Some of us are lazy, some of us know nothing of mechanics, some of us do not even think about it.

Meanwhile if you have some disease that twenty years ago would have released you from earthly troubles, you can find a surgeon who will prolong your life, while other medical men are working to prevent many illnesses that our great-grandfathers took lying down, and stayed down afterward.

This is not intended to be a sermon, but I really think that it would make us a little more kindly and a little more unselfish if we remembered all that has been done for us by devoted men and women, and remembered it without any hope of future favors from other people who may do as much for us.

All that we can do to keep up our end is to be grateful and appreciative and a little more zealous in our own efforts to help our brothers and sisters.

Linen Suit a Midsummer Favorite

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE present vogue for linen is nothing short of sensational. Whether you go dining, dancing, swimming, flying, motoring, golfing or shopping, or play tennis, there's a linen for every occasion from rustic crashes and peasant weaves and colorful Tahitian prints to alluring novelties in stripes and plaids and in sheer lovely effects for high-style evening wear.

Midsummer days are proving that linen suits, especially in white and natural tones, are of first interest among best dressed women for about-town wear. A linen suit and a wardrobe of blouses and the problem of being smartly appareled during the daytime hours is solved not only for the immediate moment but for well on into the fall, since the very newest linens are in wine shades, in Dubonnet red, in beetroot, purple and orange tones.

Just now, while the weather is warm, it's the white and natural linens that are lending their immaculate and well-groomed appearance to the summer scene. The trio of stunning suits pictured represent the very creme de la creme in linens as now featuring on the style program.

The young woman seated shows that she knows fashion in that with her suit of moygashel linen, in natural color, she is wearing a dark blouse, the same being brown with white polka dots. You are doing the right thing this season if to wear with your white and natural linens you choose dark accessories. The coat is single breasted with buttons all the way up to the collarless neckline. A novel idea is introduced in the placement of deep large pockets above the belt line. Raglan sleeves add a final touch of smartness to this linen classic.

The other two suits are also of moygashel linen. It is rather interesting to know in this connection that King George sends the flax grown on his royal estate at Sandringham, England (supposed to be the finest flax in the world) to Moygashel, Ireland, there to be woven, because the workmanship is so fine—quite a royal pedigree for these linens.

The two-piece centered in the group has a tight-fitting basque coat with no belt to disturb the natural line. It is of white linen with navy buttons and tie. The double binding to the coat which gives a vestee effect is new and smart. The sports flap pockets are chic, too.

Handstitching around the notched collar and the pockets gives a distinctive touch to the white linen suit to the right. The stitching and the belt are in matched coloring. The coat is double-breasted, and a polka dot shirt is worn under it.

A very fashionable thing to do is wear a bright colored linen coat or jacket with your white linen skirt. Lilac colored linens for these coats are the rage with beetroot or Dubonnet red close seconds.

Then, too, novelty linens with nubby surface or loose porous weave are in good style for suits and for coats. These heavier suits are mostly in oyster white. Very "nifty" ones are shadow-checked in gray and some stunning weaves are in herringbone patterning flecked with brown.

There are lovely embroidered linens shown for dressier wear and sheer striped linens are made up into fascinating evening gowns, as formally as if they were stately silks. With the new fall tweed suits designers are creating clever blouses of fine handkerchief linens in colorings related to the costume entire.

SMART BEACHWEAR

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

This beach ensemble is out of the ordinary. It is fashioned of purple fishnet lace over a linen foundation. Which again proves that lace goes everywhere this season. The ensemble consists of a pair of shorts and blouse with a wrap-around skirt. The large hat is of purple straw.

SHOE COMFORT IS MOST IMPORTANT

To be footloose and free during the season of pleasant week ends and after-dark breathing spaces, one must have foot comfort.

Cool shoes with flexible construction are a likely way of getting this comfort, with preference given lightweight numbers, and those that are ventilated by perforations, lattice and cut-outs.

Novelties in shoes are always at their peak in the summer season, and they are usually far more moderately priced than the novelties thought up for evening shoes to complement formal winter costumes.

Sandals of printed linen or crash, slippers covered with gay flowered chiffon, oxfords of splendid supporting strength, perforated into lacy prettiness, plain cotton or linen shoes of any color you can name, plaid linen in natural tones, checked gingham in kitchen apron designs, lightweight suede in any pastel hue or any flag hue and crocheted string shoes are just a few of the kinds you can choose from in the shops.

Oriental Influence Seen in Evening Clothes Styles

The Hindu influence, inspired by the Maharanee of India, has initiated a definite swing away from fitted, bias lines to softly draped designs in evening clothes. Allied influences, such as Persian, Arabian, and a new version of Grecian folds, contribute to the same effect. These flattering, age-old drapery details are difficult to make and hence are not easily copied, a point being stressed now in high style circles.

Alix, the Parisian couturiere, has turned out a thrilling array of Oriental formal gowns. Most of them are topped with seductive saris, those long, scarf-like affairs which start out by wrapping around the body and then proceed to cover the head in the manner of a monk's hood.

Mulligan Does His Duty

By FRANK EVANS

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

"TIM, old timer, what's the matter? You haven't been acting like yourself for weeks. Sick?"

"Spring fever, mebbe, lieutenant. Besides, I'm gettin' old."

The men gathered in groups about the police station looked up and laughed. Lieutenant Murphy, at the desk, shook his head.

"You old, Tim? Never! Just as young as the day you joined the force—31 years ago . . . a bridegroom of two days."

"'N' Molly 'n' me didn't take a honeymoon for eight years . . . when the little tad was just a year old."

He sat down heavily and refused a proffered tin of tobacco. As Mulligan was about to leave, Lieutenant Murphy called to him:

"Better see a doctor, Tim. We can't afford to lose Tim Mulligan after 31 years of duty. You want to think about Molly too, and the little tad."

Tim Mulligan smiled and swung his night club jauntily.

"Just you quit your worryin' about me. Faith, and I'm younger than all the rest o' you. 'Night."

Murphy laid down his pen and strolled over to a group of officers.

"I say, fellows, have you noticed anything wrong with Mulligan? He's been actin' queer lately."

"We noticed it—but he won't talk about it. Says he's all right. I met Molly in the grocery store yesterday and she looked as if she had been cryin'. But when I told her she looked younger than she did 20 years ago, she said I'd been kissing the blarney stone. A fine woman, Molly Mulligan."

"What's the kid doing now?" asked Koesting as he bent over and tied his shoe. "Hope he makes them proud of him. They sacrificed a lot to give him an education. Tim said one thing that boy must have was learnin'! He certainly was proud of those report cards . . ."

"I'm told he isn't all Tim and Molly would have him be," said Jones over his evening paper. "Don't keep jobs . . . regular sheik and dance hound . . . and Tim wanted him to be a real man! But the kid is young, not twenty-five yet. He should turn out all right with folks like Tim and Molly."

The night lengthened. One by one the men left headquarters. Two detectives drowsed in an adjoining office, chairs tipped back against the wall. Outside, Cohen, the driver, whistled softly as he sprawled on the front seat of the patrol wagon. Then came the harsh ring of the bell, and everyone was galvanized into action. Cohen came to the door and awaited orders.

"Mulligan calling," announced Lieutenant Murphy swiftly. "Fairview Oil station; Fairview and Edgemont . . . holdup . . . one got away . . . attendant injured . . ."

It was scarcely ten minutes before the reverberating clang of the bell announced the return of the patrol wagon. The men grouped themselves about the desk as the prisoner was brought in, Cohen on one side, Mulligan, strangely old and white-faced, on the other.

He was scarcely more than a boy—the prisoner—dressed in clothes of the latest mode, a tweed cap pulled at a rakish angle over his ear, a cigarette between his fingers. They stationed him before the desk.

"Take off that hat!" snapped Tim Mulligan. The young man looked up quickly and obeyed.

"One got away," said Mulligan shortly. "I was patrolling Fairview when the machine ran into the oil station. I heard the attendant call out once, as this one," with a jerk of his thumb towards the prisoner, "got out. They were there last week, y' know. He plugged him . . . through the leg . . . hospital." He was speaking jerkily. "The fellow in the car . . . yelled as I ran up . . . then drove off. This one turned . . . 'n' I beat him to the draw. He . . . he . . ." Tim Mulligan leaned heavily against the desk, his hands fumbling at the buttons of his coat.

The boy had been watching him closely, twisting the dapper tweed cap between his hands. Koesting brought a glass of water but Mulligan refused it.

"I've been layin' for these fellows. Knew I'd get 'em sooner or later. This one is a bad one . . . he don't care . . . for nobody . . . but himself. He'd kill his . . . own folks . . . to get away . . ."

He turned and walked slowly to the detectives' office and let himself down into an arm chair.

Lieutenant Murphy opened the book on the desk, and picked up his pen.

"Well, Tim," he said slowly, "anything to say for yourself? I've been on the force many years but this is the hardest thing I have ever done . . . to put Tim Mulligan's little tad behind the bars. You have killed something tonight. You have killed the spirit in your father's heart. His little tad . . ."

"Make it snappy, lieutenant. I've got it comin', I guess, but I didn't think the old man would take me in. I swear I didn't . . ."

"Tim Mulligan has never flinched at doing his duty . . . for 31 years . . . and he never will as long as he's on the force . . ."

Science Unable to Find Cures for Odd Aversions That Are Painful to Those Afflicted

An aversion, amounting almost to terror, of cats is not uncommon, particularly among women. Snakes, too, have a repellent effect on many people. Less frequent is terror of the house-fly. A doctor recently stated, however, that among his patients were two men in whom the buzzing of a fly inspired profound fear. At the sight of a fly crawling on the window panes one of these men immediately starts to tremble violently, and as soon as the fly begins to buzz beads of perspiration break out on his forehead and he has to be led from the room. This man was an officer decorated for bravery during the World war. Many famous people have been similarly affected, although normal in other respects.

The Roman emperor Domitian could not bear the distant hum of a moving fly. Marechal d'Albret, related to the French king, Henry IV, a man of exceptional bravery, is said to have been stricken with terror if he saw a pig. The duke of Epernon fainted at the sight of a hare, while a mouse sufficed to make the distinguished Italian writer, Caraccioli, ill for several days.

That inoffensive creatures should inspire such fear in normally brave men is strange. Still more remarkable is the horror some people have for the sound of a certain word or the sight of some inanimate object. A chevalier of Alcantara is said to have fainted every time he heard the word "Lana"—Spanish for wool—although the actual "feel" of woolen clothing, repugnant to many people, did not affect him. The sight of an eclipse of the moon also caused the great Francis Bacon to swoon, while the famous Italian doctor, Scaliger, shuddered at the sight of cress. Even more astonishing was the case of a squire of Bolston, of whom it is said that when obliged to listen to the twenty-fifth chapter of Isaiah and certain texts from the Book of Kings "he felt an icy hand upon the top of his head and a sensation of intense cold around the heart."

Easier to understand, especially by vegetarians, is the aversion that one of the daughters of Frederik, king of Naples, had for meat. Taxed by her sisters with being weak-willed she once placed a small piece of cooked meat in her mouth, whereupon, to their great consternation, "she fell into a fit, remained unconscious for half an hour, and lay ill with a fever for many weeks."

These aversions and phobias still baffle doctors, for the victim is nearly always normal in other respects. Some doctors believe them to be due to a slight kink in the brain and associate them with a mild form of insanity. Others suggest they are hereditary, while psycho-analysts maintain that they are due to the influence of the subconscious mind impressed by some apparently insignificant incident during the life of the victim. Supporters of the theory of reincarnation believe that all these inexplicable dislikes and uncontrollable fears are vestiges of some happening in a former life.

One thing that the study of these cases has revealed is the fact that phobias and aversions do not necessarily indicate a flaw in the intellect. As a general rule, only the more intelligent men are thus afflicted—and the more developed and active their brain the more intense is their particular aversion.

The phobias most commonly encountered are those caused by the smell of flowers or fruits.—London Tit-Bits.

SPAR BROS. CIRCUS TO ENTERTAIN SATURDAY EVE

The Spar Bros. acrobatic circus will entertain at the free entertainment at St. Joe this Saturday evening. These people are splendid acrobats with plenty of thrills for the spectators. Clown stunts and tricks, slack wire walking, trained dogs and plenty of humor mixed in their hour of entertainment.

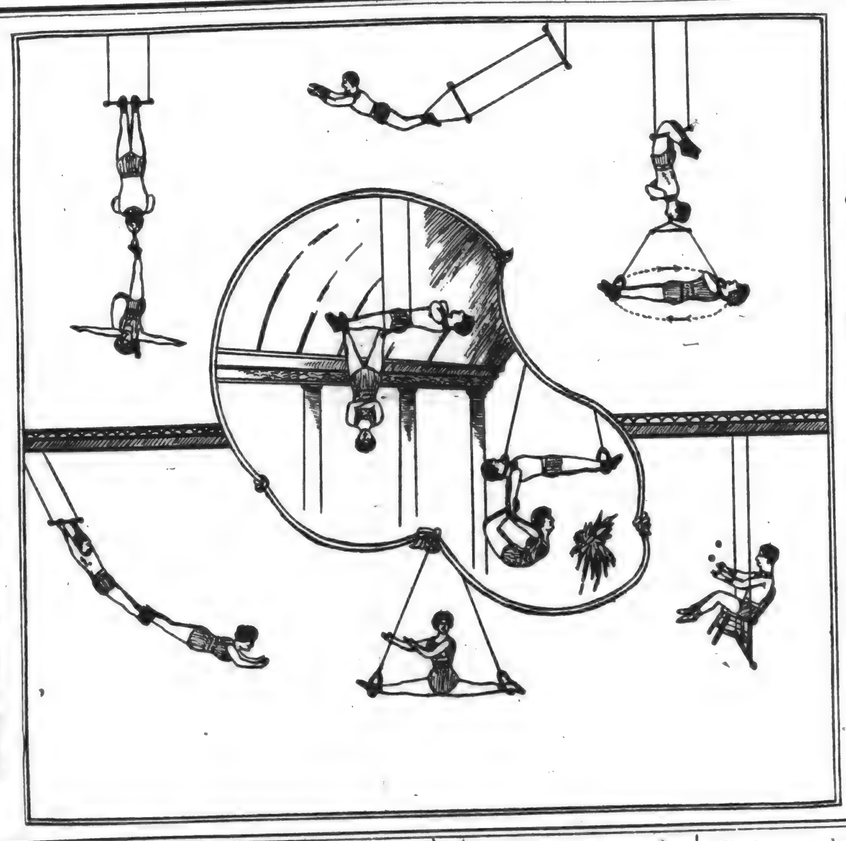
This entertainment is a feature of the regular Saturday night entertainments sposored by the merchants and firemen of St. Joe.

The Spar Bros. Circus has played in Hudson, Waterloo, Ashley and other towns within a radius of 20 miles. If you have seen them perform, you will want to see them again. If you have never seen them perform, it will be well worth your time and efforts to come to St. Joe Saturday night and see them.

Their program is as follows:

Aerial Harters
Comedy Acrobatic Jestures
Clowns—William Tell
Slack Wire Novelty—Walter Harter
Dogs and Clowns
Comedy Sketch
The Four Harters.

Be sure and meet your friends here at this great free attraction.



TAKEN TO AUBURN AS INSANE

Chas. Bishop was taken to Auburn Saturday morning as insane, and is now in the custody of the Sheriff awaiting further proceedings.

For months the family has considered him insane and had been constantly guarding him. On Wednesday night of last week he left the house, starting for the corn field, with Mrs. Bishop pleading for him to return, but he would not.

Frank Shull came to her rescue and searched the premises a couple of times up until midnight when word was sent to town and Marshall Chas. Cochran, Glen Winsland, Roy Koch, Roy Reidenbach, Rev. Koehnlein and F. B. Leighty drove to the Bishop home ad proceeded to search the farm soon discovering him sitting in the corn field. He was lifted to his feet and taken to the house. Some of the children nearby were notified and they came and took charge of him until Saturday when he was taken to Auburn.

APPOINTED GUARDIAN

Fred E. Hart was appointed by Judge Endicott Saturday as guardian of Wm. E. and Nina May Lindley of Garrett, and he filed $1,750 bond in each case, with Clyde Hart and Paul L. Carpenter as sureties. The petitions for guardianships were filed by Birdie May Phillips, who said Mr. and Mrs. Lindley were no longer able to manage their own affairs because of old age and infirmities.

MEMBERS OF TAX BOARD ANNOUNCED

Judge Endicott Appoints Six and County Council Selects One Representative—Serve Without Pay

The membership of the DeKalb county tax adjustment board for 1935 was announced Saturday, as follows:

Fred Hart, of Specer township, republican.
Mayor Lodie Potter, of Auburn, republican.
John Zimmerman, of Auburn, republican.
Elmer D. Case, of Fairfield, township, republican.
Jesse O. Oberlin, of Butler, democrat.
H. M. VanLear, of Garrett, democrat.
Jesse Camp, of Smithfield township, democrat.

Mr. Hart will represent the county council on the board and he was selected by the council in a special meeting Friday night.

The others on the board were named by Judge Endicott. The law requires that he designate a mayor, a member of a school board, a township trustee and three citizens who hold no elective or appointive offices. Mr. Potter is the mayor, Mr. Oberlin member of a school board and Mr. Camp a township trustee.

This will be third year for Mr. Zimmerman and Mr. Case on the board and Mr. Zimmerman has acted as president. Mr. Camp takes the place of S. O. Devitt, who was trustee of Wilmington township. Mr. Oberlin succeeds Dr. J. A. Clevenger of Garrett. Mr. Potter succeeds Warren Lige, his predecessor as mayor of Auburn. Mr. Hart succeeds Frank R. Bowman of St. Joe, who was formerly a member of the county council. Mr. VanLear is the successor of C. H. Heinzerling of Garrett, who reported to Judge Endicott that he was forced to decline reappointment for business reasons. Mr. VanLear has had experience in public office as a member of the Garrett city council and as postmaster.

The members of the board serve without pay. The board will meet the latter part of September to review the budgets and the proposed tax levies of the various units of the county.

VALLEY TEAM TRIUMPHS; DILLEY WINS OWN GAME

In their second home game of the season, the St. Joe Valley Semi-Pros came out victorious, by the score of 7-4, defeating the Robinson Chapel team. This victory evened the score for the season with Robinson Chapel, as they had defeated St. Joe earlier in the season.

The game was featured by a six run attack by the Valley team in the third inning. Ten batters faced the opposing pitcher in this inning, with John Dilley's bat furnishing the big noise, when the St. Joe pitcher tripled with the bags loaded, driving in three runs and thereby winning his own game. Every member of the Semi-Pros seemed to be playing their best before a good crowd of supporters, Dilley receiving good backing in the field from his mates, and Graber and Woodcox banging out three hits apiece to give him some support at the bat.

The turnout of fans was much better than before and everyone seemed to leave well satisfied with the showing of the Valley team.

The team wishes to thank those who are supporting them by coming out and rooting and hopes to see a still larger crowd at the next home game, Sunday, August 18, when the Semi-Pros meet the Garrett nine at the St. Joe Field. Next Sunday they journey to the County Line to meet the Liners in the rub game of their three game series, each team having won one of the previous games. Let's see some of the home town folks there to support the boys in this deciding game of the series. To reach the County Line Diamond, travel west of St. Joe to Road 427, and then south three miles to the field.

Pattern 2240

No one has ever designed anything to equal the chic and comfort of the "Wrap-around" for efficient performance of household duties. And in our crowded lives today, Efficiency plays an important part. Perhaps that's why a house frock that could "go to market" to prove its versatility has been conceived. Don't those big square buttons conform beautifully with the unique cut of the front?—and joys of joys, the wrap is deep enough to keep from popping out at the wrong time. Confidentially, freedom isn't the only virtue of those sleeves—they're so easy to make.

Pattern 2240 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 takes 4 yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department 243 West Seventeenth street, New York.

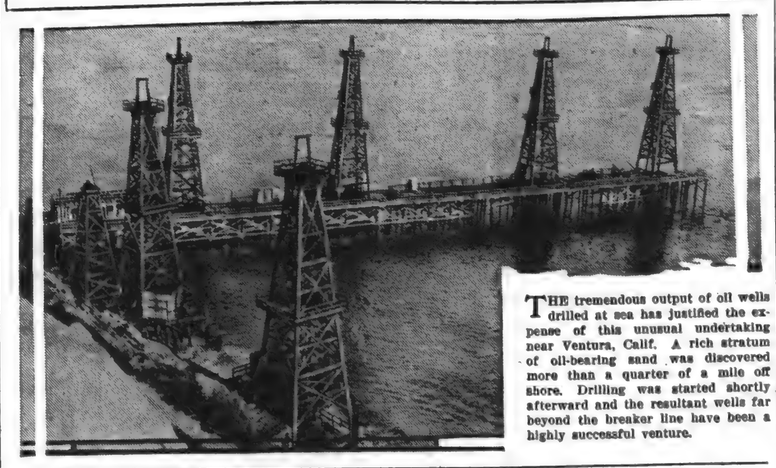
Oil Wells at Sea Are Expensive but Pay Out



THE tremendous output of oil wells drilled at sea has justified the expense of this unusual undertaking near Ventura, Calif. A rich stratum of oil-bearing sand was discovered more than a quarter of a mile off shore. Drilling was started shortly afterward and the resultant wells far beyond the breaker line have been a highly successful venture.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

A PLEASANT VISIT

SITTING safe and comfortable in the hollow stump to which Whitefoot the Woodmouse had led him, Danny Meadow Mouse told Whitefoot all about his adventures from the time he had visited the Smiling Pool right up to the moment when Whitefoot had come to his rescue. Whitefoot listened without saying a word until Danny's story was ended. Then he gravely shook his head.

"It was a crazy thing to do, Cousin Danny. It certainly was a crazy thing to do," said he.

"What was a crazy thing to do?" demanded Danny, looking puzzled.

"Going so far away from home when there was no need of it," replied Whitefoot. "I thought you were too wise to take such foolish risks. At your age you should know better. It might be excusable in a youngster with no family to think of, but one of your age should have known better."

"I guess you are right, Cousin Whitefoot," replied Danny meekly. "I've learned a lesson I'll never forget. I've had frights enough to last me all the rest of my life and if I ever get home I'll never leave it again. I guess I ought to be starting along right now."

"I guess you ought to do nothing of the sort," retorted Whitefoot promptly. "The thing for you to do now is to rest and get yourself in condition."

Danny sighed. "I don't know but what you are right, Cousin Whitefoot," said he. "I really don't feel as if I could face danger again this night. My nerves are rather upset. This is a very nice, comfortable place you have here. It is one of the most comfortable places I've been in for a great while."

"What Was a Crazy Thing to Do?" Demanded Danny, Looking Puzzled.

Whitefoot looked pleased. "I'm glad you like it," said he. "I think it is rather good myself. I have two or three other places quite as good. Now the thing for you to do, Cousin Danny, is to stay here the rest of the night and make yourself right at home."

To this Danny agreed, for he really did not feel equal to going any farther that night. So he and Whitefoot slept a little and talked a great deal. Danny learned many things about the Green Forest and in turn told Whitefoot many things about the Green Meadows. Whitefoot was sure that the Green Forest was the finest place in all the Great World in which to live. Danny was sure that it didn't compare with the Green Meadows, and they argued the matter over and over. But the argument was quite good-natured and simply showed that the things one is used to are the things one loves best. To Danny the Green Forest was filled with terrible dangers. To Whitefoot the Green Meadows seemed a place where there could be no such thing as real safety. So they argued and argued and had a perfectly splendid time.

Mother's Cook Book

GOOD ICE CREAM SAUCES

A SIMPLE ice cream of plain flavor served with a good sauce makes a most delightful dessert and is always enjoyed.

Fruit Punch Sauce.

Cook together one cupful of sugar and one-third cupful of water until it spins a long thread. Add one cupful of crushed pineapple, one-third cupful of maraschino cherries chopped, add some of the juice, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and a few grains of salt. Bring to the boiling point and chill.

Caramel Sauce for Ice Cream.

Put into a saucepan one-half cupful each of sugar and corn sirup and one cupful of cream. Mix and boil, stirring occasionally until it is of the right consistency. Add three-fourths teaspoonful of vanilla and a few grains of salt. Leave over hot water until ready to serve.

Maple Pecan Sauce.

Boil three-fourths of a cupful of maple sirup with two tablespoonfuls of butter until it makes a soft ball when dropped into cold water. Remove from the fire and add slowly one-fourth cupful of cream. Keep hot over water until ready to serve, then add one-fourth of a cupful of broken pecan meats.

Pear Sultan.

Top vanilla ice cream with a pear cooked in a sirup colored pink. Stick quartered blanched almonds into the pear and pour an apricot puree around the cream.

Eclairs De Luxe.

Make eclairs five inches long, cut in two and place a long slice of ice cream between. Serve with any of the desired sauces, or with cream and nuts.

Cream Chocolate Sauce.

Mix one cupful of sugar, one-fourth cupful of water and three tablespoonful of corn sirup. Boil until a soft ball is formed, add slowly four squares of chocolate melted over hot water, one cupful of cream and one-half cupful of fondant; boil one minute, stirring constantly. Add a teaspoonful of vanilla and serve hot or cold.

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have a puzzle for you to solve for me. I like to bet on horse races but always break about even. Here's how it is: One day I win but the next day I lose. What can I do?

Yours truly,
WILL I. EVERWYN.

Answer: That is very simple, just play every other day.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

My father says it costs from $3 to $5 to have a tooth pulled by gas. Don't you think it could be done cheaper if the dentists used kerosene?

Yours truly,
A. KEETOOTH.

Answer: If you're not having the tooth pulled, why worry?

Dear Mr. Wynn:

We are a New York family, and my son, who has just graduated from high school, is preparing for college. I asked him what course he intends to study, and he says he thinks there is a great field for civil engineers. Do you agree with him?

Truly yours,
I. M. A. BRAKEMAN.

Answer: What New York really needs is civil taxicab drivers.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Can you help me? For the past two weeks I have been despondent and have the most peculiar feeling. Sometimes I sit in a chair for hours and suddenly something within me seems to rise, then go down again, and a little later it rises again. What do you think is the matter with me?

Sincerely,
WRIGHT MESOON.

Answer: From your description, I should say you swallowed an elevator.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a man forty-nine years of age. I have traveled all over the world and have just returned to settle down in America. I have a big problem to solve first. I have spent nearly all my money, but still have enough, if properly invested, to keep me for the rest of my life. I think I have a bright idea. I intend opening a school for "stuttering." What do you think of my idea?

Truly yours,
IGO BACKEN FORTH.

Answer: Your idea is all right, but who wants to go to school to learn to stutter?

ONE SUMMER NIGHT

By ANNE CAMPBELL

SITTING beside you on the cool gray stone,
I saw through your dear eyes the summer night.
The trees were shadowy, their dark leaves blown
By perfumed breezes . . . In the misty light
Of the far moon, I caught the pure white gleam
Of your loved profile. . . . With your quiet gaze
Turned on the stars, lost in a happy dream,
You wandered far from earth's perplexing ways.

I saw the world beyond you . . . reaching space,
The silhouette of trees against the sky . . .
And knew that nothing counted but your face.
You were my world. . . . The moon that rode so high,
The stars, as lost as I in mists of blue,
Were nothing. There was only love and you.

I'm Letting You Off Easy

By NARD JONES

WHEE-ee-ee-ee!

Dismal yet imperative was the sound just beyond the left elbow which George had thrust jauntily from his straight-eight roadster. With sinking heart he glanced out to see the goggled apparition drawing abreast of him.

"Pinched," breathed George.

As the traffic officer dismounted and strode toward them Sarah Anne patted her blond hair. "Oh, dear!" she said.

"That's what we get for pulling the curtain down," whispered Sarah Anne. "You couldn't watch in the mirror."

George didn't reply at once, for the officer had put one boot on the running board and was reaching inside his jacket for the ticket book.

"Pretty fast for Sunday afternoon, brother," he remarked pleasantly.

George's eyes opened innocently. "Was I over the limit, officer?"

"About ten over," said the law. "Sorry, but I'll have to give you a ticket."

"Okay," said George. He hoped Cora wouldn't sound off from the rumble seat; he wanted to take his medicine like a good sport before Sarah Anne. Probably his wife would start trying to argue with the cop.

But strangely enough, Cora didn't say anything, and neither did Sara Anne's husband. Naturally Pete wouldn't. George told himself sourly. Nor would he offer to split the fine. Funny how he had let the bus go over the limit. With Sarah Anne beside him he might have hopped up the bus without noticing it. If he hadn't pulled down the curtain he might have seen the cop in the mirror and slowed down. George grinned, watching the officer's busy pencil. Well, pulling down that curtain had been worth getting pinched. What a laugh on Pete, telling him the sun was on their necks so they'd have to pull the curtain down—then kissing Sarah Anne not a foot from Pete's nose!

"There you are," said the traffic officer, tearing the slip from his book and handing it to George. "You appear tomorrow, either at ten in the morning or three in the afternoon."

"Okay, officer. But the fact is, I think my speedometer's off."

The officer grinned cryptically, his glance wavering just for a second over the golden Sarah Anne whose robe did not quite conceal her charming blue bathing suit. "Maybe so. Sometimes the judge takes that into consideration if you can show a speedometer test."

When the officer had roared away, Pete yelled from the rumble seat: "Tough luck, old man," and Cora said: "George, you ought to be more careful."

"I'd think," said Sarah Anne, in the acid tone reserved for her husband, "you'd tell George when you hear a motorcycle."

"He was mighty quiet," said Pete plaintively. "He coasted down this hill on us and I didn't know he was there until he sounded the siren."

* * * * * * * *

As he gave his black tie final touches, and admired his chin in the mirror that night dressing for the Beach club dance, George congratulated himself on his smoothness. Not every guy could have a little fun on the side and not get into a jam. Right under Cora's nose, too, that was the scream.

Next day George went to the Motor Fixit shop. From several summers at Romona Beach he knew young Jasper. "Think you could make that speedometer slow—for a couple of bucks?" asked George jovially.

Jasper smiled just a little. Said Jasper, "It'll cost you one buck to have it tested, and maybe it will really be off. We'll see."

As a matter of fact, it was. Jasper found the speedometer seven miles slow.

"Say, that's great!" George exclaimed. "That makes me liable for only three miles over the limit. The judge ought to let that pass."

"Probably. I'll give you a letter on the test and you can show him that."

So that afternoon promptly at three, George waited with half a dozen other violators. The big Irish cop was present and the sour old judge was slapping on the limit. George heard him impose fines of twenty, fifty, and seventy-five like nothing at all.

When his turn came he handed up his ticket along with the affidavit from the Motor Fixit shop, and winked at the Irish cop.

"Fifty dollars," said the judge. "Next case."

George blinked. "F-fifty dollars?"

"That's what I said. Death has been riding these roads, young man, and that's got to stop."

"But what about that letter there—about the speedometer?"

"I saw it," said the judge. "Speed's not the only thing we're watching. Young people spooning in motor cars on the move—that's part of the trouble, so we ring the Blue law fines on that kind."

"But, your honor," said George indignantly. "We were a respectable party. We—"

"Yes, sir. The defendant was going fifty-five miles an hour in a forty-five mile zone. They all had bathing suits on, and the pair in the rumble seat were doing a clinch that would make the movies ashamed of themselves."

Somebody in the courtroom laughed. The judge pounded furiously.

"Fifty dollars," he said to George, "and I'm letting you off easy."

Glamorous Midsummer Silk Prints

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

MIDSUMMER prints are simply gorgeous. Adjectives, no matter how extravagant, how eloquent or picturesque, fall short of describing them. It is impossible to capture their beauty of color and design and release it via mere words. Like the full blown rose that reaches perfection of bloom in midsummer, the lovely prints now worn, especially the sumptuous evening prints, have reached to such heights of glamorous beauty one's very being thrills at the sight of them.

The enchanting gowns here pictured are self-explanatory as to why women continue to adore prints. The superlative loveliness of the stately model to the left in the group carries the message that no happier choice can be made in the way of a summery evening gown than a filmy, vaporous printed chiffon which silhouettes huge white waterlilies touched with pink and green shadows against a misty black background. The scarflike arrangement which falls across the shoulders, floating in summer airiness at every move, is typical of current styling.

Then there is a frock of perfectly beautiful flower-printed silk fantasy crepe which the lady seated is wearing. To mar the perfection of this glorified print with a superfluous trimming touch would be an unforgivable gesture. Which is why the designer fashioned this superb print along absolutely simple lines. This print is vivid with splashes and dashes of warm tropical colors—as gay, as gorgeous as a bird of brilliant exotic plumage.

The lovely dress with a cape centered in the picture has a story of fascinating interest to tell. It is of violet-gray mousseline de soie. Huge flower appliques, cutouts from a silk poppy print, are festooned on the cape forming a garland about the shoulders, also spiraling around the skirt in double file. The soft sash is of chartreuse green silk taffeta.

This gown is especially significant in that it demonstrates the use of cutout florals from printed fabric as a trimming feature. Designers are doing very clever things along this line of thought. One striking effect is the lei or garland which is worn about the shoulders like a boa or necklace, or is used to finish low-cut necklines, that is made entirely of cutout flowers taken from gay printed chiffons or crepes or whatever the silken material may be. Boutonnieres made of the same print as the frocks with which they are worn are also smartly in vogue.

Perhaps one of the most unique and charming adapations of cutout print florals is seen in sleeves which are formed of the flower motifs which are caught in the center only, the petals fluttering out as if they were real flowers. These flower sleeves contrast a monotone frock. By the way, advance news in regard to fall fashions places special emphasis on the approaching vogue of contrasting sleeves, such as lace or silk print or embroidered sleeves used with monotone silk or velvet or wool for the frock.

Again, speaking of the use of cutout print motifs, cunning collar and cuff sets are formed in the manner described above. The theme is one that may be handsomely worked out for bridesmaids' hat and muff sets.

The flair for beautiful prints also expresses itself in that several dressmakers are making up plain chiffon over printed satin slips. The effect is entrancing. A timely hint for your next party dress.

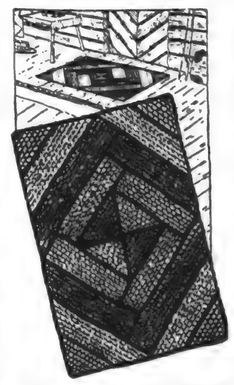
Log Cabin Effect in Crocheted Rug

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK



Log cabins are always picturesque, and the many antiques usually found about the place add much to complete the picture.

We can't all live in cabins, but we can satisfy our antique cravings by giving these ideas some space in our homes.

This "Log Cabin" crocheted rug was developed from the old "Log Cabin" quilt which is known to many of our readers. This model measures 28x42 inches and requires about 4 pounds of rug rug material.

The inner square of 4 triangles is made first. Four elongated pieces of same size form the first row around center, two short and two long pieces form the next or second row. Four pieces of same size from the third row. Four same size triangles fit in corners. Slip-stitch sections together in black and single crochet all around in black. Color scheme may be all brown in light and dark shades or mixed colors. Alternate panels in light and dark shades to give contrast to rows. Measure each section as the work progresses and fit sections into spaces. Rag rug material may vary in weights.

Grandmother Clark's Rug Book No. 24 contains full directions for making this rug, and many others that will interest you. All illustrations in colors. Postpaid, 15c.

Trees and Rainfall

There is much controversy over the question whether trees and other heavy vegetation bring rain or not. A great number of forcible points are cited both for and against this question. But we cannot help noting with interest a report from the Soviet government. In Russia a considerable area was planted with trees in 56 foot strips 700 feet apart. Rainfall in the area of these strips was carefully checked against rainfall in surrounding untreed areas. The results were astonishing. The increase in rainfall in the area bordered by the forest strips was from 13 per cent to 27.2 per cent. In the treed areas the evaporation between the strips was from 20 to 35 per cent less than in the open.

Quick, Pleasant Successful Elimination

FALL FORECAST

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The dramatic sweep of ostrich feathers on fall hats forecasts the return to elegance in fashion. Ostrich feathers straight, curled, jaunty or flowing are being worn on all types of hats from sports to evening. The picturesque afternoon hat in the illustration is in bright green velour. Its crown is cut sharply in half by a beautiful black and white plume which emerges underneath the brim, curling softly down over the neck. The other hat is a type which milliners are showing for wear with dinner dresses. The body of the hat is sheerest net—serves as a foundation for the luxuriant feather which constitutes the brim and trim.

FLOWERS CURRENT THEME OF STYLISTS

"Flowers for Madame" is the current theme song of the stylists.

Fresh flowers are being used as a definite part of current costume ensembles, used in new and unusual ways.

There is, in case you didn't know it, a "tailored corsage" of orchids, for wear with tailored daytime costumes. The stems are wound with velvet ribbon, in a color to harmonize with the ensemble, and are pinned against the collar of the frock or jacket.

For evening gay young things are wearing a spray of small pink orchids across the back of the head, tiara fashion.

Flowers in the hair are all the rage just now. Reminiscent of Carmen are the sprays of red camellias worn by dashing brunets these nights on their dark curls, just behind the right ear.

Another new idea is that of attaching a single orchid to your jeweled bracelet.

New Silk Patent Leather Belts for Daytime Wear

Like soft, crushed girdles are the new silk patent leather belts for daytime dresses. They fit snugly around the waist, and are just a bit wider than the belts you've been wearing. The colors match or contrast with all your new summer dresses—bright red, dark red, pink, lilac, yellow and black. They give a smart touch that adds so much to your costume and proves that it pays to be up-to-date even in details!

Gilt Bead Jabots

Jabots are not always of organdie or lace. The silver and gilt bead variety is modernistic and combines the role of dress jewelry with that of a jabot.

SEES INFLATION A SLOW PROCESS

A Real Danger for the Future, Col. Ayres Tells Banking Groups.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—Present prospects do not indicate that inflation severe enough to cause further dollar devaluation will come soon in this country, but as an ultimate development it seems to be a very real danger, Leonard P. Ayres, Vice President Cleveland Trust Company, said here tonight in an address before the Graduate School of Banking. He believed this statement to be true "unless the government enters frankly upon a policy of issuing fiat money with which to meet its expenses." At present that does not seem to be in sight, he said.

The Graduate School is operated jointly by the American Institute of Banking Section of the American Bankers Association and Rutgers University to offer advanced studies for bank officers.

"We have so enormously increased the capacity of our banking system for credit expansion that it is difficult to see how we could have a vigorous business revival without having it develop into a credit inflation," Colonel Ayres declared.

Inflation a Slow Process

If inflation does come it will be a slow process, he said, pointing out that in Germany, France, Belgium and Italy it took about five years to develop from the time when the governments entered upon policies of financing large peace-time deficits by bank credit up to the time when the public generally began to spend money rapidly because of fear that it would still further depreciate in purchasing power.

"If we are to go through such a period here it would seem likely that it might last rather longer than the corresponding periods did abroad," he said. "Its beginning would date from the spring of 1933 when we left the old gold basis for our money and entered upon the policy of financing large governmental deficits by the sale of Federal securities mainly to banks rather than to private investors.

"The method that we are following is the one that proved disastrous in Europe for in all those countries including Germany, the increasing issues of money that caused the inflations were not mere printing press issues of fiat currency, but were secured by government bonds and notes discounted at the banks. Nevertheless, the process is inherently a slow one."

Among the clearest lessons taught by the European experience, Colonel Ayres asserted, is that there are "no good hedges against inflation." He added:

Did Not Lighten Debt Burdens

"One of the strange facts about these inflations is that while they destroyed the values of most existing debts, they did not succeed in lightening the debt burdens of either the people as a whole, or of the corporations.

"Inflation destroys the value of bonds and mortgages and so confiscates the property of these holders of obligations and hands it over to the shareholders and the equity owners. However, it introduces so many new economic difficulties that these share and equity holders are at once forced to incur new indebtedness so that when stabilization comes the problems of debt are about as troublesome as they were before, or even more so."

The five requisites of inflation were listed by Colonel Ayres as first, a period of sustained active business; second, a rising stock market; third, real credit expansion; fourth, greater outflow of gold "than we can tolerate which would force us to cut our currency entirely free from gold"; and fifth, continued large budget deficits in government operation.

SHORT HONEY CROP EXPECTED IN STATE

Early reports from beekeepers throughout the state indicate that Indiana's crop of honey will be approximately 25 per cent under normal. Indiana has a normal honey production of approximately three million pounds. The shortage in honey this season is charged chiefly to the long drought period in 1934 which affected the clover in many sections of the state, the beekeepers claim.

Farley Says "Soak Them"

Two members of the Indiana house delegation, Halleck, Second District, republican, and Mrs. Virginia E. Jenckes, Sixth District, democrat, voted against the administration wealth tax bill.

All other Hoosiers voted for it—Boehne, Crowe, Farley, Gray, Greenwood, Griswold, Larrabee, Ludlow, Pettengill and Schulte, all democrats.

Representative Jenckes, who has been a consistent administration supporter, was one of eighteen democrats voting against the bill.

"I saved money when I bought this FORD V-8—and I save money every time I drive it"

"WHEN you consider all the things you get with the Ford V-8 without extra charge, there is no doubt about it, it's the most economical car you can buy. And there is no argument about its being the most economical car to operate. You see this economy in gas, oil, tires, service and everything that costs money. The V-8 engine has all the speed, pick-up and power I'll ever need—and more! And these modern Ford brakes are just as powerful and dependable for stopping the car as the V-8 motor is for starting and operating it. Besides, you can't beat the Ford all-steel body, to say nothing of Safety Glass throughout. The fact is, the Ford V-8 is the ideal car for this part of the country!"

VOL. L. (50 Years) (In The St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 15, 1935 NUMBER 33

WRITES TO MOTHER, MRS. NANCY HINDMAN

Some weeks ago a home gathering had been planned by Mrs. Hindman for her son to meet his old friends here. They gathered, but Don failed to arrive and a short time after he wrote his mother from Traverse City, Mich., as follows:

"Dear Mother:

"I was very sorry to disappoint you Sunday but could not help it. I would have let you know sooner but thought maybe I could come, you know how it is, you cannot always do as you want to do, but be of good cheer for everything will come out alright. It only takes a little time, some one else is running my business and it is up to me to let them run it, which will work out for the best.

"I am improving in health and feeling fine, plenty to eat, a good bed to sleep in and they use me fine, what more could I ask for, but would have enjoyed being home for the meeting. This is all for this time, from your son.

Don."

HEARING ON BEER PERMIT FOR ST. JOE

Official notice is being given by the Alcohol Beverage Commission of Indianapolis, concerning the application of Roy Wade (Wade Restaurant) of St. Joe, for a beer retailer's permit. The hearing on this application will be held at 9 A. M., Central Standard Time, at the County Clerk's office, court house, Auburn, on Friday, August 30.

ST. JOE TEAM AT HOME SUNDAY

Next Sunday, August 18, the St. Joe Valley Semi-Pros, will play their third home game of the season, meeting the Garrett nine at the St. Joe Field at 2:30 P. M. Earlier in the season the Valley team defeated the Garrett team by the score of 5-2 on the Garrett diamond.

St. Joe will attempt to keep their winning streak of three games intact, by taking this encounter. Since the first of the season when the team was being organized, St. Joe has won four games while losing one. Last Sunday the scheduled game at the County Line was called off, and the Semi-Pros journeyed to Hopewell to take on the team there, but due to a mix-up in the schedule that game was also called off, giving the Valley boys a rest in preparation for the game with Garrett next Sunday.

The battery for next Sunday's game will be Dilley pitching with Kinsey catching. The rest of the team is the same that has represented St. Joe all season. Let's see a good crowd of supporters out to root for the team next Sunday.

IT'S OUT AGAIN, IN AGAIN

The first Moday in August the A.A.A. publicity department issued a statement that 27,500,000 acres have been taken out of cultivation for basic crops under the A.A.A. contracts. This represents one out of every 12 acres of cultivated land in the United States.

The same day the Works Program Administration issued a statement that President Roosevelt had allotted $22,000,000 to Professor Tugwell to buy up land and take it out of cultivation altogether, and had allocated $18,350,000 to the Bureau of Reclamation for the purpose of irrigating additional land in order to bring it into cultvation within one or two years.

AT CENTENNIAL

James Robert Kees and John Smith attended the Centennial of Pleasant Lake, Steuben Township, last week end. Reminiscence of the old sickle, plow, rake, old heckle, spinning wheel, cradle, trundle bed, yoke of oxen, Indians, and cowboys, old style show and Brush Car.

James has a cane made from logs from corduroy road in 1840, recently removed for new pavement between Angola and Pleasat Lake.

The B. & O. wreck at Sherwood, Sundoy morning runs into thousands, when auto rams fast freight and derails 34 loaded cars. Only slight injuries were received by the three occupants of the auto, and brakeman Walter Beeber, of Garrett. Box cars were strewn 200 yards and crews worked 22½ hours to clear one main track. Many from St. Joe witnessed the scene Sunday.

James Hamilton holds the record for the season, in catching fish. Friday evening he caught a 17-inch wall eye pike with the aid of his sister. Everyone is wondering where the spot is located and of course, it was in the river. This is evidence that the fish planted the past years are still here and getting to be worth catching.

Mrs. C. H. Curie, Joan and Carlton, together with Mrs. Laney Gee, Mrs. Playter and Mr. Zimmerman, attended the Hollopeter reunion at the Bert Hollopeter home at Everett Lake, Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hose and two children and Mrs. Ida E. Hose, of Butler, were Sunday callers in the Gee home and also attended the Hollopeter reunion.

Mrs. Dora Sailer is at Kendallville this week visiting a niece, Mrs. Mae Wilson, until Sunday. Mrs. Sailer will also visit with her sister, Mrs. Betty Lysher, of Flint, Mich., who is at Kendallville for the week. They will all attend the fair.

SATURDAY NIGHT FREE ATTRACTIONS

The crowds are growing for the Saturday night Merchants Free Street Entertainments, as was evidenced on last Saturday night, when the four Harters appeared in circus performances.

As anounced, Abe Grabill and his Old Time Fiddlers, a company of six people, and sponsored by the town council of St. Joe, will put on the performance this week. They are a company of experienced players, filling engagements almost every night and at reunions and social events. They will bring with them a famous Hicksville Yodeler.

You will like this old time music.

August 24, the Varnell Circus Review, a company of four skilled artists, will furnish the free attraction, and and we are assured of a high class entertainment consisting of Contortion acts, Vaudeville and Ventriloquist. A full hour of wholesome entertainment absclutely free. Watch paper for other details next week and pass the word along to your friends urging them to come to St. Joe.

The Koch reunion will be held Sunday at Hicksville.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank May were at Muncie Sunday guests of their daughter, Violet, who is in school. She will complete her course on August 23 and return home for institute the following week. Crates May and family accompanied them on the trip.

The Coburn reunion was held in the Alton grove Sunday. J. E. Dermott, of Coldwater, Mich., accompanied by his granddaughter, Betty visited until Wednesday in the community. Mr. Dermott stated that Asher Coburn settled on what is now the Cad Shull farm, 100 years ago, and that there femains one apple tree planted by the venerable pioneer. Mr. Dermott had with him a number of antique keepsakes connected with Coburns of the pioneer days.

Takes No Time to Make Cotton Frock

PATTERN 2315

Make it in percale for a morning frock! Make it in novelty cotton, shantung or pique for a sports frock! And then make it again in silk crepe for an afternoon frock!

This pattern will make a charming frock for nearly any summer daytime occasion. Its lines are particularly good—for the "not-too-slim" figure. Moreover, it can be run up before the clock moves round. Note both versions of the flattering collar. Pleated sleeves, a kick pleat, and cleverly placed fullness all contribute to the charm. Two or three frocks of this pattern will prove classics in your wardrobe.

BUSINESS

"Do you think business is good?"

"Beyond a doubt," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "Our natural resources are enormous and so are the requirements of the people. Business is right there. All we need is the ability to transact it."

Everything Fits

"But you advertised a bed-sitting room."

"Certainly. This is it."

"Well, I see the bed, but where's the sitting room?"

"On the bed."

Inconsistent Mummy

Visitor—But aren't you too small to stay up so late?

Joan—Mummy says so, but in the morning she tells me I'm too big to lie in bed.

Publicity Profit

"Do you think good plays win literary prizes?"

"Not necessarily," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes, "but good manners often do."

JOE HARKNESS and I met when a traffic jam caused our cars to lock fenders. His apologetic grin and our exchange of cards began a warm friendship. My games were architecture and golf; Harkness' steel and fishing.

By the time I had constructed their fishing lodge in Canada a few years later, Joe's wife was familiarly depending on me to be the extra man at her various entertainments.

Recalling it now, I believe the first time I noticed the fish hooks, the barb of one caught in the eye of the other, was during a fall visit at the lodge when rainy weather kept us indoors. They were tacked over the big stone fireplace.

When I found them in the city apartment my friends occupied while I built their Normandy chateau—the only hint of fishing in the room—I was mildly piqued. But when I saw them hanging between French paintings on the walls of their new home, I was intensely curious.

I couldn't tell the Harknesses that Corot and Millet would hardly enjoy sharing honors with fish hooks but I did ask what special significance they had.

Joe looked at them, a quizzical gleam in his eyes. "When is a fish story not a fish story?" he queried.

Sally made it a little more intriguing by replying in a low voice, "When it ends like a fairy tale."

"You see, Ken," Joe began, "long years ago, when Sally was young and beautiful—"

"He means, of course," Sally interrupted, "when I was young and gullible!"

The male Harkness chuckled. "Well, anyway, she doesn't dispute the young part, Ken. She was young, you know!"

He ducked the magazine she threw and continued. "Sal's dad and mine belonged to the same clubs. We were the only children of those widowers, so they took us around more than most parents do and Sally and I were thrown together quite a bit.

"We followed the same golf tournaments, watched the same swimming events, polo, tennis—oh, everything that went on. Well, McCrea, Sal's dad, and my old man had argued the golf championship of Valley club for over a decade. Neither one of them could win that extra game that would make the trophy his own."

"It was like a Kentucky feud after they'd been fighting for twelve years," Sally broke in with a pensive smile. "The feeling between them was so strong that the board of directors decided the winner for the coming event—which was to be the thirteenth tournament—would get the cup once and for all. Each of them had won it six times, you see."

"Well," Joe sighed, "it's a funny thing, Ken. McCrea died in the spring of the following year and it almost seemed that my dad couldn't stand the disappointment of not playing that final tournament, for he soon died, too!"

Harkness seemed lost in his memories for a minute and Sally carried on. "Their deaths were quite a blow to both of us and for a long time we were like fish out of water. But youth has a way of forgetting unhappiness and Joe and I—well, we just took up the battle where our fathers had left off."

"Yeah," my host agreed. "We tried golf at first but we were both so rotten we soon gave it up. Then trap shooting became the fad and Sally and I carried even scores for a long time. Both of us had been doing a lot of fishing, meanwhile."

"I think I never hated anybody quite as much as I did Joe Harkness," Sally confided, "the year the gang at the club complained that our inherited competition had degenerated to hot air." Sally smiled. And when Sally smiles you just naturally smile with her. "They said they were going to have a medal struck off with a picture of Ananias on it and present it to the winner!"

Harkness' face simply beamed as he went on with the story. "Anyway, Ken, for the first time in our lives we agreed on something; we both objected to being called liars. So we settled on a fishing party then and there that would decide which of us was the better man.

"We decided to cast on opposite sides of the same stream and went out the next day with fire in our eyes. We'd been at it for several hours with a couple of trout apiece, when I felt an awful tug on my line. I played it for a while, slowly reeling in, convinced that I had a whopper! My rod bent and I was having the time of my life. Finally I gave a long, steady pull that should have landed him, when I hear a—uh—respectably large spinah."

Joe shook with laughter. "Sally, still hanging onto her rod, had been hauled in. Our hooks had caught just as you see them now, Ken. And that's the way they've stayed 'cause it was during that excitement that we realised our contest wasn't nearly as important as—as other things."

We were all grinning now. "Then nobody really won, did they?" I asked.

"Well, you see, Ken," Joe replied, a twinkle in his eyes, "we've never quite settled that. But since I actually had to pull Sally out of the stream, I'm inclined to believe I caught the biggest fish."

"And since I've been 'hooked' now for over fifteen years," Sally countered with affectionate sarcasm, "I'm inclined to agree with him!"

Oriental Drape and Classic Pleat

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SEEKING a new fashion thrill? Here it is and a rather startling one when it comes to "something different." It's the draped silhouette either of Hindu or classic Greek influence. Look for it this fall, for draped fulness is on the way. As a matter of fact it has already arrived.

For quite some time Paris designers have been giving these draped effects a good try-out in evening wraps and gowns. When Schiaparelli and Alix and others first displayed gowns that either went harem or were daringly draped a la Hindustan and when artful pleatings went classic Greek and the sari and the Ihram headscarf made their dramatic appearance, they created no end of excitement in fashion's domain. The venture went over with such overwhelming success style creators were led to adopt the idea of drapes and pleats as a workable formula in the designing of the new fall and winter modes.

The oriental influence which is being so dramatically exploited this season is shown in the costume to the right in the picture. The front fulness which is a characteristic feature of the newer fashions is achieved through both shirring and draping. As the season progresses the importance of front fulness will become increasingly apparent. The new softly styled frocks, the new separate skirts and the new coats all emphasize this trend. In harmony with this idea of front fulness comes the vogue of draped bodices. The most important feature of these smartly draped bodices is that their technique involves the use of gathers and fulness that seems to radiate from the shoulder line.

It is also significant that this stunning gown is made of chiffon, for the formal afternoon gown of filmy black is proving a favorite among best dressed women. The square rhinestone buttons add sparkle to the costume. The hat of quilted silk is very unusual—suggests Egyptian inspiration.

The other gown is likewise made of black silk chiffon. The waist-depth jacket is done in all-over exquisitely fine accordion pleating. The blouse and the softly tied and pleated sash are of bright vermilion silk chiffon. The classic arrangement of this sash obviously suggests Grecian influence. The Greek trends are reflected in every realm of fashion, ranging from evening gowns to beach costumes. Beach wraps are so designed as to fall over the shoulder in classic cascade pleats. Then there are the lovely white chiffon evening gowns that are all-over pleated and go trailing in grace with pleated capelike scarfs which fall over the shoulder in most picturesque fashion.

One outcome of Greek influence is the vogue which calls for flat-heeled Grecian sandals. The smartest Parisiennes are wearing them fashioned of gilt leather. Picture a gown of Greek inspiration made of white crepe. The sculptured classic look is accented with a handsome gold cord with tassels about the waist. Gilt leather Greek sandals add the final touch.

The Hindu turban which the lady to the left in the illustration is wearing is noteworthy in that advance millinery showings are placing particular stress on the importance of Hindu-draped turbans for immediate wear with one's midsummer frocks. These charming turbans and berets are made either of black or white crepe or chiffon. As you see in the picture the thin fabric is twisted and shirred in interesting fashion. A new look is achieved this season for berets and turbans of Oriental inspiration in that they are worn, in some instances, back off the forehead.

MODERN VOGUE IN SCENT APPLICATION

A delightful new vogue in scent application—one particularly effective and appropriate with sleeveless and backless summer frocks and beach wear—is the one sponsored by a famous old French perfume house. Perfume, according to them, should not be applied to the clothing or handkerchief, or in little dabs behind the ears (as most American women apply it), but should be applied directly to the skin, spread over it in lavish quantities. Applied in this way, scent becomes an intrinsic part of the personality, being modified differently by the different texture of each skin, and so acquiring a warmer and richer, as well as an individual, fragrance.

A lovely and refreshing preparation known as "skin perfume," which should serve a double purpose in the sticky summer months (since it is cooling and stimulating as well as fragrant) is produced by this French house. The skin perfume comes, incidentally, in the fresh and delicate scent of lilac, unprecedentedly popular this year both as spring and summer shade and as floral perfume.

Another new note in scent fashion widely advocated this summer is the combination of perfume and dusting powder in the same scent to give one a single, individual fragrance. These combined perfume and dusting powder packages are ideal for summer use, from the viewpoint of comfort as well as charm.

Golden Phantoms

FASCINATING TALES OF LOST MINES

©W.N.U. By Editha L. Watson

$100,000 IN GOLD

1849—what a date in history it was! —Especially for the West. '49 west of the Mississippi was a year that marked the real beginning of things. People coming and going. High hopes ebbing and flowing. Fortunes made and lost. Gold wasted, thrown away, and stolen. Murder, robbery. That was what '49 meant to the West.

There are stories enough to fill a library about the gold of '49 alone. People went mad over it. The golden phantom was at its most alluring, and men followed it crazily, unswervingly, determined to gain its promised riches if they had to kill those who got in their way. The West was overrun with bandits who hungered and thirsted for gold.

That year, in Sacramento, California, there was a band of eight men who planned to enrich themselves at the cost of others. They went about it in rather haphazard fashion, however. Gold dust may be packed in sacks, gold bars are heavy but precious, but gold money clinks, and slides, and takes up extra space—and it was gold money that the thieving octette stole. One hundred thousand dollars in golden coin came into their greedy hands. Divided by eight, this would leave each with a small fortune, as computed in those days. And then, there was always the possibility that something might happen to remove one or more of the number.

The guilty eight headed east with their spoil. Across the Rockies, out toward the plains, they hurried. Six of them fell along the way, killed by soldiers who had tracked them. The surviving pair hurried ahead, anxious, desperate.

But they could not escape with their burden of gold. It must be hidden somewhere in safety, marked so that they would not lose the location, and left. It would wait for them to come back to it.

So the two, hastily inscribing a false date on three stones, buried the gold in a gulch, marked the spot by the dated stones, and vanished into the East.

More than thirty years later, a man stopped at a sheep camp near the present town of Clifford, in eastern Colorado. He was, he told the herder, seeking for the treasure which he had buried in '49. For weeks he stayed in the neighborhood, searching for that fortune in coins—searching in vain. At last he went back East, defeated, but before he left he told the sheepman of the three dated rocks, with their false inscriptions "1847." Somewhere these three rocks still lay, and within their triangle a faint golden phantom hovered, guarding the stolen hoard hidden so long ago.

James Will, the owner of the sheep, would have been more than human if he had not succumbed to the lure of that phantom. Others, to whom he confided the story, hunted also. But no such dated rocks could be found.

At last, only a few years ago, a man named Elkins discovered one of the stones. His find caused scores of persons to flock to the place, digging where it seemed likely the treasure had been hidden. But nothing came to light except roots and rocks, disinterred eagerly, thrown down angrily, by disappointed treasure hunters.

Then late in November, 1934, a second stone was found. T. C. Hatton of Clifford discovered it—a flat rock bearing the inscription "D. Grover and Joseph Fox Lawe—Aug. 8, 1847." And the hunt was on again.

It may be presumed that Grover and Lawe were the fugitives who buried the gold, although why they should thus perpetuate their guilty names is not clear.

So far, no one has succeeded in finding the treasure. Will the third stone be discovered some day in the future, and will another generation of eager gold-seekers dig over the ground?

Perhaps—and yet it may have happened, also, that the man who came back in the '80's to search for the cache found it—and did not tell. He may have moved it, come back later, and taken it away—or even (and this is possible) found that his surviving partner in crime had already been on the scene.

It is possible, too, that the stranger might have been "spoofing" the sheepherder. He could have been looking for something entirely different from hidden, stolen gold, and he could easily have inscribed that peculiar date on the rocks at that time. Why? Well, why do men enjoy playing practical jokes?

Still, no one could convince the people of Clifford that his story was other than the purest truth. The golden phantom is one ghostly figure that is delightfully easy to believe in.

And maybe it is all true—maybe some one will dig up that pleasant sum of one hundred thousand dollars in gold coin some day—who knows?

The English Setter

The English Setter is a larger breed of the Spaniel group. It is a sporting dog and is taught to crouch down when marking game, instead of standing, like a Pointer. It is a handsome animal with a wavy, silk coat, while the tail carries a fringe of long, straight hair.

PREHISTORIC "FACTORY"

A site where prehistoric man played on the beach perhaps 100,000 years or more ago has been discovered by C. van Riet Lowe, the South African archeologist. Between great clumps of rock, which were evidently washed by the sea countless years ago, although now they stand half a mile inland, is a vast sand dune which has hardened with the passing of time. This dune has been scoured by rain water running down the hillside and is crumbling away, exposing valuable evidence of how man lived in the Stone age days. Mr. Van Riet Lowe picked up dozens of unfinished stone axes. He believes this was a factory site of prehistoric man. Here, apparently, he came to the beach for his waterworn stones, knocked them into some semblance of the shape he desired and discarded those which chipped badly. The site was littered with imperfect specimens of the stones.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

DANNY'S HOME-COMING

WHEN the first Jolly Sunbeams came stealing through the Green Forest, Danny Meadow Mouse began to be uneasy. He was thoroughly rested and the dangers of the dreadful night were already forgotten. Perhaps I should not say that they were forgotten, for, of course, that isn't quite true. But Danny had quite put them out of his mind. That is the way with the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows. Dangers that are past are not worth thinking about. They must keep their minds clear for possible dangers to come. So Danny's thoughts were not of what he had been through, but were wholly of getting home.

He thanked his cousin, Whitefoot, for all the latter had done for him and then climbed out of the hollow stump and once more started for the Green Meadows and home. As long as he was in the Green Forest he was anxious. He didn't feel at home there. He didn't know what to expect. He imagined all sorts of dangers. But the instant he reached the edge of the Green Meadows his heart became light.

"Oh, Danny, I'm So Glad! I'm So Glad!"

He still had a long way to go and many things might happen before he reached that snug little home and Nanny Meadow Mouse and the babies. But Danny's heart was light, for on the Green Meadows he knew just what to do and where to go. He could see Redtail the Hawk sailing round and round, high in the blue, blue sky. He knew that Redtail was watching with those wonderful eyes of his for a fat Meadow Mouse, but that didn't worry Danny in the least. You see, he knew just how to keep out of sight.

After a while he reached one of his own private little paths. The brown grass hung over it making a regular little tunnel of it. Danny scampered along as fast as his short legs would take him and so presently he reached his snug, safely hidden little home. The half-grown children raced out to meet him to see if he had brought them something. Inside, the babies were having an after-dinner nap. Of Nanny Meadow Mouse there was no sign. You see, Nanny was out getting her own dinner. It was while he waited for her that Danny began to wonder how ever he would be able to explain his long absence. He suspected that Nanny would be very cross, very cross, indeed. He suspected that he was due for a scolding, such a scolding as only Nanny's sharp tongue could give. He knew that he deserved it. He was glad, ever so glad, to be home, but he felt most uncomfortable.

By and by, as he sat just outside his snug little home, he heard footsteps hurrying along one of the private little paths. It was Nanny hurrying home to her babies. When she saw Danny she stopped short and stared at him as if she thought her eyes were playing her tricks. Then, instead of the sharp words he expected and knew he richly deserved, Nanny rushed to him crying, "Oh, Danny, I'm so glad! I'm so glad! I thought you were dead!" And Danny Meadow Mouse knew then how great is love.

The greatest depth at which useful work can be accomplished by a diver is 275 feet. When a diver descends, the extra air pressure to which he is subjected is instantly transmitted to the whole inside of his body. Some divers are able to withstand greater pressures than others. QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

We are getting up a raffle for a poor man in our neighborhood, and I have been asked to write to you to ask if you won't buy some chances.

Truly yours,
BENNY FACTOR.

Answer: I don't want any chances, as I wouldn't know what to do with a poor man if I won one.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have read a great deal lately about bigamy and bigamists. Am I not right when I say "If a man has one wife too many he is a bigamist?"

Yours truly,
DELLA WARE.

Answer: You are not right. I know a man who has only one wife, and only the other day he told me that although he is married to one woman he has one wife too many; yet, you can see, he has not committed bigamy.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I hear so many jokes about matrimony that I often wonder if any of the things I heard have any truth behind them. For instance, are all married people unhappy?

Sincerely,
I. RISH.

Answer: No, only the men.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am secretary of the Ladies' Inquisitive Auxiliary, an association devoted to looking into other people's affairs. We need some money so have decided to give a novelty party in the Town hall. Have you ever heard of a White Elephant Party? If so please describe it in detail, will you?

Sincerely,
SARAH TOGA CHIPS.

Answer: A "White Elephant Party" is a party where the ladies are supposed to bring any little thing that is around the house which they can find no use for, and yet is too good to throw away. Ladies cannot bring their husbands.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I know a boy who likes to show off when there is a crowd around. He plays the saxophone very poorly yet he always brags about his playing. He said that when the Prince of Wales was over here that the prince attended an amateur performance and the prince commanded him to appear, with his saxophone, before him. Do you believe him?

Yours truly,
CLARA KNETT.

Answer: What your boy friend means is simply this: He appeared with his saxaphone around 9 o'clock and the prince did not arrive at the performance till 10 o'clock. Therefore, he really appeared before the prince.

Mother's Cook Book

TAPIOCA ICE CREAM

NOW that the mechanical refrigerator has become such an everyday affair, we are learning new ways of economy in foods as well as energy. The use of quick-cooking tapioca has become common in the preparation of soups, omelets, berry pies and meat loaves, but now comes the thrilling discovery of what this versatile ingredient can do for ice cream. With the use of tapioca, a velvety smooth cream can be made without the bother of cranking the freezer. Yet no more cream is required than for the mixture which must be stirred.

Simply prepare the mixture, set the control for freezing desserts and forget all about it until the freezing is complete. For those who have no mechanical refrigerator, turn the mixture into a mold, pack in ice and salt and let stand for four or five hours.

Formerly recipes of the mousse type, with a large proportion of cream have had to be used in order to get satisfactory results in the texture, without stirring. All cream desserts are too rich as well as costly to serve for the average housewife, also are too rich for the children and adults after a heavy dinner.

Chocolate Ice Cream.

Take two squares of unsweetened chocolate cut into pieces, add to two cupfuls of milk in a double boiler and heat. When the chocolate is melted beat with a rotary beater until well blended, add three tablespoonfuls of quick-cooking tapioca, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and cook until clear and thickened, stirring frequently. Add one-half cupful of sugar and four tablespoonfuls of light corn sirup; cook until all are well blended, then cool. Strain the mixture by stirring, not rubbing through a fine sieve. Chill. Add two tablespoonfuls of sugar to two beaten egg whites and fold into the mixture. Add one cupful of cream whipped and two teaspoonfuls of vanilla. Turn into the freezing tray and freeze as rapidly as possible. Three to four hours are required. Lacking the refrigerator, pack in ice and salt for several hours.

THE COUNTY FAIR

By ANNE CAMPBELL

THE apple that hung on the gnarled brown bough
And dreamed of perfection the summer through,
Is wearing a blue satin ribbon now;
Our Grandfather's peaches won first prize, too.
The biggest of pumpkins, the grandest squash
Have taken their place in the rustic square;
And Granddad may tease and declare it's bosh,
But Grandmother's jam won first prize at the fair.

There are quilts with patterns so intricate,
You would scarcely believe a woman's hands
Could fashion a comforter delicate
As the varied tints of a rainbow's bands.
There's embroidery fine as a cobweb spun
On a rainy day in a spider's lair;
And many a task that was bravely done
Last year is now at the county fair.

The pickles and pies and the cakes and jell,
Examples of home and the kindly art
Of women who, doing a small thing well,
Learn to tackle life with a joyous heart!
And deeper than you and I see displayed
Goes the evidence of their loving care . . .
The symbols of beauty in homes they've made
Are plainly in view at the county fair.

QUILTMAKERS FAVOR OLD-TIME PATTERNS

Patchwork quilt making is still in the limelight and the old patterns seem to be most in demand.

Here are the names of the blocks shown above. Most of them are very old designs—"Log Cabin"—"Rare Old Tulip"—"Poinsettia"—"Pineapple"—"Butterfly"—"Pussy in the Corner"—"Pin Wheel"—"Sunbonnet Babies."

When making the next quilt watch the seams, one seam sewed wrong ruins the whole block. Here are a few suggestions for making perfect quilts. Press all material before cutting. Use blotting paper for patterns, thus avoiding pinning. Cut each piece exactly like pattern. Match all edges perfectly when sewing together. Lay the patches and blocks out for best color combinations before sewing together.

Patchwork Quilt Book No. 21 contains 37 old and new quilt designs with illustrations, instructions and cutting charts for the patches. The above 10 quilts are included. Send 15c to our quilt department and receive this book by mail.

SUPERB QUALITY OF BIBLE MAKES IT UNIQUE BOOK

The Bible has now been translated into 800 languages or dialects or is in course of translation; and it is an interesting question to ask which of these translations is the best?

An African negro once told an Englishman who has traveled widely among many nations: "You white people have many advantages. You have railroads, the telegraph, rifles, beautiful dresses, wisdom and riches; but one thing you lack, a thing we have—the Bible in the Zulu language." The traveler said: "Our own translation is an excellent one and is very faithful to the original text." The Zulu shook his head and said: "It cannot be the equal of ours."

The incident had almost escaped the memory of the traveler when he came to one of the Malayan islands and there heard a native remark: "The Malay is the most eloquent language in the world. Just read our translation of the Scriptures and be convinced." A little later he was in a Chinese port. "In my hearing," he says, "a Chinese Christian expressed his pity for the Europeans who are unable to read the Bible in Chinese!"

What are we to conclude from these statements, which no doubt could be multiplied? Although the French translation to this writer seems hopelessly stilted and formal, he knows that the French prize it as the crown and glory of their literature. What does it mean?

Simply this, that the quality of the Bible is such that it bears translation into any tongue without losing a particle of its strength and beauty. The finest passages in Shakespeare lose a great deal by translation into German. Goethe's lyrics in English translation have lost their soul. This is true also of ancient literature. Plato's genius is dimmed when he is made to speak German or English. And the Fourth Ode of Horace's Second Book is magnificent only in its original Latin. The Bible alone among all books retains its heavenly quality whatever language it is made to speak.—Dr. Theo. Graebner in the Lutheran Witness.

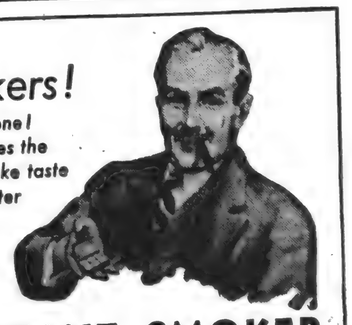
Smokers!
Try one! It makes the next smoke taste better



CONSTANT SMOKER
Most men that smoke a lot have what we call "furry tongues" and don't know it! Smoking stops the flow of saliva in the mouth and you get too much acid in your system. Makes you feel sluggish and loggy. The best way to lick the acids and still keep smoking is by taking Milnesia wafers twice a day. Your mouth will always feel clean and fresh and you always have your usual pep.
Guilty of these Every Day Habits? Eat Too Much, Smoke Too Much, No Exercise, Late Hours
MILNESIA Wafers neutralize the excess acids that cause indigestion, heartburn and sick headaches. Each Wafer is a full adult dose, children—one-quarter to one-half. Pleasant to take. Recommended by thousands of physicians—At All Good Druggists.
Economical, too! Each Milnesia package contains more Magnesium Hydroxide than all other liquid forms.

The ice cream social sponsored by the Methodist Church was well attended on Saturday evening and a nice sum realized.

Mrs. Dora Moringstar, of Toledo, Ohio, was a guest last week of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hahn, and other relatives.

The Gloyd family reunion will be held on Sunday, Aug. 18, at the community hall, this place, Mrs. Emila Gloyd, hostess.

Miss April Dawn Bowser, who spent last week with her aunt and husband, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Whitacre, at Highland, Ind., returned home on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Whitacre and daughter, Yvonne, of Highland, Ind., were Sunday evening supper guests at the R. U. Bowser home. Mrs. Whitacre and daughter remained for two weeks visit.

Mrs. Rebecca Kirst attended the Batdorff reunion, which was held in Eckhart Park, Auburn, on Sunday. Mrs. Kirst was taken very ill and is now at the home of her sister, Mrs. Zerns, at Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. VanDyke, of near Mansfield, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gongriver, of Columbia City, Ind., Mr. and Mrs. Gongriver, of near Columbia City were Friday guests of Mrs. Zetta Wertman.

The Vinton Miller farm residence east of Spencerville, burned Tuesday night with the household goods being saved. The Millers were away from home at the time. No fire department was called to assist in protecting the property.

Mr. and Mrs. Vol Hay and grandson, Victor Kelley, spent last week with the former's daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bowerman, of near Angola. Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Kimes and babe were Sunday guests in the same home.

The Home Bureau was most pleasantly entertained on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Zona Abel. After the business hour a delightful program of music, readings and contests, was enjoyed. Places were laid at luncheon for 12 members and 13 guests.

Master Bobby Shockley, aged 4 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Shockley, was badly injured Sunday night about 8 o'clock, when he ran in front of a car driven by Bud Hursh, near his home. Mr. Richard Gibson, who was delivering milk at the Shockley home had stopped his car and Mr. Hursh drove around him when the little boy ran to meet Mr. Gibson, not seeing the Hursh car. Dr. Shook was called and he took him at once to Ft. Wayne where it was found he suffered a broken left leg and crushed foot. It is not known whether he suffered internal injuries or not. William Allen, Jr., white attempting to crank Mr. Gibson's car, had the misfortune to tear his hand in some way on the car and had to be taken to a doctor where several stitches were taken to close the wound.

NEWVILLE CENTER

Mrs. Agatha Roberts and daughter, were Hicksville visitors Saturday.

Lyman Bidlack and wife were callers in the Chas. Smith home Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lehr Wilder and son, Billy, left Wednesday morning for Ashland, Ohio, to attend the Hootman reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Coburn, Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Coburn and Mrs. Mira Sommers and daughter, Lucille, of Fremont, Mich., were supper guests Saturday of Mr. and Mrs Elwood Hart. All attended the Coburn reunion and visited in the home of Fred Hart before returning to their homes Monday.

A happy family gathering at the old home of Mrs. Alice Hart to offer greetings on her 84th birthday. In the winter time she enjoys toasting by the children's fireside, but when summer time comes, she is as happy as a bride in June cooking her first meals, flitting over her flowers, she finds life's measure is not in the number of years that happen to be. She surely is gracious and lovely wherever she may be.

At the noon hour a bountiful pot luck dinner was served to the following guests, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hart and son, Joseph, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Hart and Miss Berniece Sowers, of Hicksville, O.; Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hart and daughter, Alice, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Hart and son, LaVon, Mr. and Mrs. Lehr Wilder and son, Billy, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wilder, Glen Grieger and Mervin Smith. All returned to their homes wishing Mrs. Hart many more happy birthdays.

GINNIVAN AT BUTLER ALL THIS WEEK

The Frank Ginnivan Dramatic Co., well known organization which has been at Butler for many years, and always given the best of satisfaction in entertainment, arrived Monday for the entire week. The tent is located on the Oberlin lot at the north end of John street. The tent accommodates 1,000 people, and popular prices prevail.

The Ginnivans were at Bryan, last week, with a troupe of 22 people, which includes their own band and orchestra; Jack Healy, who has played all the larger cities in his acrobatic dance; Chas. Cook, singing, dancing, chalk talk; Grace Baird, singing and dancing. The band plays each evening on the streets.

A good cigarette, too needs Balance—

And that's why the tobaccos in Chesterfield are carefully balanced one against the other . . . not too much of one—not too little of another.

We take the right amounts of the right kinds of four types of tobacco — Bright, Burley, Maryland and Turkish.

It is this balancing of tobaccos that makes Chesterfields milder and makes them taste better.

YEARLY MEETING

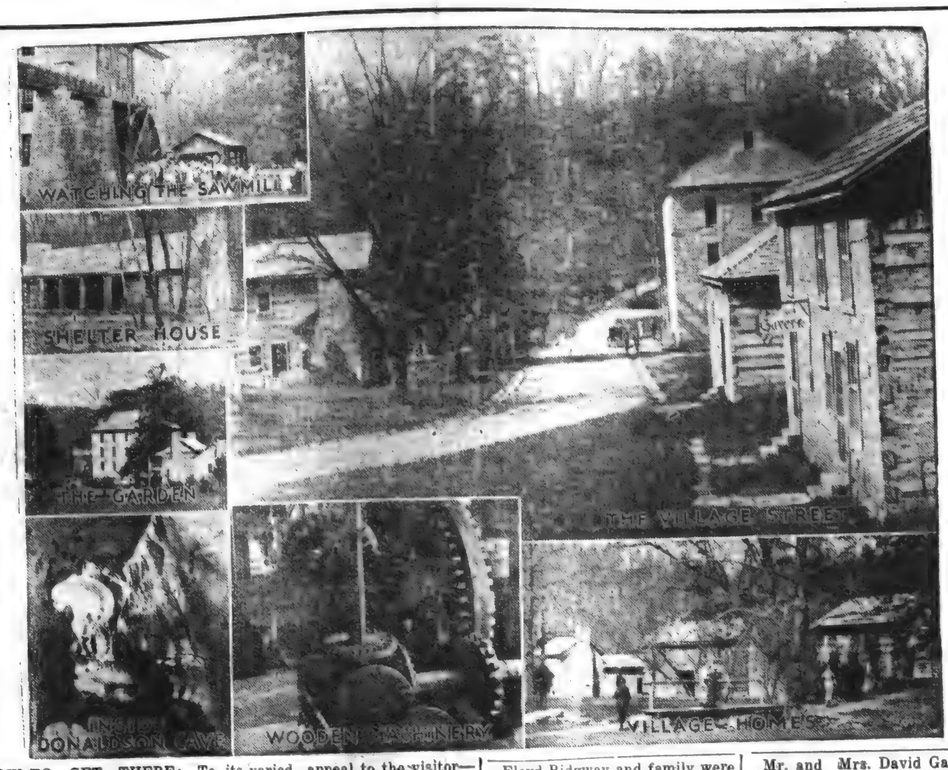
The Yearly Meeting of the Churches of Christ of DeKalb county will be held in the Grove of the Newville Church on next Sunday, Aug. 25th. Bro. F. Dowdy, of Cleveland, Ohio, will be the speaker for morning and afternoon.

Mrs. Ivy Tyler, of Ligonier and Mrs. Bigelow Ramp, of Columbia City, sister and cousin of Mrs. Wm. Randall, are here spending the week.

DeKalb has reported to the division of public health only one case each of diphtheria and typoid fever. Whooping cough, influenza and pneumonia are in the lead over the state.

Visit Spring Mill STATE PARK This Week-end

SWIMMING - HIKING - PICNICKING - CAMPING



HOW TO GET THERE: To reach Spring Mill State Park from Indianapolis take State Road 37 to Mitchell, thence to the entrance of the park which is on Road 60, two miles east of Mitchell.

Few of Indiana's state parks exceed Spring Mill state park in its varied appeal to the visitor—an appeal that is based on the restored pioneer village with its water-power grist and saw-mill, its log stores and the single and double cabins which surround the mill.

The postoffice, apothecary shop, the hat factory and other buildings are open to visitors while at the mill he can see corn ground between huge stones turned by water power and logs sawn into boards. On the upper floors of the stone mill building is a varied collection of pioneer implements and relics, many of which came from homes in the vicinity.

The village is but one of the features of the park. Others are the tract of virgin timber and the caverns of which the Donaldson Cave is the largest. The visitor can hike back into this cave or may take a boat ride on the underground river which flows thru part of it. Scientists have found many things of interest in this cave, including rare species of blind fish.

Spring Mill has an attractive picnic area with shelter houses, ovens, tables and benches and comfort stations. There is a large camping area in a wooded section with the conveniences which are typical of all state parks. Meals are served at the Tavern which is icated at the lower end of the village. There are several miles of trails over which the visitor can hike and other miles of parkways which carry the motorist to various points of interest.

An extensive improvement is being carried on in Spring Mill park by the Civilian Conservation Corps. One of the features of this program is the construction of an artificial lake of 38 acres.

Spring Mill was established in 1927 and covers an area of 1,014 acres.

Indiana's Cantaloupes Prosper

This district, the St. Joe River Valley, will have about 1,000 acres of cantaloupes and a large acreage of potatoes and onions. These crops were backward until July 21, when five inches of rain fell in 48 hours. The strawberry crop was only fair. Bush berries now moving are of good quality, but not large.

The above was taken from The Producers News of August 3, published in New York, and shows that the Valley is getting some attention.

Have your glasses fitted by Benj F. Griest, Eyesight Specialist, Office in American Bldg., Hicksville, Ohio. 28tf.

Floyd Ridgway and family were Sunday guests of Dale VanWagner and family at Marion. Dale moved from Auburn and is employed by the Holland Furnace.

Mr. and Mrs. David Gano and daughter, Elizabeth Ann, of Detroit, Mich., arrived Wednesday for a few days visit in the Buckingham and Foltz homes.

CLIFFORD BASSETT DIES IN ARKANSAS

Clifford Bassett, 62, died Friday night in Forrest City, Ark., of maleria haematuria, a maleria caused by mosquito bites. He with his son, Charles had been there since last fall, fishing and clam digging. Charles was also taken seriously ill and still remaining in the hospital quite sick.

DuWayne Kinsey was called to go for the body and if possible to bring Charles home to his brother, Carl at Fort Wayne, but he could not be moved for several days.

Two cars were taken to Arkansas with that expectation, George Wade and Earl Kinsey accompanying DuWayne. They made the trip of 750 miles in 17 hours going down and 27 hours returning.

Clifford C. Bassett was born March 6, 1873 near Hicksville, Ohio, and passed from this life on August 16, 1935 in Forrest City, Arkansas, at the age of 62 years.

He was the son of Thomas and Syble Bassett.

In July 1898 he was united in marriage to Ada M. Brunson and to this union were born three children: Charles P., of Forrest City, Arkansas, Carl A., of Fort Wayne, and a son who died in infancy.

Since the death of his wife, he and Charles were constant companions.

The funeral services were held from the Kinsey funeral home Wednesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, (DST,) conducted by Rev. H. K. Schondelmayer, with burial in Riverside cemetery.

Kodak Films at News Office.

Charles Kinsey, a patient in the Lutheran hospital, Fort Wayne, recovering from an operation for the removal of a tumor of the bladder a month ago, will be able to leave the hospital in about three weeks. His condition is still considered somewhat serious.

CAMP PAPER FROM PRICHARD, IDAHO

"The Hawkeye" a CCC paper published in the interest of the enrollees of Company 565, Camp Hawk, at Pichard, Idaho, of which Harley Like is a member, has come to our attention. It contains the happenings of the camp such as camp improvements, official roster, educational classes formed for the benefit of boys, transferring of officials, red letter days of camp, camp accidents, the camp chaplain and his work with the boys, project work, the personal items and then the sports department.

One article of particular interest, is reproduced entitled "Quitters," and it needs no comment. Here it is:

"Of the hundreds of youth who come into the CCC there are a few who are "yellow." They "can't take it." They are "all washed up." They are quitters.

Just as soon as they can get the proper letter from "mamma" or "papa" back home and get a discharge they beat it for home. These "mamma's pets" are a weak lot, but thank goodness they are few and far between.

"What the honest-to-God fellows in camp think of the quitters would not look well in print. And what they do to them when they leave camp is long to be remembered by the departers. Of course no one is hurt, but the "hot line" is one never to be forgotten experience.

There are some who are called home for jobs and they are highly respected, but the fellows who "can't take it" are held in utter contempt by the real fellows who make the most of camp life and enjoy the consciousness of having rendered a service to their loved ones, to their country and a benefit to themselves. But the quitters are the sort who will go down in life evading issues, proving "yellow" and registering worthlessness to be deplored as pretending to be Americans."

FRANK WISE DIED SATURDAY, AGE 83

William F. Wise died Saturday morning at 3 o'clock at the home of his son, Lee, of Smithfield township. The deceased lived for forty-three years in Auburn, residing at 109 East Fifteenth St., before going to live with his sons three years ago.

Mr. Wise suffered a stroke a year ago in July and had not been well since and from last Wednesday he failed rapidly.

Born in Allen county just south of the Wise school house on the DeKalb-Allen county line 83 years ago on September 25th. Mr. Wise on coming to Auburn first worked for G. A. Bishop, digging the trenches for the foundation of the old body factory. After the factory was built Mr. Wise was employed for many years by Mr. Bishop. Later he engaged in the carpenter trade until age prevented further activities in this work.

He was married to Bessie Burley in Spencerville on October 9, 1879, and in the year 1929 their golden wedding anniversary was celebrated. Mrs. Wise died in 1930.

To Mr. and Mrs Wise were born three children, two sons, Lee, of Smithfield township. Orville, of Elkhart, Ind., and a daughter, Frankie, who died at the age of 6 years. There are six grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Mr. Wise was perhaps the oldest member of DeKalb Lodge No. 214, F. & A. M. He joined the lodge 50 years ago. He was also a member of the First M. E. Church of Auburn.

The funeral services were held at 2 o'clock (DST) on Monday afternoon at the Clark funeral home with Dr. Manfred C. Wright, pastor of the First M. E. Church officiating, and burial made in Woodlawn cemetery.

The Masonic lodge had charge of the ritualistic service.

Mrs. Jennie Able, who accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Glen Abel to their home in Montpelier, Ohio for a few days visit last week, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Woodcox and son, Maurice, spent Sunday with their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Miller at Defiance. Maurice is spending the week with his sister.

Rev. Wm. Koehnlein left Tuesday morning for Marion, where he will attend the M. P. Conference this week. He was given a call for return. The assignments will be given out Monday of next week.

Mrs. Lester Pugsley was called to Butler last week on account of the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Al Jennings. She returned home Saturday afternoon and reports her mother as slowly improving.

A petition signed by a group of Auburn restaurant and lunch owners, presented to the executive committee of the DeKalb County Free Fall Fair association, asks that a minimum price of 10 cents be charged for soup, sandwiches and pie at all stands where food is sold during the week of the fair. The petition has been acted on favorably. This minimum price will be enforced, whether the stands are operated by local or out-of-town people or organizations.

URGE PEOPLE TO STUDY TAX LEVIES

Indianapolis, August 21.—"The most important news in the newspapers these days," said Harry Miesse, secretary of the Indiana Taxpayers Association, in a statement today, "is relating to public expenditures for the coming year. There is a tendency in many quarters to increase budget totals and that calls for higher taxes. The last line of defense between these threatened increases and the taxpayer's purse is the taxpayer himself. He has the right, under the laws of Indiana, to fight extravagance all the way from his home community to the State Board of Tax Commissioners and unless he takes advantage of the facilities the laws have provided for him, he will have only himself to blame if he finds that his taxes are higher."

Mr. Miesse pointed out that all of the records and resources of the Indiana Taxpayers Association are available for officials and citizens who wish to compare the cost of government for this and recent years with the estimated costs now being revealed by budgets for next year's expeditures. He said his organization and numerous county associations of taxpayers, most of them sponsored by the state association, will continue to combat unwarranted budget increases and higher rates, but he pointed out that the time to make the fight for economy is short and that taxpayers throughout the state must attend hearings and make their protests emphatic if they expect to hold public expenditures within reasonable bounds.

"Every taxpayer," said Mr. Miesse, "should look in his newspaper for the published budgets and study them carefully. He should recall that township advisory boards and county councils will consider township and county budgets on September 3. He should remember that all civil town and city and school town and city budgets must be completed, advertised and finally approved by September 2. In each of these proceedings the law provides for public hearings and if the taxpayers do not know when these hearings are to be held it is their business to ascertain the time and place and then be present.

"All of these proceedings are public and the taxpayers have authority to attend, question all of the items in the budgets and demand explanations for any increases that may be sought. If they are unsuccessful in their struggle for economy during the time their local officials are considering budgets, they may appear before the county board of tax adjustment when it meets in each county on September 16. Should they fail to win their contentions before their respective county adjustment boards, they still have ten days after the board makes its final decision in which to appeal to the State Board of Tax Commissioners. Any taxpayers, other than those who pay taxes only, may appear before the county auditor and give notice of their intention to appeal budgets and rates to the State Board. This costs the taxpayers nothing and the hearings on their appeals will be held in the counties from which the appeals are taken.

"Our preliminary examination of budgets, based on reports from all sections of the state, shows an alarming tendency to increase expenditures next year. This means but one thing to the taxpayers and that is higher taxes. After the budgets are finally adopted and the rates fixed high enough to raise the budgeted money, it will be too late for the taxpayers to obtain relief. The time for them to act is while these budgets are going through the mill. For that reason we urge every payer of taxes in Indiana to familiarize himself with the budgets of his township and county and with those relating to the civil and school corporations in which he lives. If the discovery is made that the public officials are holding down expenses and practicing rigid economy, let the taxpayers give such officials unstinted praise, but if it is evident that the budgets contain items of questionable character and that taxes are due to soar skyward, then the citizen who must provide the money to defray the cost of such extravagance owes it to himself to fight for his own interests with all the resources that the general assembly of Indiana has placed at his command."

Lum 'n Abner to Appear at State Fair

Amateur Contest To Be Held—Prizes To Be Awarded

Lum 'n Abner, those two lovable old characters of Pine Ridge, will make a personal appearance at the Indiana State Fair Saturday night, August 31st, the Fair's opening day. An amateur contest open to all Indiana residents, strictly amateurs, who believe they possess talent of any kind, either musical, acrobatic or vocal, will be held in connection with their appearance. A total of $300 in cash will be awarded to winners of Lum 'n Abner's Amateur contest, the money being divided into two groups, $150 to the eight best individual performers and a total of $150 to the three best performers in the group classification. The preliminary trials will start at noon Saturday, August 31st. Three judges to be named by the Indiana Board of Agriculture will select the ten best individual performers and the ten best group performers, these to participate in the final contest in the Coliseum with Lum 'n Abner directing the show. The audience themselves will be the judge of this final contest. Prizes will be awarded during the performance by Lum 'n Abner.

Lum 'n Abner have made two personal appearances in Indianapolis in the past three years and it is due to repeated demands that their services have been secured to conduct the big amateur contest to be held in the Coliseum one night only, Saturday, August 31st. Lum 'n Abner, contrary to public opinion are not two old gentlemen who grew up in the mountains of the south. They are 33 and 29 years old respectively. They have promised to appear, not only in costume but as they are in real life as well. A pleasant surprise is promised for those attending.

Admission prices as announced by the Indiana Board of Agriculture is 50c, one ticket including admission to both the grounds and a reserved seat in the Coliseum.

GREATEST CIRCUS COMING THIS WAY

Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined, Presenting Hundreds of New Foreign Features, in Seven-Ring and Stage Program Declared to Be Finest in History

Offering its millions of patrons the largest and best program in its brilliant annals, the mighty Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus, is scheduled to exhibit in Ft. Wayne, Wednesday, Aug. 28 and on that date the world's largest big top will be filled with sensational new features from all over the globe, including the topmost arenic acts of every European nation, except Denmark.

The greatest Show on Earth will arrive on four long, railroad trains of double-length steel cars, carrying 1600 people, seven herds of elephants, 1009 menagerie animals and 700 horses, to say nothing of 31 great tents and countless tons of riggings, grandstands, properties and paraphernalia.

New European troupes are the Walkmirs, Antaleks, Romeos, Maschinos, Polis, Buemrangs, Demenatis, Willos, Lauries, and Torrence-Dolores —sensational aerial and acrobatic novelty offerings. The largest aerial ballet ever produced, led by the Lydia, the Rooney, the Annetta and Nelleta troupes, and the largest liberty horse act ever seen are new thrills from abroad.

Mlle. Gillette, who leaps from the dome of the big top; the Otaris, who fly in masses from an aerial cross; the two Wallenda troupes in new hair-raising high wire feats; Dorothy Herbert, riding reinless hurdling horses over fire jumps; the great Con Colleano, forward somersaulting star of the tight wire; the largest acrobatic display ever seen, with the Yacopis, the Danwills, the Uyenos, the Yom Kams, the Demenatis, the Hadjis and Hassans; tht celebrated Loyal-Repenskis, the famed Rieffenachs and the great Walters, bareback riding stars; the two Guice Troupes of comedy aerial flyers on the lofty bars; the Flying Concellos, with Antoinette, only girl ever to accomplish a two-and-a-half somersault to hand-to-hand catch; the famed Flying Cometa; Hugo and Mario, who are fired in a split second from the mouth of a giant cannon across the upper reaches of the big top—these are but a few of the preeminent artists among the 800 performers with The Greatest Show on Earth—Ringling Bros and Barnum & Bailey.

Still another feature is Col. Tim McCoy, the screen's most outstanding western star, at the head of his congress of rough riders of the world — cowboys, cowgirls, Cossacks, Mexican vaqueros, Australian bushrangers and Plains Indians. Col. McCoy, scout, soldier and friend of the Indian, idol of American youth, will also present his Indian Village in the center of the vast menagerie oval.

TRUCK TURNS TURTLE

Roy Keller upset with his Diamond T truck Wednesday night at the creek near his home. He was returning from market late and fell into a doze. The truck landed in the creek, wheels up, somewhat damaging the top but Roy escaped uninjured. It took 4 cars to get him out of the creek the next morning. When Roy called Mose Yeiser he said: "Mose, this is Roy Keller talking, I turned turtle. Can you help me out?" Mose replied by saying, "Sorry, but you have called the wrong number, I think you want the zoo."

DEKALB COUNTY RECEIVES $220,609 FROM THE STATE

DeKalb county has received a total of $220,609.33 from the state during the past year, in the distribution of $26,174,884.04 to local units of government, according to figures made public by the State Board of Accounts.

The distribution to DeKalb county was divided as follows:

To schools from gross income, excise, intangibles, school revenue and school aid, $94,836.50; to civil units from excise, $2,295.50; from intangibles, $1,473.26; from gasoline tax and auto license fees, $86,927.35 and from the state sinking fund, 1934, $21,986.87.

In addition, DeKalb county has been reimbursed by the state for expenditures, as follows:

Old-age pensions, $8,035.00 and vocational education, $4,784.85.

NO SWINE SHOW

The 4-H Fat Swine Show was not held Wednesday, Aug. 21, as scheduled because of the small number of pigs to show. The vocational teachers reported that the club pigs did not have the finish that is necessary to make a good showing in the ring. This is due to scarcity of and high prices of feed during the summer. The members will show their fat pigs at the Free Fall Fair on October 2-5. The Club Boys will put on their demonstrations in their local club meetings.

Mrs. Zay Sailer is on the sick list.

An increase of 2,166 store licenses were issued this year over last, the total being 58,920.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bailey and daughter, Fern, were Sunday supper guests in the Frank Tustison home.

DAILY LIVE STOCK MARKET ANNOUNCED

The Auburn Live Stock Sales Company announce the opening of a daily live stock market in connection with their weekly sales.

This is a new service for the live stock producers of this and surrounding counties and the realization of a hope the company has had from the time of its organization in December, 1934.

A cash market will be operated in the company's sale barn on South Indiana Ave. each week day. Highest market prices will be paid for all kinds of live stock, delivered any time during the day.

All stock will be maketed thru the Farm Bureau marketing agencies at the terminal markets.

The opportunity of shipping their stock co-operatively will be given to those who prefer this form of marketing: live stock prices and expenses are guaranteed to compare favorably with other co-operative agencies in this locality.

The daily market will be under the management of Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas., of the company, who will devote his entire time to the developement of this project, beginning about Sept. first. Mr. Jackman has the hearty recommendation, of the Live Stock Marketing Department of the Indiana Farm Bureau. He was instrumental in organizing the cooperative shipping association at Waterloo and served as its Secretary and Manager for seven years before coming to Auburn. He has had years of business and live stock experience and with the company's fine equipment can give the producers of live stock a better market than they have had heretofore.

The marked success of the weekly auction sales has encouraged the company to expand to include a daily market.

The receipts of last week were 102 head and sales recorded as follows:

Hogs, 175 to 220lbs., $11.60; 300 to 350, $10.80; feeder pigs, $13.80.

Fat Cows, $6.60; canners, $3.50 to $3.70; bulls, $4.75 to $5.00; milk cows, $40 to $55.

Veal Calves, tops, $10.50; seconds, $9.00.

Sheep, bucks, $6.95; top lambs, $7.90.

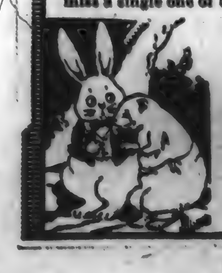
Local views for sale at News office at 5c each.

Mrs. W. W. Hollipeter and son, Mr. R. J. Hollipeter, who have been visiting for several weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Laney Gee, left Tuesday evening for a few days visit in Fort Wayne, before returning to their home in Blytheville, Ark.

GIRLS and BOYS!

MEET Peter Rabbit, if you don't already know him. You will love Peter and his furred and feathered friends . . . Buster Bear, Danny Meadow Mouse and all the rest of them.

The surprising adventures of these interesting denizens of the woodlands are told in the wonderful bedtime stories that appear in this paper. Do not miss a single one of them.



A Word, Confidentially, to Mother and Dad

Thornton W. Burgess's Bedtime Stories delight the youngsters, but in addition to that they are really instructive. Every one contains some interesting and valuable nature lore. There is a Burgess Bedtime Story in this issue. Be sure to read it to the little ones in your home.

FOR all farm produce there is a deciding factor between the production and the highest market prices. With milk, the farmer's profits are dependent upon proper cooling to keep down the bacteria count. The one sure way to do this is with an Electric Cooler which will hold milk at 45 degrees, or colder, until delivered.

Milk cooling is too important to be left dependent upon weather conditions or working time. And when the costs of cutting, hauling and storing ice are taken into consideration, electric cooling is not only more dependable, it is frequently actually cheaper.

We will gladly advise you on planning and purchasing an effective milk cooling unit.

MUSICAL PROGRAM SATURDAY NIGHT

The Saxonaders, a twenty-two piece uniformed band, will be the big attraction at St. Joe, Saturday night of this week. Tom Berry, head of the Tom Berry Music company of Fort Wayne, district distributors for the C. G. Conn Band Instrument company, has arranged to send the Saxonaders to St. Joe to appear on the Merchants and Firemen's Free Program.

The Saxonaders is an organization of some of the best musicians in the state and is under the direction of Glenn G. Sickafus. The band is composed of real artists on the saxophone, among them being Allen Cox, of Garrett, state champion saxophone player, who also holds second place in the national. In addition to the saxophones there are two accordion soloists who will play, as will also some of the saxophone players. You will like this musical program so plan now to be in St. Joe Saturday night. Program starts at 8. Tell your neighbors and friends about it.

VESPER SERVICES

The young people of DeKalb County Sunday Schools will hold a vesper service in the Dills Grove, one mile south of St. Joe, on Sunday, September 8, from 5:30 to 6:30. The program is being worked out and will be in charge of Wilbur Meyers, of Auburn.

Hold Meetings At Newville

It was decided Sunday at the annual meeting of the Churches of Christ of DeKalb county at Newville to hold these meetings permanently at Neville. Heretofore the meetings have been held at the different churches in the county.

Rev. Charles Schondelmayer, pastor of the Newville Church, was elected president for the coming year; George Sherwood, of Cedar Lake, vice president and Lawrence Diehl, of Butler, secretary and treasurer.

VISIT INDIANA'S FIRST CAPITOL--AT CORYDON

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION AND EARLY LAWMAKERS MET HERE

Still existing as a symbol of Indiana's political beginnings and as a historical memorial, the Corydon state house, shrouded with tradition, stands in its otherwise vacant square in the middle of the town, a plain, two-storied, cube-shaped structure with a hip roof surmounted by a cupola.

History records that the building as erected about 1811-12 to serve as the Harrison county court house. However, at that time the territorial government of Indiana was seeking a more centrally located seat than Vincennes and in 1813 an act was passed moving the government from Vincennes to Corydon where it remained until late in 1824, the date fixed by the constitution for its removal to a permanent location, when the offices were transferred to Indianapolis.

The old capitol, acquired by the state from Harrison County by purchase and restored to its original condition, each year is the mecca of hundreds of pilgrimages. Obviously built to withstand the years, the old house with its walls of rough blue limestone, quarried from the neighborhood, stands today with little signs of deterioration. In the building the entire lower floor is a single room which was the meeting place of the members of the House of Representatives. A part of the floor is covered with stone, while the legislators sat on a raised platform extending over one-half of the room. By a narrow, winding staircase in a corner of the room the visitor mounts to the second floor, where the members of the Senate held their deliberations in one of the rooms, while the judges of the court occupied another.

In recent years this early seat of government, in its restored state, has become a shrine whither visitors come from all parts of the state in order to step back for a moment into an atmosphere of more than a century ago.

TWO KILLED AT STATE LINE ON ROAD 14

William Smith and Russell Hoffer Succumb in Amaden Hospital

Clark Roberts and Harper Coughanour Suffer From Gas Fire

Their skulls fractured, and the body of one horribly burned by flames fed by spurting gasoline, two Indiana men died early Saturday in Amaden hospital at Hicksville as result of a head-on collision of automobile and truck at 11 o'cock Friday night.

The dead:

William Smith, 52, widowed farmer, south of Spencerville at Wise school house, driver of auto.

Russell Hoffer, 30, Newville, gravel pit operator, married and father of two children.

Clark Roberts, 60, also of Newville, and Harper Coughanour of near Hicksville, suffered extensive but not critical burns in a rescue effort.

Truck Bursts Into Flames

The accident happened on Indiana highway 14, just west of the Ohio-Indiana line. Smith was on his way home from Hicksville, driving west in an Overland sedan. Hoffer and Roberts, who had been in Fort Wayne, were headed for Hicksville enroute to Newville.

Smith's left fender struck the right side of the truck radiator. Smith was hurled through the windshield of his car, suffering a double skull fracture and also a broken jaw.

Hoffer, his skull also fractured, was pinned behind his own wheel. Then the truck burst into flames which enveloped him.

Rescuers Burned

Roberts was unable to climb from the truck and immediately was joined by Coughanour, who lives near by and had heard the crash.

They worked desperately to release Hoffer, suffering severe burns on hands and arms.

They finally were able to drag Hoffer through the flames from behind the wheel where he had been pinned by the impact.

Smith died in Amaden hospital at 12:30 A. M., and Hoffer at 4 A. M.

Smith's body was removed to Kinsey funeral parlor at St. Joe and prepared for burial, while Hoffer was taken to Butler.

Thinks Lights Cause

Physicians said Hoffer's burns alone were sufficient to have caused his death. The fire destroyed Hoffer's truck and Smith's car was demolished by the collision.

In addition to the burns suffered while pulling Hoffer from the blazing truck, Roberts was severely bruised by the head-on impact.

Hoffer and Roberts had been in Fort Wayne to deliver a truck load of sweet corn.

Roberts was unable to explain the head-on crash, but believed one of the drivers might have been blinded by headlights.

The funeral of Wm. Smith, 52, of Spencerville, who died Friday night, was held Monday afternoon at the Scipio Church in Springfield township, Allen county. He is survived by his mother, a son, Ora, of Spencerville, and a brother, Elmer, also of Spencerville. The Rev. Todd Cotton conducted the funeral services. Interment was in charge of Mayola Kinsey & Son.

The funeral of the second victim of the accident, Russell Hoffer, 32, of Newville, was held from the Johnson funeral home at Butler Monday afternoon, the Rev. C. W. Moore officiating, and burial was made in the Newville cemetery.

Hoffer was born at Butler. He leaves his widow, two small children, Russell Jr. and Nancy, his mother, Mrs. Wm. Hoffer, two brothers, James of Butler, and Harold of Racine, Wis., and a sister, Mrs. Leon Oberlin of Hamilton.

Miss Enid Curie, of Indianapolis, is home for three weeks vacation.

Willard Hurni left Saturday night for a week's fishing trip in northern Michigan.

Mrs. Dorothy Waite is working in the Zonker Store during the absence of Lucille Curie.

L. B. Meek, Ward Woodcox and Chris Sailer are spending the week at Lake Pleasant on a fishing trip.

Rev. Wm. Koehnlein was returned to St. Joe M. P. Circuit for another year, by the annual conference in session at Marion last week.

The United States Senate has just passed a resolution authorizing the officers and employees of the Baltimore and Ohio to erect a monument in Washington to mark the significance of the entrance of the railroad into the city. Here is the first ticket office, at Pennsylvania Avenue and 2nd St., N. W. The spot is now a part of the Capitol Plaza, on which the monument will be placed.

ST. JOE RESIDENTS HURT IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

A. B. Wilhelm, aged 36, of Decatur, suffered a fractured pelvis and probable internal injuries early Monday when the auto he was driving was in a collision with a machine operated by Henry Hart, aged 28, of St. Joe, five miles north of Ft. Wayne on State Road No. 1. Wilhelm was thrown to the pavement from his auto, in which he was riding alone. His condition is serious.

Hart suffered cuts on his face and head and one arm.

Five other passengers in the auto Hart was driving were hurt. The seven injured persons were taken to the Methodist hospital in Fort Wayne.

Others hurt included: James Hart, aged 17, of St. Joe, who suffered lacerations on his left hand and cuts on his head; Jesse Hart, aged 21, of St. Joe, cuts on his head and one arm; James Green, aged 28, Rural Route No. 1, Spencerville, cuts on his scalp and a cut above one eye, and Woodrow Bogges, aged 16, Rural Route 5, Pebbles, Ohio, cut on the upper lip and minor cuts and abrasions.

Wilhelm was driving south when, according to passengers in the Hart auto, he swerved to the left side of the road and hit the Hart machine, causing it to plunge off the highway and turn over. The Hart auto was going north.

Henry, James and Jesse Hart are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Hart.

CMT CAMP AT FORT HARRISON TO CLOSE SATURDAY

The twelfth Citizens' Military Camp to be held at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Indiana will close on Saturday, August 31st. Two CMT Camps were held at this post this year, training 3,510 cadets, the largest number trained at any camp in the country this year.

Instruction at the camps consisted of military drills, lecture periods on hygiene and citizenship and in the afternoons a supervised program of athletics. Several nationally known patriotic organizations presented awards to the winners of the various activities, the Sons of the American Revolution presenting a medal to the winner of the citizenship contest, and the National Patriotic Council awarding a medal to the candidate who presented the best essay on the subject "Of What Value is the C. M. T. C?" The outstanding baseball player of the camp teams was awarded a baseball bat personally autographed by "Babe Ruth" and a baseball autographed by "Lou Gehrig" of the New York Yankees.

Colonel O. P. Robinson, Camp Commander, stated that the 1935 Citizens Military Training Camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison was the best Camp that he has had the pleasure of commanding in his many years of service.

Surface treatment and dust preventative work on more than 1,500 miles of state highways will be completed within the next few weeks, placing these highways in excellent condition for autumn traffic, James D. Adams, chairman of the State Highway Commission has reported. The treatment of stone and gravel-surfaced highways is more than eighty per cent complete and with favorable weather will be finished within a short time. A greater mileage of state highways is being treated this year than in the past with the result that traffic conditions will be more favorable during the winter months.

Dean Skinner of Purdue Optomistic About 1935 State Fair

State Growers To Display One of Greatest Crops in History

By J. H. SKINNER
Dean of Agriculture, Purdue University

Dean J. H. Skinner

The best Indiana fields, feed lots, gardens and homes have to offer will be on display at the Indiana State Fair, because the Fair actually is the "show window" of the State. No one can attend the Indiana Fair without going away from the grounds with a better appreciation of the true greatness of our own Hoosier State.

The Indiana State Fair, however, is more than a place to show the best products of farm, factory and home. It is a place where 4-H Club boys and girls match their ability in judging contests with others in the show ring; a place where some of the most wide-awake boys and girls attend school for two weeks; a place where manufacturers display their products to illustrate the newest and best for farm, garden and home; a place where horse lovers may truly enjoy themselves; a place for real recreation.

For many years the makers of farm and home equipment have had excellent displays at the State Fair. The Purdue and Indiana University buildings are filled with worthwhile exhibits. Capable, courteous attendents with both the educational and commercial displays help add to the value of the Fair as an educational institution. The State Fair is always well worth attending. Be in Indianapolis Fair week, August 31st to September 6th.

Mrs. Earl Smith is ill with sciatic rheumatism.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Ordway spent Sunday with his folks east of Butler.

Rattlesnakes are found in every state in the union except Maine and New Hampshire.

Little Miss Jeanne Hatch, of Spencerville, spent the past week here with her brother, Jimmy.

Have your glasses fitted by Benj F. Griest, Eyesight Specialist, Office in American Bldg., Hicksville, Ohio. 28tf.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dart and Isabel McLoud, of Fort Wayne, were Saturday guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Gauntt.

Fred Reichelderfer and wife, of Quincy, Mich., called on their sister-in-law, Mrs. Mary Betz, Saturday afternoon.

John I. Tabor returned Sunday night from Hopkinsville, Ky., where he visited his mother and other relatives and friends.

The improvement of Road No. 1 from Butler to State Road No. 8 has been approved by government officials. Federal funds in the sum of $13,431 have been allotted.

Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Reuter, of Fort Wanye, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Gauntt. Mrs. Reuter is well known in St. Joe as Olive Dixon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Walker and Mr. and Mrs. James Huff, of South Bend, spent from Friday evening until Sunday in the J. C. Hull and F. B. Leighty homes.

The latest word concerning the condition of Chas. Kinsey is that he is recovering slowly from an operation a month ago at Fort Wayne, but will not be able to leave the hospital for several weeks.

Two Deisel powered engines, drawing fourteen passenger cars, went through St. Joe to Garrett on the B. & O. Wednesday evening on a test run and returned to Baltimore Friday. The engines will be used in the east.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sechler and family spent the week end at Greenfield, Ind., assisting in the celebration of the 90th birthday of Mr. J. K. P. Martindale, Mrs. Sechler's father. James Monroe accompanied them to Marion, where he visited friends.

A large consignment of baby fish were placed in the St. Joe River Thursday by the Auburn Club, the fish being sent in their care. Small mouth bass and walleyed pike were the kinds. All were of good size, running from 2 to 6 inches in length.

With the total receipts two hundred and forty-six head and prices up, Thursday's sale at the yards of the Auburn Live Stock Sales Co., Inc., was the second largest since the company started doing business. Calves topped the Fort Wayne market 65 cents per hundred weight. Following is the summary of sales: Hogs—Receipts 48 head. FORMER ST. JOE RESIDENT DIES AT GARRETT

George Hamm, Believed Oldest Person in DeKalb County, Was Born in Alsace Lorraine

George Hamm, believed to have been the oldest person in DeKalb county, passed away Thursday morning at 2:40 o'clock at the home in Garrett of a daughter, Mrs. Grover C. Sapp. He was in in ninety-fifth year.

Mr. Hamm was conscious to the last. He was able to get about the Sapp home and walk upon himself until Tuesday, when he tripped and fell in his bedroom. He suffered a severe shock and it was feared the end was near.

Born in Alsace-Lorraine, April 6, 1841, Mr. Hamm came with his parents to the United States when he was fourteen years of age and they settled in Allen county near Leo. They lived in a log house in a clearing. George Hamm followed the trade of carpenter in Allen county for twenty-five years and then moved to St. Joe, where he farmed until 1901. Then he moved with his family to Garrett and they resided at the east edge of the city. Mr. Hamm worked as a truck gardener and sold the products of his garden about the city, becoming a familiar and popular figure.

When he was eighty-six years old Mr. Hamm submitted to an operation for hernia. He recovered and resumed his work in his garden, but a year later he was compelled to quit. He had hardening of the arteries, but his mind remained clear and he read the newspapers until the first of this year. He lived with the Sapp family for the last three years. the last three years.

Mr. Hamm and Catherine Holtzworth were married May 19, 1864, and she died July 16, 1923. Of eleven children, nine survive. Those besides Mrs. Sapp are Henry Hamm of Coldwater, Mich., Mrs. Bert Norris of Ensley Ave., Auburn, Mrs. O. W. Engle, of Stevenspoint, Wis., Daniel Hamm of Denver, Colo., Wm. Hamm of Marion, Ind., Sam, John D. and Charles, all of Garrett. A daughter, Miss Matilda Hamm, died in Garrett July 17, 1932, and a son, David, died in Garrett last Nov. 23. There are eleven grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

The funeral was held at the home of Mrs. Sapp Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock and burial was made in the mausoleum in Calvary cemetery, Garrett.

SQUIRREL SEASON ENDS IN SOUTH—IS OPENING IN THE NORTH

Closing of the squirrel season in the 42 counties composing the southern area after today (Aug. 29) and the opening of a sixty-day squirrel season on Sept. 1 in 18 counties forming the northern area, was pointed out today by Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation. The open season for the 32 central area counties continues until Sept. 29.

The squirrel season for the southern area started July 1 and during the past sixty days reports to the Department of Conservation indicate that sportsmen in that section of the state have enjoyed some real hunting, many of them taking the bag limit of five squirrels a day. After August 29 the killing or possession of squirrels in any county in this area is prohibited.

Counties included in the southern area are: Posey, Vanderburgh, Warrick, Spencer, Perry, Crawford, Harrison, Floyd, Clark, Jefferson, Switzerland, Ohio, Dearborn, Franklin, Unon, Fayette, Rush, Shelby, Johnson, Morgan, Owen, Clay, Vigo, Sullivan, Knox, Gibson, Pike, Dubois, Orange, Washington, Scott, Ripley, Decatur, Bartholomew, Brown, Monroe, Greene, Daviess, Martin, Lawrence, Jackson and Jennings.

The open season for the northern area will start on Monday, Sept. 1 and closes on Wednesday, October 30. Counties in the northern area are: Lake, Porter, LaPorte, St. Joseph, Elkhart, LaGrange, Steuben, Newton, Jasper, Pulaski, Starke, Marshall, Fulton, Noble, Kosciusko, Whitley, DeKalb and Allen. Squirrel hunters must carry their license upon their person and are limited to a bag of five squirrels a day.

All hunters are expected to secure permission of the landowner before entering his property and to respect his property at all time.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

By ANN PAGE

THE Labor Day weekend demands careful meal planning and marketing. There will be many outings and weekend camping trips; but the stay-at-homes will probably have a roast for Sunday and enjoy the leftovers in a picnic type dinner on Monday.

Beef is a little less expensive, lamb and poultry continue to be moderate. If there is to be a large family gathering, Roast Lamb is a reasonable holiday choice. Corn, beans, tomatoes, eggplant and squash are low in price. Potatoes remain cheap. Seedless grapes, oranges, melons, and pears are inexpensive and will keep well for the entire weekend.

Following are two Sunday dinner menus and a menu for Labor Day, using seasonable foods:

Low Cost Dinner

Roast Shoulder of Lamb
Browned Potatoes Glazed Carrots
Bread and Butter
Cantaloupe
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Chuck Roast of Beef
Cauliflower Baked Potatoes
Tomato and Lettuce Salad
Rolls and Butter
Apple Pie
Hot or Iced Tea or Coffee Milk

Labor Day Menu

Tomato Juice Cocktail
Assorted Cold Meats and Cheese
Potato Salad Stuffed Eggs
Pickles Olives Celery
Bread and Butter Sandwiches
Frosted Devil's Food Cake
Ginger Ale Coffee Milk

"Alcohol is all right in the radiotor, but not in the operator."

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Keller and children, of Fort Wayne, were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Rebecca Kirst.

Attendance at the Methodist Sunday School for August 25 was 42, collection $2.07; Lutheran 53, collection $2.39.

Many New Features at This Year's State Fair, Says Lieut.-Gov. Townsend

M. C. Townsend

Lieutenant Governor M. Clifford Townsend, Commissioner of Agriculture, predicts the largest State Fair held in years. He says the Indiana Fair is the biggest Hoosier Institution held during a period of one week.

"Every department has added many features of interest for this year's Fair, many showing a comparison in the progress of today with that of fifty and a hundred years ago.

"For an actual insight of Hoosier developments in all phases of Indiana life, agriculture, commercial and industrial, nothing surpasses the Fair.

"This year, Wednesday, September 4th, will be Educational Day. The education exhibit alone will be well worth the price of admission.

"During the past several years, twenty states and Canada have sent entries to the Fair. This year we expect a larger number of exhibits at a larger Fair.

"Every citizen of Indiana should make an effort to attend the Indiana State Fair at least two or three days as every Hoosier loves the better type of livestock, agriculture and entertainment.

"Come to Indianapolis during the week of August 31st to September 6th and be one of nearly a quarter-of-a-million people attending the State Fair," concludes Mr. Townsend.

VOL. L. (50 Years) (In The St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, SEPT. 5, 1935 NUMBER 36

CITIZENS OPPOSE GRANTING OF BEER LICENSE

A group of people from St. Joe appeared at a meeting of the DeKalb county alcoholic beverage board in the court house Friday to protest against the issuance of a beer retailer's license to Roy Wade of St. Joe.

The county board was composed of Andrew Grube, Glen Yokolet and J. J. Lopell, chairman.

After making an examination of the lease and other papers of the applicant the chairman asked whether there were any person or persons present favoring the granting of the beer permit to the applicant. After a pause Ed Leighty said he favored the permit, followed by sanction of Albert Moore, Frank Bachtel, Leslie B. Meek and F. A. Jenkins.

The chairman asked for any protest, and Derwood Ridgway filed a written protest from the Lutheran Church council, signed by seven of the eight members and in addition twelve citizens present wished to be recognized as against the issuance of the beer permit, to which the following signed the protest, Dr. C. R. Price, Harry Kees, Chas. Koch, Derwood Ridgway, M. C. Blue, Harry Hursh, Josephus Shilling, John C. Hull, Sam Kees, Fred B. Leighty, Rev. H. K. Schodelmayer and Rev. Wm. D. Koehnlein.

The board stated that after the noon hour they would come to St. Joe to investigate the situation as required by law, all of which they did and they met a very enthusiastic bunch. The measuring of the distance from the Ed Leighty building, where the beer is to be sold, to the church, caused much concern of those for and against the beer, and the decision made from building to building was 201 feet and 4 inches, and with this instruction from Indianapolis the drys were beaten by a few inches.

The boys took their medicine alright but decided that they would go the limit to keep beer out of town if at all possible, and if it comes to town will go to the limit to see that all offenders are punished.

The fight was not made on the applicant but on the sale of beer in St. Joe.

RUPTURE

E. J. MEINHARDI

COMPANY SALESMAN OF CHICAGO HERE AGAIN

He will show you the "Meinhardi Rupture Shield" privately in his rooms at the Anthony Hotel, Fort Wayne, Ind., on Wednesday only, September 11th, from 1:00 P. M. to 5:00 P. M. and 7:00 P. M. to 9:00 P. M.

Ask the Hotel Clerk for the numbers of Mr. Meinhardi's rooms. Only men are invited.

The Meihardi Rupture Shield retains the rupture on the average case regardless of size or location—no matter how much you exercise, lift, or strain. The Meinhardi Rupture Shield is skillfully molded to each individual as a Dentist makes false teeth. (No leg straps and no cumbersome arrangements.)

It is waterproof, sanitary, practically indestructible, and may be worn while bathing or sleeping (continuously day and night) until no longer desired.

Do not neglect to see him on the above date. He will be glad to refer you to local men who have used the "Meinhardi Rupture Shield." There is no charge to investigate. This visit is for white people only.

Automatic ELECTRIC HOT WATER

...SAFE AS ELECTRIC LIGHT

AN electric lamp, confined as it is within a glass "bottle," might well be chosen as a symbol of safety. An Electric Water Heater is equally safe . . . like a huge thermos bottle, all of its heat is confined within an insulated casing.

Automatic control eliminates the possibility of explosive blasts and unhealthy fumes . . . no need for loosely stored matches . . . no danger of leaky pipes or faulty flues . . . no heated surfaces or exposed flame or fire.

Home, where comfort, convenience and safety are paramount, there an Electric Heater belongs.

New! Fur Coat and Woolen Ensemble

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

'TIS THRILLING events which are casting their shadows before via an entirely new type of ensemble which works dress and lining of smart woolen in conjunction with coats of handsome fur into the 'nth degree of swank. Watch the excitement when once the college girl glimpses this sort of costume which is entirely new in the field.

It's this way, the woolens for fall are absolutely irresistible. Yielding to the lure of the perfectly fascinating new wool weaves and sensing untold possibilities in their use manufacturers of fur coats are playing up the idea of lining their garments with gay plaids and checks or a novelty woolen of some sort or other.

To be explicit, the new costume scheme, which is taking the world of fashion by storm, lines a chic fur coat with the same stunning woolen as makes the dress or skirt, with matching gilet that completes the ensemble. As soon as the first chilly autumn winds blow you will see this type of costume crowding the landscape for daytime wear in town, in country, on campus, in the grandstand or for travel whether you go by train, boat, auto or airplane.

The coats may be hip length, fingertip length or three-quarter or seven-eighth, just so it is always somewhat shorter than the accompanying woolen skirt, so that some fraction of the skirt shows below, thus co-ordinating the ensemble even when the coat is buttoned tight and only a scarf, the collar lining or the gilet top shows above the fur.

The coats of these costumes are versatile, although generally speaking they are fashioned on swagger lines. A dashing figure they cut, when left unfastened to fly out "accidentally on purpose" when in motion so as to artfully show off their smart gay linings.

Furs of most intriguing type are employed so as to dramatize the picture. Favored pelts include snowflake, nutria, sheared panther, gray or beige kidskin and various spectacular spotted furs.

The illustration presents the new wool-and-fur ensemble idea in two versions selected from any number of equally as fascinating models, as worked by high-style designers. For football weather the costume, as pictured to the left, is sure to satisfy the style aspirations of any co-ed sophisticated as ever she may be. This swagger coat of sheared panther is lined with green plaid woolen which is firm of texture yet light in weight. It is identical to that used for the two-piece sports tailleur that completes the ensemble. Blown back by the wind, the charm of the costume is enhanced when the coat lining flashes its note of color. The neckline of the tailored suit jacket of wool weave is mannish in line with its notched lapels. The sports hat of smart off-face type is of felt in a dark green to harmonize with the wool plaid of the suit.

The girl standing to the right is ready to step into her open car and drive to the football game, serene in the knowledge that she will be comfortable, plus modish, all day and all evening during the drive home, no matter how suddenly the temperature may drop. For this beautifully styled outfit of supple kid-skin is worked on dressmaker lines together with a checked rabbit woolen black and maize for the wrap-around skirt and also as it appears in the lining of the wide flaring collar on the Eton jacket top and as it is glimpsed at the wristline of the bell sleeves. Her cap is of kidskin with a sporty pointed visor down over the forehead at the right side.

SMART BLACK

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Among best-dressed women sentiment is increasing for smart, refined, "classy" black for daytime wear. Just now, for midseason days, quality-kind sheers that are exquisitely fashioned are first choice. The very newest models have belts of gilt leather with neckwear styled of matching gold kidskin. If not gilt leather collar and cuffs, then gold clips or other items of gold jewelry are worn. At any rate there should be a touch of color to relieve from somberness. In the picture, Jean Tennyson, beautiful blond grand opera songstress, expresses favor for black in that she is wearing a dress of handsome black wool crepe with jabot of colorful silk print to provide the desired color accent. The perky Breton sailor hat, slippers and envelope bag are of shiny black patent leather.

Gray Felt

A smart new felt hat by Patou for sports wear is of soft gray felt, and shaped like a man's fedora.

AUTUMN BERETS IN UNFAMILIAR FORMS

It being customary to rush headlong into a new season, it will be the fall hats that make their first appearance, and among them are the familiar berets in unfamiliar forms and drapes. In current displays many French milliners are represented as designers of beret. Among the variations of this silhouette, Mlle. Marthe introduces a model with a close back and kettle edge lifted front section, of brown felt, supplemented by a shallow crown part of sectioned belting.

Other silhouettes include the small and the large, shallow Breton, and several versions of the brimmed sports hat of classic type. In addition, there is a pillbox with side bow and veil from Patou.

Other models not of the beret movement have a tendency to crowns that are deeper back than front, and to buckles and other metal ornaments.

Air-Conditioned Frock Is Newest Note in Fashions

The newest fashion contribution of this stream-lined age is the air-conditioned frock.

You've seen it in summer sports things—the porous mesh fabrics tested for air resistance. Now the same term is applied to a group of fall frocks presented in an advance showing, and designed for comfort.

The "air conditioning" consists of light weight, lacy woolen fabrics and openwork devices in waists and sleeves.

A sheer woolen fabric like georgette is a favorite for fall sports clothes, tailoring beautifully and having the necessary warmth without bulk, for the first days of fall.

Bishop Sleeves

Fullness introduced with shirring and smocking is being used on new dresses. Full bishop sleeves shirred in at the top and the cuff are most flattering.

DIFFERENT AMOUNTS OF LIGHT NEEDED

A survey shows that 22 per cent of children finishing grade school have damaged eye sight. When they have finished college, 40 per cent are so affected. At age forty, 65 per cent suffer from visual defects. And at age sixty, 95 per cent have eye defects.

This regrettable increase in eye troubles is in many instances caused by eye strain resulting from reading, studying, sewing at night with poor light and not enough light.

Science measures light in terms of foot-candles. A foot-candle is the amount of light one standard candle shines on a surface one foot away.

For seeing one's way around and performing ordinary tasks which do not require seeing very small objects, 5 foot-candles is sufficient. For reading coarse print and large stitch sewing, you can get along with 10 foot-candles. For continued reading of ordinary print, or doing ordinary sewing, you need at least 20 foot-candles. For reading fine print and fine sewing, you require 30 foot-candles, or more.

Your light may look bright, but it is the illumination you get on your work that saves your eyes from strain; and this diminishes rapidly the farther away you are from your lamp.

Seated with your paper or work 3 feet away from your lamp, it will require a light of at least 275 candlepower to produce the 30 foot-candles needed to be certain your eyes have enough light to do their work without danger of strain and permanent injury.

If you use electricity, your light company will recommend the right size bulbs to use.

If your home is not wired, one of the new 300 candlepower kerosene or gasoline pressure mantle lamps will supply plenty of "live" natural light for every home need. It takes the pressure to give you all the light you should have.

JELLIED APPLESAUCE SALAD

To make this you need two and one-half cups hot unsweetened applesauce, three tablespoonfuls small red cinnamon candies, one tablespoonful granulated gelatin, one-quarter cup cold water, two tablespoonfuls lemon juice, one eighth teaspoonful nutmeg, and lettuce.

Combine the hot applesauce, cinnamon candies, and the gelatin, which has been added to the cold water, and stir until the candies and gelatin are dissolved. Add the lemon juice and nutmeg, and pour into six individual molds. Chill until set; unmold on lettuce; serve with mayonnaise. This will serve six. To serve two or three, make half this recipe.—Good Housekeeping Institute.

Quick, Pleasant Successful Elimination

Let's be frank—there's only one way for your body to rid itself of the waste material that causes acidity, gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Your intestines must function and the way to make them move quickly, pleasantly, successfully, without griping or harsh irritants is to chew a Milnesia Wafer thoroughly, in accordance with directions on the bottle or tin, then swallow.

Milnesia Wafers, pure milk of magnesia in tablet form, each equivalent to a tablespoon of liquid milk of magnesia, correct acidity, bad breath, flatulence, at their source, and enable you to have the quick, pleasant, successful elimination so necessary to abundant health.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles at 35c and 60c or in convenient tins at 20c. Recommended by thousands of physicians. All good druggists carry them. Start using these pleasant tasting effective wafers today

Tortured with Itching of Pimples

Relieved After Using Cuticura

"My face was a mass of pimples due to some external irritation, and I was in agony for three months. The pimples were hard, red and large and were scattered all over my face. I was tortured with the itching and it kept me awake.

"I used many remedies, but to no avail. A friend asked me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment, so I did. Soon an improvement could be seen, and after using for two and a half months my complexion was clear." (Signed) Joseph Paradis, 1078 S. Blvd., New York City, May 2, 1935.

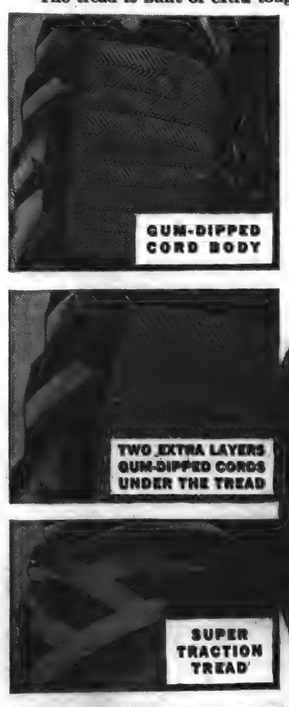
THREE PATENTED CONSTRUCTION FEATURES MADE THIS NEW GROUND GRIP TIRE POSSIBLE

THE new Firestone Ground Grip Tire is the greatest traction tire ever built. It has 54% more tread rubber to give your car, truck, tractor and farm implements the greatest traction ever known.

Gum-Dipping, the Firestone patented process which soaks every cord in liquid rubber, makes it possible for this tire to stand the terrific strains and stresses of the extra pulling power. Firestone Tires are the only tires built that are Gum-Dipped.

The tread is built of extra tough rubber and designed with deep grooves between scientifically placed cross bars, giving super-traction and long wear. Firestone Ground Grip Tires are self-cleaning. (Chains are not needed.) The bars of the rubber are so placed that they will not bump on paved roads, giving you easier riding and longer wear.



READ WHAT FARMERS SAY ABOUT THEIR SAVINGS WITH FIRESTONE GROUND GRIP TIRES

TEXAS . . . Mr. C. W. Wardlow, McKinney, Texas, writes: "Approximately 28% saving in fuel, and 35% more acres worked each day, and am able to go through any kind of 'tough going' due to your new tread design on the Ground Grip Tires."

OHIO . . . Mr. G. I. Henning of West Salem, Ohio, writes: "Want you to know the effectiveness of your pneumatic tire on our binder—it saves time, we cut grain faster, it is easy on the man riding on the binder and now we never have to stop to tighten up bolts."

SOUTH DAKOTA . . . Chris S. Anderson, Badger, S. D., says: "I like Firestone Tires because the tractor runs easier, uses less fuel, travels faster and hauls larger loads."

NEBRASKA . . . Dr. C. E. Larsen of Tilden, Nebraska, writes: "I purchased a set of your new Ground Grip Tires about two months ago for my coupe . . . I have not been able to stick this car in mud since they were put on and they have already saved me three sets of chains and I would not be without them if they cost double what you charge."

IOWA . . . Mr. H. Seabury of Sutherland, Iowa, writes: "With Firestone Tires on my McCormick Deering Tractor and Separator I have taken in over $100 from farmers I could not reach with other wheels."

Japanese Children Learn About Farm Labor

JAPANESE youngsters, spending their summer vacation on farms in Shizuoka prefecture, furnish their own motive power as they haul wheat from the fields beneath a blistering sun. The children are sent to the farms annually in keeping with a movement that was inaugurated a few years ago to school the children in the rudiments of farming. These youngsters apparently are making light of their labors.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

SAMMY JAY BRINGS LIGHTFOOT WORD

SAMMY Jay is one of those who believe in the wisdom of the old saying, "Early to bed and early to rise." Sammy needs no alarm clock to get him up early in the morning. He is awake as soon as it is light enough to see and wastes no time wishing he could sleep a little longer. His stomach wouldn't let him if he wanted to. Sammy always wakes up hungry.

"He's Coming!" Cried Sammy.

In this he is no different from all his feathered neighbors.

So the minute Sammy gets his eyes open he makes his toilet, for Sammy is very neat, and starts out to hunt for his breakfast. Long ago Sammy discovered that there is no safer time of day to visit the dooryards of those two-legged creatures called men, than very early in the morning. On this particular morning he had planned to fly over to Farmer Brown's dooryard, but at the last minute he changed his mind. Instead he flew over to the dooryard of another farm. It was so very early in the morning that Sammy didn't expect to find anybody stirring so you can guess how surprised he was when just as he came in sight of that dooryard he saw the door of the farm house open and a man step out.

Sammy stopped in the top of the nearest tree. "Now what is that man doing up as early as this?" muttered Sammy. Then he caught sight of something under the man's arm. He didn't have to look twice to know what it was. It was a gun. Yes, sir, it was a gun; a terrible gun.

"Ha!" exclaimed Sammy, and quite forgot that his stomach was empty. "Now, who can that fellow be after so early in the morning? I wonder if he is going over to the Big River after Mr. and Mrs. Quack, or if he is going to the dear Old Brier-patch to look for Peter Rabbit, or if he is going to the Old Pasture in search of Reddy Fox, or if it is Mr. and Mrs. Grouse he hopes to kill. I think I'll sit right here and watch."

So Sammy sat in the top of the tree and watched the hunter with the terrible gun. He saw him head straight for the Green Forest. "It's Mr. and Mrs. Grouse after all, I guess," thought Sammy. "If I knew just where they were I'd go over and warn them."

But Sammy didn't know just where they were and he knew that it might take him a long time to find them so he once more began to think of breakfast; and then, right then, another thought popped into his head. He thought of Lightfoot the Deer.

Sammy watched the hunter enter the Green Forest, then silently followed him. From the way the hunter moved Sammy decided that he wasn't thinking of Mr. and Mrs. Grouse. "It's Lightfoot the Deer, sure as I live!" muttered Sammy. "He ought to be warned. He certainly ought to be warned. I know right where he is. I believe I'll warn him myself."

Sammy found Lightfoot right where he had expected to. "He's coming!" cried Sammy. "A hunter with a terrible gun is coming!"

Grandmother's Recipe for Bread

By ANNE CAMPBELL

THERE in a book where it had long been spread,
I found Grandmother's recipe for bread,
Written by her dear hand, and placed inside
A cook-book long ago, for me, a bride,
I had not tried it for a dozen years,
And gazed upon it now with failing tears.

For I could see her silver head once more,
Bent to a little child beside her door.
I smelled the home-made bread she baked for me,
And churned for Grandmother in memory.
The buttery door stood open, for no bar
Kept me from Grandmother's tall cooky jar.

The curtains blew in the October air.
Her bird sang, telling me the world was fair.
The carpets made of rags, the tidies' fold
Upon the Morris chair, like her, grown old.
Are memories of precious years, long sped,
Caught in recipe for making bread.

"Sunburst" Collar and Cuff Set for Fall

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

This Collar and Cuff set is quite a departure from the many models shown in open net work. The solid work gives the pieces more definite form and very little starching is necessary to hold the shape. Collar and Cuff sets are going to add attraction to fall dresses more than they did last spring so a little time given your crochet now will find you ready when the season makes its change.

Package No. 711 contains sufficient white Mountain Craft crochet cotton to complete this three piece set. Complete instructions and set illustrated on a model are also included.

Send 25 cents and you receive this package by mail postpaid. Instructions and illustrations will be mailed for 10 cents.

PARK ALTITUDES MEAN NOTHING TO PICCARD FAMILY

The altitudes of Yellowstone park mountains weren't nearly as impressive to Dr. and Mrs. Jean Piccard, stratosphere balloonists, as were the geysers, the falls, and the bears. The two intrepid flyers who reached a height of more than 10 miles in their flight a year ago considered the 10,000-foot elevations in the park really "down to earth" levels.

Maintaining that stratosphere explorations within the next decade or two will produce some of the major scientific discoveries, Dr. Piccard expressed keen disappointment in the failure of the army flight from Rapid City, South Dakota. On his way to Yellowstone park, they visited the site of the latest stratosphere exploration attempt, but neither Dr. Piccard nor his wife would offer any suggestion as to the possible cause for the failure of the test flight.

Ardent outdoor enthusiasts, the entire Piccard family of three children and the parents made the park trip a real outing. Clad in shirt, shorts and sneakers, the quintet headed immediately for remote sections of the park, choosing to camp on lake shores and along streams in the park.

Dr. Piccard is now affiliated with the Franklin Institute in an advisory capacity as a chemist. He was formerly a professor of chemistry at Chicago, Basle and Lausanne universities. The family plans to leave the park within about two weeks, heading for San Francisco, where Dr. Piccard is going to do research work for a pharmaceutical institute.

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:
A friend of mine always tells me he can't afford to run an automobile. Yet I know he owns one. What do you make of that?

Truly yours,
P. ANNO.

Answer: That's why he knows he can't afford to run one.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
What does it mean when it is said a man is in the "cream" of society?

Sincerely,
N. V. USS.

Answer: That simply means he is thick.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
My husband's birthday is October 31. He is a lovely man and really deserves a very nice present from me, but I don't know what to get him. He doesn't gamble, he won't smoke, he doesn't drink nor does he go out nights. What could I get for a man like that?

Truly yours,
I. M. BOSS.

Answer: Why, that shouldn't be hard to decide. Get him some fancy-work.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I stopped to look in the window of a drug store today and I saw the window filled with red rubber gloves. I suppose you'll think I'm dumb, but I just must ask you. "What in the world are rubber gloves used for?"

Yours truly,
JIMMY NEEWISKERS.

Answer: Rubber gloves, my boy, are worn by people who want to wash their hands without getting them wet.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I advertised in the papers for a servant and today my ad was answered by a man who said he just left your employment. In answering my question about why he left you, he said that he absolutely left you without any angry words. Is this true?

Sincerely,
I. N. GAGEDHIM.

Answer: It is true. I was in the bath and he just locked the door, packed his things and went away as quiet as possible.

Mother's Cook Book

DISHES BY FAMOUS COOKS

AS MACARONI, spaghetti and noodles are all such popular foods and take the place in a meal of other starchy foods such as potatoes, we enjoy a few new ways of preparing such dishes.

Rector's Spaghetti and Chicken Salad.

Take one-half pound of elbow spaghetti, two cupfuls of diced chicken, one cupful of chopped celery, one tablespoonful of onion, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half cupful of mayonnaise, two tablespoonfuls of chopped green pepper, one tablespoonful of pimiento or minced red pepper, one tablespoonful of capers, lettuce or watercress. Cook the spaghetti until tender. Drain and chill. Add the remaining ingredients and mix lightly. Serve on lettuce or cress with golden rod sauce, which is made by rubbing several hard cooked eggs through a sieve. Salmon or tuna may be used in place of chicken.

Schneider's Deutschlander Noodles.

Cook five ounces of egg noodles until tender, prepare a cream sauce with two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour, one cupful of milk. Add one egg and one-half pound of dried beef, cook slowly for twenty minutes, or bake for thirty minutes. Serve with nudel sauce, which is made by adding grated Italian cheese to chopped green peppers and blending well. This recipe may be used with macaroni or spaghetti.

Liver With Noodles.

Take five ounces of noodles, cook until tender in boiling salted water. Drain. Line a casserole with them and set aside to become firm. Cut a pound of liver in slices and scald in a cupful of boiling water. Drain and cut fine. Fry a carrot and onion in three tablespoonfuls of bacon fat, using one-half cupful of onion and one-fourth of a cupful of chopped cooked carrot. Add three tablespoonfuls of flour, when brown add one and one-half cupfuls of soup stock and the liver. Season well, cook until thick, pour into the casserole, cover with crumbs and brown.

VOL. L. (50 Years) (In The St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, SEPT. 12, 1935 NUMBER 37

ANOTHER PAYMENT TO BANK CREDITORS

Ten Per Cent Dividend Authorized in St. Joe Liquidation Oct. 1, Making Total of 70 Per Cent

An order has been approved in the DeKalb circuit court for the payment of 10 per cent additional dividend to the creditors of the St. Joe Valley Bank of St. Joe.

Paul Heichelbeck, special representative of the state department of financial institutions in the liquidation of the bank, announces that payment will be made Oct. 1 and that more than 200 people who live in St. Joe and vicinity, will benefit.

This payment will aggregate $6,215.95. Already 60 per cent has been paid, making a total of approximately $43,505 of the bank's liabilities to be liquidated.

REPORT OF PUBLIC HEALTH NURSING SERVICE FROM JULY 1934 TO JULY 1935

During the months, following 16 Preschool Health Examinations by our DeKalb county physicians, 176 preschool children were visited in their homes and 3 children with whooping cough contacted before the opening of school.

Health literature from different organizations and other sources was arranged and distributed to the teachers at their fall Institute. Pamphlets were mimeographed with information on the control of communicable diseases and their early symptoms from the State Department of Health for the use of the teachers. To assist the teachers in the control of contagion a letter with material on contagious diseases and their symptoms was sent to each mother.

In September and October, to prevent the spread of pediculosis, skin infections and communicable diseases 2678 pupils were inspected. Twenty-three cases of pediculosis, 29 skin infections and 35 children with symptoms of contagion were sent home with a request to visit their family physician. From September to July we made 223 visits to schools with 416 visits to class rooms to inspect 4766 pupils for contagion infection, and inspect 3625 for defects. 31 cases of pediculosis were discovered, 48 skin infections and 123 symptoms of communicable diseases. 710 pupils had vision defects with 161 corrections, 237 had dental defects, 528 dental corrections made during summer of 1934 and during school year, 69 showed throat infection, 110 infected glands, 10 needed speech training. 220 talks were given in school room, 59 sanitary inspections made and 1164 notices sent to parents.

A deaf child was sent to school for the deaf, a blind man taken to Ann Arbor University Hospital for examination and arrangements made to send a child 8 years of age, partially blind to the Indianapolis School for the Blind this fall.

Thirty-five dollars was contributed by the Auburn Tri Kappas to care for the teeth of 17 pupils in the grade schools of Auburn. The care of defective teeth and vision of a child was financed by the American Legion Auxilliary of Auburn.

Twenty-five colored persons in Garrett, who had been exposed to tuberculosis of the lungs, were visited and brought to a T. B. Clinic. Four of these were Xrayed and given further aid.

Dr. Swartz, Dr. Klinger and Dr. Hathaway were appointed to act as an advisory committee for the Public Health Nursing Service, and an executive committee formed and a meeting held to formulate plans to carry on the nursing activities in the future.

On account of the depression many families visited were found in need of medical or surgical care and food and clothing. Coal, bedding, milk, medical and surgical aid were secured through the Social Service Department of Sunday Schools or private individuals. Ten transients aided by private individuals and four given clothing by Auburn American Legion Auxiliary.

Other items of interest included 61 home visits to 22 acute medical cases, 4 surgical cases, 26 calls on 17 prenatal, 22 visits to 10 pastpartum, 30 calls to newborn, 58 T. B. calls, 17 calls on 2 with social disease, a "Home Class in Hygiene and Care of the Sick" conducted by Nurse in Auburn, 25 infants cared for at the Red Cross Fall Fair Nursery, Maternity outfit given to 11 mothers, 2390 Health Literature distributed. 4315 pamphlets on Health Education mimeographed, 145 letters and post cards written, 16 meetings and many other activities too numerous to mention.

The State financed the salaries of the nurses, the Red Cross cared for the expenses of the car and office for the Red Cross Nurse and Miss Elam's car expenses were secured through Garrett, Butler and Keyser townships and Red Cross.

Catherine E. Eoll, Red Cross and State Public Health Nurse.

MORTUARY

GELHAUSEN

The funeral of the late Mrs. Olive Gelhausen, was held Saturday afternoon at her home in Garrett. The Rev. B. H. Franklin of the M. E. Church officiated and interment was made in Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. Gelhausen died Thursday night at 10:30 o'clock from Bright's disease. She had been ill since last November. She went to the summer home of a daughter, Mrs. A. D. Johns, at Cold Springs, Hamilton, the first of July and her condition became critical there. She was brought home in an ambulance Wednesday.

The maiden name of Mrs. Gelhausen was Oberholtzer and she was born at Spencerville, August 25, 1863 and died Thursday, September 5, at the age of 72 years, and 10 days. She and Edward N. Gelhausen, a Baltimore & Ohio machinist, were married at Spencerville January 24, 1886, and he died in Garrett July 16, 1906.

Surviving are two children, George G. Gelhausen and Mrs. A. D. Johns. The Johns family and Mrs. Gelhausen lived together. There are four grandchildren.

Mrs. Gelhausen was a member of the Methodist Church for many years.

Will Disposes Of Property

The late Mrs. Olive Gelhausen of Garrett, by her will and codicil admitted to probate in the DeKalb circuit court Monday, bequeathed her property to a daughter, Mrs. A. D. Johns, of Garrett, with the porvisionn that the latter pay her brother, Geo. G. Gelhausen, also of Garrett, $200. Mrs. Johns was nominated by her mother for executor. The will was signed March 25, 1933, with Mary C. Petersen and L. L. Hoff as witnesses. The codicil was executed last April 20, with Charlotte Wagner and Mrs. Petersen as witnesses.

THE ST. JOE RIVER VALLEY AT THE AUBURN FAIR

There is no question in ones mind but that the parade put on by The St. Joe Valley Producers at the Auburn Fair last year was the outstanding event of the week. The favorable comment at the time and remarks that have been made about it ever since is all the evidence needed to prove that The Valley got enough valuable advertising from it to pay many times over for the trouble it took to put on the show.

Aside from the value of advertising The Valley and its products those who joined in had a lot of fun out of the parade, and a spirit of team play was started that is probably worth more than the money value to the community. There are two ways of commenting on an opportunity: "I am glad I did" and "I wish I had." No one has heard a single person who took part in last year's St. Joe River Valley section of the Auburn Fall Fair Parade say that they were sorry but regrets have been plenty.

The weather has been such this year that there has been a lot of disappointment to the producers of special crops in The Valley and many feel discouraged at this time, but there are some things all of us who make producing food our business must remember, and one is that we are gambling with the weather always and no gambler wins every time.

Another important fact we must keep in mind is that none of us can get along very well by ourselves but when we produce we must sell. Selling is a matter of the one who has an article finding some one who wants it. The very best way to bring these two together is advertising, and the Fall Fair Parade is advertising of the very best kind, because it gets people talking favorably about the locality and its products. The more people we can get to know we produce the very best that can be had of many things the more who will be asking for them.

The most important thing about advertising, next to the truth, is repetition, so that an impression today becomes a conviction tomorrow. The St. Joe River Valley last year created a very definite impression that it was on the map with something to offer that was worth while and it is time now to begin thinking about driving that impression home and making it a conviction.

By the way, it seems that those producers who sell on the Fort Wayne and other markets are overlooking a good chance to boost their own game and The Valley generally by neglecting to display on their booth a modest sign reading "St. Joe Valley Products." This would serve to identify you and in time people will begin to say "I buy St. Joe Valley products because they are always good."

SCHOOL NOTES

On last Friday afternoon the upper six grades held class meetings and elected officers for the school year. The Seniors chose Evelyn Dermott for president; Frank Richmond, vice-president; and Helen Washler as secretary-treasurer. Juniors elected De-Vere Woodcex president; Donald Borthwick, vice-president, and Helen Tustison, secretary-treasurer. Sophomore class officers are Harold Baker, president; Robert Schondelmayer, vice-president, and Garnet Washler, secretary-treasurer. Mae Richards, president; James Draggoo, vice-president; Walter Erwin, secretary, and Ruth Lewis, treasurer, are the Freshmen officers. The Eighth Grade will have Maxine Woodcox for president; Thelma Martin, vice-president; Marcella Wiers, secretary, and Helen Goodwin, treasurer. Paul Keller will be the Seventh Grade president; Marcel Pugsley is vice-president, Jack Goodwin, secretary, and James Hamilton, treasurer.

Department Enrollments

The Vocational Home Economics Department has an enrollment of 35 girls from the ninth, tenth and eleventh grade. There are 28 girls in the seventh and eighth grade Home Economics classes. Miss Roula, teacher, now gives full time to home economics instruction.

The Commercial Department classes show the following enrollments: Bookkeeping, 22; Typing, 30; Shorthand, 11; Commercial Law, 34. There classes are taught by Mr. Gerdes. Mrs. Simanton's Commercial Arithmetic class has an enrollmet of 12 pupils.

Mr. Noffsinger has 34 pupils in History 11; and 33 in Biology. Mrs. Simanton has 35 girls in Physical Education and 26 in first year algebra. Miss Bowman's largest class in English is 11 with an enrollment of 32. Mr. Munn's largest class in History 10 with an enrollment of 31.

Gift from Class of 1935

The Home Economics Department received as a gift from the Class of 1935 a "dinnerette set" purchased of the Kinsey Store. The school very much appreciates this gift from the class of 1935.

Lower Grades

The fifth and sixth grades have an enrollment of 51 pupils and it is expected that three more pupils will enroll in the fifth grade this week.

Several fifth, sixth, and seventh grade pupils have the new Thorndike Century Junior Dictionary.

Frank Curie, Jr., is on a trip in the East. He will have some interesting experiences to relate in the geography and history classes.

Joe Speak enrolled in the ninth year on last Friady. George Walter entered the 11th grade on Monday.

Soon we will start preparing for the Auburn Fair exhibit.

Third and Fourth

We have 29 boys and girls in our room this year. There are 17 in the third and 12 in the second.

Franlyn and Maurice Shuff have been out of school the past week with the mumps. Patricia Carpenter has been absent with a cold.

Our Spelling Honor Roll for last week includes April Bowser, Virginia Campbell, Calvin Hull, Opal Kinsey, Leola Sechler, June Strong, Mary Evelyn White, Leora Wilmot, Mary Louise Woodcox, Rosemary Yeiser, Gloria Zonker, Donald Freeburn, Allen Haller, George Harris, Jean Hurni, James Kees, Ned Keller, Betty Rudolph, and Beverly Wade.

Welding

... the best way to make a perfect union of two pieces of metal is by welding them together.

... and the best way to get a more pleasing flavor and a better taste in a cigarette is by welding together the different types of tobacco ...

That is just what we do in making CHESTERFIELD Cigarettes—the three types of mild ripe home-grown tobaccos, that is tobaccos grown in this country, are welded together. Then they are welded with aromatic Turkish.

When these tobaccos are welded together you get a combined flavor which is entirely different from any one type of tobacco.

It is this welding of the right amounts of the right kind of tobaccos that makes CHESTERFIELD a milder and better-tasting cigarette.

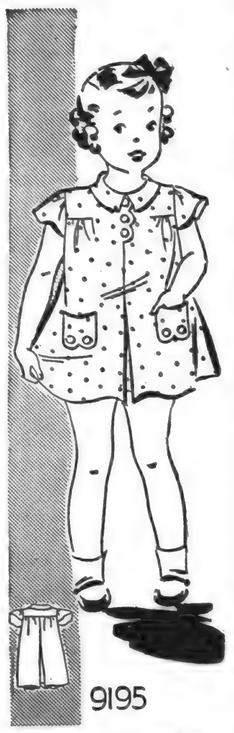
Tot's Play Frock That "Stays Put"

PATTERN 9195



Is she never still a minute? Racing madly about, arms and heels flying? Then here's just the little play frock she needs, the kind that will "stay-put"—the neat little collar and tidy button-up front keep the dress from pulling askew! The little skirt, with its front and back pleat, allows for freedom—and with the matching bloomers, what matter if she does play leap frog with brother? The cute flare sleeve is cooler, but the pattern permits a puffed version if you prefer it. You could outline the scallops with bias tape to match the dots and buttons. Most practical in printed pique or percale, and daintiest in dotted swiss, or dimity.

Pattern 9195 may be ordered only in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8. Size 4 requires 2¼ yards of 36-inch fabric. Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to the Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth street, New York, N. Y.

Bedtime Story for Children

ANOTHER GAME OF HIDE AND SEEK

YOU remember the game of hide and seek Danny Meadow-Mouse played with Buster Bear? You remember what a very dreadful game it was for Danny? But hard as it was for Danny, it didn't begin to be as hard as the game Lightfoot the Deer was playing with the hunter in the Green Forest.

In the case of Buster Bear and Danny, the latter had simply to keep out of reach of Buster. As long as Buster didn't get his great paws on Danny the latter was safe. Then, too, Danny is a very small person. He is so small that he can hide under two or three leaves. Wherever he is he is pretty sure to find a hiding place of some sort. His small size gives him advantages in a game of hide and seek. It certainly does. But Lightfoot the Deer is big. He is one of the largest of the people who live in the Green Forest. Being so big, it is not easy to hide.

Lightfoot Listened and Watched.

Moreover, a hunter with a terrible gun does not have to get close in order to kill. Lightfoot knew all this as he waited for the coming of the hunter of whom Sammy Jay had warned him. He had learned many lessons in the hunting season of the year before and he remembered every one of them. He knew that to forget even one of them might cost him his life. So, standing motionless behind a tangle of fallen trees, Lightfoot listened and watched.

Presently over in the distance he heard Sammy Jay screaming, "Thief, thief, thief!" A little sigh of relief escaped Lightfoot. He knew that that screaming of Sammy Jay was a warning to tell him where the hunter was. Knowing just where the hunter was made it easier for him to know what to do.

A Merry Little Breeze came stealing through the Green Forest. It came from behind Lightfoot and danced away towards the hunter with the terrible gun. Instantly Lightfoot began to steal softly away through the Green Forest. He took the greatest care to make no sound. He went in a half circle, stopping every few minutes to look and listen and test the air with his wonderful nose.

Can you guess what Lightfoot was trying to do?

He was trying to get behind the hunter so that the Merry Little Breezes would bring to him the dreaded man-scent. As long as he could get that scent he would know where the hunter was though he could neither see nor hear him. If he had remained where Sammy Jay had found him, the hunter might have come within shooting distance before Lightfoot could have located him.

So the hunter with the terrible gun walked noiselessly through the Green Forest, stepping with the greatest care to avoid snapping a stick underfoot, searching with keen eyes every thicket and likely hiding place for a glimpse of Lightfoot and studying the ground for traces to show that Lightfoot had been there.

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am in love with a young lady and asked her to marry me. She said she would marry me if I promised to love her "forever." What shall I do?

Truly yours,
B. HIVES.

Answer: Don't promise that. You may not live that long.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

There's a man lives next door to me who has a peculiar habit. Every time he reads of a rich man dying he cries for hours. Can you tell me why he cries, as none of the rich men are related to him?

Sincerely,
U. SEYMOUR THANME.

Answer: That is very simple. You say when a rich man dies, though he is no relative of the rich man, your neighbor cries? He cries because he is not a relative.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

If "time" is money, why don't they make watches and clocks to run fast?

Yours truly,
ANN I. TOBUSINESS.

Answer: You guess.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Is it possible for the government to stop suicides?

Yours truly,
I. TRIEDIT.

Answer: The only way for the government to stop people from committing suicide is for the government to pass a law making it a capital crime punishable by death.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

How is it that in some apartment houses you will find when they live above the sixth floor married couples haven't any children?

Yours truly,
MISS SHONARY.

Answer: That only happens in apartment houses without elevators. People living on the top floors don't have children, as there is no way to raise them.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

A friend of mine told me he could not join our motor party last Sunday because his wooden leg pained him. How could that possibly be?

Truly yours,
ART E. FISHEL.

Answer: His wife most likely hit him in the head with it.

"Football Practice"

By ANNE CAMPBELL

WALTER'S got a grand excuse
When he's late for dinner now.
Father says: "Oh, what's the use?"
Noting Mother's frowning brow.
"You know fellows have to play!
Why were you so late today?"
"Football practice!" Walt will say!

Wish I were as big as he!
When I'm late I get a look
That would slay you! Walt can be Late as anything. . . . "Why cook
If you're never here?" . . . Pell-mell
Walt comes in! Dad says: "Well! Well!"
"Football practice!" Walt will yell!

I am proud of Walter, too,
Just as Mother is, I know.
Though she scolds the whole day through,
Keeping meals annoys her so!
But I notice that a grin
Follows Walt when he comes in!
"Football practice? . . . Hope you win!"

OLD FASHIONED GOOD THINGS

THERE are any number of people who welcome a loaf of the old-fashioned salt-rising bread. It is not hard to make if the mixture can be kept warm enough. The following is a reliable recipe:

Salt-Rising Bread.

This is such an old-fashioned bread that one has difficulty these days to find a reliable recipe for it. Place in a two-quart bowl one and one-half cupfuls of boiling water, cool to lukewarm. Add one and one-half cupfuls of fresh sweet milk, also lukewarm; one teaspoonful of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of corn meal, with enough flour to make a thin batter. Stir the entire mixture well, set into a heater or warming oven or in water that will keep the mixture at 110 degrees. When the first bubble appears stir down; repeat, leaving the dish uncovered. When the yeast is double its bulk mix with flour to knead. Warm the flour and keep all dishes used warm. Make into loaves, rise again and bake in a moderate oven until well browned. Keeping the bread warm during its whole process of rising is very important. The salt is added in the last mixing, as salt has a tendency to kill the growth of the wild yeast.

Cheese Ring.

Take one and one-half pounds of cottage cheese, one teaspoonful of salt, put through a ricer, then add one can of chopped pimiento, one green pepper and two tablespoonfuls of gelatin which has been dissolved in one-fourth of a cupful of cold water. Place in a ring mold and let stand several hours in the ice chest. Turn out on a lettuce bed and surround with alternating canned peaches and pears. In the center place a grapefruit rind filled with mayonnaise.

Baked Carrots.

Cut in uniform size and place in a baking dish with salt, a grating of nutmeg or a bit of mace, one-half cupful of sirup, a little vegetable oil or butter and bake until tender. Serve hot.

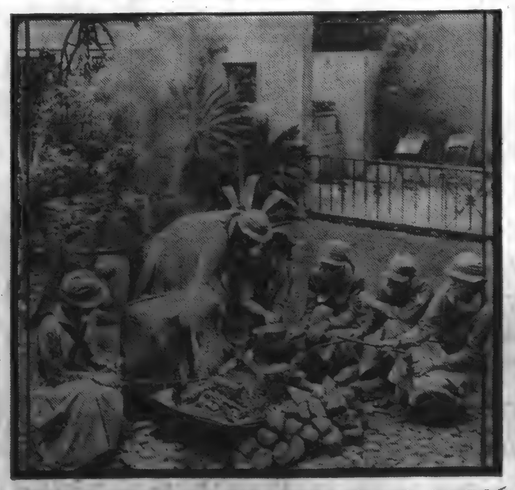
Corn Roast High Above New York



A CORN roast from corn grown in the vegetable garden on the eleventh floor roof of the RCA building in New York was held in the Gardens of the Nations. The corn was roasted by 12 Girl Scouts over a hunter's fire built by them on a terrace of the gardens. The girls roasted the corn to fulfill one requirement for their cook's badge—the preparation of an outdoor meal. Miss Mary Margaret McBride, nationally known food authority, judged their cooking abilities.

Racketeers Long Ago

One hundred years ago, the passenger traffic between Spain's two large cities, Madrid and Cadiz, was efficiently "racketed." One line of stage coach insured its travelers against bandits, at, of course, triple the usual charge, the efficient bandit gang of the district protecting its own line against other bandits as well as joining to despoil all competitive business.

Youth's Call for a Dinghy Brought Unexpected Result

The young man with the nautical turn of mind, having preserved his savings, determined to gratify his greatest desire to become the sole owner of a dinghy, the type of small boat sometimes used as tender to a vessel, but more commonly favored by sportsmen for sailing purposes. Accordingly he telephoned to one of the city's largest department stores to obtain prices, having seen such craft advertised.

"I would like to inquire about a dinghy," he explained to one of the store's telephone operators.

The operator seemed to be a trifle thick. She failed to get it.

"A what?" she asked.

"A dinghy," he replied. "I want to find the price of a dinghy."

"Thank you," said the operator in that cheery way operators sometimes have.

She gave him the ladies' lingerie department.—New York Sun.

Quick, Pleasant Successful Elimination

Let's be frank—there's only one way for your body to rid itself of the waste material that causes acidity, gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Your intestines must function and the way to make them move quickly, pleasantly, successfully, without griping or harsh irritants is to chew a Milnesia Wafer thoroughly, in accordance with directions on the bottle or tin, then swallow.

Milnesia Wafers, pure milk of magnesia in tablet form, each equivalent to a tablespoon of liquid milk of magnesia, correct acidity, bad breath, flatulence, at their source, and enable you to have the quick, pleasant, successful elimination so necessary to abundant health.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles at 35c and 60c or in convenient tins at 20c. Recommended by thousands of physicians. All good druggists carry them. Start using these pleasant tasting effective wafers today.

Rid Yourself of Kidney Poisons

DO you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination; backache, headache, dizziness, swollen feet and ankles? Are you tired, nervous—feel all unstrung and don't know what is wrong?

Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly, for functional kidney disorder permits excess waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They are recommended the world over. You can get the genuine, time-tested Doan's at any drug store.

More Velvet Than Ever in Fall Mode

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WE ARE going to be more elegant in dress this fall and winter than ever. All the pre-showings of advance fashions declare for greater luxury in jewels, in furs, in fabrics, in costume design. Where there is luxury and elegance in apparel there is velvet. Which leads to the message we would convey—the outstanding importance of velvet in the mode.

There is simply no limit to the enthusiasm which style creators are expressing for velvet this fall. It's velvet everywhere this season.

Apropos of the craze for velvet which is sweeping throughout the world of fashions Paris cables the news of tailored cloth suits which are styled with velvet collars and revers. Several suits shown in early contour showings have velvet skirts with cloth jackets often of rough surfaced, bright colored novelty woolen.

The girl planning her going-away-to-school wardrobe will adore the new velvet-plus-woolen outfits. Consider, for instance, the cunning ensemble shown to the right in the picture. It is a style-elect when it comes to assembling the college girl's wardrobe. The dress is of stiff deep red (red of the Italian master paintings) velvet. The bodice is designfully stitched in squares. The cloth cape in matching red has velvet buttons and velvet flowers at the throat.

Black velorganza, which is a thin velvet pile on an organdie base, fashions the handsome costume to the left in the group. Note that the flaring jacket is lined with the same gay printed organdie as makes the blouse. Linings which correlate the ensemble into an harmonious unit is a pet theme with fashion this season.

There is a boldly picturesque note about the so-named "pirate" dress centered in the trio. The unique bodice is of green mat velvet. The skirt is of non-crushable heavy white linen strikingly printed in green.

Velvet has become almost inseparable with black when it comes to talking from the viewpoint of daytime fashions. However, it is a little newer this year to introduce color—any of the dark warm colors that are booming for fall, particularly the wine purple and rich green range reflecting the Italian renaissance influence.

The favorite velvet suit for all-around wear during the daytime activities is linked with fitted lines. The very short jacket is apt to have almost a basque trimness, with its neatly buttoned-up-the-front closing, and intricate seaming and gores for the skirt.

The shirtwaist in velvet, begun by Mainbocher, is contributing a subject of exciting interest to the new style program. Speaking of color in velvet this trend is particularly noticeable in many of the early fall hats which are of velvet in delectable warm autumn hues. The little chapeau in the inset here shown is an ultra smart plaid velvet toque with a green feather curled to the left. The new berets of deep wine green or purple velvet are decidedly picturesque, some of them big floppy affairs dipping down over one eye, others with the new triangular and squared contours which are decidedly smart and effective.

Color and Light Are Co-Partners

Official of Decorators' Society Urges Protection of Eyesight.

The important part that painting and decorating play in aiding eyesight is emphasized in a recent statement by Ray Isard, well-known decorator of Omaha, who is also first vice president of the International Society of Master Painters and Decorators.

"It is not only important to have adequate lighting facilities," says Mr. Isard, "but it is imperative to have wall surfaces that make the most of that light. All members of the painting craft in the country are being urged to support wholeheartedly the splendid Better Light—Better Sight Movement. Such backing is not only a benefit to every community but a humanitarian service for those who, as a result, guard their priceless gift of good eyesight."

Mr. Isard calls attention to the fact that this movement applies not only to the home but also to the factory and office, to schools and hospitals. In talking of such structures, Mr. Isard says that window openings in the walls of light shafts and exterior areaways need particular attention. Many such "wells" receive little light and cause the rooms on which they open to be dim and gloomy.

"When such areaways and light shafts are painted white," points out Mr. Isard, "a flood of light is reflected through the windows and the adjacent rooms are made much brighter. Seeing conditions are greatly improved and efficiency is increased.

"Owners of large office buildings are becoming more and more conscious of the way illumination can be increased by reflection and of the saving of their tenants' eyesight. This has brought about the painting of the dark and dismal areas," Mr. Isard states.

"Scientists have established the fact that unpainted red brick has a co-efficient of light reflection of only 15 or 20 per cent, while the same brick painted with a high-grade white paint has a reflection co-efficient of 80 per cent," Mr. Isard points out.

He urges all owners of buildings to get behind the Better Light—Better Sight campaign by repainting dark areaways. "They will not only be rendering their tenants a real service," Mr. Isard states, "but tenants will be easier to attract and hold as a result of the brighter quarters they have to offer."

READY FOR SCHOOL

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Coat fashions for the junior miss should be considered as "first aid" to preparedness in the matter of school girl wardrobe needs for fall. The model pictured is highly significant as to certain style trends that are outstanding in the new autumn and winter modes. Note a slight flare from the hipline. Double-breasted in somewhat of a coachman style this coat takes on a new note of chic. The fur-bordered collar carries a capelike air. The material for this attractive coat is a checked velour woolen. The hat is included in the ensemble, being made of the same smart wool weave.

Style Trend

Bows of ermine are being worn instead of buckles on evening shoes in London.

DRAPE BRIDAL VEIL IN MANY NEW WAYS

New ways of draping the bridal veil are offered the girl who is planning an early fall wedding. While in general these may be said to derive from the Russian tiara effects, they should more properly be credited to the Renaissance period. This includes the Italian, the Russian, and the Hungarian periods of corresponding dates.

One of the most charming of these diadem effects was recently constructed by Worth. Of tulle and old lace, over a stiffened wire foundation, it gains in width clear to the ears and is softened by incrusted draperies at the top in crenellated fashion.

Chanel has made a bridal head-dress which starts with a cap of tulle, embroidered in crosslines of dull silver. This silver note is recalled in the torsade which divides the upturning and downturning sections of the slightly circular-cut ourcole, diminishing to nothing at the back of the head and giving full sweep to the simple tulle veil.

Knitted Evening Gown of Cellophane Is the Latest

A knitted evening gown of cellophane yarn is one of the sensations of the current mode.

We have seen knitted evening gowns before, introduced first at Palm Beach and taken up by New York and Paris. But the idea of using cellophane yarn is new.

The glittering cellophane, in black, follows the dictates of the season as to brilliance and glitter, and fits the figure like a mermaid's scales.

Knitted suits are blossoming forth in faultlessly tailored models, with contrasting linings and a distinct swagger.

Glossy Lace for Gowns

Glossy, transparent lace is used for gowns in black, navy and dark red. A pale shaded flower trims the corsage, and mittens of the lace go with the dress.

DEDICATION SERVICE AT CHURCH OF CHRIST

Ceremonies for the re-dedication of the Church of Christ were held in an all day meeting, Sunday with H. K. Schondelmayer, the present pastor, presiding.

Bible School, at the usual hour, was treated to a special, an instrumental trio, by the Hurni children. The impressive Communion Services were followed by the sermon by the pastor, a splendid discourse, "The Blessing of Labor," in perfect harmony with the purpose of the day's services.

A large crowd remained for the dinner hour and the afternoon service, giving rapt attention to Senator Larry Brandon's address which preceded the dedicatory sermon by A. J. Brown, of Fountain City, Ind., a former pastor of the church, twenty-five yeare ago. This sermon was an inspiration to those hearing this consecrated and forceful speaker. Three songs interpersed the services, given by a male quartet, Walter Coburn, Clarence Kilhian, H. K. Schondelmayer and A. M. Baker. Short talks by the pastor, Walter Coburn and A. M. Baker were interesting. Mr. Baker, chairman of the Church Board, gave a short review of the initiative and final periods of the work of the church just completed; touching on the splendid cooperation of all concerned and of the trustees, Ed Storer, Sam Keesler and Chas. Murphy who efficiently carried on to the finish.

This church gives much credit and praise to their pastor, H. K. Schondelmayer, whose efficiency as general manager, in handling the project and whose untiring efforts in raising funds for expense elimination, has freed the church from all debts.

This church wishes to express gratitude and extend thanks to all those, who in any manner, contributed their co-operation, either materially or otherwise.

DRIVES TO NEW JERSEY

Four of the Draggoo sisters, namely Mesdames Art Coyle, J. W. Brown of Auburn, Ern Johnson, of Concord and George Bartlett, of Fort Wayne, left last Tuesday evening for Morristown, N. J., to visit their brother, W. E. Draggoo for a week. It had been 21 years since they all had seen him and 41 years since he left Indiana. The reunion was indeed a happy one and their visit was much appreciated by the brother. They all returned Tuesday night of this week. Mrs. Coyle's son did the driving.

Some U. B. Appointments

The Waterloo United Brethren Church will have a new pastor in the person of Rev. C. B. Smith. He will succeed Revs. Ernest and Lily Lewellen, who have been in charge of the pastorate at Waterloo for a number of years. Rev. Lewellen and wife will go to the Roanoke Church. Following are other DeKalb county appointments which were announced at the close of the St. Joseph conference of this denomination at Winona Lake Sunday afternoon: Butler, C. W. Price; Butler circuit, R. H. Blackburn; Newville, F. A. Risley.

Goes To County Home

W. D. Rickel, the oldest real estate agent in Auburn, was taken Sunday by Chief of Police Dan Kreamelmeyer to the DeKalb county home. Mr. Rickel, ill for several years, is nearly blind and practically helpless. Saturday night he had hallucinations and became somewhat violent and it was thought best to take him where he will have the proper care.

SOME LOCAL BRIEFS

If its news, give it to us.

Fillmors Shull and family moved from Garrett into the Saylor school house.

M. E. Foltz, of Defiance spent Tuesday night and Wednesday here in the Buckingham and Foltz homes.

C. V. Petty, brother of Mrs. A. W. Trostel, a merchant at Roan, died Friday at the Wabash hospital. The funeral was held Sunday.

Mrs. Bina Geisinger, of Tacoma, Wash., who is visiting relatives in the county, spent Sunday in the Chas. Koch home. In the afternoon they all drove to Cecil, O., accompanied also by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Koch and Master Jimmy, of Grabill.

Mrs. Mabelle Thornton left Tuesday to resume her duties in Washington, D. C., after a vacation with relatives near Chicago and a week in her home here. Friday evening she was entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Kennedy at Garrett. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Miser and Mr. and Mrs. Harcourt Miser and two sons, of Albion.

An order has been placed with The News by the Leighty Orchard for 5,000 apple calendars, listing the variety of apples raised and the month that each variety is in season. The calendar will be in two colors and on the reverse side is a valuable jelly table. This calendar will be placed in every basket leaving the orchard and the words "In the St. Joe Valley" will furnish a bit of advertising of value to all producers.

Boost for the St. Joe Valley.

Mrs. Doris Yeiser underwent a minor operation at Auburn last Thursday and she is expected home today. The children spent their time at the Yeiser farm home when not in school.

G. Crank, telegrapher and extra station agent, of Edon, Ohio, is here for a month taking charge of the St. Joe and Spencerville stations on the Wabash, during the vacation of J. S. Hollabaugh.

C. F. Buckley, I. & M. lineman, and his wife moved into the Thornton residence Tuesday and will remain there while the Elkhart gang is in this territory extending the lines of the company.

Henry Emme, residing east of Auburn, won $206.50 in prize money on his exhibits at the Indiana state fair this year. It is time some of the St. Joe Valley growers are looking after some of this state prize money.

Chas. Koch is fixing up his property considerable by painting all the buildings and in addition he has torn down the wood house and is rebuilding connecting his house. This will help towards convenience and comfort of their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Dilley entertained at a dinner party last Sunday in honor of Mrs. Mabelle Thornton and son, Charles, the following guests: Lela Northrup and son, Curtice, Will Hamilton, wife and son, James, Wm. Staman and wife, Glen Cole and wife and B. E. Widney.

Joy Maxine and June Irene Wise, by procedings in the DeKalb circuit court, have been adopted by John R. and Minnie Linton, of Jackson township, and their names were changed to Joy Maxine and June Irene Linton. The twins are seven years of age and their father, Hollis Wise, consented to the adoption. Their mother is dead.

Frank Long and Lee Burgett, of New Haven, spent Sunday with Wm. Miller.

Glen Place, of Fort Wayne, is spending the week in the Albert Moore home.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Lungren, of Detroit, Mich., were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Donahue.

Although the schools in DeKalb county have just opened for the fall and winter term, complaints are alrealy being made of motorists driving past school buses when they are stopped for the purpose of receiving or discharging children. The officers are giving warning that prosecutions will ensue unless the practice is stopped.

Mr. and Mrs. Logan Fuller returned to their home at Flint, Mich., Wednesday after a week's visit here with Mrs. S. D. Gee.

Persons wishing The News to supply them with magazines for club work, will please notify us at once so that we may be able to start with the club year.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hart and Mr. and Mrs. John Hart and family spent from Saturday afternoon until Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Caskey at Fostoria, O.

The members of the I. & M. light office were entertained recently at a lawn party at the home of ye editor and wife. In all there were 18 present and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

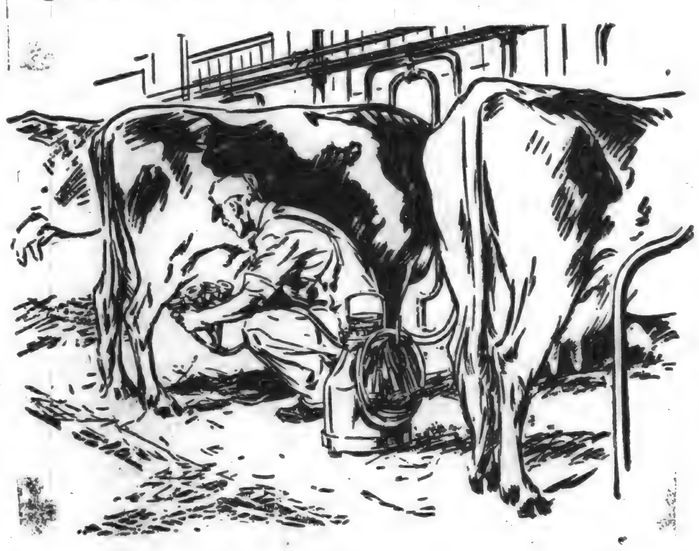
"MY MILKER BIGGEST LABOR SAVING MACHINE I HAVE"



Says Prominent Farmer in Broadcast

MR. MERRILL B. WALKER, in a recent radio broadcast on the topic of How Electricity Pays Its Way on My Farm, spoke enthusiastically of his electric milker. Mr. Walker said:

"We have had our electric milker nine years and use it all the while. Before that, we used it only in the summer as it was hard to start the gas engine in cold weather. I find in order to have cows give their milk down good they must be milked by one method all the time. Either milk by hand all the time or by machine all the time. I prefer the machine. I find heifers which have always been milked by machine hardly ever give us any trouble. I consider my milker the biggest labor saving machine which I have, and the cost of running it is very small . . ."

Other sure aids to bigger profits are electric dairy sterilizers. Live steam for bottles in a sterilizing cabinet and steam under high pressure for thoroughly sterilizing dairy utensils help keep down the bacteria count to a minimum.

DR. PRICE INSPECTS LARGE TREE

Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price were Sunday guests in the Lester Dill home at Pierceton, and in the afternoon they drove to 4 miles west of Warsaw, to see the largest tree in the state and here is what they saw.

The tree, a poplar, was located in a woods of virgin timber. The circumference about four inches from the ground measured 41 feet or 492 inches, the diameter being a little over 13 feet. The trunk was straight and the first limb showed up at a distance of 60 feet from the ground and all were of the saw log type.

Nothing comparing to this tree is to be found anywhere in the northern section of Indiana.

Mrs. Hoffer Administrator

Garcile Hoffer, of Newville township, was appointed Monday in the DeKalb circuit court as administrator of the estate of her husband, the late Russell S. Hoffer, who died Aug. 24, leaving $250 in personal property. The heirs besides the widow are two children, Junior, 12, and Nancy, 4. Mrs. Hoffer filed $500 bond, with Jett Schramm as surety.

Idalena Dressel, of Deshler, O., is here the guest of her brother, Max Dressell, and sister, Mrs. Carleton Shull, and families.

SOUTH SIDE FAIR OPENS SATURDAY

A great many of the St. Joe Valley producers will participate in the South Side Market Fair at Ft. Wayne again this year on September 14 and 16, and most of whom have regular market booths.

The fair excells anything ever attempted at an ordinary fair display, the decorations always being very attractive. We predict an unusual display, due to the season and it would be well worth the time for any of the Valley folks to attend early on Saturday in order to see the display at its best After four o'clock the sale of produce will start and of course this will disrupt the displays somewhat.

On Monday night over a hundred baskets of produce will be given away which are furnished by the exhibitors.

Last year eight prizes were won by the Valley marketers and they expect to win more this year.

To Pay $5 Support

In the divorce suit of Roy Ivan Powser against Mabel Catherine Bowser, the plaintiff was ordered in the DeKalb circuit court Monday to pay his wife $5 a week for support pending the trial of the case and $35 attorney's fees. The plaintiff is represented by W. D. Stump and the defendant by Carl A. Osterman.

Discuss Electric Possibilities

A community meeting was held at Coburntown Church Tuesday evening for the purpose of discussing the possibilities of securing electric current for the community. Officials of the I. & M. met with the people and we hope a satisfactory arrangement can be made.

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Weaver were Evelyn Woods, of South Bend, Ernest Woods, of Ligonier, and Stephen Murphy, of Fort Wayne.

Charles Kinsey was returned to his Auburn home Tuesday in the Kinsey ambulance, from the Lutheran hospital, where he has been for several weeks. He is slightly improved but very nervous. Mrs. Mayola Kinsey is spending a few days in the Kinsey home.

VOL. L. (50 Years) (In The St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, SEPT. 19, 1935 NUMBER 38

BURIAL AT SPENCERVILLE THURSDAY

Word of the death of Keith Smith, of Evanston, Ill., came Wednesday morning to DuWayne Kinsey and he is preparing to meet the body and friends at Garrett, Thursday at 2:22, and they will go to Spencerville cemetery, where services will be conducted by Rev. B. H. Franklin of the M. E. Church, Garrett.

Keith was an instructor in Northwestern University and will be remembered as the son of Mrs. Caroline Smith, who was a sister of Mrs. Mollie Sanders, and they were accustomed to visiting St. Joe each summer while Mrs. Sanders lived.

Prof. Smith, who was about fifty years of age, became suddenly ill last Thursday at his home in Evanston, and was taken to the sanitarium, where he died.

Gerald Kinsey, of Chicago, telephoned their plans, and will accompany the funeral party.

Relatives here are Mrs. M. C. Blue, Violet Chapman, Ole Braybrook, Chas. Kinsey, Mable Quinn, of Fort Wayne, and Chas. and Wallace Kinsey, of Harlan.

SAFETY MEETING FOR SCHOOL BUS DRIVERS

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 18.—County school superintendents, school officials and school bus drivers have been invited to attend a series of safety meetings, which will be held in each of the ninety-two counties of the state this month, according to the announcement made today by Donald F. Stiver, superintendent of the department.

The meeting tentatively sheduled for DeKalb county will be held in Auburn, Sept. 19, at 10:00 A. M., in charge of State Policeman K. E. Lewis.

These meetings are a phase of the state wide safety drive now under way by the state police department and will cover proper handling and driving of school busses on state highways. Mr. Stiver stated that state police would make an inspection of school busses and bus equipment, both as to drivers and busses, as provided under the 1935 act, at a later date.

MAY RE-ENLIST

Notice has been received at the office of the DeKalb county relief administration in the court house that the limit of time that may be served in the CCC has been increased from thirteen months to twenty months and nineteen days. Those who have already served thirteen months may enroll again if still able to meet the other eligibility requirements.

TO OBSERVE CONSTITUTION WEEK

"The United States In The Bible" will be the subject of the message Friday evening, 7:00 P. M. Standard Time) at the St. Joe M. P. Church by Rev. Wm. D. Koehnlein. The public is urged to attend.

"A Nation the size of ours, occupying the position of leadership that it maintains in twentieth century civilization, is not likely to have been ignored in the mind of God or overlooked in the testimony of the prophets," stated Rev. Koehnlein.

"There are several plain references to the United States in the Scriptures. Will United States according to Scripture ever be conquered?" Come and bring your neighbors with you.

VALLEY TEAM WINS THE FINAL GAME

The St. Joe Valley Semi-Pros won the closing game of a very successful season here Sunday, defeating the Dickerhoof team of Edgerton, Ohio, by the score of 6-5, in an overtime, ten-inning game.

St. Joe pushed over the winning run in the last half of the tenth, when after Stewart, who had tripled, was out at home on Kinsey's infield roller, Kinsey stole second, went to third on an infield out, and scored the deciding run when Dickerhoof let go a high, outside pitch that the catcher failed to handle.

The game was fast and cleanly played thru out, with both teams coming up with brilliant plays in the field to cut off promising rallies by the opposition. The hitting for St. Joe was well divided, practically every member getting at least one solid blow in, and the scoring was well scattered among the various players.

This game having closed the season for the Semi-Pros, we wish to thank those who have contributed in any way to the success of the team and the loyal fans, who showed their appreciation of a winning team by coming out in goodly numbers for the home games.

Now that the baseball season has come to a close, we are happy to announce that plans are under way to place a fast basketball team in the field to represent this section in the popular outdoor pastime. Later we will have something definite to announce concerning these plans, and you can be sure that the team that represents St. Joe will come up to the standard of the basketball teams of the surrounding territory, and also of those which St. Joe has presented in past years.

Each person enrolling will be able to choose two subjects. Classes only in the evening.

COMMERCIAL SALES BREAK ALL RECORDS

A new all-time record for truck sales in a single month was set by Chevrolet in August. There were 21,776 trucks delivered in the United States in August. The best previous August was in 1928, when the total was 20,641. Last year, 16,748 trucks were delivered in August, so that the record just achieved is more than 30 per cent improvement over the corresponding month in 1934.

Sales of these commercial vehicles were a most important factor in the spectacular sales record which Chevrolet dealers established in August, during which month they delivered 99,018 units for a new all-time August record. Increase in truck volume is doubly gratifying because in addition to returning profits it forecasts improved business for the future.

Youthful Detail on This House Frock

PATTERN 9373

Instead of spending an hour at the Beauty Parlor next time you feel the need of rejuvenation, try pattern 9373 and an hour at the sewing machine!—the results will be much more lasting because you'll always look young when you slip into this practical little frock with its feminine, flattering details. Scallops agree with everyone, and when accented with bright buttons they're more than agreeable. See the sketch herewith and you'll realize why we say "spend an hour at the machine!" Make it of gay printed cotton and, if you like—bind each scallop with bias tape for a gay morning frock—choose solid color shantung if you would have it for a run-about.

Pattern 9373 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2¾ yards 36 inch fabric. Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth St., New York, N. Y.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE MERRY LITTLE BREEZES HELP LIGHTFOOT

COULD you have seen the hunter with the terrible gun and Lightfoot the Deer that morning on which the hunting season opened you might have thought that Lightfoot was hunting the hunter instead of the hunter hunting Lightfoot. You see, Lightfoot was behind the hunter so as to keep track of him. As long as he knew just where the hunter was he felt reasonably safe.

The Merry Little Breezes are the best friends that Lightfoot has. They always bring to him all the different scents they find as they wander through the Green Forest. And Lightfoot's delicate nose is so wonderful that he can take these scents, even though they be very faint, and tell just who or what has made them. So, though he makes the best possible use of his big ears and his beautiful eyes, he trusts more to his nose to warn him of danger. For this reason during the hunting season when he moves about he moves in the direction from which the Merry Little Breezes may be blowing. He knows that they will bring to him warning of any danger which may lie in that direction.

Now the hunter with the terrible gun who was looking for Lightfoot knew all this, for he was wise in the ways of Lightfoot and of the other little people of the Green Forest. When he had entered the Green Forest that morning he had first of all made sure of the direction from which the Merry Little Breezes were coming. Then he had begun to hunt in that direction, knowing that his scent would be carried behind him. It is more than likely that he would have reached the hiding place of Lightfoot the Deer before the latter would have known that he was in the Green Forest had it not been for Sammy Jay's warning.

When he reached the tangle of fallen trees behind which Lightfoot had been hiding he worked around it slowly and with the greatest care, holding his terrible gun ready for use instantly should Lightfoot leap out. Presently he found Lightfoot's footprints in the soft ground and studying them he knew that Lightfoot had known of his coming.

"It was that confounded Jay," muttered the hunter. "Lightfoot heard him and knew what it meant. I know what he has done. He has circled round so as to get behind me and get my scent. It is a clever trick, a very clever trick, but two can play at that game. I'll just try that little trick myself."

So the hunter in his turn made a wide circle back and presently there was none of the dreaded man-smell among the scents which the Merry Little Breezes brought to Lightfoot. Lightfoot had lost track of the hunter.

Water Plants as Food

The pond lily has tuberous underground stems several feet in length which are rich in starch. In fact, the moose, largest of all North American mammals, is known to feed on these stems of the pond lily and other aquatic plants. The cattail and swamp grasses also have stems and roots of sufficient size to serve as food for an elephant. Here then was the food for this extinct race of curious beasts, which ranged across the deserts of Asia and North America.

To Wash Walls

For best results, wash your walls in this way, provided they have a good oil-paint finish: Use three cloths. Wring first one as dry as possible from light soap suds. The second one, which you will use for rinsing, wring from clear water. The third, have dry for wiping immediately each small portion washed. Use an up-and-down motion.

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have lost all my money and am broke. A fortune teller told me that when the soles of my shoes wear out, I will be on my feet again. Do you believe it?

Yours truly,
CLAIRE VOYANT.

Answer: Well, I have to.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Can you tell me how it is that so many men are bald headed?

Yours truly,
DAN DRUFF.

Answer: Men lose half their hair worrying if their sweetheart will marry them. After they are married they pull out the other half worrying how to get a divorce.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I see where they were recently playing Hamlet in evening clothes. I am trying to modernize Uncle Tom's Cabin. Can you offer any suggestions?

Truly yours,
I. NOEL OTT.

Answer: When the bloodhounds chase Eliza, have her do the Charleston on each cake of ice.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I owned a horse but had no hay for the horse to eat. I met a man who had a load of hay and I traded him the horse for the hay. Now I have no horse to eat the hay. What can I do?

ANN VILL.

Answer: Find the man you traded with and ask him if he'd be kind enough to lend you the horse to eat the hay.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

There is a man living next door to me who is very lazy. In fact he lets his wife support him by taking in washing. Shouldn't he be ashamed to let his wife support him in that way?

Sincerely,
ALEC. TRICKIRON.

Answer: I wouldn't blame the husband so much, if I were you. Maybe his wife is ignorant and can't earn a living any other way.

ON LABOR DAY

By ANNE CAMPBELL

ONE never knows the satisfying taste
Of bread until he earns it . . . Better still
To plow the stubborn earth, to plant the waste
And carry the threshed wheat down to the mill.
Bread that one gains by sweat is better than
The proffered loaf . . . The gift of luxury
Will never sing into the heart of man
As will his triumph over poverty.

Once the soiled hands of Labor were not held
In high repute, but now our daily prayer
Is not for gifts of bread . . . Our pleas have welled
From weary hearts that have too much to bear.
But with new courage for the bitter toil,
We pray to earn our bread by honest toil.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

SECRET OF CUSTARDS

CUSTARDS are such good desserts for children and the aged as well as for those who have weakened digestion. The secret of a good custard is in the cooking.

Steamed Cup Custard.

Beat two eggs lightly until the whites and yolks are well mixed, add three tablespoons of sugar, a bit of salt and a generous grating of nutmeg. When the sugar is well dissolved add a pint of good milk, stir and mix well and pour into three custard cups if large—four if small. Set in a pan of hot water and put on to steam. Do not let the water stand too deep in the pan so that in boiling it will roll into the cups. Watch carefully after the boiling begins; test with a clean knife thrust down the center of the custard. When the knife comes out clean remove the cups at once from the hot water and chill before serving. For variety in flavor—melt a few tablespoons of sugar in a smooth frying pan and pour this caramel into the bottom of the cups before adding the custard. When cooked they may be turned out and the caramel will form a brown sauce over the custard.

Meringue of Rice.

Put a cup of rice to cook in a pint of boiling water. When the water has evaporated add a pint of milk, a tablespoon of butter, the grated rind of a lemon and four well-beaten egg yolks. Butter a pudding dish and pour in the mixture, adding a little salt. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff, add a tablespoon of lemon juice and half a cup of sugar. Spread over the pudding and bake until brown.

Puffed Rice Pralines.

Heat until crisp three cups of puffed rice, stirring often to keep from scorching. Boil two cups of brown sugar with one-half cup of water, one tablespoon of vinegar, one tablespoon of butter, until the mixture makes a soft ball in cold water. Add a pinch of soda and salt and add the rice. Pour into pans well buttered and allow to harden.

Death to Poisonous Black Widow Spider

One of the most poisonous insects which troubles mankind is the Black Widow spider. While this insect is fairly easily identified by the hourglass marking on the under side, oftentimes people have been bitten by it before they have had time to discover its dangerous character. The best plan is to regard all spiders with suspicion, and to destroy them as soon as they are discovered.

A reliable insect spray, containing an ample quantity of Pyrethrins, a product derived from Pyrethrum flowers, is not only sure death to spiders, including the dread Black Widow, but kills flies, mosquitoes and other insect pests.

In making up a product of this kind, it is important that ample Pyrethrins be included to give a complete killing effect. Unless sufficient Pyrethrins are contained in the mixture insects may be stunned and rendered groggy for a time, but recover from the effects of the spray.

Gosh! If folks don't stop telling me spooky stories about graveyards I'll be afraid of even being buried in one.

Let's tell this one as fast as we can before my hands start shaking.

Question: "And now, Miss Perry, where were you on the night of February 21, 1928?"

Answer: "I was in a graveyard."

Question: "A graveyard! What were you doing in a graveyard at night?"

Answer: "The graveyard was near my home and by cutting through it I could save a mile on my walk from town. I had been attending a dance in town and had stayed later than I had permission to stay so I left the dance alone and in my hurry to get home entered the graveyard."

Question: "Did you continue through the graveyard?"

Answer: "No."

Question: "What did you see there that caused you to change your mind?"

Answer: "I saw a——"

Wait a minute! I object. We haven't any proof that Miss Perry saw a ghost, so let's just review the evidence for the Adventurers' club jury and let them judge.

Evelyn Entered a Graveyard With Open Mind.

The evidence I have here before me shows that Miss Perry entered the graveyard in a carefree manner. She was thinking of the good time she had had at the dance and not a thought of the supernatural passed through her romantic mind.

This state of mind is important. It leaves out the supposition that the young lady might have been "seeing things" because of an active imagination.

The night was a typical February one. A light snow lay on the ground and dark wintry clouds made the way difficult to see.

But Miss Perry was not bothered by that. She had taken this short cut through the grave-stones many times before and was completely familiar with it.

She had, on this night, according to her own testimony, traversed two-thirds of the graveyard and was approaching the farther gate when she saw something that caused her to stand transfixed with horror!

A Real Ghost Clanks Real Chains.

A white figure moved slowly toward her along the path to the gate!

The figure, Miss Perry says, was approaching her and as she stared terror-stricken, unable to scream because of a tremulous lump in her throat, she heard distinctly the slight metallic rustling of chains!

Miss Perry was now beside herself with horror. She saw that she could not reach the gate without passing close to the specter in her path.

She decided, therefore, to return the way she had come—even if it was a mile farther. But she was afraid to turn suddenly and run so she kept facing the Thing and backed slowly away.

At this point, boys and girls of the jury, you'd better take a deep breath.

You may think this is written flippantly but when you hear what happened next you'll understand how terribly serious it really was.

As Miss Perry walked blindly backward she tripped and fell right into an open grave!

I told you to take a deep breath! Well, now, take another one, and make it a good one, because the worst is yet to come.

You may even doubt that a young person could go through such an experience and keep her reason, but one did, and it's true. All right, have you got your breath? Then listen.

Miss Perry was not alone in that open grave!

As she fell, a cold hand closed on her wrist!

Zowie! The dead in that graveyard are still talking about the scream the young lady let out and, if they could have seen her, they would have been even more amazed.

She wrenched loose from that hand and jumped like a frightened ghost right out of the grave!

Unbelievable Story Has Plausible Ending.

Through the stones and out the gate toward home she went at break-neck speed and that long extra mile seemed only a few short steps—so fast did she travel! Her clothes were torn and muddy but she crept into bed and hid her head under the covers.

Not until the next afternoon did the shaken girl dare tell her weird story. And what do you suppose her father did? Why, the unfeeling man just roared with laughter!

You see, Evelyn Perry's father had heard another story that day which dovetailed perfectly with his daughter's.

Now that my heart is a little quiet I'll tell you the facts. Here they are, in order:

First: The town drunkard's white goat ran away after breaking his chain. (It was this goat—not a ghost—that Evelyn saw.)

Second: Said drunkard, while following his goat into the graveyard, fell into an open grave and was too stiff to climb out. He was found there the next morning.

Third: Evelyn fell into the same grave and aforesaid T. D.—like a drowning man grasping a straw—grabbed her wrist!

Well, these are the facts in the case, so you see it's all true after all. Evelyn doesn't say whether her hair turned white or not, but I know a certain portly Adventurer who would have gone green and stayed right in that grave! How about you?

Remarkable Swiss Clock an Ancient Attraction

The Clock Tower, a well known landmark in the Swiss capital, stands in what is the center of the city and dates back to the Fifteenth century. The clockwork was constructed in the Sixteenth century and proves a never-failing attraction for visitors and natives alike. From early morning until late at night, whenever the time approaches for the hour to strike, groups of people station themselves before this ancient tower, eagerly anticipating the moment when the intricate mechanism of the clock is set into play. This masterpiece of medieval clock-making functions in the following manner:

As often as the hour strikes, a troop of little bears goes round in a circle and a cock crows three times before and once after the chiming. A sitting man holding a staff in one hand and an hour-glass in the other counts the strikes by opening his mouth and smiting with his stick at every stroke of the clock. Another wooden mannikin rings two little bells when the hour is about to strike. In the belfry at the top of the tower are the bells and beside them stands a figure of the duke of Zahringen (the founder of the city) in armor, who announces the hours on the bells with a hammer.

Anemone

The delicate weed anemone is one of America's rarest and prettiest wild flowers. The quilt block of this name is one of the oldest known to quilt historians and one that is thoroughly American, since it is only recently that the anemone was cultivated in Europe. Early Virginia quilters seized upon the simplest flowers and reproduced them most successfully in their most famous quilts.

Old Fashioned Patchwork Quilts

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

From all indications quilt makers will be busy this winter making more quilts. Quilts are still very attractive for needle workers, and any suggestion on this work will be welcomed.

Patchwork Quilt making is much easier today than during Colonial days. Patches are more easily obtained. Diagrams and cutouts for patches and books of instruction are printed. All of these make the work easier and more quilts are being made.

Grandmother Clark's Book No. 20 on Patchwork Quilts contains 30 quilts with cutting diagram for patches, also several ways to assemble 12 and 18-inch quilt blocks.

This book contains information and diagrams for the quilts shown above and many other old designs. Send us 15 cents for this book No. 20 and receive it by mail.

Dynamite

In Fort Myers, Fla., O. J. Hall, fifty-one, superintendent of a light and power company, placed a stick of dynamite in his mouth and lighted the fuse. It blew his head to bits.

In Estherville, Iowa, Burt Bloom, sixty, retired farmer, placed dynamite in a rock bed, lighted a fuse and stood back. Nothing happened. Bloom waited. At last he cautiously approached the charge. As he bent over the dynamite exploded and killed him.

Shopping May Be Burden or Sport

Shopping has two aspects. One is of its tiresome element. The other is of its interesting element. It is wearisome to stand about and wait until busy salesmen have the chance to wait on you in your right turn. The walking from one store to another, and then through the shops, in search of the needed, or wanted, thing to accord with both preference and price the purse permits, the trying on of frocks, or being fitted to articles, if clothes must be bought, all these and many other of the activities of shopping are tiresome, indeed. Were it not for the pleasant reverse side of the consideration, stores would not be crowded, only dire necessity would tempt purchasers. Fortunately all shopping is not of this sort.

Window shopping is the feature that begins the pleasure, even before the shops are entered. Window dressers are paid well to arrange goods so that they will appeal to passers-by to enter. They may see what they want, or perhaps what they would like to have. These window displays are planned to lure persons into the shops, for comparatively few persons go through a store without buying something, however small. Windows, consequently, are worth looking into. It is a pleasure to do it.

If windows are fascinating, this is but the beginning of interest. Once the shops are entered, it is amazing how well and how invitingly the wares are displayed. Any woman who has gone through just one department, that carrying kitchenware for instance, will discover many articles, new ideas, or improvements of old ones, that makes her feel repaid for the exertion. The furniture department or the furniture store, the yard goods department with its handsome textiles, the dress shop, the lingerie shop, etc., each is a joy just to look at.

Shopping in large cities has both the tiresome and the pleasurable sides to the fullest degree. Shopping in smaller places is far less exhausting, and, when there are fine shops in that town or locality, then the enjoyable element prevails. As every normal person has more or less shopping to do, it is well, before starting out, to determine on one of two ways to shop. Either she should go with unseeing eyes straight to the department or shop where the wanted articles are to be found, and eliminate to the least possible degree the wearisome feature. Or she should be determined to make the trip as pleasant and as profitable as possible, with least exertion.

COLLECT FOR CLUB WOMEN

Keep us, O God, from pettiness; let us be large in thought, in word, in deed.
Let us be done with fault finding and put off self-seeking.
May we put away all pretense and meet each other face to face, without self-pity and without prejudice.
May we never be hasty in judgment and always generous.
Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straight forward and unafraid.
Let us take time for all things, make us grow calm, serene and gentle.
Grant that we may realize it is the little things that create difference; that in the big things of life we are as one.
And may we strive to touch and to know the great common woman's heart of us all, and O. Lord God, let us forget not to be kind.

—Mary Stewart.

CLUB SONG

(TUNE, AMERICA

Our native Club to thee
Club called the L. L. C.
Of thee we sing.
We number twenty-five,
Long may our Club survive
We'll ever work and strive
And to thee cling.

Our Club it is of thee
Dear Club of unity
Thy name we love.
We've set our standard high
We'll reach it by and by,
Long may we live to try
And thy virtues prove.

Our Club is wonderful,
We study to dispel
Our ignorance.
Our colors, red and green,
We love our Collect theme,
We're bound in love serene
The whole year through.

—Delora Curie.

ITEMS OF LOCAL INTEREST

Local view post cards are now available at News office. If you have visitors tell them where they can be found.

Mrs. Anna Bishop, of Detroit, Michigan, and Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Bediler, of Auburn, were recent guests of Miss Isa Krise.

Carl Pugsley and wife are now located in the Curie home west of the filling station. Carl is employed at the Widney orchard.

Violet May spent Sunday afternoon with Erna Huffman and on Monday they both attended the South Side Market Fair at Fort Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hart were over Tuesday night and Wednesday guests of relatives at Paulding, Ohio, and attended the Paulding fair.

In order to have sufficient quarters for the handling of their apple crop, a building 35x40 is now being constructed adjoining the barn at the Widney orchards on the north and west.

Miss Thelma Bachelor is reported improving slowly after a long illness, being able to get about the house and walk out of doors some. She is troubled with her heart at times.

Arthur Flynn, of Chicago, and Lee Thompson, of Kansas City, were week end guests at the Widney Orchards. On Sunday they all spent the day in the Ray Davis home at Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Trostel visited Mr. and Mrs. Byron Leas near Waterloo, Sunday afternoon. They all called on Little Miss Maxine Stonebraker near Corrunna, who is very ill with peritonitis.

Mrs. Ines Hadsell had a ram shot last week by some hunter. Hunters will again find it difficult to find places for hunting as many are now contemplating issuing "no hunting" signs. Permission must first be secured before hunting on any land.

The relief work has again started some of the boys go to Butler while others are working at Auburn. They reported that where local work is available they are advised to take it and report for relief work only when out of other employment.

Andy Rami, a traveler, who was taken ill some months ago at the Fred Draggoo home near Concord, and was taken to the Sanders hospital in Auburn, was released last week as improved and is now being cared for in the John Gablick home. He had no home and it fell to Concord township to furnish him care and support.

A chicken dinner, with biscuits, gravy, noodles, and all that goes with a dinner of this kind, was set before F. B. Leighty and wife Wednesday noon by our good friends, J. P. Buckingham and wife. The pleasure was all ours. With the anticipation and the realization of this fine meal, we can say that our burden of press day for The News has been greatly lightened, when we are able to think over the delightful noon hour spent in their home.

J. N. George and wife and F. B. Leighty and wife visited in the Rev. C. O. Johnson home at Dunkirk, Ind., Sunday, where they were returned for the second year to serve the M. P. Church. They are comfortably situated with but the one church to serve and that a very willing and consecrated congregation. The church and school are growing, so that they now are considering expanding in order that the church school may more adequately handle its increasing numbers. The church has a large group of children and young people.

Mystery surrounds the manner in which Joe Arnold, of Cambridge City, a former St. Joe resident met death. His body was found Tuesday noon along a highway between Connersville and Cambridge City and according to an inquest by the coroner of Wayne county he had been dead about three days. No one appears to know the cause. He had been walking along the highway at the time, to all appearances. Mr. Arnold was a janitor in the court house before leaving Auburn five years ago to reside in Cambridge City. He was employed in the Auburn Automobile plant at Connersville. Mr. Arnold was a brother to Mrs. Sherman Rickett of west of St. Joe.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Buckingham, of Marion, Ohio, were week end guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Buckingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Koch and Mrs. Joe Koch were entertained to a fish supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Koch in Fort Wayne, Monday evening.

Ida Woodcox, by Attorney Dan M. Link, Saturday filed an application in the DeKalb circuit court for the appointment of a guardian for Ella Gill of St. Joe, because of old age and infirmities.

The Indiana Congress of Parents and Teachers of the twelfth district will meet in their annual conference (school of instruction) at the Calvary U. B. Church, on the corner of East Jefferson and Harman Streets, in Fort Wayne, September 26. A local attendance is desired.

Chas. Bassett arrived home from Fort Wayne last week and he is feeling much improved. Readers will remember that Charles and his father had spent the past year in Arkansas, where they were engaging in fishing and clam digging. During August they were both taken seriously ill with a malaria and Clifford Bassett died on August 16, and Chas. was seriously ill for several weeks. He came to Fort Wayne as soon as able to leave the hospital, and is now home again, preparing to take work here. Everyone is pleased to see him.

EXECUTIVE MEETING OF THE LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies' Literary Club of St. Joe held its first regular meeting of the new year Wednesday night, at the home of Mrs. Cora Curie, president, where a social evening was enjoyed and old acquaintances renewed after the summer vacation. The committee in charge was the executive staff, composed of Avis Staman, Mary Gerdes, Violet May, Inez Hadsell, Lora Leighty, Belle Woodcox, and Cora Curie.

The evening's program was launched with a short talk by the new president, after which the retiring president, Belle Woodcox, took charge of a most impressive ceremony. In a charming and fitting speech, Mrs. Woodcox honored the Mesdames Delora Curie, Loretta Hull and Jennie Sechler for their steady and conscientious service in club work for the past fifteen years or more, and presented each with a certificate emeritus and a beautiful corsage of flowers.

The ladies responded aptly and appreciatively, with the feeling that it was a graduation ceremany for them, and that they intended to be as active as possible in the work even from box seats.

Mrs. Jennie Sechler was unable to attend, and her diploma and flowers were taken to her by a special committee.

The member emeritus is one new to the Literary Club, and these three ladies are first to attain the distinction of being retired with this honor. Provision for such membership was made by an amendment added to the constitution last summer. Qualifications are sixty-five years of age and fifteen years of active service in the club.

Special entertainment for the evening was furnished by Miss Eunice Shilling, who presented two groups of well selected readings. Her impersonations, cleverly done with appropriate costume, added a delightful and successful surprise.

Mrs. Bruce Gerdes, newly elected secretary, read the constitution and the minutes of the summer meeting. Responses to the roll gave a personal note to the program. Each member told of her most interesting experience since the last meeting, and the experiences indeed ranged from thrilling to amusing.

Mrs. Delora Curie professed her most interesting moment to be this particular event when she was made a member emeritus. Then she read some club poetry used forty years ago. Mrs. Curie has the honor of being the only living charter member who has been consecutively active in the Literary Club.

During the evening the ladies of the club greeted Mrs. Thelma Baker, who was recently reinstated to active membership, and Mrs. Katherine Haller, a new member. Mrs. Rev. Koehnlein was voted into membership.

At the close of the evening the hostesses served dainty refreshments. Guests for the affair included Mrs. John Shilling and daughter, Eunice, and Mrs. Rev. Koehnlein.

The Kinsey truck has been painted and newly lettered.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Wineland, of Elkhart, were among the Sunday visitors at the home of Mrs. Mahlon, Baker in Auburn.

Hal Stone is better today after suffering the past week severely with gland trouble infection of the left arm, caused by blood poison, due to a scratch on his hand. He has had a hard fight to stop the spread.

2:15 "Program of Preacher's Aid Society," Rev. E. Loyd Ferris, Elwood.
2:45 "Our World-Wide Vision," Mrs. Cecil Likens, Kendallville.
3:05 "Our District," Mrs. Harvey Parks, New Haven.
3:15 Dismissal.

The district conference is open to the general public and the public is invited to attend.

COBURN'S CORNERS CHURCH OF CHRIST HOMECOMING

Sunday, October the sixth will be the annual Homecoming of the Church of Christ at Coburn's Corners. A full day's program has been arranged.

Sunday School will open as usual at 9:30 C. S. T. followed immediately by a short program from the Sunday School. The morning devotions will be in charge of one of the young men of the church followed by The Communion. Basket dinner will be served in the basement. The afternoon program will commence at 1:30. The young people will present a short pageant, "Greater Than Solomon." The speaker of the afternoon will be J. A. Brown, who is known and loved not only at Coburn's Corners but also in many of the churches of the county having ministered to several of them.

A complete program will be printed next week. Plan to come and spend the day with us.

AMERCAN LEGION POST ORGANIZED AT ST. JOE

The World War Veterans of the south-eastern part of DeKalb County have organized a Legion Post at St. Joe to be known as the Walter Whitehurst Post. The Post is named in honor of Walter Whitehurst, of Newville, the only soldier of this community to die in action during the war.

A goodly number of the former service men have already joined and by the time the membership campaign is completed a good, active membership will have been enrolled. The American Legion is and has been ever since its founding the leading force for Americanization in America and the local Post hopes to do its share.

At a later date the officers of the Post will be installed and the Post will be duly accepted into the organization in a Fourth District Rally to be held at St. Joe.

ORDERS SUSPENDING PHEASANT SEASON GO TO EVERY TOWNSHIP

Formal notices of the suspension of the open season on pheasants in Indiana this year, will be posted in each township in the state during the present week, Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation, announced today. Posting of these notices is in accordance with provisions of the Discretionary Act, conferring such authority on the Department of Conservation.

Decision of the conservation authorities to suspend the open season on pheasants until such a time as these game birds were plentiful and larger areas were sufficiently stocked to prevent serious inroads on their pheasant population, has met with state wide approval. A survey conducted by conservation authorities showed many scattered areas in which the pheasant stock was sufficient for an open season.

PLANNING FOR THE ST. JOE VALLEY PARADE

A number of interested Valley people met at the Town Hall on Tuesday evening and made their final plans for securing entrants for the parade at Auburn Fair on Saturday, October 5.

The parade starts at 10 o'clock and all Valley entrants will be there at 9 o'clock to begin forming.

Already 10 individuals have agreed to enter the parade with one or more vehicles. It will, of course, be impossible to contact all the Valley producers, so the invitation is made broad for everyone to enter.

The Valley spirit can only be maintained with a united cooperation in this parade and we believe that our people will do their best to equal their efforts of last year and even much better. Very much interest is being shown already and possibly by next issue we can say definitely what will take place on Saturday.

YOUNG PEOPLE GO TO KENDALLVILLE

The Kendallville District Young People's Group conference and rally will be held at the Kendallville Church Friday evening, Sept. 27th at 6 o'clock, standard time. A large crowd of young people from over the district is expected to attend. The prgram will consist of a banquet speaker, pep songs, and matters of general interest to the young people. The last meeting of the district was held in the High School Gym in St. Joe.

DON'T BURN UP THE GAME

All grouse, pheasants, quail, geese, most ducks and many of our most useful song birds build their nests on the ground. Some species begin nesting before the snow has vanished. All the upland game birds and many varieties of ducks are preparing their nests and laying their eggs before the frost is out of the ground. Many species are incubating their eggs before corn planting time.

The evil practice of spring burning of fields occurs at the height of these ground nesting activities and results in a tremendous destruction of bird life.

No fields or marsh areas should ever be burned except in cases of necessity for vegetation is needed not only for nesting cover, but also for food and shelter.

If such burning must be done, do it in autumn, but never in the spring.

Jeanne Hatch spent the week end with her brother, Jimmy, at St. Joe.

Willard Hurni has sold 212 bushels of peaches the past week from his store.

Frock That Puts Accent on Youth

PATTERN 9343

Always a good beginning, this youthful tailored collar on the simple yoke makes a demure foil for the dainty softness of the bodice. The prettiness of the chic frock is furthered with a graceful flare sleeve—or it may puff, if you prefer. The results are so satisfying you'll find it real fun to run up this little dress in a dainty printed silk or cotton. A soft handkerchief linen would be stunning, too, and so easy to tub. Buttons and belt can pick up a color in the print and make a striking accent.

Pattern 9343 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3½ yards 39-inch fabric. Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to the Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York, N. Y.

WHAT PLAY CAN DO

PLAY is one of the four builders of life. The other three are work, love and religion. Nations have risen like the Greeks and fallen like the Romans through their play. Play has not been given serious enough attention by modern parents, as a factor in their children's physical, intellectual and moral development. Play time has been considered a tag end usually—"run away and play" when there is nothing else to do.

Everything that functions has equal capacities for both good and evil. Food, medicine, exercise and even religion, with the fanatic can change virtue to vice. Progress of the race comes from directing all these functions properly into positive channels. When this does not occur the individual and nation alike may be retarded in its growth for betterment, or still worse may be actually irrevocably harmed. Parents probably seldom think of play and its effects on their children in such serious philosophical terms, and yet play and recreational hours have the power to make or mar young life.

Play should be part of an educationally planned program for children. Each child should be studied by the parents and helped to succeed in at least one kind of sport, or should be furthered in one hobby, whether it be making some kind of toy or collecting insects or stones. These creative loves in children should be hunted out and fostered by parents. This gives to children early in life a sense of achievement which later may grow into a habit of success.

Good sportsmanship not only implies physical skill, but also mental and moral skill, as it takes courage to be a good loser and sometimes more courage to play fair.

Planned play as an educational program will take time, effort and sacrifice on the parents' part, but in the end it brings the largest dividend of character. Parents are sometimes unwilling to give as much of their own pleasure time to play with their children, as such a play program demands. As for instance, a movie manager of one of the large theaters in Chicago told me recently, that in his opinion, the movies have become the modern nurse maids for the children of the rich and poor alike. Cars from Cadillacs to "Tin Lizzies" drive up and disgorge their small occupants each night regardless of the sex picture shown, and the parents drive nonchalantly away. In two or three hours these carefree parents return to take their children home. Some parents a few years hence will wonder why their children are different from their neighbors' children.

GOLD FOR GOD

THERE lived one time a very rich king; his wealth increased so rapidly that he began to think in terms of gold. One evening as he sat alone, long after his little daughter's good-night kiss, he felt a tiny tapping on his foot. Rubbing his eyes in the subdued light to be convinced he was not dreaming, he heard a tiny voice which said, "Thou art great, O King, and rich; my wand and I can give thee thy one heart's desire. Speak now, ere I go," the fairy said.

"Give me gold," excitedly spoke the king. "Give me the golden touch." "This will be done. At dawn tomorrow thy touch will turn each thing to gold and thou, oh Midas, will become earth's richest king." The fairy circled her tiny wand three times above her head and disappeared. "Can this be true?" thought the king.

The sun was high when the king awoke. "It is true, it is true!" he cried joyfully as he touched his kingly robes into beautiful golden fabrics. As he sat before his morning meal, his heart grew proud and haughty. But, alas, his food, too, turned to gold. "What matters that," he said—"I am the richest king on earth today!" Just then his little daughter laughing and singing, sprang into his arms for her accustomed morning kiss. He held her happy little form close to his heart. But just one moment and there lay in his strong arms, his daughter lifeless, body turned to gold! "Oh, God," he cried in anguish, "what have I done, what have I done! It is not gold I need, but God," he sobbed, falling to his knees. "Help thou me this day, the most wretched man in all my kingdom wide." Another gentle tapping on his sandal brought again the fairy to his side. "Take my gold away and give me God," he cried.

"It shall be done," the fairy said, "But tell me first, O King, wherein real riches lie." From out the depths of his agonized heart the king replied. "In the heart of man, in my fatherhood in my people, in my honor and service to God and man. My goal has been gold, henceforth it shall be God."

Has America like King Midas been seeking gold instead of God? One statesman recently said of her, she is in "the Twentieth century scientifically, but in the Sixteenth, spiritually." America need seek the abundant life through no other path, for His is "the Way, the Truth, and the Light."

Hello, Everybody!

"Nearly the Last Round-Up"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

AVAST there, mates! I mean "Hold 'em, cowboy!"

Gosh, I don't know what kind of lingo a sea-cowboy uses, but I know the kind I would have used if I'd been aboard the cattleboat, S. S. Winefredian, in mid-Atlantic, that wild March night with Peter Mullan and 700 head of plunging, terrified cattle.

Pete came so close to going on the Last Round-Up or to Davy Jones' locker that it wasn't funny. Incidentally the S. S. Winefredian has since slipped quietly down the stays to Davy Jones' locker, so maybe she was just playing a rehearsal for Pete.

Cattleboats, Pete says, are not exactly floating palaces. In fact, they're generally made-over tubs.

The Winefredian was no exception to the rule. Her under-decks were just a mass of cattle stalls with a narrow passage—just wide enough to allow a man to pass—running the length of the ship.

Pete, two other greenhorn cattlemen and an underforeman were nursemaids to the steers on the ship, and this isn't such a bad way to earn a trip to Europe—unless you hit a bad storm. And then it's awful.

Old Ship Groans Under Waves.

The storm hit the cattleboat when she was out in the middle of the Atlantic ocean, and the old ship groaned, plunged and rolled on her beam ends at an alarming angle.

The crowded cattle—seasick and mad with terror—shrieked and kicked at every pitch of the ship, and Pete says it was plain bedlam between decks.

But, storm or no storm, the helpless beasts had to be taken care of and Pete and his shipmates were right down among them doing the best they could.

Monster waves plunged in through the open upper-deck hatch and the men and cattle swished around knee-deep in sea water.

Now if you've never been on a cattleboat you are probably wondering why they didn't close the hatch and keep the water out, but the trouble with that is that it also keeps the air out, and if you've ever been on one of those loaded beef ferries you know what that means.

The stench and heat from the tightly packed steers would kill a man with a gas-mask on!

Giant Wave Threatens Death to All.

So the hatch was left open and the water poured in and the good ship wallowed in the high seas like a ham-strung calf at a rodeo.

It was four o'clock in the morning, Pete says, when the crisis came. The men were ladling out fresh water to the frantic cattle when a monster wave slapped the weary side of the ship and Pete thought it was all over.

Pete was standing in the narrow passage-way with his mates when that wave struck. The ship keeled over to a 45-degree angle and flung the cattle in heaps to the port side of their stalls.

She paused there as though trying to decide whether or not to turn bottom side up, and then righted herself and dipped almost as far on the starboard side!

Wham! Those tons of living steaks shot-the-shoots across their stalls and hit the detaining bars with a deafening crash.

Some of the stalls held, but some of them didn't, and when Pete got to his feet and looked around him he forgot all about the storm, for coming right at him along the narrow passage-way WAS CERTAIN DEATH!

Now a stampede on dry land is about as dangerous a thing as you can find, and I for one don't want any part of it, but a stampede at sea—in a storm—is really something to write home about.

Pete says it was a sight he will never forget. The maddened steers—insane with terror—came splashing along the passage-way at amazing speed—tongues hanging out of their open mouths and eyes starting out of their heads.

Men and Cattle Caught in Death-Trap.

One of the leaders fell, but the rest never paused as they trampled him to death in the foam beneath their pounding hoofs.

Pete let out a yell and tried to get out of the way, but the foreman was in front of him, and the foreman was a fat man and his slow-moving bulk completely filled the passage-way.

Pete says he felt like a rat in a trap—those few seconds that he stood there unable to move one way or the other.

The foreman was an old-timer and when he hurdled over a barrier into a stall he saved not only his own life but Pete's, because as he jumped he felt the hot breath of the leading steer on his cheek.

Well, sir, jumping into one of those narrow stalls with a frantic steer for a cabin mate was like jumping from the frying pan into the fire.

Every time the boat rocked the steer would go careening dangerously around—smashing against one side and then the other—with Pete doing his best to keep his feet.

One false step on that slippery floor and this story would never have been told.

Luckily for Pete and his shipmates not as many of the cattle had escaped as it seemed.

Sea Was Singing "Last Round-Up."

The bellowing procession down the passage-way was only about ten strong, and when it passed the men all jumped back out of the stalls and waded after their charges.

That chase rambled all over the ship, and if you want some excitement, Pete says, try rounding up cattle on a ship at sea.

Every time the cowboys would corner one of the critters, why that floating pasture would turn on end and men and cattle would slide kicking into the scuppers. Those big waves, Pete says, sure seemed to be singing "The Last Round-Up" for him.

But the storm finally eased up and the cattle were rounded up and led back to their repaired stalls with no serious casualties to the men.

There were a lot of broken legs, however, among the steers.

The animals were destroyed to end their suffering, and as the good ship steadied on her path they were buried at sea.

And so, boys and girls, ends the saga.

Odors of Many Blossoms Are Far From Agreeable

Throughout the ages, scents have exercised a fascination over mankind. In far-off days, says Tit-Bits Magazine, incense and frankincense were used in the temples of most religious orders. On a granite tablet at the base of the Sphinx there is still to be seen a representation of King Thothmes IV burning incense as an offering. It was the custom to prescribe certain perfumes in cases of illness. The smell of white violets was said to be good for the digestion, while a perfume made from vine leaves was supposed to keep the mind clear.

Scent-making methods today do not differ greatly from those employed long before history was written. Everyday flowers still form the basis of all really good scents, although synthetic preparations are sometimes used in cheap varieties. There are 4,300 varieties of flowers grown in Europe, of which only 400 possess any agreeable smell. More than 3,500 types of blooms are disagreeable in odor.

Golden Phantoms

FASCINATING TALES OF LOST MINES

©W.N.U. By Editha L. Watson

THE MISSING MUSKETEER

WHEN a London syndicate employed Herbert Hoover, then an engineer, to hunt for a lost mine, it was a rather good sign that there really must have been such a mine.

Its name was the Musketeer. It lay—and surely it still lies—in the Fraser river region on the border between the United States and Canada. It was found by Jacob Henshaw, an old prospector, and his partner.

The two men had lived with the Indians for several years. Perhaps they first heard of the mine from these humble friends—or perhaps they stumbled onto it as they followed after the golden phantom. But they found it rich enough to stay their steps. They built a little cabin, and went to work.

In September, 1873, Henshaw came into Vancouver—then a small place just beginning to grow—with a donkey which carried two sacks of ore. He took this to an assayer, and presently word spread about that here was something which assayed the richest north of the Comstock lode.

There would have been a gold rush in no time, had anyone known where to rush. But Henshaw, who could neither read nor write, had a deep-rooted suspicion of his fellow-men. He felt that no good would come of it if he gave out even the faintest of clues. He knew that he should file his claim—but that would place on record the exact location of his find. In the meantime, men bothered him continually, asking all sorts of questions, watching every move he made.

To get rid of them he invented various stories, hoping that they would believe his tales and go away. But somehow there lacked the ring of truth, and no one bothered to take his stories seriously.

Henshaw was being driven to desperation. At last he figured that if he could go back and consult with his partner, they could work out some way of filing the claim in secret. But here was another problem, to get away without detection.

How he managed it, no one knew, but somehow Henshaw "turned up missing" one day. Everyone thought that he had eluded his annoyers, and that after a while he would return to Vancouver with more ore, or else that his parner would show up, to try what he could do in Henshaw's stead.

Weeks went by; months; years. Neither of the miners came. No one heard of them. No one knew what had happened. Everyone guessed: perhaps Henshaw had been caught in a blizzard; perhaps his partner had been killed by Indians; perhaps—

And perhaps some day the Musketeer will be discovered again. So far it has managed to stay a mystery. Men have hunted for it, certainly, time and time again. Those who have faith in spirits have often been told by these unseen influences just where to search—but something must be wrong, for they seek but never find.

RED MEN'S GOLD

THREE brothers named Rollestone went into the Uintah basin in the '60s, in search of gold. They found more than they were looking for in a rich silver and gold deposit—silver sulphide, sprinkled liberally with coarse gold.

Although the Indians were a constant menace, the brothers got out of the place with three mule loads of ore, which they took to Salt Lake City and sold for $20,000.

The Indians had warned them, in no uncertain terms, never to return to the mine, but three years later they took five mules and went back for more of the ore. They mined enough to load their animals, and were about ready to go back to civilization again, when the Indians appeared once more. Exactly what happened no one has been able to say, but the Indian version of the affair was that the brothers fell into the Duchesne river and the weight of the gold in their pockets held them under and caused them to drown. The mules simply disappeared.

After this the place remained unmolested for years. At last a relative of the Rollestones went out to hunt for it. But cloudbursts had obliterated all signs of the diggings.

This may have been the same mine that Caleb Rhoads found. He said, at least, that it was in the Uintah reservation and that he had an understanding with the Utes so that he would be unmolested if he kept the place a secret. It is certain that men who tried to follow him were fired on by unseen persons.

Rhoads made a trip into the unknown region every year for 18 years; then he died. A man named Hartzell married the widow in hopes, it may be, of inheriting the mine, but she did not know the location—and although Hartzell hunted for a long time for the mysterious mine he never succeeded in locating it.

Sparrow Hawk's Diet

The sparrow hawk's diet consists of less than one-fifth of 1 per cent of game birds and no poultry. More than 50 per cent of its diet is composed of insects and 25.4 per cent of mice and other small mammals.

FIND MUMMIFIED DOGS

The remains of two mummified dogs were found in northeastern Arizona recently, buried beside the bodies of ancient residents of that country. It is said that this civilization flourished between 2500 and 1500 B. C., which would indicate that dogs as pets or companions were known at that time. One of the dogs resembled a yellow-haired collie and the other was black and white, but considerably smaller. They were in a perfect state of preservation.

check their diets for this all-important, 3-purpose vitamin

● Many are nervous, poor in appetite, system out of order, because their daily diets lack enough of the precious Vitamin B for keeping fit.

Few things keep them back like a lack of this protective food element.

So give everyone Quaker Oats every morning. Because in addition to its generous supply of Vitamin B for keeping fit, it furnishes food-energy, muscle and body-building ingredients. For about ½c per dish.

Start serving it tomorrow for a 2-weeks test. Quaker Oats has a wholesome, nut-like, luscious appeal to the appetite. Flavory, surpassingly good. All grocers supply it.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, swollen limbs; feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay! Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

DOAN'S PILLS

As to College Wardrobe, Here's What

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A LOGICAL way to assemble the all important "back-to-school" wardrobe is to divide it into two types—the "musts" which are absolutely necessary, and the "would like to haves," which make clothes a thrill and a venture.

In the "musts" smart shirtwaist frocks in the new silk weaves should alternate with sweater and skirt outfits. We speak particularly of "new silk weaves" because that's what they really are—"new." Handsome, practical, dependable-wearing silks which have the "look" of wool, are the last word in smart fabrics. Don't overlook, especially, the new spun silks which have a rustic-looking rough-surfaced texture. These noil silks, as they are sometimes called, are practically crushless, and though they look like wool they are much cooler for early fall days and steam-heated class rooms. They launder nicely, too.

The girl seated in the little inset picture is off to class in a strictly tailored frock of plaid noil silk which, to look at, you would think was wool. The dress buttons down the back and has cuffs and Peter Pan collar of pique.

The shirtwaist dress is full of bright ideas this fall. Round yokes, jeweled or fancy metal buttons, fur Peter Pan collars glorify the new silk models. Skirts have silk pleats; box pleats placed just above the knee all around are new and girlish looking.

The two-piece type of dress vies with one-piece styles. Perfect for campus wear is a two-piece frock as pictured to the left in the illustration. It is made of one of the chic tie-silks which are having such a pronounced vogue. This one is wine color with green dots. The blouse has flap pockets and the skirt buttons all the way down the front.

Prom-trotting daughters can really let themselves "go" on the subject of clothes. They can be glamorous and exciting and sophisticated and gloriously young, too, in satin, silk velvet or one of the new metal silks. This year's evening frocks go in for molded bodices and waistlines, wide belts or sashes and fullness spreading gently from the waist. Bodices are tricky. Sometimes they are merely a straight band of the fabric held up by camisole or "shoestring" straps. Again they are built up to cover the front of the throat in elaborately twisted, draped and winged treatments, with low-back decolletage.

Girls adore black. Let your daughter wear black in gleaming slipper satin or black velvet and then tell her to have her beau send her flowers for her hair instead of her corsage if she wants to be swish. Daughter will be very grand in a black slipper prom frock as pictured. It has the high-in-front winglike effect above mentioned, contrasting the low-cut decolletage at the back. The shiny belt is allover-stitched, which is the latest wrinkle for belts.

If your young hopeful is going to a co-ed college, she will want a few soft dressmaker-type afternoon dresses. For tea dancing nothing could be more ideal than a black silk-satin ensemble. Don't merely ask the salesman for "satin." For satisfaction in wear and appearance specify silk satin and insist upon it. The dress should have a cowl neck—that means glittering clips to daughter. The jacket should be cut on the classic lines of her sports jacket, with patch pockets and notched lapels. The skirt should come just below the break of the calf. Worn with one of the new baby bonnets of black silk velvet with ostrich plume tips, daughter will be devastating to her "date."

BUYER DELUDED OFTEN BY COLOR TEST FOR FRUIT

The housewife who bends over a fruit stall and picks brightly colored oranges in preference to the paler type is wasting her time, for the color of the fruit has no bearing on the nutritive content, reports a bulletin from the Department of Agriculture. There was a time, the writer remarks, when a farmer who produced a crop of pale oranges could not expect to receive as high a price for his yield as his neighbor whose fruit grew in brilliantly colored skins, but scientists took the situation in hand and developed a plan to outwit mother nature's apparent lack of interest in the pale fruit. The treatment, which is a highly technical process, embraces the use of ethylene gas.

The action of ethylene gas on pale fruit tinged with an unripe green shade is best described as a forcing or hastening of the process which changes tree foliage from green to brown in autumn. The passing of time kills greenery in most cases, and the process used on fruit is simply a speeding up of the change.

Ethylene has no effect whatever on the acid-sugar content which is the scientific test of ripeness in fruit. The Department of Agriculture recognizes the ethylene gas process as a legitimate trade practice for mature fruit. On immature fruit, its use is strictly prohibited, however.

HITCH-HIKING FLY SPREADS DISEASE

The common house fly is a hitch-hiker. However, the fly doesn't bother to jerk a thumb and ask a ride; it flies into moving autos or even trains or airplanes without permission and often travels hundreds of miles before leaving its chosen vehicle.

This habit of flies traveling great distances on other power than their own has made local fly eradication campaigns less effective than the campaigners hoped. Cases have been found where a fly carried disease germs on its legs and body for miles and infected people in the community where it settled. No previous cases of the disease were in existence in the new community and health authorities could find no other source of infection than flies.

Repeated warnings of physicians and health officials have apparently failed to instill a proper fear of the house fly in the average mind. However, a more thorough knowledge of the habits of a fly would increase the respect for this tiny insect, according to authorities on the subject.

Decent cleanliness in any home requires protection against the menace of flies. Whether a fly is home-born or a hitch-hiking visitor, he is a danger. Fortunately, an effective fly-killing program can be conducted in any home by the use of a reliable fly spray containing an ample quantity of Pyrethrins, a product derived from Pyrethrum flowers, which is death to flies, when sprayed in a fine mist.

EVENING ENSEMBLE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Velvet for evening, velvet for daytime, velvet, velvet, velvet! All signs point to a velvet season. The evening ensemble pictured is of deep red stiff velvet—a Chanel model. Luxurious marten collar and cuffs add to the glory of this superb creation. Note the button fastening of the gown. Many of the Paris dresses show a down-the-front button closing. Often on sheer or lightweight materials dozens upon dozens of tiny buttons are placed as close as possible and the effect is utterly feminine and charming.

FASHION SIGNALS GREEN FOR AUTUMN

Yellow, the sun's own color, is usually a summer favorite. This year has been no exception; yellow with brown, yellow with black and yellow with green is yellow still. This brings to mind that green is being wagered on as the follow-up color.

When utterly satiated with the idea of current fashions it's a relief to be able to peer into the future. On a recent peek behind the scenes the discovery was made that green looked good to many manufacturers whose fall lines are in preparation. And why not? It's one of the Renaissance colors and a change from the inevitable browns, reds and rust. Each autumn brings a change also from the blues in which we have been steeped all summer.

There are a number of likely looking green woolen dresses ready to make their shop window debuts. Some of them are sure to win applause. It won't be long now before shopping throngs will flatten their noses against the plate glass front which shields the cloth-clad mannequin from the street.

Green, White Jade Having Tremendous Vogue in Paris

Green and white jade is having a tremendous vogue of popularity in Paris now. One-third of every jewelry shop window is devoted to fascinating carved necklaces, pins, clips and earrings, while fat rounded bracelets of uncarved jade are matched by round jade rings. Knick-knacks of carved jade such as small, fat Buddhas on jet stands, ugly little monkeys and awkward elephants are made in green and white jade and vary in size from tiny miniatures to statuettes of 8 or 10 inches in height.

Fall Fabrics

Materials used by smart designers for evening clothes include velvet, lame, metal fabrics, "cellophane" mixtures, brocades and lace.

"I've discovered Calumet's big, new 10¢ can!"

"No more 'by-guess-and-by-golly' baking in this house now!"

says Mrs. Owen H. Fleming, 1235 Judson Ave., Evanston, Ill.

Mrs. Fleming was one of the first women to get the big, new 10c can of Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder.

"No need for any woman to take chances with her baking now," she says. "That new 10c can of Calumet certainly means that the very best can be bought at a bargain."

Ask your grocer to show you the new, bigger 10c Calumet can!

A SIMPLE TWIST . . . and the Easy-Off Top lifts off. No spilling, no broken finger-nails!

WHY DOES CALUMET give such astonishing "baking luck?" Why is Calumet different from other baking powders? Because Calumet combines two distinct leavening actions. A quick one for the mixing bowl. A slower one for the oven . . . And Calumet's famous double-action is so perfectly balanced and controlled that it produces perfect leavening—every time.

All Calumet prices are lower! Calumet is now selling at the lowest prices in its history. The Full-Pound Can now sells regularly for only 25¢. And if you want a smaller size—get the new, big 10¢ can—a lot of good baking for a dime—with Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder.

Mrs. Earl Smith, who has been quite ill at her home for several weeks, was taken to the Sanders hospital for treatment, and reports are that she is some better.

Ernest Hollabaugh, of Logansport, Ind., accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. C. H. Weaver and husband, of Washington, D. C., were here Saturday visiting Mr. W. L. Hollabaugh. They all took dinner in the Ed Pflaumer home in honor of the 93rd birthday of Mr. Hollabaugh on Sunday.

Mrs. Hazel Steward took dinner Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Ada Berry, and aunt, Mrs. Mary Fetz, and in the afternoon they motored to Rome City and visited with their uncle George Berry and son, Dick. They found him enjoying fairly good health, due to the fact that he is in his 86th year.

Winter is ahead and individuals as well as relief agencies are wondering what is to be done about it. The fashion column comes to the relief of the perplexed: "Do not let the brisk breezes find you without a smartly tailored coat. We recommend warm-toned camel's hair which fairly rolls you in its soft elegance."

Improvement of more than 1900 miles of Indiana state highways—a part of the 1935 program—had been completed before September 1, James D. Adams, chairman of the State Highway Commission, announced today. The work included new construction in addition to surface treatment and oiling of approximately 1,800 miles of existing stone and gravelsurfaced highways.

It is being circulated about that the state intends to let a contract soon for the paving of state road 8 from the Olinger corner a mile north of Garrett to Avilla. It is understood the state also intends to improve No. 8 from the intersection north of Avilla on road 3 west to Albion. The state's decision on a route north from Corunna to the Steuben county line is expected to be announced soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Gerdes had as Sunday guests, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Winger and family of near Marion, Ind.

The suit of Rolla R. Wiers against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co. on a contract has been dismissed in the DeKalb circuit court.

The Ex-Service Men's Band, of Hicksville, will broadcast a thirty minutes program over WOWO at 9:00 P. M. Thursday night, Sept. 26. A pleasant half-hour is assured the listeners. The boys are real players.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Condrey and daughter, of Chicago, were first of the week guests in the O. E. Ginther home. Mrs. Ginther returned with them Sunday after a two weeks visit in Chicago.

A plane headed for Kansas City was forced down on the Sherd Plattner farm north of town, Tuesday. Besides the pilot were two ladies and a child. A safe landing was made and they were soon on their way west.

A fine sample basket of yellow popcorn was presented to The News by W. M. Strouse this week. In about two weeks we will be eating new popcorn. Thanks.

David Furnish, of Detroit, is here making plans for moving to the Furnish farm on the County Line this fall or as soon as their renter vacates. The Furnish family will be welcome back to Indiana after an absence of 25 years.

Bids on planting materials to be used in seventeen roadside improvement projects along Indiana state highways, will be received by the State Highway Commission on Friday, Sept. 27. Four types of planting materials are sought: shade trees, small trees, shrubs and vines. Bids are asked on approximately four thousand five hundred shade trees, twelve hundred small trees and over two thousand shrubs and vines, the amount of the bids to include delivery of the specified materials to the site where the planting is to be made.

Mrs. Chas. Cochran entertained a number of relatives at dinner and supper Sunday in honor of Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Ericson and little son, Richard Carl, of Miami, Florida, who have been visiting at their home for several days. Mrs. Ericson is a niece of Mrs. Cochran, whom she had not seen for several years. Those present included besides the honor guests and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Monroe and daughter, Martha, of West Unity, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. ROY BOWSER GIVEN DIVORCE WEDNESDAY

Testifying that his wife nagged him, neglected their home and finally abandoned him, Roy Ivan Bowser, Wenesday secured a divorce in the DeKalb circuit court from Mable Catherine Bowser.

Married July 10, 1923, the couple separated last June 1. The plaintiff was awarded the custody of a son, Jack Stewart Bowser, 4. The defendant was given the custody of a daughter, Jo Anne, aged twenty-one months. She also is to have the custody of another daughter, April Dawn, 8, during the school year, while at vacation time the child is to be with her father. The plaintiff will pay his former wife $10 a month for the maintenance of the two children.

Capt. W. D. Stump is attorney for the plaintiff, while Carl A. Osterman appeared for the defendant.

SPENCERVILLE MAN ASKING DIVORCE

Her husband told her he no longer loved her and that she should leave with the children and get a divorce, Jessie Irene Dwyer of Spencerville, relates in filing a divorce complaint in the DeKalb circuit court Tuesday against Walter Dwyer.

The plaintiff also alleges that her husband went out nights without telling her his whereabouts.

The marriage of the couple took place July 12, 1931, and the separation last June 26. The children are James LeRoy, 3, and Ronald Eugene, 2.

The plaintiff wants the court to require her husband to pay her $10 a week for support pending the trial of the case and also attorney's fees. She is represented by J. Oscar Clem and Mountz & Mountz.

L. L. C. ENTERTAINED AT ANGOLA

The Ladies' Literary Club of St. Joe was entertained last Wednesday evening in Angola, Indiana, by Miss Janalyce Rouls, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Rouls on South Superior Street.

The regularly scheduled program was preceded by a potluck dinner with covers laid for twenty-three guests. Place cards made of acorns, and festive center pieces of leaves carried out a theme of autumn decoration.

After a most delicious meal Mrs. Cora Curie presided for an interesting evening of study, conducting the lesson on "The American and How He Lives," with a round table discussion. Mrs. Parlia Hull described quite vividly modern Germany and its trends, assisted by Mrs. Belle Woodcox, who summed up the aims of the Nazi government. Each member answered to roll call to an individual assignment for response.

A special feature of the evening's program was an informal talk by Mrs. Sam Brooks of Angola, who spoke of German women and their customs. In discussing her travels abroad she told of stopping at a seclusive watering house in Germany where she was seated at the next table to a group which included, among other European royalty the wife of the Ex-Kaiser. Mrs. Brooks had her menu-card of that particular place, which everyone found very interesting. Mrs. Brooks' talk seemed only too short, yet it brought the evening to a close.

The Messrs. Bruce Gerdes, Merritt Sechler, and Fred Leighty, who accompanied the women as drivers, were entertained by S. D. Rouls, father of the hostess.

Besides Mrs. Brooks, Mrs. Vernon Woodcox, formerly Miss Alma Lawson of St. Joe, was a special guest for the evening.

Do not delay your visit for your winter apples too long as we will begin to move some of the varieties into cold storage and will not know how many to keep for our retail customers. If you have an order in you will be notified when to come for them.

We want to give you just what you want and can satisfy you if you give us the chance. If you do not have any apples for the kids or for your own pie or sauce this winter do not blame us.

You know there are a lot of poor apples this year because of the weather preventing proper care of them even if the grower wished to do so. We worked twenty-five men three weeks pulling off the bad ones when they were small so we have only the good ones now.

ECONOMY PLUS CHIC IN TAILORED FROCK

PATTERN 9605

A fashionable turn-out will witness so important a merger as this, for Economy and Chic are names of nation-wide importance. Allied in this softest of woolen frocks, with monotone rabbit's hair stripe is a crisp squarish collar of pique, which follows the horizontal line of combined yoke and sleeves. You, who make and wear it, will rejoice in the easy-to-make features, wearable qualities, and surprising economy of this all-occasion frock. Inverted skirt pleats back and front allow for action. Also smart in synthetic crepe.

Pattern 9605 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 2⅝ yards 54 inch fabric and ⅝ yard 36 inch contrasting. Complete diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 232 West Eighteenth St., New York, N. Y.

SAVED!

After the last of the dinner guests had taken their departure, the lady of the house rang for the cook.

"Nora," she began, "I found a rubber glove in the soup tonight."

"Oh, thank you, mum!" was the grateful reply, "I thought I'd lost it."

A Friendly Suggestion

"I want to speak to you as one of the plain people."

"Don't do it," replied Farmer Corntossel. "You want to realize that times have changed and a prosperous agriculturist looks on himself as somebody rather special."

THE MASTER TOUCH

THE chemist estimates the material worth of man about 98 cents—possibly as low as 68 cents since the depression. Some one has said man has enough iron in him to make a few nails, lead enough for a few pencil points and calcium perhaps to whitewash a fence. Man who has flown higher than the clouds, sailed under the sea and called light from Arcturus to light the Century of Progress, is worth in material inventory but 98 cents!

It is said the English artist Turner when showing a lady visitor through his studio, paused before one of his inimitable seascapes, which he had recently finished, to catch her first words of praise. He was surprised to have her ask indifferently: "How much is that one worth?" "A thousand dollars," he said. "What, a thousand dollars for just paint and canvas?" she exclaimed. "If you wish just paint and canvas, madame," Turner responded, "I can sell them to you much cheaper than that by the tube and foot from my supply room." What made the difference in price between paint and picture? Just one thing; the artist had put his soul into the sunset reflection on the sea! The supply room paint had not as yet received the master touch.

When man grows to his full stature in culture and character he reflects God, his maker, and when this happens, he, too, becomes, as did the artist's picture reflecting its creator—a matchless creation, beyond price. Man has received the master touch in all creation but ofttimes he fails to measure up to it. Instead of being worth even 98 cents he becomes a heavy liability to society, for it costs the government somewhere near $300 to keep a criminal in jail one year, and only $150, half the sum, to keep a boy in school one year.

Not long ago I read of a judge who was asked to dedicate a new Y. M. C. A. building, costing around $1,000,000. While speaking he said, "If this building is instrumental in saving the character of one boy it will justify the expense." This statement was questioned by one of the judge's friends the next day as being too extravagant. "Not so," responded the judge, "if that boy were yours or mine!"

Like the artist's canvas, the undeveloped years of childhood need the Master Touch in training for culture and character, as each young life is worth not 98 cents but a million to the individual, the home and the country. This should be given by parents before the age of six if fairness be done to the child.

IF

IF, IF, if, one of the smallest words in the English language, is the greatest stumbling block known to man. Some people have built their lives around this principle of "if" and as a consequence they have been uncertain, full of doubt and wavering perplexity, through the years. Doubt is lack of faith. It is a form of worry. Worry is the arch-enemy of mankind. Repeatedly have I heard people of unsettled mind say: "If I were only sure; if I had thus and thus; if I were you; if I could only begin again; if I hadn't done that; if I were young again; if such a thing hadn't happened!"

Usually following an "if" comes its close sequel—regrets. For as the poet has expressed it—"Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these, it might have been." All these "ifs" piled high are not as effective as one definitely planned course of action taken with a courageous step, a brave risk as to the outcome and a spirit of a good loser, come what may. If one has done his best, angels can do no more. This is where faith begins, for if our faith is worth anything at all it should strengthen our belief in the promise that "all things work together for good to those who trust in God."

The "if" philosophy has unfitted potential leaders for public service lives that were meant to be strong builders of the nation, all because they could not hurdle some insignificant but tremendous "if" in their lives.

During the depression, in many homes, some of these "if" nightmares have really come to pass. But, strange to say, we find we are all living, loving and laughing in the same old way in spite of the fact that the bank went under carrying our life's savings and perhaps our next winter's coat. Something has come to us in return, perhaps it is more gratitude in our hearts for what is really left us than we felt before our loss.

When we live on a material plane these "ifs" bother us most like mosquitoes. If we step to a higher intellectual plane they come less often into our minds—when we even touch the spiritual side of life, they come not at all into our lives, the "ifs" are gone, for we attain a tranquility that passeth human understanding. It is akin to God.

Eradicate the "if" philosophy from your life today, whether you are fifteen years old or fifty years young and substitute in its place, the peace giving assurance of: "I trust in God and all is well."

Floyd Gibbons ADVENTURERS' CLUB Hello, Everybody!

"Quicker Than the Eye"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

A LITTLE slow music, and up with the curtain. Hang onto your watches, boys and girls, and don't go lending anybody your silk hat unless you want it turned into a rabbit's nest, for here comes Halton, the Magician—Nat Halton with his deck of fifty-two individually trained cards, to give us a demonstration of the wonders that—

Wait a minute—what's that, Nat? I'm sorry, boys and girls, it's my mistake. Nat isn't here to give a demonstration. He's here to tell us a story—the story of a jam he got into about thirty years ago, in the town of El Oro, way down on the other side of the Mexican border—a jam that not even a magician could get out of without a little luck on the side.

Nat was visiting in Mexico City when a friend invited him out to the little mining town of El Oro to entertain some of the boys who worked in the mines. He went to El Oro, put up at a little hotel in the town, and that night put on a show that was attended by a good portion of the town's inhabitants. The show was run off in a hall in the center of the town. Nat had a good, appreciative audience and he enjoyed every minute of the two hours during which he entertained them with his card tricks and feats of sleight-of-hand.

When the show was over he went back to the hotel and went to bed. But the next morning, at 5:30, he was awakened by a loud knock on the door. When he opened it, a tough looking gent pushed his way into the room and told Nat to get dressed.

Nat didn't feel like getting dressed at 5:30 in the morning, and he told the stranger so. But the stranger pulled out a gun and stuck it in Nat's ribs, and Nat started getting into his clothes. When Nat asked the bird what he wanted of him, the stranger said: "You know." And that was every word Nat could get out of him.

Nat Is Credited With Pretty Good Magic.

After repeated questioning, though, the man finally told Nat what the trouble was. A deed to a mining claim had disappeared from his pocket the night before, and he thought Nat had stolen it. And when Nat pointed out that he hadn't even been near him all during the performance, the fellow said: "You wouldn't have to go near a man to take things out of his pocket. Didn't you make cards pass from one fellow's pocket to another?"

Well, sir, Nat was flattered that anybody should take his sleight-of-hand tricks that seriously, but it didn't help the situation any. "I noticed," he says, "that the man's eyes were dilated and bloodshot. Was he a dope fiend? If he was, I was in real danger. The one thing in my favor was that he gave me credit for more power than I possessed. It was my one advantage, so I used it to stall for time. I told him we would go out and find his deed, thinking if we got out on the street I could find some help."

But out on the street, there wasn't any help in sight. Nobody gets up early in Mexico, and at that hour there wasn't a soul awake. The man, with his gun in Nat's back, took him to a small cabin on the edge of the town. There was a pile of papers on the floor in the center of the front room, and a woman was peeping through a nearly closed door. The woman's eyes, too, were dilated and bloodshot—also the eyes of a drug fiend.

Nat was still stalling for time, and his eye fell on the papers piled in the center of the floor. Realizing it would take the man ten or fifteen minutes to go through those papers, he pointed to them dramatically, and said: "Look, there, and you will find your deed."

A Magician Gets His Wits A-Working.

The man objected. He said he had just looked through those papers, and that's how they happened to be there. But Nat repeated his command, and the man began his search.

"I knew then," says Nat, "that I must plan my escape quickly, and do it in some way that would be acceptable to my captor. Force wouldn't get me anywhere, for the woman in the back room had come out now, and was holding a shotgun pointed at me. Imagine my surprise when the man suddenly rose from the floor holding a document and said: 'Here it is,' and then added: 'But you put it back.'"

Nat pointed out that he hadn't been anywhere near that pile of papers on the floor, but the man reminded him again that anyone who could make cards pass from one man's pocket to another wouldn't have to. However, by this time he was disposed to be more friendly, and invited Nat to have a drink with him. Then after a few whispered words with the woman, he asked Nat if he could tell him what number would win the capital prize in the Mexican National lottery that month.

Well, sir, by this time Nat was beginning to get mad at the high-handed way this bird had treated him. "Here," he says, "was my chance to get even. So I told him that I couldn't give him the exact number, but that number thirteen was going to be very lucky in the next drawing, and advised him to buy all the tickets he could find that had thirteen in the serial number. I have never seen that man from that day to this, but I hope he sold his guns to buy lottery tickets, so that if, by any chance, we should meet again, he won't have any firearms left to greet me with."

Well, that's the first time I ever heard of a lottery doing any good for humanity. But you can do the world a lot of good by sending me that story of yours, Johnny. And don't forget to be here tomorrow, when we draw the story of Rita May Murphy, of New York city, in the big, all-time lottery of adventure.

Rabies, Unlike Running Fits, Not Sudden Attack

The rabid dog is not generally convulsed. Rabies, unlike running fits, does not come on suddenly, but rather gradually develops over a period of a week or ten days of abnormal actions which finally evolve into either the furious or dumb form of the disease, advises a writer in the Los Angeles Times.

Rabies sets in with a variety of peculiar manifestations, in brief, those expressive of anxiety mingled with fear. The dog appears in a troubled state of mind and usually appeals for sympathy. He is prone to become more affectionate and to excessively lap the hands of his attendants. He wants more petting to appease his distress. Restlessness is a marked early symptom as is also the fact that he is easily startled. He continually paces about, except for an occasional pause. Refusing food, he shows a marked depraved appetite for inedible substances such as sticks and stones, or he may chew his bedding.

It is often noted that a rabid dog will continually lap woodwork about the house, such as floors and furniture. Thirst is decidedly increased, but the dog does not swallow very much of the water. This is because he cannot swallow as his throat is becoming paralyzed, a condition which will shortly be followed by paralysis of the jaw, causing it to drop and the mouth to remain open.

"d" Abbreviation for "Penny"

The sign "d" in English money is the abbreviation for "penny." It stood originally for the Latin denarius, a coin of value equivalent to the Anglo-Saxon penny. Medieval money changers continued its use as an abbreviation for the penny and gave it a fixed place in English custom. A penny is approximately equal in value to 2 cents. The half penny is therefore about the equivalent of our cent.

FASCINATING TALES OF LOST MINES

INTO THIN AIR

WHAT became of the buckskin bags full of gold that George A. Jackson buried in the corner of his cabin?

Jackson has been dead for many years, and if anyone else who knows the secret is alive, he has kept his knowledge carefully hidden.

Jackson himself was a man of prominence. It was he who, on December 31, 1858, went up Clear Creek alone (his two companions had gone after a band of elk), found hot springs, camped at the place and a few days later panned gold in a tin cup and made the first gold discovery of importance in Colorado. The place was the present town of Idaho Springs, where mines still operate and gold is still to be taken from the ground.

It was this man who went to Middle park in 1867 to prospect for more of the precious metal. He and his companion on the trip found gold in Buffalo park, but they also found unfriendly Indians and little or no water, so they drifted north along the top of the range. Four or five miles from Rabbit Ear peak they found gold again in a little creek, and by traveling upstream they came to a bar that held considerable value.

This was what they wanted. After doing some work at the location they went to Georgetown and organized a party of ten men, returning to the bar in the spring of 1868.

Now they built a cabin and a corral, for ten men needed something in the way of comfort and convenience if they were to devote their time to taking out gold. They worked pretty steadily, but Jackson took a little time out for whimsy, and carved his name on a tree at the corner of the cabin.

After a while $10,000 in gold dust, packed in buckskin bags, lay hidden below the earth in a corner of the cabin. That meant a thousand dollars apiece—not very much as fortunes went, but still a neat start.

And then Colorow and a hundred lively Utes decided to discourage the white men. They dropped in on an unfriendly call, and when they departed three men lay dead and the rest did not drag their feet as they headed for Georgetown. In fact, the seven who survived, with the exception of Jackson, seemed to feel that the peaceful East held a lure that surpassed that of the golden phantom, and shortly they left Colorado.

Jackson, being somewhat accustomed to such turns of luck, had no idea of leaving the gold in that deserted cabin. He told a friend about the cache, and the two started out to get it, but heavy snow turned them back and they were forced to delay the trip. The next spring, they planned, would see them at the cabin, digging up the gold. But that winter Jackson pulled his gun barrel-first out of a wagon, and the accidental discharge of the weapon caused his death.

Fortunately, his friend knew the location of the cabin. He shared the knowledge with another man, and spring saw them up in the wild country where Jackson had found the gold. On Walton creek, near where the old Steamboat road crossed, they found the cabin and the corral. They also found the tree with Jackson's name carved on it. This was the place, without a doubt.

And so they dug in the corner of the cabin, among the rubbish which remained as souvenirs of the ten energetic miners. They dug in the other corners, too, and in the corral, and outside, and by the tree.

Gold does not vanish into thin air—unless some one aids it in its disappearing act. But who had been there since Colorow and his band?

Just another mystery to add to the many strange happenings which make dramatic the history of the West!

GOLD TO THROW AWAY

FOUR men stood on the heights above Salt river, and looked down, a thousand feet below them, to where the water flowed between the bluffs. One began picking up stones and throwing them into the space below. The larger they were, the better splash they made.

A good-sized rock lay near the edge of the chasm. What a splash it would make! The playful one tried to push it, but it was too heavy, and one of his friends went to his aid. At last they dislodged it, and it rolled over the brink; it fell down into the river below, and the mighty splash it made caused the water to dash madly away from it for a moment. Then it disappeared, lost forever below the ripples in that inaccessible canyon.

As it had rolled and slid toward the edge of the bluff, the rock looked yellow. As it hurtled downward the sun caught it, and it gleamed. The four men watched it until it vanished. Then they turned toward each other. Every face wore a number of tangled emotions.

They had learned, too late, that the "rock" was gold!

Value Set on Man's Life

By early Teutonic custom or law, wergild was the money equivalent of a man's life. It was a price which, when paid to the relatives of a man murdered or killed accidentally, absolved the culprit.

Find Out

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it — in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

Accent Is on Costume Suit for Fall

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SO MANY women do not think they can wear suits, because, unless one be slim and svelte, a blouse and skirt are apt to prove a problem at the waistline. To such "cheerio" is the message for designers of vision and inventive genius have taken the matter to heart and have come to the rescue of despairing ones. They have surmounted the difficulty via that which they are pleased to title in fashion's vocabulary as the "costume suit." Needless to say the new costume suits carry the promise of a foremost vogue, autumn and winter through, seeing that they are proving as effective as a strict reducing diet in slenderizing the figure.

The idea is to top a slim frock of some one or other of the incomparably handsome wools or wools-and-silk, such as are glorifying the current fabric showings, with a varied length coat to match. The fact that intriguing fur trimmings are playing such an important role in present-day styling adds to the glamor and prestige of these voguish costumes.

In tuning the theme of these slenderizing suit effects to the individuality of the wearer, much depends upon the coat to "turn the trick." The accompanying illustration of a trio of molds recently shown by style creators of the Chicago wholesale market district demonstrate the point better than words can tell.

If your ambition is to arrive at slimness and height, the costume to the left in the picture will help you make dreams come true. The slightly full-below-the-elbow sleeves, with just the right length to the coat, combined with fitted bodice lines and slender hipline trend to accentuate a slenderized silhouette. The simple gored lines of the skirt also trends to the straight slim look.

The bright metal touch which is so dramatically enhancing the new fashions is present in the double collar and pointed vestee front. The collar is of black lynx as is the banding at the bottom of the coat.

For the tall stately woman or the slim older woman who aspires to added slimness, an answer to her longings is given in the smart restaurant costume as pictured in the center of the group. It reflects influence of the Italian renaissance especially in the grandiose royal purple velvet which fashions it. The rich and beautiful reds, purples and greens of early Italian painters are the featured kind this season. Fitted basque with snug little waistline, trimly fitting hips and flaring-below-the-knees skirt are all flattering. The glaringly new details, however, are a youthful peplum flare of the jacket together with full sleeves that are fitted in at the wrist to be very flattering to the hands. The pillow muff which she carries is also significant, for it has been quite some time since this type of muff was in fashion. The fur is a shaded krimmer and its manner of bordering the edges emphasizes a high-style trimming note.

From Russia comes the suggestion for the fitted town suit shown to the right. It registers as very "young" for its flared tunic line a la Russe makes it youthful. It is flattering to either the tall or short slim figure, depending upon the length of the coat. Mahogany rusk a new rich tone not too reddish, is the color of the cloth. Tailored bandings of beige krimmer make this costume suit look all the more Russian. The frock underneath, however, is quite American with its simple tailored lines and amusing pockets and novel wooden buttons.

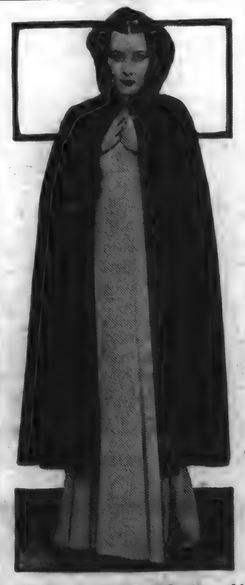
WITH A HOOD

By CHERIE NICHOLAS



Here's a youthful and ultra chic evening wrap. Hoods and head coverings are still going strong in the mode. This one is a red-riding hood type, and that Gladys Swarthout, of opera fame, has selected as part of her wardrobe of evening wraps. It is of brown velveteen and is worn over a powder blue silk sheer gown which has skirt fullness and the new tailored top. It would be handsome in black velvet—why not for your party wrap this winter?

PLEATS DOMINATE STYLES FOR FALL

They're taken a pleat in fashion this fall, and the results are both numerous and startling.

Pleats turn up at the most unexpected places in the new fall frocks, cropping out anywhere from skirt to neckline.

Pleated sleeves are among the newest wrinkles of the mode, these being large and loose in the new manner, drawn into a cuff at the wrist. They're effective in black chiffon, combined with a black crepe dinner gown.

Pleated blouses, in soft, sheer fabrics, are drawing ecstatic "ah's" and "oh's" from shoppers, who are buying them for wear with the new velvet cocktail suits.

Some of the newest evening gowns are all pleats, from neck to hem, done in soft, slinky fabrics that manage to outline the figure in a most seductive manner, keeping their classic lines as well.

Intriguing Styles in New Handbags for Fall Season

Bags are shown this season in new and intriguing leathers and combinations, such as frogback antelope (a pebbled suede), puffed and quilted calf, saddle leather, alligator, pigskin and ostrich, all often combined with patent leather.

Top handles are new and important. Bags are roomy and soft, with fewer rigid frames; square and oblong shapes are the most popular, and there are many new tricks in fasteners and monograms.

The Schiaparelli handbag, fastened with gilt padlock and key, is the type for the miser girl, guaranteed pickpocket proof. Metal rimmed keyholes also are used, as are metal buttonholes.

The "mad-money" bag, of suede, has an outside change purse trimmed with a small gold coin on a gilt chain.

Guard Against Fleas

Fleas will breed in carpets, cracks in the floor or any other suitable place where the eggs may drop. It takes only 17 days from the time an egg is laid to produce a flea in good biting condition. The insects are renowned in scientific circles as the carrier of many diseases. The dog flea sometimes carries eggs of a tapeworm, which when swallowed causes worms in dogs. Occasionally tapeworms in children are caused by dog fleas accidentally getting into the mouths of the children.

To guard against flea infestation of dwellings animal pets should be frequently dusted with any insect powder made from dried pyrethrum flowers. This is harmless to animals and human beings. If a house becomes infested the rugs, cracks in floor and other likely breeding places should be sprayed thoroughly with any of the liquid spray insecticides.

Storage Solves Problem of Surplus for Gardeners

Each year the average gardener has a surplus problem. His garden normally produces more vegetables during the summer than he and his family can consume.

This surplus—of little value in the summer—can be used during the winter in preparing a variety of tasty and wholesome dishes if the extra vegetables are properly stored in cellars, attics, or other suitable places. Storing of vegetables also lightens the annual canning work.

Beets, late cabbage, carrots, celery, onions, parsnips, potatoes, sweet potatoes, salsify, pumpkins, squash, and turnips may be stored in their natural condition. Beans of various kinds, including the limas, may be dried and stored.

A half-acre garden, according to horticulturists of the United States Department of Agriculture, will, if properly cared for, produce enough vegetables for year-around use by the average family.

Cellars containing a furnace usually are too warm and dry for storing root crops, but a room may be partitioned off in one corner or end of the cellar and temperature controlled by means of outside windows. Outdoor cellars may be built at a low cost.

Metal Deposits in Cave

Russian scientists who have examined the rocks in one of the world's largest caves in mountains of Turkestan report that they contain huge quantities of silver, lead and manganese.

NARRATIVE REPORT FOR MONTH OF SEPTEMBER

Preparations for the DeKalb County Free Fall Fair took up the major part of the County Agent's time in September. Activities included getting ribbons ready for various departments, obtaining suitable judges, passing out and receiving back entry blanks, conferring with heads of various departments.

Other activities carried on besides the above were as follows:

4-H Club Work: The three boys that represented DeKalb County in the State 4-H Judging Contest held during the Indiana State Fair were successful in placing in 31st position among a group of 67 teams participating. They were very much enthused over their experience of one week in the State 4-H Club Camp and the many interesting and educational exhibits they saw at the Fair. This was their first trip to the State Fair and was made possible only because of the appropriations made by the County toward 4-H Club work.

The two girls, Marcella Hoffelder and Raeburn McIntosh, who attended the State Fair Girls School enjoyed the two weeks school and have made several talks before various groups of people telling of their experience. These girls will always remember this school and the many valuable things that they learned.

Corn: A step forward was made in the Five-Acre Corn Club work in DeKalb County when an organization was formed. Ralph Stomm was elected president; Orlo Deetz, vice president and Floyd Dixon, secretary and treasurer. Two committees composed of Frank Schuster, Harold Wise, Floyd Dixon, A. J. Witt, Wm. Goings, Lester Boger and Harry Provines were appointed to choose the plots of the various members that the State Judge will check the latter part of October.

Forty farmers attended the low corn cutting and trash shield plowing demonstration held on the Maynard Fee farm Sept. 26th. Only favorable comments were heard on the results of the demonstration. Several farmers expressed their intentions of having the plow shields made for their plow.

Twenty interested farmers and vocational boys attended the two demonstrations held Tuesday, Sept. 24 by Dr. C. T. Gregory, Extension Pathologist on the farms of Wm. Goings and Orlo Deetz. More farmers should have attended one of these demonstrations for Dr. Gregory proved that the selection of seed corn is not only essential but requires more experience than the majority of people realize.

Triple A: Eleven wheat educational meetings were held the week of Sept. 23rd. These meetings covered the entire county, 164 farmers attended. The new Wheat Control Organization was formed and county officers were elected Friday, Sept. 27. Arthur Lautzenhiser, Franklin Twp. was elected president; Harry Kees, Concord, vice president; Clyde Hart, Spencer, secretary-treasurer. The two members of Allotment Committee were Orlo Deetz, Fairfield Twp. and Lester Casebere, Stafford Twp. The other directors of the association are Gerry Gump, Butler Twp.; Perry Gump, Keyser; Wilbur Miser, Richland; Frank Miller, Smithfield; James Husselman, Grant; Ira Williams, Union; Roy Prosser, Jackson; Mark Murphy, Newville; D. W. Carpenter, Wilmingotn and Clarence Hinkle, Troy. Sign-up meetings were scheduled for Concord township, October 10, at 8 A. M. at St. Joe Town Hall.

Spencer township, Oct. 11 at 8 A. M. at Spencerville bank.

Newville township, Oct. 10 at 8 A. M. at Mark Murphy's home.

Jackson township, Oct. 11 at 8 A. M. at Jackson Center.

John W. Kaellner, county scholal to Indiana University from St. Joe, was a guest of honor at a recent reception given on the campus by President W. L. Bryan and Dean David A. Rothrock of the university. In welcoming the 194 county scholars to the university, President Bryan characterized them as a group which it would be difficult to excel anywhere from the standpoint of scholarship. He pointed out that the county scholarship to Indiana University is worth just as much in money as most of the scholarships offered by private institutions of higher learning where a high tuition is charged.

EACH INDIANA RED CROSS DISTRICT TO HAVE CONFERENCE

A roll call conference for each of the nine Red Cross districts in Indiana is planned for the first two weeks in October, according to an announcement from national headquarters.

The first four of these conferences are announced as follows: Huntington, Monday, October 7; LaPorte, Tuesday, Oct. 8; Logansport and Lafayette, Wednesday, October 9.

Chairmen of these four districts will speak at the conferences. The district chairman for LaPorte, Wm. P. Gleason, of Gary; at Logansport, Mrs. Adelbert Flynn of Logansport; and at Lafayette Miss Hilda Bowen of Delhi. Mrs. Mary Feagles of Fort Wayne, a director of special activities for the Indiana Red Cross, will take part in the Huntington and LaPorte conferences; while Myron McCurry of Franklin will serve in the same capacity for the Logansport and Lafayette meetings.

Everett Dix, assistant manager of the Eastern area, will be the representative from national headquarters. He will conduct a roll call clinic during the forenoon session and will give an address at the luncheon meeting at noon. His talk at that time, "Devise and Carry On," will deal specifically with the Red Cross objective for this year, a campaign intended to enlist all Red Cross chapters in a campaign to cut down accidents on the highway, at home and on the farm.

The closing sessions of all these conferences will be devoted to practical discussions of roll call methods for this year. A feature of unusual interest will be the showing of the Red Cross film "The Greatest Mother." This film, planned to describe Red Cross activities in all departments, has proved to be popular in showings in theatres all over the United States this summer.

CONTROL OF CREDIT A BASIC QUESTION

Economist Describes Conflict Between Opposing Social Viewpoints on Government Bank.

Agitation for government banking is a phase of the conflict between our present "personal competitive enterprise system" in America and the "compulsory state collective security system" of several European States, Virgil Jordan, President National Industrial Conference Board, says in an article in a recent issue of "Banking" published by the American Bankers Association.

"They involve irreconcilable principles of human conduct and philosophy of life and the conflict between them is the key to the economic, social and political struggles of today," Mr. Jordan says.

The enterprise system of which "the development of the United States has been the unparalleled example, depends for its motive power of progress upon the inexhaustible reservoir of energy in individual desire for personal advancement in prosperity, but it guarantees nothing to the individual save freedom of opportunity," the article says in part.

The collectivist security system, he says, "places all emphasis upon the maintenance of a minimum standard of living for the mass without regard to the creative power of the individual, quite simply the security system involves the modern form of the philosophy of the slave society." He continues:

A Sign of the Times

"The many-sided movement toward governmental banking, deposit insurance and currency management is the most direct and decisive expression of the universal instinctive search for security which is the sign of the times. In America our so-called social security legislation is an important indication of the drift away from the enterprise system toward a collectivist security system with concentration of authority in a central Federal government.

"The nationalization of credit is crucial and indispensable for complete state control of the complex industrial and business structure of this country. The drive toward governament banking and monetary control is most determined because the relation of the state to credit goes to the root of the enterprise system. A collective security system is inconceivable without nationalization of credit. An enterprise system is inconceivable with it."

Under a collective security system, based on government banking the controls "lie solely in the hands of a few persons and depend upon their judgment, will or caprice," Mr. Jordan says, adding that it is they who must determine "upon the basis of some predetermined plan or upon pure political expediency of the moment, what lines of industry and even what individual enterprises shall have access to the credit reservoir." The state, he says, has the power of life and death over all enterprise that utilizes credit.

"Every government is an organ of party power and must respond to the will of the party that put it in power," the Jordan article says. "Under unchecked government operation it is an inescapable tendency of every currency to depreciate and for credit to expand. However much it may be in the interest of the nation, deflation is too dangerous politically for any government to undertake it deliberately.

"In the end government banking and currency management resolve themselves simply into the use of credit as a political instrument of power, and this instrument tends to be used in the long run for expropriation of the savings of the community."

THE FARM BUDGET

By DAN H. OTIS,
Agricultural Director, American Bankers Association

Inventories aid in the formation of a farm budget. Some banks, as well as the Farm Credit Administration, recommend outlining in advance the method of using production loans. Under this plan provision is made for monthly expenditures and funds are granted to the borrower in accordance with the budget plan. The budget helps to show how loans can be repaid.

D. H. OTIS

With the accumulated data from previous inventories and budgets, budget making becomes easier and more accurate and valuable. As one branch of the farming plant requires more expenditure, such as for new machinery, fencing, livestock, etc., it may be necessary to limit other branches in order to meet these pressing requirements.

The budget helps to formulate a financial program. It is of special importance in arranging to meet special or large expenditures. If the income and expenditures are carefully budgeted it prevents the spending of money needed for interest and taxes before the time of their payment arrives. It helps to provide a reserve.

The Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association feels that this type of work is so important that special emphasis has been placed upon the field of farm inventories, budgets and credit statements as one of its national projects for farm aid.

BANKS PLAN ADVERTISING

Substantial funds have been set aside from reserves of the American Bankers Association to finance the development by its Advertising Department of a service of informative newspaper advertisements setting forth in brief, popular language the methods and policies under which banks operate, their effective practices for protecting their depositors' funds, the services they render and the various ways in which they cooperate with business in their own communities in fostering sound recovery and progress.

Some 350 banks are now using this material and it is available at a moderate price for all of the members in the association who care to use it in bringing about better public understanding in their own communities regarding banking and its services. It has materially stimulated the use of newspaper advertising among banks.

Many favorable comments have been expressed regarding the informative and constructive character of its messages. It is issued in two sizes: the larger size is 3 columns wide by 10 inches deep, but in some instances subscribing banks have expanded this to occupy full pages in their local papers in order to obtain a more emphatic effect. Four pieces of advertising copy are supplied each month in this service.

BANKERS SUPPORT ACTIVE AGRICULTURAL COMMISSION

The Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association is promoting widely among bankers the practice of aiding their farm customers in installing on their farms better financial, accounting and operating methods. It also cooperates in the endeavors of the state bankers' associations along similar lines.

The commission has published a book on "Making Farm Investments Safe," presenting a compendium of helpful material published over a period of years as a reference guide in the daily routine of banking and farming relationships. It has also published "Factors Affecting Farm Credit," discussing in an illustrative way how farm credit can be obtained on a sound basis.

Another publication is the monthly Bulletin of the commission which circulates to about 10,000 persons, among them the county agents throughout the United States, who make frequent use of the material and suggestions prepared by the commission. Likewise, the commission has appointed 2,300 key bankers covering every county in the United States, who act as focal points in their districts in fostering better understanding between bankers and farmers.

A HUGE BANKING SYSTEM

The latest official figures covering all banks in the United States show that there are 16,042 licensed banking institutions of every kind and that over 68,000,000 persons have entrusted them with their deposits to the amount of $44,890,000,000.

PAY YOUR GROSS INCOME TAX NOW

Indianapolis, Oct. 2.—At the State House, at 140 state auto license branches and at 230 subbranches, payment of gross income tax for the third quarter of 1935 began this week. Final date for filing third-quarter returns is October 15.

Coincident with the opening of the third-quarter payment period, it was announced by Clarence A. Jackson, director of the gross income tax division, that tax returns for the second quarter, on which books have just been closed, show an increase of approximately $500,000 or 16 per cent when compared with the same period last year.

Tax payments made during the second quarter of 1934 amounted to $3,014,635 and for 1935 rose to $3,507,245. The increase was a continuation of the improvement shown in the first quarter this year, which was 16 per cent above the 1934 first quarter.

Tax is payable by October 15 on income received up to September 30. Persons who filed returns for the first two quarters of 1935 will pay tax now only on income for the third quarter, while others will be filing returns covering all income received since filing the last previous return. Exemption of $250 income is allowed for each quarter. Get your blanks at News office.

RURAL HOUSEWIVES CLUB

The R. H. C. met with Mrs. Leona Mason, Tuesday, Sept. 24. Sixteen members answered to roll call, two guests and three children were also present. After business meeting the program committee had some contests which were enjoyed by all. The hostess then served a very nice luncheon. The club will meet with Miss Lizzie Hart Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 8.

ZONKER STORE HAS CHANGED HANDS

After nine years of a most successful business career, W. W. Zonker retires from the retail store business, and the new proprietor is Mr. Joe Goldsmith, of Fort Wayne, who is a practical and experienced retail salesman, having managed and owned some good sized stores in that city.

Mr. Goldsmith was raised in the Hurshtown community and will probably be known by many in this community.

The store will continue to do business on the same high plane as the former owner had established and we wish to call our readers attention to the store ad in this issue, which will give the information desired by the public.

Through the efforts of Mr. Zonker, we feel that the business area of St. Joe has pushed back several miles, people for miles about, in fact strangers, have been made regular customers of Zonker's Store.

We bespeak for Mr. Goldsmith a very successful business, and welcome his family in becoming citizens of St. Joe.

ST. JOE M. P. CHURCH FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

The congregation of the Methodist Protestant Church, in St. Joe, will celebrate its Fiftieth Anniversary of its organization in a week of special services beginning Sunday, November 17th. Which will be followed by another week of revival meetings, Rev. Wm. D. Koehnlein, pastor, announced today.

The special speakers for the Anniversary will be two former pastors. Nov. 18, 19, and 20, Rev. Claude O. Johnson, now pastor at Dunkirk. Nov. 21, 22 and 23, Rev. Otis Jones, pastor at New Haven. On Sunday, November 24 we are expecting Rev. Fred Clark president of the Annual Conference, to be with us both morning and evening. Also every night during the following week in a great revival campaign.

DEKALB GETS $4,134.17 FROM INTANGIBLES TAX

The state government will begin its series of 1935-36 distributions of replacement taxes October 15 with the mailing to county treasurers of checks totalling $654,737.06 derived from the general intangibles tax.

Of the total amount to be distributed, one-fourth will be retained by the various county treasurers for their general funds and the remaining three-fourths will be allocated to schools of the counties. Distributions are based on property valuation.

DeKalb county will receive $4,134.17, of which $3,100.63 will be used for school purposes.

Estimates of the amount to be distributed from the intangibles tax as well as the gross income and the beer or excise taxes, have been provided local officials in order that 1936 property taxes might be reduced by the amounts to be received from the state. Last year, distributions amounting to approximately $12,000,000 were made from the three replacement taxes.

The next distribution will be made from the beer or excise tax in December, when both schools and civil units will receive payments. Allotment of gross income tax money to the schools will take place in January. Money now being received in gross income tax for the third-quarter payment period, which ends October 15, will be included in the fund from which the January distribution will be made.

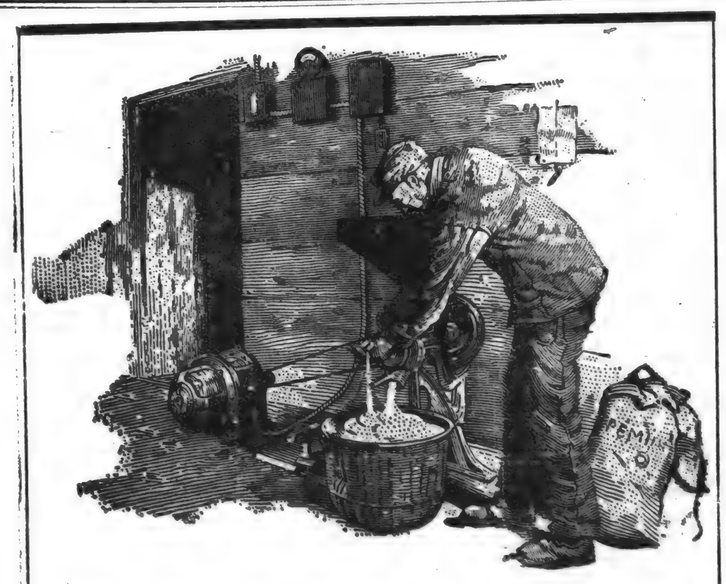
GETS DIVORCE AND ALIMONY OF $2,000

Mrs. Sarah E. Shull, of Spencer Township, Awarded Degree After 43 Years of Marriage

Sarah E. Shull, of Spencer township, not only secured a divorce from Cadmus C. Shull in the DeKalb circuit court Thursday, but also a judgment for $2,000 alimony.

The couple lived together forty-three years, from April 5, 1891 to March 9, 1934. Mrs. Shull complained that her husband failed to support her, cursed her and ordered her to leave.

In adition to the alimony, the plaintiff was allowed $100 for her attorney's fee. She was represented by Edgar W. Atkinson. The defendant defaulted and the state appeared by Geo. E. Mountz, prosecuting attorney.



MAKE QUICK WORK
of grinding and other chores

PUT electric power to work on your farm and speed up your farm work. A portable utility farm motor comes to the rescue at every turn. For one thing: a small motorized grinder will keep the feed bin filled with so little effort on your part as to seem automatic. Just hook up the portable motor, turn a switch, and grind out what you want....

The portable farm motor has plenty of power and will start any time . . . it works as well in January as in August. And it is useful the year around. Ensilage cutting, for example, takes less time and can be done at just the right time. The same motor will operate a hay hoist and later saw your winter's wood. In the winter, too, it will come in handy for fodder shredding.

Electric motors economically pump your water, do your threshing, milk your cows, separate the cream and sharpen tools.

Let our Rural Service Department advise you as to the size and type of installation that best suits your particular needs.

INDIANA & MICHIGAN ELECTRIC COMPANY

ST. JOE VALLEY REPRESENTED AT FAIR

The DeKalb County Fair, held at Auburn last week, was unfortunate in that it struck the coldest week this fall and naturally attendance was cut considerably.

Many from this community did their bit in showing in the live stock department and prizes were won by Earl Stimman of Jackson township, 1-3 on Duroc Jersey sows; Hampshire, boar under 6 months old, O. E. Ginther, 1-2-3; sows 12 to 18 months old, O. E. Ginther, 1-2-3; Spotted Polands, boar, under six months old, Carl Carpenter, 1-2; sow, under six months old, Carl Carpenter, 1-2; sow, 1 year old and under 18 months, Carl Carpenter, 1-2-3; sow and litter, Carl Carpenter; champion boar, Carl Carpenter; champion sow, Carl Carpenter.

The climax of the four days was that of the parade on Saturday morning. The judges awarded first prize to the Coburn Corners Church of Christ; the second to the Junior American Legion of Auburn and the third to the Kinsey funeral home, St. Joe.

The prizes were $10, $6 and $4. The judges were C. B. Hamilton, of Garrett, H. C. Willis, of Waterloo and Mrs. R. B. Morris of Auburn.

The float of the Coburn Corners Church represented a religious scene. The minister in his pulpit was expounding from the scriptures to attentive listeners. Two figures in white, one, a young woman clinging to a cross and another pointing to the cross as a means of salvation, made a striking picture. Coburn Corners Church is the oldest in DeKalb county, founded February 7, 1837. Following this float were members of the congregation in six autombiles.

The Kinsey funeral home, 3rd, was a beautifully decorated car, all white with yellow pompoms. The placard bore the words, "Your request, is our duty."

The Valley section of the parade, was the feature widely advertised and of course, was looked forward to with eagerness. W. D. Yeiser headed the section with a bulletin announcing the St. Joe Valley section, followed by St. St. Joe Fire Department, we protect Valley property; Coburn's Corners Church and six cars; Hart's Nursery; St. Joe News; St. Joe Four Mill, "We pay premium for Valley wheat," 2 trucks; St. Joe Canning Kithen; Chas. Koch, Valley stock dealer; W. L. Hurni, cream dealer; Triangle Foods, 2 cars; Leighty Orchard with 8 vehicles; Lester Pugsley; Standard Oil Co.; Widney Orchards; O. E. Ginther, Hampshire breeders; Kinsey Hardware and Funeral home with 2 cars; Joe Martin, Garage and Service Station.

The above entries were well decorated and bore placards and banners identifying them with the Valley life.

Because of the interest taken in this part of the fair, the local sponsors thank all for their assistance. It has proved a real boon to the community spirit, and shows what can be done when the spirit is willing.

Old Settler's Day

Charles E. Miser, of Waterloo, was elected president of the 1935-36 DeKalb County Old Settlers' Association Saturday at its annual reunion. Mr. Miser succeeds Miles Baxter, of Auburn, who has served the past year. Herbert C. Willis, of Waterloo, was named vice president and Mrs. Flora Green, of Auburn, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Although the weather was cold, about seven hundred and fifty registrations had been made at 2 o'clock.

The program was featured with a tap dance by James McKinley, 83, of Spencerville. The address was given by John R. Leighty, of St. Joe, and was one of a historical nature and proved so interesting that we reproduce it as follows:

"When we look upon this beautiful, well developed country side as it now is, with highways everywhere that can be used with heavy loads nearly every day in the year, and when a trip of 10 or 16 miles takes only a few minutes, with broad cultivated fields, and only enough timber land to afford shady pasture, with the comfortable homes and commodious barns, many telephones, and electricity, furnished from thru lines or made on the place, we are apt to forget the toil and suffering, the long and lonesome days and nights, with sickness and anxiety always hovering near, of the pioneers who made all these things possible.

The Man Who Knows

Whether the Remedy You are taking for Headaches, Neuralgia or Rheumatism Pains is SAFE is Your Doctor. Ask Him

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it — in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

THE STORY OF A CANTERBURY BLUE BELL

A SUMMER in Canada on an island in Lake Huron gave the opportunity for tramping miles over beaches of all kinds, smooth sand and stones, sunshine and shade as one's mood would lead. For a lover of beaches this was a paradise.

We discovered one day on an unusually long hike along a rocky shore, a canterbury blue bell growing alone, sans friends of any description. Our first thought was to carry it back, roots and all, to the cottage in the woods and give it a chance to live, with loving care. "No," we argued with ourselves, "others will come this way perchance and love it, quite as much as we." So we rested a bit, enjoying it, on the lovely coast line of lake and land.

Soon some children came sauntering lazily down the beach, among them a lad about ten years. Seeing the blooming flower, he came near to it, whipped it off with his stick, and walked nonchalantly on. There it lay, my beautiful canterbury blue bell, on the rocks, bruised and lifeless!

I sat for some time in silence on the shore, recalling the numberless times I had seen automobiles stopped on the highways in our own country, and I remembered watching with rebellious spirit the owners pulling off the limbs of beautiful trees, bordering the roadsides in the springtime, ruthlessly whacking away at nature's loveliest and most delicate handiwork, only to find them wilted and perished soon after they returned home.

Is this not another form of selfishness all too common in pleasure seekers? Surely there can be no thought for the enjoyment of others, when one is marring the roadside's beauty, where thousands pass daily. This crime, for such it is against nature and beauty lovers, is equalled only by the twin sin of putting up unsightly bill boards to advertise hotels, liver pills or what not, in a beautiful nearby field or forest.

What must mother nature think of man's crudity when she does all she can to beautify her handiwork and he does all he can to butcher it? Isn't there some reverence lacking in the older generation that these things occur? When children see with their own eyes such mutilation, why would they not do the same? We have not as yet included in the education of our youth the refining subtle study of Beauty, beauty not only of nature's loveliness but beauty of human nature as unselfishness, beauty in conduct, beauty in character. Beauty is a thing alive, it is a spirit.

GETTING BY

AN OWNER of an estate one day noticed part of the rock fence, which bounded his large estate, breaking down. He called a workman to repair it. "Do just one day's work on this fence as I do not wish to pay more than four dollars for it," he told the man. "All right," said the workman, and set to work. At the end of the second day the owner was surprised to find the man still working, about to finish an excellent piece of work. "What, you still here?" he inquired, somewhat angrily of the man, thinking he was trying to augment his pay bargain. "Yes," the man answered, "because I never leave any job half done. The pay I expect is four dollars, the amount we bargained for, the time I put on it is my own." The owner looked at the man surprised, then said suddenly, "I have been looking for a man like you. I need you in my factory. Report there tomorrow at seven."

This fence builder reminded me of my great grandfather's favorite maxim oft repeated to us children when we could scarcely grasp its meaning. It became so much a part of me that decades later I am writing on that very subject—"what is worth doing at all, is worth doing well."

Thoroughness is one of the neglected virtues in this age. Youth is taught today from the examples of middle age to be clever enough to get by. Stupidity comes through being caught. This is a get-by age whose momentum has been gathering speed during the last half decade when much of the high finance of speculation in our country has been done on paper, as unearned money, instead of work of head, hand and heart.

To get by is not cleverness, but simply broken faith. Traffic laws are made to protect man, not to prohibit him. The misuse of millions by some of the so-called guardians of funds was not cleverness, under cover of the dark; it was broken faith. The treacherous, insidious teachings of the movies one can only comprehend when one hears the applause by the front row of future young citizens when the policeman, the defender of right and the law, is outwitted by some chattering churl of the silver screen.

College students, too, defeat their own goals oftimes in class and examinations by cheating. Let us build up faith in thoroughness, for honesty comes this way.

Food Expert Turns Court Into School and Wins Case

Uncle Sam's food examiners strive for accuracy—it's part of their job. One of them recently converted a federal court into a schoolroom and enabled the government to win a contested food seizure case. The cannery whose food was seized testified its count of molds was consistently lower than those of the government.

B. J. Howard, chief of the micro-analytical laboratory of the food and drug administration, who teaches cannery employees the proper method of using the microscope in examining and counting molds on foods, was summoned.

At the court's direction he instructed the cannery's food examiner in correct use of the microscope and revealed errors in the latter's method of examination. The cannery attorney watched closely, and later consented to a decree of condemnation as originally sought by the government.

Quick, Complete Pleasant ELIMINATION

Let's be frank. There's only one way for your body to rid itself of the waste matters that cause acidity, gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts—your intestines must function.

To make them move quickly, pleasantly, completely, without griping. Thousands of physicians recommend Milnesia Wafers. (Dentists recommend Milnesia wafers as an efficient remedy for mouth acidity).

These mint flavored candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly in accordance with the directions on the bottle or tin, then swallowed, they correct acidity, bad breath, flatulence, at their source and at the same time enable quick, complete, pleasant elimination.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48 wafers, at 35c and 60c respectively, or in convenient tins containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately an adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores carry them. Start using these delicious, effective wafers today.

Professional samples sent free to registered physicians or dentists if request is made on professional letter head.

You cannot afford to be without Firestone GROUND GRIP TIRES for Fall and Winter use on your car, truck and tractor. You will not need chains! They will give you the greatest satisfaction and save you money!

FALL RAINS and winter snows present a transportation problem to farmers. Firestone solved this problem when they developed the complete line of Ground Grip Tires for cars, trucks, tractors and all farm implements. There are three patented features that give Firestone Tires super-traction in mud, snow, sand, gravel or soft ground of any kind.

1. Gum-Dipped Cord Body

The High Stretch Cord Body of Firestone Tires is Gum-Dipped (soaked in liquid rubber) giving extra strength and longer flexing life to withstand the terrific stresses and strains of the extra pulling power with only twelve pounds of air pressure. Firestone Tires are the only tires built that are Gum-Dipped.

2. Ground Grip Tread

Built with 54% additional tough rubber and scientifically designed with heavy cross bars and deep grooves that are self-cleaning (chains are not necessary), giving super-traction and long wear. The bars of rubber are so placed that they will not bump when used on paved roads.

3. Two Extra Layers of Gum-Dipped Cords

This exclusive construction feature locks the thick, heavy tread securely to the Gum-Dipped cord body, making them one inseparable unit. This makes practical the use of a wider, flatter, thicker, deeper non-skid Firestone tread with higher shoulders and more and tougher rubber.

in one of the most important things to children — precious Vitamin B for keeping fit. Mighty few cereals have it.

● Many are nervous, poor in appetite, system out of order, because their daily diets lack enough of the precious Vitamin B for keeping fit.

Few things keep them back like a lack of this protective food element.

So give everyone Quaker Oats every morning. Because in addition to its generous supply of Vitamin B for keeping fit, it furnishes food-energy, muscle and body-building ingredients. For about ½c per dish.

Start serving it tomorrow for a 2-weeks test. Quaker Oats has a wholesome, nut-like, luscious appeal to the appetite. Flavory, surpassingly good. All grocers supply it.

Floyd Gibbons ADVENTURERS' CLUB

Hello, Everybody!

"Terrible Mistake"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

AND my sympathies to you, Mrs. Charles Williams.

I know and appreciate how you felt that day—happily long ago—when an ambulance policeman brought you the sad news that every married woman dreads.

Mrs. Williams' story, boys and girls, is heavy with tragedy. It happened on her husband's forty-first birthday.

Mrs. Williams was preparing a little surprise party to celebrate the event—when the blow fell.

Womanlike, she smiled happily—as she baked her husband's favorite birthday cake—little dreaming of the awful news that was already on its way.

The door-bell rang. Mrs. Williams wiped her hands on the kitchen towel and went to answer it.

Policeman Gives Mrs. Williams a Fright.

Doubtless the boy with the ice cream, she thought, and she hoped he had brought the kind Charlie liked.

She opened the door. Not the delivery boy, but a sober-faced policeman stood there. A police ambulance was in front of the house.

"DID Charles Williams live here?" the officer asked.

Mrs. Williams caught her breath at the form of the question. An icy hand seemed to clutch her heart.

"Why—yes," she said haltingly. "He's my husband—is there something wrong?"

The policeman appeared to be sympathetic, but he ignored her question.

"Is your husband a painter?" he asked.

"Yes."

"Medium height?"

"Yes."

"Weight about two hundred pounds?"

Mrs. Williams nodded. She was getting weaker at every question. The policeman, she says, kept his eyes lowered on a little book he held.

"Age about forty?" he asked.

"Why, yes—he is forty-one today, but—"

She Fears the Worst—and Who Wouldn't?

The officer closed his little book and took her gently by the arm.

"We had better step inside," he said.

From the way he looked, Mrs. Williams says, she knew something terrible had happened. She sank into a chair.

"Be brave," the policeman continued. "Your husband has had an accident. He fell off a ladder. It might be very serious."

Mrs. Williams says a cold chill went right to her heart. It couldn't be possible that her Charlie was dead! Her next question sounded as though someone else were asking it.

"Is he—dead?" she asked.

The tears in the policeman's eyes, she says, gave her his answer, but his words held out a ray of hope.

"He is at the Emergency hospital—very badly hurt—but there might be a slight chance."

Mrs. Williams rushed to the phone. The kindly policeman helped her get the number, but the hospital only verified her worst fears.

She listened—stunned—as they told her. Her Charlie had died without regaining consciousness.

Smoke floated in from the oven in the kitchen.

"Something is burning," the policeman said.

Mrs. Williams looked at him blankly.

"It doesn't matter now," she said. "It's too late."

She stared dry-eyed at the front door—the same door through which her Charlie always entered about this time. . . . In her anguish she thought she could even hear the familiar grating of his key . . . she seemed even to see the door opening . . . and then, Mrs. Williams says, she thought her mind had snapped for—

IN THE DOOR WALKED CHARLIE WILLIAMS!

Ghost? Not on your life! Alive and hungry!

Charlie Got a Real Birthday Smacker.

And Mrs. Charlie Williams says the kiss she got wasn't a ghostly kiss, either, and she hopped off to the kitchen just in time to save that cake.

Dry your tears, boys and girls. What had happened was this:

Another painter named Charles Williams had been killed. Police found only his name on his body, and when the description checked so closely with Charlie's, the police had made a perfectly natural error.

But that's not all. Mrs. Williams says when the word got out that her Charlie was dead, that awful husband just had the time of his life answering the door and scaring friends who came to offer their condolences to his widow.

He even scared a high-hatted undertaker who arrived—like a ghoul—for Charlie's remains.

Mrs. Williams says that the shock was so great that she thought she would need a doctor, but so many sympathetic friends came in that she didn't have time to get sick—she was too busy entertaining her guests.

But Charlie had the time of his life! The party turned into a combination birthday celebration and wake! And it's not often a fellow gets a chance to celebrate his own wake!

Charlie took a cue from Mark Twain, and when anybody looked surprised to see him alive, he announced that "the story of his demise was greatly exaggerated."

Christians in Armenia Since Year 303 A. D.

The Armenian is a little above middle stature, robust, slightly olive in complexion, and usually with straight black hair, prominent nose, and high, wide brow. He is alert, adaptive, and remarkable for his industry, quick intelligence, and business aptitude. The women are frequently beautiful, with dark eyes and regular features.

Whatever their racial origin, according to Arch Farmer, in the Chicago Tribune, it seems fitting that a people living in a land so closely associated with scriptural history should early have embraced a religion founded on the teachings of the Bible. This they did, turning from sun and fire worship to Christianity in 303 A. D., when King Tirdat, converted by St. Gregory, "the Illuminator," established Christianity as the state religion. As a result Armenia became the theater of an almost uninterrupted religious warfare.

The history of the ancient kingdom of Armenia is obscure, though as the land of the Khaldians (named after the god, Khaldi) it is believed to have been a satrapy, or principality, of Persia in the Sixth century B. C. The country became essentially Armenian under Tigranes the Great in the First century of the Christian era.

Following its subjection by Persia, after King Tirdat's adoption of Christianity, and the subsequent downfall of the Persion empire in 642, the country was overrun successively by the Arabs, Heljuks, and Monguls. By 1351, however, the country reverted to the control of Armenian feudal lords, and it was at least partially autonomous until the Sixteenth century, when began the bloody rule of the Ottoman Turks.

THIS STORY HAS WHISKERS

Mike Yerkal, the unemployed woodsman of Spokane, Wash., got police protection for his beard. Said Mike: "I got temporary work in a camp north of town and I'd only been there two-three days when a man grabbed my beard, kicked my shin and said, 'It's fellows like you who keep us barbers out of work. Get shaved or get out of town!' I have this beard many years. I like it. Maybe you arrest this barber?" The police promised beard protection instead.

MRS. K. J. TOBIN, OF BEVERLY HILLS, ILL., WELCOMES

Calumet Baking Powder . . . in a big, new 10¢ can!

"WHAT'S THE SENSE in taking chances with second-bests when you can get a good, big can of Calumet for a dime?" asks Mrs. Tobin.

"I've never had a baking failure with Calumet," Mrs. Tobin said. And judging by the expectant faces of Richard and Patricia, Mrs. Tobin is not the only member of her family who knows how delicious Calumet cakes always are!

A SIMPLE TWIST . . . and the Easy-Off Top lifts off. No delay, no spilling, no broken finger-nails!

WHY DOES CALUMET give such astonishing "baking luck"? Why is Calumet different from other baking powders? Because Calumet combines two distinct leavening actions. A quick one for the mixing bowl. A slower one for the oven . . . and Calumet's double-action is so perfectly balanced and controlled that it produces perfect leavening—every time.

All Calumet prices are lower! Calumet is now selling at the lowest prices in history . . . the regular price of Full-Pound Can is now only 25¢! And be sure to see the new, big 10¢ can—a lot of good baking for a dime, with Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder. A product of General Foods.

WITH OUR CLUB LADIES

ENTERTAIN AUBURN CLUB

One of the gayest affairs and high lights of this year's social calendar took place last Wednesday evening when the Ladies' Literary Club of St. Joe entertained the Auburn Culture Club. The party was held at the home of Mrs. Glen Cole two miles north of St. Joe with fifty-five guests present.

Other members of the committee responsible for the pleasant evening were the Mesdames Agnes Leighty, Lora Leighty, Cora Curie, Avis Staman, Thelma Baker and Daisy Woodcox.

The program was opened by the local president, Mrs. Cora Curie, who extended a cordial welcome to the Auburn guests of honor. It was answered quite heartily by the president of the Auburn club, Mrs. Clark. Then the entertainment was turned over to Mrs. Emile Hull, of Hicksville, Ohio, who gave a delightful full evening's program.

Miss Emel VerWeire, of Fort Wayne, accompanied Mrs. Hull at the piano very beautifully for the vocal numbers. Mrs. Hull sang several old favorite ballads, as well as some selections from light operas. During the program Mrs. Hull also read interesting cuttings from popular books and plays. Assisting Mrs. Hull with the reading were four little girls, Virginia Lou Thiel, Margy Ann Boon, Martha Connely, Franc es Edeson, from Hicksville, pupils of Mrs. Hull, who added several charming interludes.

When the program was formally ended, Miss Hazel Storer led the group with some successful charades, in which the Auburn ladies met the St. Joe women freely, many to renew old acquaintances.

A delicious luncheon was served at the end of the evening. The guests of honor were seated at the dining table, and the others at card ables. The covers were beautifully appointed with attractarpieces of gaudy snapdragons and carnations adorned each table.

Special guests for the evening, other than the Auburn Culture Club, included Miss Emel VerWeire of Fort Wayne, Mrs. Dr. Hull of Hicksville, Ohio, Mrs. Mark Moore of St. Joe, Mrs. Virginia Leighty of St. Joe, Miss Laura Shutt of Tampa, Florida, and Mrs. Joy Shutt Goldsmith of Fort Wayne.

Goodbyes were said reluctantly after a highly enjoyable evening with each literary club eagerly looking forward to meeting again together.

LADIES CULTURE CLUB

The Ladies Culture Club of St. Joe held their first meeting Wednesday evening, Oct. 2nd at the home of the president, Mrs. Anne Sechler. A duet was sung by the Misses Louise Sechler and Helen Tustison, Mrs. Gladys Hull at the piano. The new president then gave the official greeting and welcomed the new members, Mrs. Winifred Hart reviewed the main points of the lesson for the evening, Chapter No. 1, The Elements of Worth in the Individual," from the study book, "A Man's Value to Society."

The club was then agreeably surprised by the introduction of Miss Eunice Shilling, who entertained with a group of six readings. A short business session then ensued after which Miss Shilling again entertained. The readings were well received and heartily enjoyed.

The hostess then served refreshments consisting of home made ice cream, cake and coffee. The club was then dismissed to meet next week with Mrs. Helen Ulm.

COBURN CORNERS HOME COMING

On Sunday, October 6 the Coburn's Corners Church held its annual Home Coming, resulting in the largest attendance in years.

At the usual hour the Sunday School convened holding its regular session. After Sunday School a short general program was given by members of the school. The morning devotional was in charge of Charles Washler assisted by Alice Hart, Virginia Poper, and Annamae Leavell. These four young people have volunteered for definite Christian work.

In the afternoon Elder J. N. Scholes gave the welcome address, Mr. Glen Hart of Goshen, Indiana responded.

An interesting feature was a poem read by Elder H. K. Schondelmayer called "When Father Coburn Prays." He got the poem from a hitch hiker but who he was or who wrote the poem is not known. It showed an intimate knowledge of the community.

The young people of the church presented a cantata entitled "Greater Than Solomon." It was well given and enjoyed by the congregation. Much credit i s also due their director, Walter Coburn, for this fine presentation. Elder L. W. Spade, a former pastor wrote a letter of greetings to the church, and in it stated that his wife died last September after a long illness.

Elder J. A. Brown, of Fountain City delivered a fine sermon. Mr. Brown was formerly a pastor here and at St. Joe Christian Church. He is in advanced age being past eighty-one but seems young in mind and body.

Friends from Hicksville. Garrett, Auburn, Fort Wayne, and St. Joe, were in attendance.

SCHOOL NOTES

First and Second

Robert Shuff returned to school Monday after an absence of three weeks.

We are going to sing at the P. T. A. program, Tuesday night. We are going to sing "Little Boy Blue," "Three Little Kittens," and "Mother Hen."

Fifth and Sixth

Donald Kinsey a n d James Hatch are absent from school with the mumps.

The spelling honor roll last week consisted of Stella Hart, Patricia Maxwell, Calvin Mansfield, Frances Reidenbach, Mary Ellen Rude, Marilyn Zonker, Donald Kinsey, Nelda Kees, Dale Keeler, and Candace Loftus.

Third and Fourth

April Dawn Bowser withdrew from our room on Friday. She will attend shool in Michigan. We are sorry to lose our classmate.

Almost every one of us attended the Auburn Fair. On Monday morning we drew pictures of the most interesting things we saw.

We were weighed and measured in our Health period this week. Just a few of us are underweight. We are going to try to gain a pound before we are weighed in November.

Mary Louise Woodcox was promoted to the fourth grade this week. We now have 13 in the Fourth Grade and 15 in the Third Grade.

IS CRITICALLY ILL

Mrs. Tell Elson is seriously ill at her home northwest of here and Mrs. Donald Hart has been secured as nurse. Mrs. Elson has been ailing for two months and the past two weeks has been worse. A consultation was held Tuesday.

M. P. DISTRICT MEETING VERY SUCCESSFUL

From the standpoint of interest, attendance and a practical working program touching every phase of our conference work, not a more successful district conference ever was held than the one at St. Joe Church on Oct. 2, when the churches of that district were host to the Fall Conference of the Kendallville district. The house was full, the program complete, every pastor present and all the churches well represented with delegates. And the hostess church also proved to be a gracious hostess at the noon hour.

The Rev. Fred Clark, president of the Indiana Conference, inspired the group in his sermon of the morning using the theme of the conference meeting, "Service for Christ." At the business hour it was decided to go to the New Haven Church for the Spring meeting. A pulpit bible is to be presented to the church of the district raising the largest per centage of money in the campaign to liquidate the indebtedness of the state camp grounds.

The district is endeavoring to successfully put over the full program of the state conference, emphasizing at present the Rally Day activities.

The district Missionary Group conference will be held at the New Haven Church October 16th and the following program will be given:

10:00 A. M. Devotions, Mrs. Charles Peters.
10:15 Election of secretary, treasurer; Roll call; Minutes of last meeting.
10:30 Special music, Mrs. Fred Leighty.
10:40 Sermon: "The Church and Its Responsibility to Missions" .....Rev. C. H. Simons.
11:10 Duet, Velma Pancake and Mary Burgette.
Song ..... Congregation.
Benediction, Rev. G. M. McKinley.
11:30 Lunch.

Afternoon Program

1:15 Devotions, Rev. Otis Jones.
1:35 Special Music, Kendallville.
1:45 Question box and discussions.
2:00 Give a Word Picture of the Anniversary of the First Church. Yokohama, Japan. .....Mrs. Wm. D. Koehnlein.
2:15 Explain November Thank Offering in Detail, Mrs. C. H. Simons.
2:30 How Suvarta Hospital received Its Name, Mrs. Lee Burgette.
2:40 Business, Reports, Awarding Banner.
Benediction.....Rev. Wm. D. Koehnlein.

Each guest to bring one covered dish. Rest of the dinner will be furnished by the Hostess Church.

ST. JOE VALLEY REPRESENTED AT TH EAR

"We of today are not Old Settlers, for none of us are old and very few of us are settlers. Most of us were born in this county and all of us have grown up under onditions that would have been luxuries to those, who by their untiring efforts made these things possible.

"It is, however, fitting that we meet and pay tribute to the pioneers by calling to mind those days when an open space that gave a view of half a mile was a beautiful spot, when the doctor was impossible most of the time and a luxury when he could be had at all, and meant a trip of miles on foot or horse back and hours to come when he could be found. Contrast that with the man who said to me today that he did not like fair week in Auburn because there was no place to park his car down town, when he lived less than half a mile from the court house.

"For these pioneers, going to town was an event. Going to the grist mill was a necessary journey of at least a day, and often a day and night.

"Court week was a carnival for many, and was a time when the distant neighbors and friends had an excuse in common to go to one place at the same time and meet each other.

"Evening church services began at early candle lighting and there was no complaint about the janitor service. The religious spirit of the community was kept alive by revival meetings, and for many it died down when the hard, every day tasks made them too tired to think about anything, but to sleep when they could, and eat what they could get.

"I say it is fitting that we pause and pay tribute to these people because tribute is due them, but it is still more important that we do, because we will realize that we should not waste so much ime feeling sorry for ourselves when we think we are having a hard time, like walking five blocks, to get down town.

"Now who were some of these people? The list is too long to recite except for the earliest.

"DeKalb county was organized in the winter of 1836-37 and those who were here before that time were Homer Blake, below Spencerville. Spencerville was started on land owned by Hon. R. J. Dawson. John Mathews and Mr. Yates also lived nearby on his land. A Mr. Rhodes lived west of Spencerville and another (Jerry) just north on the St. Joe River.

"A Mr. Brandt and Mr. Crouse just east, Wm., George and David Mathews all settled along the St. Joe River. Lytles and Balls settled near Orangeville and Newville started on the farm of Wash Robinson, Rogers and Platter and Sam Wyatt also lived near there. John Blair had the land where St. Joe now stands, while Chas. Wilber and Wm. Burley lived near Orangeville. Ludwig, Wm. Burley, Sam and John P. Widney, Babcock and Coburn all lived near the river which was the only highway that could be used to get in and out of the county as there were no roads. Cedar Creek was also used by boats.

"When the county was organized, there was the usual fight as to where the county seat should be.

"Centerville, the center of the county, was laid out in the woods, by Rogers and Hamilton. Auburn 3 miles west and 2 miles south was chosen by the commissioners who were Littlefield of LaGrange and Work of Allen counties, as DeKalb was a part of these two counties.

"The first county commissioners were Peter Fair, Sam Widney and Wesley Park, and their first meeting was in July, 1837.

"It seems that times then were like now for about all they did was to appropriate money, but first they appointed a tax collector, Mr. Launslot Ingman. The appropriations were for laying out the Fort Wayne and Coldwater Road, now Route 27 and 427, also the Goshen and Defiance Road. These were State Roads. Joseph Miller was county surveyor and made the surveys.

"About the only other business of this first meeting of the commissioners was to appropriate their own pay for the meeting.

"It cost $20 for a license to conduct an inn, and $60 to sell wood clocks. If you wanted to have a show or circus it cost $40 a day.

"There was a capital tax for selling foreign goods and Thomas J. Freeman paid 85 cents tax on an investment of $170 in foreign and domestic groceries. Property taxes were $1.35 per $100 which was pretty high considering what the people got as compared to what we get today for $1.50.

"Bridges began to be built across the St. Joe River in 1838, so people could come in from the east at any time. The first people came by wagon and canal to Fort Wayne and up the St. Joe River and even the small creeks carried freight. The trip from Ft. Wayne to Spencerville or Newville sometimes took a week.

"There was no place for even a garden until the forest was cleared away. The standard for houses was 16x18 feet, of logs, even most of the furniture was of split timber.

"We should be ashamed to feel sorry for ourselves today regardless of how much depression we think we have, when gasoline for the car, and even picture show money comes from the public funds.

"The poorest among us live as well as the richest could for the first years of the settlement in this county.

"The first church organized in the county was at Coburntown in 1838 and was represented in the parade here this morning.

"The first grist mill was on Bear Creek, near the town of St. Joe and could grind about 8 bushels of corn in a day.

"The first marriage was John Bell to Malinda Slater of Williams county, Ohio, and the fee was paid in pumpkins.

"Another early marriage paid the Judge with the privilege of picking all the cranberries he wanted from the marsh owned by the bridegroom.

"The first store was at Orangeville run by John Platter and two partners who had a $200 stock of goods.

"The county was full of swamps that bred mosquitoes which spread malaria and quinine was as necessary as salt.

"These early settlers were here by choice and went through their hardships that they might make homes for themselves and leave something to their children, and I submit that homes and a competance can be had today easier than then, with less hardship and frugality.

"They did not complain because someone did not furnish them jobs but made their own jobs and worked at them.

"We of today can do no less than recognize the work they did and if we have the stuff in us can do as much for ourselves and the next generation as they did."

BANKERS ACTIVE IN SOIL SAVING MOVE

Issue Book Describing Causes, Ravages and Means of Prevention of Erosion

MADISON, Wisc.—Under the title "Protecting Investment Values in Land," the American Bankers Association Agricultural Commission has published a booklet dealing with the conservation of soil resources as a pressing national problem.

"Careful estimates indicate that 750,000,000 tons of soil, suspended and dissolved, are carried off to the sea each year by running water," the commission's book declares. "An equal amount removed from its source is left en route. This means a total of 1,500,000,000 tons, equal to approximately one ton for each acre of land in this country. The Soil Conservation Service estimates that 35,000,000 acres have been ruined.

"There are 125,000,000 more acres that have lost the valuable topsoil, and it is estimated that still another 100 million acres are being converted into marginal or sub-marginal land, bringing disaster to those trying to eek out a living from erosion enfeebled soil, and threatening ruin to the next generation, since these destructive forces are going on at an increasing rate."

In a chapter devoted to control and preventive measures for soil losses it describes terracing, strip cropping, wind erosion control, gully control and the control of losses from leaching.

Other chapters are devoted to soil resources, the toll exacted by soil erosion, methods for keeping soils productive, state and national uses for non-agricultural land, forestry in a soil conservation program and wild life in a land use program. The booklet describes in detail the marshalling of many forces which is being brought about under the leadership of the Soil Erosion Service to meet this national problem.

COURT RULES IN FAVOR OF YOUNGBLOOD

The state supreme court will be asked to settle the Peru school superintendent controversy, attorneys said today. The announcement was made after Cass Circuit Judge John B. Smith ordered the Peru school board to reinstate G. W. Youngblood as superintendent, a position from which he was ousted Aug. 1, 1934.

Judge Smith also ruled that Youngblood's salary must be paid in full from the date he was dismissed and that J. P. Cordian, who succeeded Youngblood, must be removed immediately. Youngblood, a republican, was dismissed on a vote of two democratic board members.

WORLD WAR VETS TO MEET

TUSTISON—KELLEY

At the residence of Rev. and Mrs. J. N. Scholes, east of St. Joe, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, Rev. Scholes officiating, Wayne D. Kelley and Miss Irma Lee Tustison were united in marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Scholes are great uncle and aunt to the bride.

The young couple left at once on a week's motor trip through eastern states.

The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Tustison, Hicksville, is a graduate of the Hicksville high school, class of 1928. Later she attended business college at Fort Wayne, and the past five years has been employed by the Hicksville National bank. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Kelley, and also a graduate of Hicksville high school, class of 1926, and is located on a farm northwest of Hicksville.

It is understood that the bride will fill her position at the Hicksville National bank until the first of the new year, and perhaps until spring.—Hiksville News-Tribune.

IT'S NOT IN MANY CEREALS

● Nothing anyone eats is more important than Vitamin B—the vitamin for keeping fit. Yet it isn't in many cereals, when cereals are supposed to be our best source of this food element.

Many are nervous, poor in appetite, system out of order, because their daily diets lack enough of the precious Vitamin B for keeping fit.

Few things keep them back like a lack of this protective food element.

So give everyone Quaker Oats every morning. Because in addition to its generous supply of Vitamin B for keeping fit, it furnishes food-energy, muscle and body-building ingredients. For about ½c per dish.

Start serving it tomorrow for a 2-weeks test. Quaker Oats has a wholesome, nut-like, luscious appeal to the appetite. Flavory, surpassingly good. All grocers supply it.

IN VITAMIN B FOR KEEPING FIT . . .

1c worth of Quaker Oats equals 3 cakes of Fresh Yeast

TREES

JOYCE KILMER—who died in action August, 1916, has immortalized himself by the following verse:

I think that I shall never see
A poem as lovely as a tree.
A tree whose hungry mouth is prest
Against the earth's sweet flowing breast.
A tree that looks at God all day,
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;
A tree that may in summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair;
Upon whose bosom snow has lain
Who intimately lives with rain.
Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree.

Have you ever considered the individuality of trees—the most kingly of plants? They have personalities as fascinating to study as human beings. We find the age old Cypress trees throughout the ancient hills of Italy, straight, dark and uncommunicative, symbolizing death and its mystery in the poet's mind. "Woe to him who never sees, the stars shine through his Cypress trees!" Then in contrast we see the spreading and hospitable branches of the glorious Elm. We rejoice in the refinement and culture of the beautiful Maple, in the steadfastness of the sturdy Oak! We wonder at the exquisite delicacy of the white barked Birch that thrives so often near, and in such contrast to, the physical endurance of the hardy Pines. Trees are living creatures. The man who has no special tree friends is indeed a lonely creature.

President Coolidge first instituted "Forest Protection Week," bringing to the American conscience the fact that the tree life of our country must be spared if we wish to safeguard America's natural resources. Forests prevent floods, they make the soil fertile by holding moisture. Think what trees have done for civilization, giving work to thousands; they have made possible the building of homes, and have furthered man's intercourse through railroads and ship building.

The third and fourth lines of the beautiful poem above recall what a scientist once told me. Some of our largest forest trees have the life giving power of lifting 66 gallons of water daily from Mother Earth into their branches.

The boy and girl scout movement of America is teaching our youth to love trees. When this becomes universal, no more will selfish lumber corporations, with pecuniary interests, be allowed to cut down the marvelous Redwoods of California, as old as the time of Christ. No, these belong to the ages, an inheritance of posterity, no one generation owns them.

PATRIOTISM OF PEACE

A FEW years ago it was my privilege to travel in Palestine. I had always read of the Palestinian shepherds, had seen them on canvas through the artist's eyes, and most of all remembered my mother's interpretation of the Twenty-third Psalm of David, who after a life of battles and war, loved to recall the peace of his boyhood shepherd days.

Anyone who has seen Palestine's rocky, dry and treeless horizon, except for a few pale green olive trees, can appreciate more what David meant when he said "He maketh me to lie down in green pastures, he leadeth me beside the still waters." Ordinarily there were no green pastures nor still waters, for the craiglike steep mountains and rushing streams forbade such quietude in Palestine. Calm and secluded spots, however, are made at certain days' travel for shepherds and sheep, hollowed water basins and small level green pasturages. At each quiet pool one finds a vessel the size of a barrel sunk in the ground and filled with olive oil, beside it a cup. After coming over precipitous mountainous trails through thorns and briars, the kindly shepherd always cared for the wounded sheep with the healing olive oil. The Psalmist meant this when he said: "Thou anointest my head with oil, my cup runneth over."

Our guide through Palestine was a very highly educated native of Jerusalem. He had traveled in this country and had written extensively for magazines.

I asked him if he would stop our car when we met the first shepherd on the road. This he promised to do. While we were riding he told this story. As there was extreme poverty in Palestine, many times the people had scarcely enough to eat. Palestine's main industry was sheep raising. They take great pride in their flocks, which are Angora. They have great bushy tails that usually reach the ground. This special breed of sheep has been Palestine's special livelihood. A foreigner one day came to Palestine to buy a sheep in order to obtain this breed. He offered a shepherd what seemed a fabulous sum.

Strangely enough the foreigner was refused. "If I were to accept this price," the shepherd told him, "I might profit but what would my poor countrymen do, if I were to let our Angora sheep go to another country. I cannot do it—I would be selling my country's birthright—it would be a betrayal."

So the sheep was not sold.

Hello, Everybody!

"Battle for Life"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

WELL, I hope you boys and girls know how to handle a pair of chop sticks, because today we're going to China.

We're going with the United States marine corps, but don't think that's going to be any special protection, because China's a big country, and Shanghai is a big city. And the marines can't be everywhere.

To tell you the bare and unvarnished truth about it, they didn't even do a very good job of protecting Marvin W. Atchison, who told me about it. And Marv, I'll have you know, was one of their own boys—a Marine himself.

All his life, Marv Atchison had wanted to look over China.

Maybe he had that idea in the back of his mind when he joined the Marine corps.

Well, if he did, the Marines sure did right by him, because they took him there and gave him plenty of chances to see all he wanted of the doggone country.

Marv Wanted to See China—and Did!

And if Marv saw just a little more of China—well—that was his own mistake and not any fault of the outfit.

Marv was on the U. S. S. Marblehead, one of Uncle Sam's 7,500-ton cruisers, when orders came to get out on the water and do a bit of sailing.

The Marblehead hit several ports in the West Indies, went through the Panama canal to Hawaii, and then, to Marv's entire satisfaction, continued on across the Pacific, bound for China.

Most of the men aboard had never seen China, and, like Marv, were all eager to set foot on shore. Marv and a shipmate were among the first to get shore liberty.

They piled into a sampan and headed for the docks of the International settlement, and the first thing they saw on those docks were about a hundred rickshaws, all lined up awaiting for them.

Marv and his shipmate each grabbed themselves a rickshaw and started to ride around. Everything was all right until they decided to leave the international settlement and go over into the native section of the city. Then, somehow or other, the two rickshaws got separated and Marv lost his buddy.

With his pal gone, Marv's first thought was to get back to the International settlement. He had heard stories of the things that happened to lone Marines prowling around in Chinese cities.

It's Not Easy to Make a Chinaman Understand.

He tried to make his rickshaw coolie understand what he wanted, but the coolie, although he had comprehended all the other orders that had been given to him, suddenly decided that he didn't know what Marv was talking about.

Marv had to yell pretty loud, and shake his fist a couple of times before the coolie was convinced that the dodge wouldn't work.

Then he said, "Me go back," and headed for the international settlement.

Marv watched the coolie pretty closely on the way back—determined that if there was going to be any monkey business, he was going to know about it first.

But the coolie didn't try any tricks until they were safely back in the International settlement. Then, suddenly, he turned the rickshaw into a dark alley.

Marv tensed his body and got ready for a scrap, but he was wholly unprepared for what happened next.

The Chinaman, raising the handles of the rickshaw high in the air, dumped him out backward onto the ground. Marv landed on the back of his head, and for a minute the blow sort of stunned him.

Then, before he could get to his feet again, the coolie let out a war whoop, and slinking, yellow-faced figures came pouring into that alley from all directions.

It was a situation which, to Marv's mind, called for football tactics. He made a flying tackle for the nearest pair of his assailants, and they went down.

Life Is Cheap and Murder Easy in China.

But at the same time, Marv felt the weight of a dozen others as they piled on top of him, kicking, scratching, clawing.

Flat on the ground, held down by the weight of 10 or 15 Chinese, Marv couldn't move. He felt hands reaching into his pockets—search-ing for his money—but he couldn't do a thing about it.

At last he felt a skinny claw groping in the right pocket—coming out with his money. What would those babies do now? Would they leave him alone, now that they had what they wanted?

Or would they kill him, to keep him quiet, or—well—just on general principles. Life is cheap in China!

But what these coolies would have done is a question that was never answered. For suddenly the Chinese were on their feet again, scrambling for the nearest exits.

A Sikh policeman—one of the guardians of the law in the International settlement—had appeared at the mouth of the alley, slashing right and left with his wooden truncheon.

The Sikh had caught one of the coolies, and Marv grabbed another. They took them back to the police station, and Marv, his clothes almost torn off his back, returned to his ship, his head full of good advice about watching your step with Shanghai rickshaw coolies.

Albanians Oldest People in Southeastern Europe

The Albanians are an old people, the oldest it is said in southeastern Europe. Their ancestors occupied the country along the eastern shore of the Adriatic, called Illyrium by the Romans and Epiros by the Greeks, before the beginnings of Rome or Greece; and, although in the succeeding centuries they have at different times been subject to the Macedonians, Romans, Goths, Slavs, Normans, Venetians and finally the Turks, they have on account of their strong nationalistic character been able to maintain themselves practically unmixed with other peoples.

About the most that can be said, notes a writer in the New York Herald Tribune, is that their various overlords have here and there added a few words to their otherwise unique language. Like the Scotch and the Welsh, their mountain homes defied complete subjugation.

While the Albanians are one of the oldest of European peoples, they are also one of the most primitive. Their seclusion arrested their development centuries ago with the result that their mode of living more resembles that of medieval than modern times. The interrelation of society is almost that of feudal Europe, the large landholders exercising great power within their own domain and collectively being the governing force in the country. The principal occupation is stock raising. Agriculture, where it exists at all, is performed in the crudest manner. Nor has any advantage been taken of a climate where many fruits, including mulberries and grapes, could be grown.

Trait and Quality

A trait is any distinguishing feature or quality, especially of mind or character, or anything produced by them. Quality is the element, form or mode of being or action of anything which seems to make it distinct from other things; distinguishing character, etc.

JACK IS NEEDED IN PRESENT DAY, SAYS AUTHORITY

A jack of all trades has usually been considered a handy fellow to have around. But it is the fashion to consider that such a general facility implies a lack of particular expertness, or to express it in simpler Anglo-Saxon, "Jack of all trades; master of none."

Now speaks up a vocational expert to protest at this belittling of Jack. In these days of hazardous employment and drastic occupational changes resulting from the rapid advance of the machine, the jack of all trades is needed, says Prof. Harry D. Kitson of Teachers college, Columbia. Even if Jack is master of no trade, he is much more master of his own destiny than the one-occupation man. Therefore, says Doctor Kitson, today's vocational guidance effort should endeavor at all costs "to avoid giving young people the obsession that they are created for one occupation."

This, unfortunately, seems to be one result of relying too heavily on the aptitude tests and other methods of gauging ability which have been devised in great detail by the vocational guidance experts. Such tests have value; but they also have limitations. Doctor Kitson, one judges, is an expert with a saving sense of reasonableness. He recognizes there is a danger of not being able to see the woods for the trees.

The jack of all trades was supposed to be an outstanding human product of the pioneer days. He who alone, or with a small isolated group, was battling the old frontier, had to be a jack of all trades. And sometimes he was master of several.

It is surprising now to see the modern industrial setup, the antithesis of the frontier, demanding the same qualifications.

What Well-Dressed Eskimo Is to Wear This Winter

Here's what the natives of St. Lawrence island, bleak spot in Bering sea, will wear this winter:

Sealskin pants with the fur inside, over which is a second pair of heavy reindeer skin trousers with the fur outside.

Two pairs of stockings, sealskin and reindeer skin, with heavy fur mukluks or boots over all.

Two parkas or skin coats with long hoods to throw over the head in stormy weather. The inner coat is sometimes lined with birdskins.

Gloves or mitts of dogskin or wolverine are worn constantly.

The same styles prevail for women, men and children.

Press On

If there is only one bathtub to every ten people in the United States, it shows that civilization must press on until every bedroom has its own bathtub as inevitably as it has a bed.

NO UPSETS

The proper treatment for a bilious child

ANY mother knows the reason when her child stops playing, eats little, is hard to manage. Constipation. But what a pity so few know the sensible way to set things right!

The ordinary laxatives, of even ordinary strength, destroy all hopes of restoring regularity.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult.

Doctors use a liquid laxative. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. The liquid laxative they generally use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist has it.

GOLDIE'S GOLD

IT IS hardly fair to a man, when he prides a party clear across the mountains from California to Kansas, to expect him to agree with everything a smart-aleck scout has to say. So thought Goldie, the weather-beaten Missourian who had brought his expedition safely back from the gold fields of the Far West. He and the scout could not agree on various subjects; they were always on the verge of quarreling, and at last the long-threatened storm broke.

What a quarrel it was! The scout had gone off, sullen. Goldie remained with the party, triumphant but slightly apprehensive. No telling what that scout might be up to!

Goldie was right. The scout had gone ahead and met up with some Pawnees, and he was arranging with them to capture the party and get the gold they were bringing with them.

Near where Wichita, Kan., now stands, the Pawnees came into view. Goldie hastily rounded up his charges and harangued them. They must fight, said he, but he reckoned that the Indians were after gold as much as anything else, and they'd better let him have all there was, so he could get away and bury it in a safe place. This was speedily done.

In the excitement of the Pawnee attack, no one on either side noticed the Missourian gliding out of sight. He paused long enough to see that the Indians were beating the travelers; before long, he surmised rightly, none would be left alive. So he had better go on—and keep going.

The scout, as soon as his Indian allies had killed everyone in the train, began to look for the gold. He could not find it; furthermore, he could not find Goldie among the slain. His anger rose again, and he gathered the Pawnees together to follow the trail.

Goldie, in the meantime, had hurried on. He came to Artillery mountain, in Oklahoma, and here he buried the gold near a strangely twisted tree, and hastened on. Somewhere on the way the pursuing Pawnees lost the trail, and Goldie reached home in safety.

Not long afterward, the Missourian became very ill. Feeling sure that he would not live to go back for the buried treasure, he confided the secret to his wife, and died.

Mrs. Goldie, not wanting to pit her woman's strength against heaven only knew what perils, preferred to wait for a while before she went treasure hunting. Their son was six years old; she kept her own counsel until 1882, when the lad had become a man. Then she felt that they might try to recover the wealth which her husband had buried so long ago.

They found the mountain, and they found an Indian who owned the ground and who remembered the location of the twisted tree. But, although they searched long and earnestly, they never found the gold.

BEESWAX AND DOUBLOONS

THREE galleons laden with doubloons, bars of gold, and other treasures, setting sail to the south! What a sight they made, as they left port in Panama, heading for the Horn!

But their majestic journey was suddenly cut short. Instead of continuing on their way, rounding the horn and setting sail for Spain, the three galleons suddenly veered about and began an undignified flight northward.

The reason was not hard to discover: Sir Francis Drake and his British privateers were after the ships of Spain, all sail set to catch up with and capture those three ship-loads of gold. No wonder the galleons fled!

They kept ahead of their pursuers, but could not lose them. Nothing could be done but continue north, far out of the course they had hoped to pursue. On and on they sailed, always dogged by those tenacious Britishers, until at last they ran into a tempest, and in the face of this new danger they forgot their pursuing foes.

The tempest was too much for Drake's ships. They lost heart; gold is a fine thing, but one must live to enjoy it. So they turned back, cheated by wind and wave of the prize they had been hunting. And though they kept a sharp lookout for the return of the Spanish galleons, they never saw them again—nor did anyone else. The three ships full of gold disappeared forever in that mighty tempest.

In 1870 a cave was discovered in Tillamook county, Oregon, which was thought to be the work of some shipwrecked men. The cave had been enlarged with all sorts of tunnels and shafts leading to chambers hidden away from the light. On the walls were inscriptions, but no one could read them after long years under the eraser of time.

And the Indians who prowl along the sandy bars nearby sometimes find great pieces of beeswax, which seem to have come from nowhere. But beeswax was a part of the cargo of those three galleons.

So it is thought that somewhere nearby the great ships foundered, and that either under the sea or in some undiscovered chamber of the cave lies that precious cargo of Spanish doubloons and bars of gold.

Arabic in Everyday Use

Housewives of the world use Arabic in everyday conversation, said Dr. Henry Farmer when he lectured at Glasgow university, Glasgow, on "Arabian Influence on Western Civilization," recently. "Housewives, for instance, scarcely imagine that when they talk of sugar, cotton, damask, taffeta, orange, muslin, lozenge and perhaps soap and the loofa, they are using Arabic words," he continued. "Men of learning use Arabic continually, probably without knowing it. In medicine, 'alcohol' and 'alembic' and hosts of other words are pure Arabic, and again, when astronomers speak of 'zenith' and 'nadir,' and mathematicians of 'algebra' and 'cipher,' they are using Arabic words."

World's Most Famous Babies Eat Oatmeal

The Canadian government chose a staff of special experts for the care of the Quints. And these experts, their scientific knowledge endorsing the instinctive choice of mothers the world over, have chosen oatmeal for the cereal of the famous five.

Oatmeal, eminent medical authorities agree, has an abundance of everything a child's cereal should have—body-building minerals, muscle-building protein, and the supremely important Vitamin B for keeping fit.

Food science says that Vitamin B is the best safeguard against those dangerous enemies of childhood—nervousness, constipation, and poor appetite due to lack of that vitamin in the diet.

Sing Something Simple

A bandmaster in New York finally has broken down and written a march song, the words of which consist of a series of "la-la-la." His purpose, it seems, was to make the words easy enough to remember, so that a large audience could be induced to sing the song. The struggle that audiences usually have with the second verse of "The Star-Spangled Banner" suggests that he may have found the solution to one of the two problems in community singing. The other problem is to keep the audience on the tune.

Cigarettes give a lot of pleasure to a lot of people.

More cigarettes are smoked today because more people know about them—they are better advertised.

But the main reason for the increase is that they are made better—made of better tobaccos; then again the tobaccos are blended—a blend of Domestic and Turkish tobaccos.

Chesterfield is made of mild, ripe tobaccos. Everything that science knows about is used in making it a milder and better-tasting cigarette.

We believe you will enjoy them.

A CALL TO COMBAT THE FORCES OF ANTICHRIST

Europe's dark hour has come. It will only be a matter of days or few weeks at the most, until the storm breaks. Who knows but what every nation on the face of the earth will be drawn into one of the most terrible conflicts of the ages. The nations have been caught in a Satanic whirlpool.

Mussolini and Stalin, I believe, are the Devil's masterpieces in the present parade of iniquity. The world-wide movements which these men represent must be destroyed in America, by the power of the Gospel. By reading our newspapers and the Bible, we see behind Communism and Fascism the spirit of Antichrist which will eventually head up in one man.

Let us pray that our beloved Country may be kept clean and immune from these diabolical forces. The Church of Jesus Christ is asking for your uereserved and complete loyalty and support. You may need the Church and the Church needs you. May God find you in some place of worship Sunday.

Rev. Wm. D. Koehnlein.

LEGION POST MEETING

The Walter Whitehurst No. 283 American Legion met on Monday evening at Town Hall, in St. Joe.

Further details were worked out for organization of the Post and the election of officers for the coming year. Nomination of officers will be held on the next meeting night which will be on Tuesday, Nov. 5th.

Plans were laid for a supper and entertainment for former service men and their families on Armistice night, Nov. 11th.

The Post reports a membership of eighteen at the present time. The quota assigned to this Post by the State Department of the Legion is twenty-five.

HOOSIER DUCK HUNTERS OPENED SEASON MONDAY

Hoosier duck hunters opened their thirty-day open season on ducks, geese, brant, coot and jacksnipe Monday, hoping that colder weather will bring better shooting before the season closes on November 19th. Advance reports showed ducks and other waterfowl on several of the northern Indiana lakes and streams, Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation, reported.

The duck hunters are pursuing their sport this year under stricter regulations than in the past, these regulations being prescribed by the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey in an attempt to prevent extinction of many species of migratory waterfowl. One of the new regulations prohibits the use of any gun except shotgun, not larger than ten-guage, and requires that the magazine be cut or plugged to limit the capacity of the gun to three shells.

Two points in the new regulations which had confused Hoosier sportsmen have been cleared up by recent interpretations by the Bureau. One of these pertains to the use of boats and similar craft, and the other to the hours of shooting. The Bureau has also announced that while hunters of ducks, geese and brant must have a federal "duck stamp" in addition to the state hunting license, this stamp is not reuired to take jacksnipe, woodcock, sora, rails and coot.

The regulation on floating craft provides that blinds, boats or floating craft of any kind are restricted to locations not more than 100 feet from the shore line or not more than 100 feet from where there is a natural growth or vegetation protruding above the surface of the water. There are no restrictions on the pursuit and shooting of cripples.

Shooting of ducks, geese, brant, coot and jacksnipe in Indiana is permitted between the hours of 7 A. M. and 4 P. M., Central Standard Time, each day of the season except Sunday. Woodcock and rails (except coot) can be taken from 7 A. M. until sundown of each day during the season except Sunday.

The daily bag and possession limits are: ducks—ten in the aggregate of all kinds; geese, 4; brant, 4; coot, 15; jacksnipe, 15; sora, 25, and rails (except sora) 15.

Indiana game wardens are working with federal game protectors in checking violations.

SCHOOL NOTES

Products of the St. Joe School

Since the first graduating class of 1899, the graduates of the St. Joe High School have gone into the various walks of life and have proven successful in numerus occupations. There have been one doctor, four undertakers, six civil engineers, eleven bookkeepers, forty teachers, three who have gone into the newspaper business, and many who have taken up farming and other occupations.

Clayton Hathaway, graduate of 1918, is well known in this community as a practicing physician in Butler. Those in the newspaper business are Lee O. Tustison, 1900, Mrs. Lora Leighty, 1902, and William Quance, 1918. The first bookkeeper, Earl Sherer, graduated in 1902 and is now in the post office at Washington, D. C. Others graduated in 1904, '22, '25, '26, '28, and '34. The undertakers have been Gerald Kinsey, '19, Richard Rupp, '24, Harcourt Miser, '25, and DuWayne Kinsey, '31. The first civil engineer was Ora Wilmot, graduating in 1901, and others graduated in 1908, '14, '23, '28, and '29.

A graduate of 1900, Lee Tustison, became the first teacher and since then there have been thirty-nine from the St. Joe graduates. Robert Ulm, a graduate of 1903, and one or more in every class from 1908 up to 1930 (except 1917) have become teachers, and nineteen of them, nearly fifty per cent, have come back to the St. Joe School to teach.

The boys basketball teams will play at Butler on Friday evening of this week.

The first home basketball game will be with LaOtto High School on Friday evening, November 15.

There was a good attendance at the Parent-Teachers Association meeting on Tuesday evening of last week. A feature number was the Mothers Chorus directed by Mrs. Frank Curie.

Joe Speak has moved to Spencerville.

A cast has been selected to represent the local high school in the one act play contest which will be conducted in the Northeastern Indiana District again this year. Miss Eloise Bowman is directing the local play which is entitled "The Lord's Prayer."

The seniors received proofs of their pictures on Monday of this week.

Teachers report very profitable sessions attended at Fort Wayne last Thursday and Friday. The attendance at the Northeastern Indiana Teachers Association was greater this year than in any previous year.

County superintendant C. F. Stallman called at our school on Tuesday afternoon of this week.

A detention class is being held during the school noon hour to give pupils who have been absent or tardy an opportunity to make up work under the supervision of their teachers.

Mrs. Cleota Crick spent Saturday and Sunday at Anderson.

Choicest Products Sent Afield, Travelers Find

If one must have the choicest caviar, stay away from Russia, or if the finest cheese is desired, avoid Switzerland, reports the Columbus Dispatch. This statement only reflects what experienced travelers have discovered, for it is an axiom that the finest products of a district or country usually are reserved for export. Even in southern California one looks in vain in the grocery stores for the great sound oranges so common elsewhere.

Moscow serves the inferior caviar, with the eggs small and many of them broken, while search for a cheese of the large-holed variety in Lucerne brings the answer from the shopkeeper that the good cheeses are shipped to England or America. The answer to all this is very simple. Shipment to other parts brings higher prices.

Apparently the people are not concerned over the fact that these fine qualities of their choicest products are sent afield. Familiarity with their qualities lessens the appetite for the delicacies, and the increased revenue is sufficient to make up for any denial on their part.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, swollen limbs; feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay! Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

Floyd Gibbons ADVENTURERS' CLUB

Hello, Everybody!

"Death's Messenger"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

PUT on your shudder bumpers, fellow adventurers. Here's a yarn so weird and terrifying that you half expect old Doctor Fu Manchu himself to come walking into the picture.

You might look for something of this sort to happen in Oriental fiction, but not to a South Boston housewife and her children in their own home.

But take my word for it, boys and girls, it did happen—happened to Mrs. Kathryn V. Shine of South Boston.

And here she is to tell us all about it.

The Shine family had just finished their evening meal one evening last August, when the doorbell rang. Kathryn Shine opened the door and was confronted by an old man who asked her if she had any chores he might do to earn a night's lodging.

And when Kathryn told him she didn't have any chores, his face took on such a pained, disappointed expression that she told him she'd see if she couldn't put him up for the night.

It Was a Queer Old Duck They Sheltered.

Kathryn asked her husband about it, and he told her to do whatever she thought best. So Kathryn asked the old man in and prepared him a hot meal, for which he thanked her almost too profusely.

After the dinner dishes were cleared away they all went into the living room to listen to the radio. The old man, by this time, seemed to have made himself pretty much at home.

He even took off his shoes—a thing that Kathryn didn't like very much. But she said nothing for the old fellow was obviously tired.

As the evening wore on it developed that the old man was something of a religious crank. He talked ramblingly and incoherently on religious subjects, and took especial interest in the youngest of Kathryn's seven children, a fair-haired little boy.

The old fellow kept repeating over and over again that he was "marked for God."

In fact, he said it so often that Kathryn began to be disturbed by it, and drawing her husband aside told him to lock the man in his room when he went to bed that night.

Along about 11 o'clock, Kathryn had to leave. She had a job that occupied her from midnight until morning, and it was time to start for it.

Kathryn Gets an Unusual Scare.

As she was leaving, she picked up a card she saw lying on the kitchen table. She didn't look at it then—didn't think of it until after she had arrived at the place where she worked.

When she did look at it, though, she almost screamed aloud. For crudely printed on one side of the card were the words, "Messenger of Death."

Back to her mind, then, came the queer old man's repeated assertion that her youngest child had been marked for God. She had to get back home—immediately—to protect her baby from this mad fanatic. But how to do it?

Crudely Printed Were the Words "Messenger of Death."

That was the question. There was no telephone in her house. The street cars weren't running at that time of the night, and she had no money with which to hire a taxi.

The only thing left to her was make the long journey afoot. She started out on a dead run, only slowing to a walk when she was too winded to run another step.

She had gone but a few blocks when more trouble arose to add itself to her already crushing burden. As she was nearing Columbus Circle, two rough-looking men in a sporty, baby blue roadster, drew up and accosted her.

She thought she was going to have trouble with them at first, and asked them not to bother her. But one of the men looked at her sharply and said:

"Look here—you're in a jam, ain't you? Well, get in here and we'll take you wherever YOU want to go."

Kathryn still didn't like the looks of the men, but she just HAD to get home. She climbed in the car and it started off. Hurriedly, she told the men what it was that was worrying her, and to her dismay saw one of them pat his chest where the bulge of an automatic showed under his armpit.

"Lady," he said, "if that guy has done anything to your baby, you won't need to call no police. We'll take care of him, pronto."

This Anti-Climax Was Almost Too Much.

It was just too much for Kathryn—first, the life of her baby in danger, and now to be thrown in with a pair of gangsters who threatened to turn her house into a shambles.

When they arrived at her home she pleaded wth them to wait outside while she went in to see if everything was all right. They agreed.

With her heart in her mouth, Kathryn hurried into the house. To her intense relief, the baby was sleeping peacefully in his crib—the old man safely in bed in his room.

Kathryn locked him in, and resolved that she wouldn't leave the house until he was safely on his way the next morning.

She went outside then—told the gangsters that everything was all right, and added that she hoped God would bless them for the good turn they had done her. Both the thugs looked sort of stunned when she said that. Finally one of them smiled a bit out of one side of his mouth and said:

"Lady, it's a long time since anybody asked God to bless us. But thanks, anyway. Maybe we'll be needing it before the night's over."

"And," says Kathryn, "maybe they did, too. Because the next day I read of the holdup of a big Rhode Island bank, committed by two men who got away in a baby blue sport roadster."

Locksmiths' Art Shown in Rouen Museum Exhibit

An unusual museum is situated in this ancient capital of Normandy, writes a Rouen, France, United Press correspondent. It is a museum containing specimens of the art of the iron worker and locksmith through the ages.

The collection was started with the acquisition of a few curious keys by a native of Rouen, Jean Louis Le Secq, and then became a life passion with him and with his son, Henri, who continued the work after his father's death.

The museum includes primitive surgical instruments, strong boxes with complicated locks, ancient iron work signs and numerous religious relics. One of the latter is an elaborate creche, or manger, surmounted by a crown which hung on a chain from the roof of a church. On it are the words:

"This was given by Charles Le Jeune and Marie Briault, his wife, both of this said parish,, and for whom a Te Deum shall be chanted every Sunday as long as the creche shall last, 1743."

Three large cases at the museum contain only English keys of all varieties, including one which bears the royal monogram and the words "Horse Guards."

Much of the collection in the museum dates back to the early days when every worker belonged to a trade guild, and before he could become a master of his craft he had to produce a masterpiece. Because of this, many of the exhibits are of particular interest from the standpoint of art and ingenuity.

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Gray Ghosts.

SANTA BARBARA, CALIF.—Wearing uniforms of weathered gray, the shades of several ancestors came to me as I slept and wanted to know if it was true that practically all the old-line Republicans in New England were ready to spring to arms against the New Dealers in defense of the sacred doctrine of states' rights.

I said such was indeed the case, and they said if those d—n Yankees had only seen the light a heap sooner, the Cobb family would've been saved a lot of bother, in 1861 and wouldn't have gone busted in 1865.

Irvin S. Cobb

I told them there had been no noticeable change since '65—the Cobb family was still busted. So they faded away.

I thought it might have been a dream, but when I woke up there still lingered the faint ghostly aromas of bourbon toddies and fried ham.

The President's Proclamation.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT started something with his proclamation warning United States citizens off ships belonging to the warring nations, following the one against selling to either of them munitions or deadly arms. The second order disappoints the thousands of tourists, especially those from the southern states, who'd arranged for winter cruises aboard Ethiopian boats, and the earlier one was a serious blow to those American producers who'd counted on selling Italy increased stocks of her favorite weapon. I refer to our garlic growers.

Think of all that stuff piling up in the warehouses over here and not nearly enough gas masks to go around! And, with the supply cut off, think of the defenseless populace over there! The last time I was in Naples, about every other person I met either had eaten too much garlic or not enough. And when I moved on to Rome, I appreciated the old saying, "When in Rome be an aroma." Still I must admit that I now feel toward garlic as I do toward our celebrated California climate—I like it, but not to excess.

Uncle Sam and Sanctions.

ALL we have to go by are the dispatches, which may be wrong; but if I were an Italian out in Ethiopia and a fortune teller had said to me lately, "I seem to see you going on a long journey where you'll meet some dark stranger who will be very antagonistic," I know I'd be homesick and I reckon probably I'd start doing a little serious thinking.

And if I were Mussolini, I'd be saying to myself that maybe I made a mistake by not considering the example of another great champion, John L. Sullivan. Any time the prospect was for a close fight, John L. drew the color-line.

And if I were Uncle Sam—as indeed, in our small ways, we all are part of him—I'd answer those mashnotes which will be pouring in pretty soon, bearing foreign postmarks, by stating that I positively was not going into the "sanctions" business. The name may be new, but the smell is both reminiscent and suspicious. In fact, it's the same old smell.

The Head That Wears a Crown.

WHAT with one of the leading movie families having what delicately is known out here as a rift, the dispatches from Greece just did make the front pages of some of the papers. This is the center of the rifting industry, and the daily quotations are eagerly followed.

The news must've created a stir, though, in Europe, which is dotted with many an "ex," marking the spot when a bounced monarch landed. Any revival in the king business, which for years was so sluggish, will be welcomed by interested parties. I seem to hear Wilhelm telling the hired girl to get the crown off the parlor whatnot and give it a wipe.

Still, King George might do well to book return passage before heading for Athens to remount the skittish throne that bucked him off once. Except when running restaurants, the Greeks are great hands for switching around.

A Pocketful of Change.

MR. HOOVER says that, at the end of this administration, our unpaid government obligations will exceed thirty-five billions, whereupon Senate Leader Robinson indignantly shrieks that, on June 30, 1936, the total national debt will approximate only thirty billions, seven hundred and twenty-four millions and some odd change.

But to any orthodox member of the last congress, what's a mere bagatelle of four or five billions? The boys toss those trifles off the same as Detroit batting in runs in the ninth inning of a world's series game. And anyhow, doesn't it still give us six full months next year to overtake the Hoover estimate? Why, it'll be like taking candy from a taxpayer.

Do You Ever Wonder

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Ask Your Doctor and Find Out

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

He will tell you that before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate Bayer Aspirin among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this.

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by asking for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN. Make it a point to do this — and see that you get what you want.

Fabric Honors Go to New Woolens

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

MOST of the glory in the fabric realm is going to the new woolens this season. Whether you work or play, whether you travel or saunter about town, whether you are campus-bound or en route to the office, whether you are counted among the spectator sports group in the grandstand or whether you tea at five or dance at the midnight "prom," if you would register among the best-dressed, fashion decrees that your costume be of some one or other of the handsome new wools that are showing this season.

Time was "way back when" that the merits of woolens were reckoned in terms of sturdy utilization qualities that insured comfort when the temperature went low as well as sterling wearability throughout the practical hours. But now all is changed in that you may have your woolen weaves as fastidious, as eloquent of chic and charm as you please.

Wherefore, the new wool fabrics have become the idol of fashion. The current collections intrigue with their wide versatility, their breath-taking novelty, the colorings which are rich and beautiful beyond wildest flights of fancy, together with weaves and textures the likes of which were not dreamed of in days of yore.

The woman who knows her woolens will choose according to time, place and occasion. For sports and for practical daytime clothes, rabbit woolens are outstanding. They are shown in cunning novelty checks and stripes and bold plaids which particularly stress the new wines, chic violet tones, dark browns and deep rich greens. Nubby mixture tweeds and herringbones are also favorites in sports woolens. Popular also are homespuns, surface cordings, diagonal or vertical ribbings and endless weaves that are nubbed, slubbed, flecked and highly metalized, fascinating and mysterious beyond anything previously achieved in the annals of the woolen industry.

Wool crepes, printed challis and cashmeres are especially lovely styled in soft types that are suitable to wear under fur coats. There is much excitement, too, in regard to the new sheer woolens.

Quite the newest trend in fashioning the smartest woolen suits is to bind the edges with supple fur after the manner shown to the left in the group pictured. Here we see a young fashionable clad in a jacket frock of sheer black woolen. It has the new short peplum. The edges of the jacket and the modishly flared skirt are banded with black Persian lamb. The crushed ascot scarf is of bright green moire. Speaking of sheer black, at this moment it is the rage for daytime dresses, with clever buttonings, shirrings, pleatings and metal gadgets to give the individual touch.

Campus-bound, the chic girl centered in the trio is wearing a smart two-piece frock of lightweight woolen styled to look young. Gray Persian lamb decorates the collar and the patch pockets of the tailored jacket that fastens down the front with self-fabric covered buttons.

Smartly simple in line, the three-piece frock for the junior, shown to the right, is practically a "must" in the school wardrobe. The cardigan jacket and the tailored skirt are made of a sheer soft rabbit woolen fabric. The tuck-in blouse of soft wool jersey in the natural tan color, worn with a Peter Pan collar outside the cardigan.

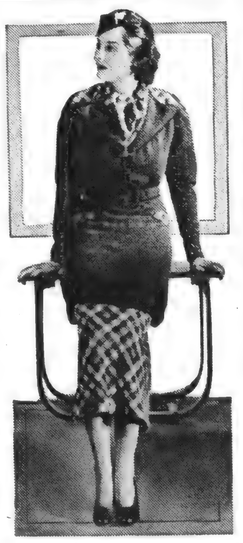
STRESSING PLAID

By CHERIE NICHOLAS



The world of fashion is growing increasingly plaid-conscious. Never has eye seen plaids so gorgeous, so bold in color and in such fascinating wool weaves as are now enlivening the style panorama. The tunic of soft spongy woolen here pictured is in the smart new gray. The same gray is in the plaid contrasting the vivid reds, greens, yellows and white. Note the ascot tie, which is a very special style feature of the majority of sports costumes.

Two-Piece Dresses

Two-piece styles are exceptionally good for this fall, especially in thin, light-weight wool or crepe.

TROUSERED STYLE FOR WOMEN GAINS

The trousers-for-women idea is strong in the new fall fashions, and girls who heretofore have restricted their mannish costuming to the beach or the back yard, may now come right out in the open and wear trousers to dinner and dance.

There seems no doubt that some of the leading designers are all for the trousered mode.

Some gowns have the trousers beneath a skirt, slit to the waist.

Some feature divided skirts concealingly draped.

And some come right out with undisguised trousers in formal afternoon and dinner clothes.

The most daring variation of the theme presented thus far is the slashed evening skirt which reveals matching shorts.

Umbrella Skirt Is Favored by Coeds for Sweater Use

The umbrella skirt is the newest thing on the campus horizon.

It's the skirt that college girls will wear with their sweaters this fall, it looks like its name. It's a skirt with a decided flare, gored in the umbrella manner, with crosses between the seams. It demonstrates the new rule of shorter and fuller, and it's shown in all the new flannels and tweeds.

College girls, tired of the classic button-down-the-front skirt of wrap-around cut, are going in for gores this fall. The majority of skirts shown in college shops around town are definitely flared, and gored to the last notch.

They come in nice soft monotone tweeds and Angora fabrics, and are shown in colors to blend or contrast with any sweater.

Evening Cape

A luscious satin evening cape is bordered at the front with silver fox and caught together at the neckline with a large baguette diamond and ruby clip.

CROCHETED FLOWERS FOR POT HOLDERS

HOW Firestone GIVES YOU LOWEST COST PER MILE

FIRESTONE TIRES are built different — they have three patented construction features not used in any other truck tire. The body is built with Gum-Dipped High Stretch cords. Gum-Dipping, the patented Firestone process, soaks the cords in pure liquid rubber, insulating and coating every strand in every cord. This is why Firestone Tires run cooler and are stronger.

The tread is made of a new and tougher rubber compound which gives greatest resistance to wear. This, together with the scientific non-skid design, gives greater traction and longer non-skid mileage. Firestone locks this wider, heavier and more rugged tread securely to the Gum-Dipped cord body of the tire by building two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords (patented) under the tread.

These exclusive construction features result in lowest cost per mile. The largest operators in the country and operators of all types of equipment buy Firestone Tires year after year on their cost-reducing performance.

Call on the Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store or Tire Dealer nearest you today, and start reducing your operating costs. When buying new equipment be sure to specify Firestone Tires.

FORMER DEKALB RESIDENT DIES IN AN AUTOMOBILE

The funeral of the Mrs. Gertrude Scott, was held Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the residence in Kendallville, with interment in the Hicksville, O., cemetery.

Mrs. Scott, who was the wife of E. G. Scott, died suddenly Sunday evening while on her way to Bryan, O., with her husband. He had recently been employed in that city. She had been afflicted with heart disease and when she and Mr. Scott were four miles east of Kendallville she was stricken and died in the automobile before aid could be summoned.

Mrs. Scott was born in DeKalb county, near Coburn's Corners, Feb. 21, 1876, and she and Mr. Scott were married in 1896. They lived on a farm near Fayette, O., but because of Mrs. Scott's ill health they left the farm and moved to Kendallville last July. She was a member of the Church of Christ at Coburn's Corners.

Surviving besides the widower are four brothers and two sisters, Mrs. A. H. Cole, of Hillsdale, Mich., Roy and Searl Wade, of St. Joe, Lloyd Wade, of Defiance, O., Clifford Wade, of Sherwood, O., and Mrs. Jessie Benjamin, of Fort Wayne. Another sister died suddenly from a heart attack a year ago.

CHANGE OF SUBJECT

A preacher, at the close of one of his sermons, said: "Let all who are paying their debts stand up."

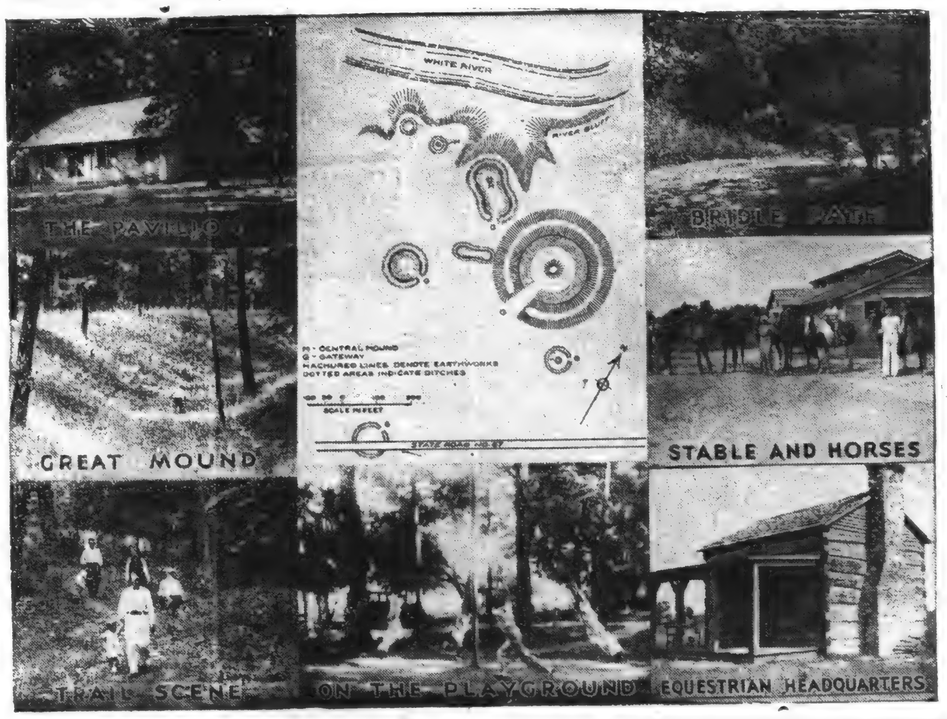
VISIT INDIANA'S PARKS FOR VACATION



Instantly every man, woman and child, with one exception, rose. The preacher seated them, and said: "Now, every man not paying his debts, stand up." The exception noted, a careworn, hungry looking individual, clothed in last summer's suit, slowly assumed a perpendicular position.

"How is it, my friend," asked the minister, "that you are the only man not to meet his obligations?"

"I run a weekly newspaper," he meekly answered, "and the brethren who stood up are my subscribers, and . . . . ."

"Let us pray," exclaimed the minister.

ST. JOE M. P. CHURCH FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

The congregation of the Methodist Protestant Church, in St. Joe, will celebrate its Fiftieth Anniversary of its organization in a week of special services beginning Sunday, November 17th. Which will be followed by another week of revival meetings, Rev. Wm. D. Koehnlein, pastor, announced today.

The special speakers for the Anniversary will be two former pastors. Nov. 18, 19, and 20, Rev. Claude O. Johnson, now pastor at Dunkirk. Nov. 21, 22 and 23, Rev. Otis Jones, pastor at New Haven. On Sunday, November 24 we are expecting Rev. Fred Clark president of the Annual Conference, to be with us both morning and evening. Also every night during the following week in a great revival campaign.

HOUSE PARTY FOR MR. WM. HOLLABAUGH

A jolly house party was held Sunday, all day, at the new W. L. Hollabaugh home, just completed. The guests began to arrive near the noon hour, bringing well filled baskets and all did ample justice to the bountiful dinner.

Those present in his honor were: Mrs. Bertha Bridges, daughter, of Mishawaka, Ind.; Mrs. Hattie Fairfield and daughter, O. E. Ginther, wife and daughter, Virginia; Robert Eichmeyer, of Fort Wayne; Ed Pflaumer, wife and son; Stanley Hollabaugh and wife; Roy Rudolph and family; J. R. Shilling and wife, and F. B. Leighty and wife. Afternoon callers were Hollis Dilley, Lela Northrup, Mrs. DeLora Curie and F. G. Gauntt and wife.

Mr. Hollabaugh, who is now past 93, has one living sister, Mary Henning, 95 past, who lives at Carlysle, Pa.

He was born in Pennsylvania, was in the draft but not called. He lived one-half mile from the Gettysburg battle field and he told some interesting incidents of Civil War days.

He came to Indiana on a visit, and while here met Mary Case. As time went on he developed quite a case on Miss Case and he returned to Indiana and they were married April 21, 1871.

He started house keeping on the farm east of the Dills bridge and lived there for years. In 1880 they decided to move to St. Joe, and they began the construction of the brick house and on January 2, 1935 the structure was burned, leaving only the brick walls.

In October he decided to rebuild the home and he made a contract with Arthur Kester, of Butler, to rebuild into a one story bungalo, the work has been completed and is now ready to occupy.

The walls are finished with a white coat, Hollis Dilley being the mason, the floors are hard pine and varnished, the window casings are of butternut and the doors were made on the job also of butternut, and with the electric lights, he now has a beautiful home in which to spend the remaining days of his life. The outside brick has been painted red, adding much to the appearance.

Mr. Hollabaugh has been using an oil lamp that he started housekeeping with and it has the original chimney.

After the day was well spent a number of photographs were taken.

AUBURN—CONCORD YOUNG PEOPLE WED

Miss Freida Wyatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wyatt, of 330 W. Second St., Auburn, and Robert Morr, of Concord, were united in marriage Saturday evening at 6:00 o'clock at the Auburn Methodist parsonage by the Rev. Manfred C. Wright, who used the single ring ceremony.

The young couple was attended by Cleota Crick, sister of the groom and Glenn Wyatt, brother of the bride.

The bride attended the Auburn schools and is employed at the Messenger Corporation in Auburn.

Mr. Morr attended the St. Joe schools and is a graduate of Ball State Teachers college at Muncie. He is a teacher in the Jackson township schools.

TWO CLASSES ENJOY DINNER SUNDAY

The Tri Mu Class of the Lutheran Church entertained the Friendly Circle Class to a dinner in the church basement on Sunday, October 27.

The occasion marking the end of an attendance contest, the losers to furnish a dinner. The welcome was given by the president of the class, Rachel Sybil, and the response by Kathryn Haller. The table decorations and toasts were in keeping with the Autumn leaf. Lucille Curie acting as toast mistress. Toasts were given by Eloise Bowman, Grace Dilley and Rev. Ferster.

The menu consisted of, first course, cocktail and wafers, (especially prepared for the "winners." Second course, roast beef, noodles, escalloped potatoes, baked beans, cabbage salad, celery and pickles; third course, gingerbread with whipped cream and coffee. There were 48 present. It was a day well spent in christian fellowship as well as a good social time.

Only One Acceptable Site

Of numerous sites offered for a new Garrett post office, only one escaped condemnation in a report released for publication at Washington, D. C. Friday. The acceptable property is that owned by Don E. and Alice VanFleit, located at the northwest corner of King and Lee Streets. The site is 125 feet square and is offered at $7,200. Seventeen of the sites offered were considered too remote from the business center, too small, are affected by an adverse sentiment, have an unfavorable topography or surrounding, or are too high priced.

Betty and Beccy Inlow spent Monday night with Mary Moore. They report a fine time.

Art Guilford had his car smashed up at Spencerville Friday night while driving south. Ernest Steckley, of Butler, drove out from filling station into the car. Mrs. Guilford and daughter and Mrs. Glen Hough were also in the car and escaped injury. Steckley is making good the repairs at the Furnish garage.

WIFE PREFERRED TO LIVE IN DEKALB COUNTY

Charging that his wife, Catherine, returned to the home of her mother in St. Joe, after telling him that she "would give 10 years of her life to go back to her former existence," Nicholas Ridlen, Jr., of Auburn is asking a divorce.

Both Ridlen and his wife, had been married previously and have children by the prior marriages. Divorce having been granted them on Sept. 25, 1935 from their former mates and they were married the following week.

Ridlen claims that Mrs. Ridlen became exceedingly dissatisfied shortly after her marriage to him, and mourned for her former associations, particularly her children by the previous marriage.

She was morose and temperamental, he charged, telling him repeatedly that she cared more for another party than she did for him. He says that when they separated this month she informed him that she could not by reason of existing conditions, continue her life with him, and he sought to appease and comfort her by taking her to her mother's home.

He says that when they were married he bought furniture and rented a house for them to live in and treated her with the greatest of respect and kindness, but that she declined to live in the home he provided. They resided at Coldwater, Mich., for about three weeks.

CHICAGOAN PRAISES INDIANA HIGHWAYS

One of the Indiana state highways, Road 6, which crosses the northern part of the state, was praised recently by a Chicago Tribune columnist who wrote:

"Travel note No. 9999. After some 7,000 miles of motoring this summer, during which excellent European roads were the rule and not the exception, and which included traversing Mussolini's new autostrada near Milan, we found on the last lap toward home that the very best road of all, from the standpoint of making time, was Road 6, through Indiana."

REASONER

After five months illness, Chalmer Reasoner passed away at the home of his son, Ray, Saturday, October 26, at the age of 77 years, 1 month and 6 days.

He was the son of David Reasoner and was born September 19, 1858.

On December 9, 1876 he was married to Celesta Shenberger and four children were born. Ray and Effie, of St. Joe, Bert and Herman, of Fort Wayne. Silas Reasoner, of Auburn being the only brother living.

The funeral was held from the Lutheran Church, Monday afternoon conducted by Rev. C. J. Ferster, with burial in Riverside cemetery. DuWayne Kinsey in charge.

Besides his four children he leaves nine grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

The pall bearers were Dale, Everett and Vernon Collins, Howard, Floyd and Ivan Reasoner.

Mr. Reasoner spent the most of his life here as a farmer, and when he gave up the farm he visited among his children. During his last illness of several months, he was cared for by his son, Ray, and wife.

CARD OF THANKS

We appreciate the kindness of our neighbors and friends during the illness of our father, and for the floral offerings and sympathy expressed in his passing.

PROPERTY SALES ON THE INCREASE

Indianapolis, Oct. 30.—Rising property values and increasing desire to buy and sell are reflected in gross income tax returns filed for the second quarter of 1935, which show a gain of 325 per cent in income from sale of property when compared with returns for the second quarter last year.

Income from sale of property led all other types of receipts in percentage of increase over the 1934 period, according to Clarence A. Jackson, director of the gross income tax division.

Dividends were beginning to flow again, too, and empty houses were filling up, the gross income tax returns revealed. Income from interest, rents and royalties was not far behind sale of property, with an increase of 274 per cent over the 1934 second quarter.

The average increase in income from all sources was 10.77 per cent, an increase from $461,416,245 in the second quarter of 1934 to $511,109,176 in the comparable period this year.

Income reported as being received from salaries and wages showed a gain of 6.74 per cent. Mr. Jackson pointed out that salaries and wages reported on the quarterly returns were in large part received by persons in the higher income brackets, due to provisions of the gross income tax law which permits taxpayers owing less than $10 to file returns on an annual basis. A large number of persons owning small amounts, however, file quarterly returns in order to avoid having a full year's tax come due at once at the close of the year.

ITEMS ABOUT ST. JOE

A report from Noble county states that a great many ducks and coot were killed during the first two days of the open season but that not so many hunters were out as during the corresponding time last year. Reports were received that there were quite a few ducks on the lakes, most of them native, and that no flights had been made. Close of the open season, November 19.

It won't be long until the yellow ears go flying through the air against the bang boards piling up the loads and deciding who is the best corn husker in Ohio. Most everybody in Paulding is busy putting the finishing touches on the preparation to handle the biggest crowd ever known in the county's history. The state wide corn husking contest takes place on the Wunder farm, 5 miles west of Paulding on Friday, November 1st and everything is in readiness to see that every person is royally entertained. All you need is jump into your car and go. There will be plenty of food and refreshments on the grounds. Plenty of free parking space for your car and no charge for admission. Plenty of guards and police to keep order. The program starts promptly at 10:00 A. M. Bear this in mind and be on hand because the doings will absolutely start at 10:00 o'clock in the morning.

A record yield of 541 bushels of potatoes to the acre is being claimed by Ottis Carter, a farmer living near Columbia City. B. V. Widney, Whitley county agent, measured the yield on a three acre field. Carter has altogether about 30 acres ir potatoes this year. He attributes the high yield to good seed potatoes and following carefully directions of the county agent and Purdue specialists.

BEAUTY AND THE V-8 ENGINE

THE BEAUTY of the new Ford V-8 grew out of the Ford purpose to make every feature of the car meet the standard of V-8 engine quality.

When the Ford Motor Company introduced to the low-price field a type of engine that had been used only in the most expensive cars, it set a new standard of quality.

Drive a new Ford far enough to get the "feel" of V-8 performance. Then check the wealth of features that reflect this same standard of quality and value—in style, comfort, driving ease, safety.

Behind Every Feature of the 1936 Ford Is the Standard of V-8 Engine Quality

New modern appearance, styled for today
New radiator grille, longer hood
New, wide-flaring, streamlined fenders

SCHOOL NOTES

Warm Lunch Service

On next Monday noon, November 4th, the warm lunch service will begin in the local schools. By paying the moderate sum of five cents warm dishes of food will be served to supplement the pupils lunch brought from home. The Parent-Teachers Association and the Vocational Home Economics Department are sponsoring this service.

Next P. T. A. on November 12

Dr. C. A. Meigs, who appeared on our P. T. A. programs two years ago in a very helpful talk on care of the eyes, has consented to lecture again on November 12. He will use motion pictures to illustrate his address. Other numbers on this program will be announced later.

The Eighth Grade is planning a Halloween Party on Friday evening of this week at the home of Iris Jackson.

Several pupils have learned how profitable the Detention Class is. We believe we should list the names of those assigned to the Detention Class after this week

The local boys basketball teams opened the season on the Butler floor Friday evening. While Butler's small floor was somewhat of a handicap the local teams made a creditable showing. The second team held the Butler reserves to a 25 to 18 score and the first team game ended 34 to 15.

Our next games will be at Harlan on the evening of November 8 The first home games will be with LaOtto on November 15th.

Assisted by some of the St. Joe merchants the school is issuing a printed basketball schedule. These will be ready for distribution in a few days.

Mr. Smith, of Findlay, Ohio, took group pictures of all grades from one to eleven one afternoon of last week. Pupils who wish may buy these group pictures of Mr. Smith for fifteen cents each.

First and Second

Thursday is Halloween.
We are going to have a party.
We are going to dress up funny.
We made big black cats.
Their eyes were green.
They wore big orange neckties.
James and Margaret have the mumps.

NOV. 15 IS DEADLINE ON WHEAT APPLICATION

Applications for the 1936-1939 wheat adjustment contract being now offered to wheat producers by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration must be in the office of the DeKalb County Wheat Allotment Committee not later than November 15, it was announced today by Arthur Lautzenhiser, president of the DeKalb County Wheat Control Association.

This announcement came after receipt of word from Washington that November 15 had been set as the deadline for the signup campaign for the new wheat adjustment program. Mr. Lautzenhiser said that, while the signup will not be considered complete until that date, it will not be necessary for the allotment committee to to wait longer to begin completion and listing of the applications for submission to the State Grain Board at Lafayette and that this work will begin at once.

"Wheat producers are urged," he said, "to make application for their contracts as soon as possible so that work may be completed in DeKalb County soon after the deadline. Those producers who have not definitely made up their minds should sign applications so that they will be eligible to sign the contract should they decide to do so. Signing the application will not bind them to sign the contract in case they decide against it later."

WITH OUR CLUB LADIES

The Ladies Literary Club, of St. Joe was delightfully entertained at Auburn as the guests of the Culture Club of that city on Monday evening. The party was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Sanders on North Main Street.

The St. Joe ladies were nearly all present for the evening. Mrs. Janalyce Roulo and Mrs. Avis Staman were in charge of the transportation. The Messrs. Wm. Staman, Bruce Gerdes, Merritt Sechler, Allen Haller, and Frank Curie went as drivers for the Club. Mrs. Joe Goldsmith was a special guest for the evening.

The program was opened by Mrs. Clark, president of the Auburn Club, who extended a hearty welcome. Miss Marie Morris, of Auburn, sang a beautiful arrangement of the Lord's Prayer. Then Miss Morris, soprano, and Miss Virginia Brown, alto, sang a medley of popular airs with Mrs. Katherine Gerns at the piano. Litle Miss Peggy Schwartz in costume favored the ladies with tap dancing.

The main feature of the evening was the interesting travellog, presented by the Misses Bonnell Souder, Carol Dawson, and Florence Dobbrick, who w e r e members of a selective group of Business and Professional Women touring Alaska last summer. Each woman presented a descriptive talk on some phase of the Alaskan journey, wittily explaining the fish canning business, geography, and life along the western coast. It was a real treat to hear these ladies and share their interesting experiences.

Several violin selections were played by Mrs. Koontz, also of Auburn, accompanied by Mrs. Grace Hess, at the piano.

Group singing during the evening served to make the program livelier and happier for all as also did a contest, which was won by Mrs. Mary Gerdes.

At the close of the evening a delicious plate luncheon, colorfully suggestive o f Halloween, was served.

The evening was considered a tremendous success, enjoyed mutually by St. Joe and Auburn friends. Mrs. Ruby Morris, chairman of the entertaining committee of the Auburn Club, was ably assisted by Mrs. Feller, Mrs. Holbin, Mrs. Frances Tatlen, Mrs Quenton Mavis and Mrs. Sanders.

WILLIAM HULL DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Willam Hull, a former resident of Auburn, died suddenly Sunday morning at 8 o'clock at his home in Fairfield township as the result of a heart attack. He passed away before medical aid could be summoned. He was 63 years of age on October 25th.

The deceased resided for many years in Auburn and was a painter and decorator.

He is survived by his widow and two children, Mrs. Harry Clouse, of Auburn and Harry Hull of Pontiac, Mich. A brother, J. C. Hull, resides in St. Joe, Ind., and two sisters, Mrs. Percy Hess, living at Painesville, Ohio, and Mrs. Emma Slentz at South Haven, Mich. There are three grandchildren, Jane and Virginia Clouse of Auburn and Dorothy Hull of Pontiac.

The funeral services were held at the Swank funeral home, Ashley, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial was made in the Woodlawn cemetery, Auburn.

"NEW GEM" BERRIES

Last week we visited Clyde Hart in search of flowers, but instead were given a basket of strawberries, the New Gem Everbearing. For size and flavor, tney beat anything we ever tasted. The patch is yielding from 16 to 20 quarts a week, and retails on the Fort Wayne market at 40 cents a quart. The patch has been bearing since July and will continue until we have a freeze up. This is a new variety and Clyde is more than pleased with it. Many of the berries are more than 4 inches in circumference and a beautiful red. Thanks for the generous sample, Clyde.

CLUB GIVES PARTY

The Culture Club gave a Halloween party to the children at the home of Mrs. Dale Hart. The rooms were beautifully decorated in keeping with Halloween colors.

The meeting was in charge of the committee composed of: Nora Blue, Ethel Wineland, and Madonna Wade. The members and children visited the Haunted House. Then on entering the home were asked to do a stunt, after which was the fortune telling by the witch.

Various games and contests were enjoyed such as Who's Who, the Unlucky Spot, Pinning petals on a sunflower, Doughnut eating contest, won by Christine Zonker and Troas Carpenter. Last was the ghost chase.

Refreshments were served consisting of sandwiches which looked like faces, salad, small pumpkin pies with whipped cream and cider.

ADULT EDUCATION CLASS TO MEET

The adult education classes, sponsored by the W. P. A. held here last winter, are to be re-organized and continued throughout this winter. Mr. Robuck, of Butler, and Mr. Huster, of Waterloo, will be the teachers.

An organization meeting will be held at St. Joe school house on Thursday night, November 7, at 7:30 and at Spencerville school house on Wednesday evening, Nov. 13, at 7:30 o'clock.

Everyone interested in such classes cordially invited.

PLAN FOX DRIVE

The members of the local Conservation Club will meet at the Town Hall tonight, (Thursday) to begin planning for the annual fox drive. Experience of last year will be coupled with some new ideas, that ought to make the drive successful. The foxes are here and how to get them will be discussed. If at all interested in this sport, come to the meeting.

MOVES TO CORUNNA

Walter Coburn has accepted a call to the Corunna Christian Church and moved last week, he will also continue to serve Coburntown. Mr. Coburn gave up the South Milford work. He was compelled to leave the farm on account of his health.

SCHOOL NOTES

One Act Play Contest

It was announced Monday that the DeKalb County one act play contest will be held in the local school building on Monday evening, November 11, starting at 7:30. The contest will be judged and the winner will represent DeKalb County in a sub-district contest to be held in Albion on November 20. To defray expenses an admission charge of ten cents to all will be charged. The local school will present the playlet, "The Lord's Prayer" with a cast of three girls and three boys.

P. T. A. November 12

As previously announced Dr. C. A. Meigs, of Fort Wayne, will be our guest speaker at the P. T. A. on next Tuesday evening. He will use motion pictures and give us another one of his most practical talks on caring for the eyes. A local quartette will furnish music for this program.

The boys basket ball teams will play at Harlan on Friday night of this week. Remember that the local season opens here on Friday, November 15 with games with La-Otto H. S. boys teams.

The Junior Class jewely has arrived. Rings, bracelets and pins look very good.

Jack, Peggijo, Dale and Dolores Chorpening entered the local school last week. Formerly they had attended one of Franklin township's one room schools.

During the past week grades one to eight inclusive have been making contributions to the Junior Red Cross.

The group class pictures taken by Mr. Smith of Findlay, Ohio, were received Monday of this week.

First and Second

Sammy has returned to school after an absence due to the pink eye.

Margaret came to school on Monday.

Third and Fourth

Jean Hurni and Ned Keller won prizes at our masquerade party last Thursday.

Opal Kinsey was absent several days with the mumps.

Frances Reidenbach has returned to school after several days absence due to mumps.

All were delighted with the Halloween party Thursday afternoon very much. Nearly all of the boys and girls were masked. Mary Likes receiving the prize for being the funniest and June Goldsmith for the prettiest. After the judging and the grand march, contests were held and games were played, then all enjoyed popcorn, candy, apples and cider.

The honor roll in speling last week consisted of Walter Fetters, Robert Ridgway, Mary Ellen Rude, Marilyn Zonker, Mary Close, James Hatch, Betty Keesler, Luella Strouse, Bernadine Wade, Ellen Zimmerman, Junior Freeburn and Mary Likes.

TWO SALES POSTED

Public sales are advertised for November 15, at the Roy Keller home west of St. Joe and on Nov. 19, at the Harry Thomas home, east of St. Joe on the Wm. Sommer farm. Watch for complete list in The News.

Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Simons, of Kendallville, are here assisting Rev. W. D. Koehnlein in a meeting at Milan Center Church, which began Sunday evening

R. H. C. ENTERTAIN HUSBANDS AND FRIENDS

The R. H. C. of Coburn's Corners entertained their husbands and friends to a 7 o'clock dinner Friday evening. One interesting feature of the party was that just the committee knew the place where the supper was to be. After roaming the streets of Hicksville for some time Rev. Scholes and wife, and Claud Mason and wife found the rest of the party at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hart, where Mrs. Hart and helpers served the five course supper.

Menu: Fruit cocktail, saltiness, sauteed perch, Chili sauce, escalloped potatoes, candied sweet potatoes, peas and carrots in patty shells, cabbage salad, cranberry relish, Harvard beets, cheese apple, rolls; butter, pickles, quince jelly, Waldorf salad, Snax, Sunshine cake, grape sponge, coffee, candy, nuts.

Music was furnished by Max Carr, Paul Carr and Vivian Killian. The party singing "The Nowadays Farmer" before the last course. After the dinner Mr. Hart, a grandson of A. E. Hart, gave some contests. Berniece Wilder led in some games before the dinner. The entire evening was greatly enjoyed by all present.

A Guest.

NEWVILLE LADY IS ASKING DIVORCE

A new divorce complaint in the DeKalb circuit court has been filed by Ellen M. Barnes, of Newville township.

Mrs. Barnes alleges that her husband, Joel H., struck and beat her, cursed and abused her. She left him before, but returned to him when he promised to reform. She says he resumed his cruel treatment and acquired a habit of drinking to excess.

The marriage of the couple took place Nov. 24, 1929, and the separation Monday. There are two children, Barbara Jean, 4, and Richard Albert, 2. The court is asked to require the defendant to pay the plaintiff $5 a week for the maintenance of the children and his wife's attorney's fees. She is represented by Howard S. Grimm.

SCHOOL CLASS MEETS

Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Shull entertained the school class of 1889 at their home last Sunday. At the noon hour a chicken dinner, with all the trimmings was served. Between courses each one present was asked to relate the funniest thing that happened during their school days and many pleasant recollections were recalled. The remainder of the day was spent in a social way. The only regret of those present was that some of the class could not meet with them this year.

As the shades of night began to fall they departed for their homes thanking Mr. and Mrs. Shull for the pleasant day spent in their home. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carper, of Auburn, Mrs. Hattie Fairfield and daughter, Helena, of Spencerville, Mr. and Mrs. John Ulm, Mrs. Chas. Koch, Mr. and Mrs. Shull and daughter, Virginia, and sons, Frank and Ned. The class will meet with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Koch next year.

FATHER'S DAY AND RALLY DAY

The Church of Christ in St. Joe will observe Father's Day and also Rally Day during the Bible School and Morning Worship hours on next Sunday, Nov. 10th.

MYERS RE-ELECTED AS COUNTY AGENT

T. E. Myers, of Auburn, was reelected DeKalb County Agriculture Agent Monday for a term of two years.

The action was taken by the county board of education at a meeting held in the office of Carl F. Stallman, county superintendent of schools, in the court house. Mr. Myers, in accordance with the custom, was formally nominated by the extension department of Purdue University and the members of the county board voted unanimously.

Before the vote was taken, talks in favor of the reappointment of Mr. Myers were made by Albert Yoder of Jackson township, president of the farm bureau, Lester Boger of Union township, secretary of the farm bureau, Arthur Lautzenhiser of Franklin township, chairman of the wheat program, Ralph Bartles of Jackson township, representing the cornhog program, Mrs. Fern Boyer, of Richland township, for the home bureau, and Mrs. Harry Foster of Fairfield township, acting for the social and educational department of the farm bureau.

These speakers all said that Mr. Myers and his office are important to the activities of their organizations.

Find Out

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it — in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

NO ALKALIES FOR ACID INDIGESTION

MILLIONS have found they do not need to drench their stomachs with strong, caustic alkalies. Physicians have said this habit often brings further acid indigestion. So much more safe and sensible to simply carry a roll of Tums in your pocket. Munch 3 or 4 after meals—or whenever troubled by heartburn, gas, sour stomach. Try them when you feel the effects of last night's party, or when you smoke too much. Tums contain a wonderful antacid which neutralizes acid in the stomach, but never overalkalizes stomach or blood. As pleasant to eat as candy and only 10c at any drug store.

LET JUNIOR MAKE OWN SIMPLE FROCK

PATTERN 9606

Lives there a Junior Miss who couldn't "fall" for this smart yet simple school frock? We just know she will want to make her first fall frock from this pattern, because it's so very easy to cut, assemble and stitch, and if Mother is too busy to supervise the operation, take the pattern and some pretty cotton to sewing class and work on it there. The youthful, square neck adopts a scarf-like collar to slip under its tab, the puffed sleeves have a hearty slash. Action pleats grace back bodice and skirt, a box pleat, the side front skirt.

Pattern 9606 may be ordered only in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 12 requires 2⅝ yards 36 inch fabric and ⅝ yard contrasting. Complete diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 232 West Eighteenth St., New York, N. Y.

Floyd Gibbons ADVENTURERS' CLUB Hello, Everybody!

"Man-Eating Dogs"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

HERE'S a yarn from a country that has produced many an adventurer and many a rip-snorting good adventure.

The scene is laid on the bleak coast of Labrador, one of the coldest spots of northern Canada, and the episode I am now about to relate—from the life of Richard Mercer—is one of the most terrifying tales that ever came out of that stormy territory.

It was back in October, 1902, and Dick Mercer was a lad of 14. He was working on a boat that lay at anchor off the Sandy islands, and he ran into his life's biggest adventure while doing nothing more spectacular than going down to get the mail.

Getting mail in Labrador, though, isn't the simple process it is in more civilized localities.

The mail boat out there only stopped at headlands along the coast—left the mail there for the people in the interior, and those up in the bays to come and get it.

Dick had a comparatively easy trip, compared to some of them.

It was only three miles by land from where his boat was anchored to the settlement where the mail was left.

Adventures in Labrador Happen Almost Anytime.

But it was over a rough trail through deserted country, and you can find a dozen adventures on three miles of a Labrador trail.

Dick started out right after breakfast, armed with nothing but a short stick to help him over the rough spots of the trail.

He had covered about three-quarters of a mile, when suddenly, from a patch of underbrush, two huskies, or Eskimo dogs, came out to meet him.

"Up in that country," says Dick, "they have a lot of those dogs. They're mean, vicious animals, quite capable of killing a man. Their owners put them out on the islands in the summer—carry boat-loads of fish over to feed them.

"Then, in the fall, they're brought back to the mainland, not any too well fed, and very dangerous."

Those two dogs came out of the underbrush snapping and snarling. Dick chased them off with his stick and continued on his way.

He hadn't gone more than another half mile when he heard a yelping and barking behind him, and turned to see a whole pack of dogs swarming up the trail after him.

"Right there," says Dick, "is where I got the scare of my life. And, brother, that sort of a scare makes the old thinking apparatus work mighty fast.

The Brain Plays Tricks at a Time Like This.

"I could picture someone finding a skeleton and wondering who it belonged to—remembered tales of other days, of men writing notes telling the finder that these same animals were even then tearing through the weak roof of the shack they were in with frenzied efforts to get at them.

"I Went After Them, Swinging the Stick from Side to Side."

"I didn't even have a shack to protect me long enough to write a note. I wished then that I had brought a rifle along. It might not have done any good, but at least I could have shot down a few of them before they got me."

On they came up the trail. Dick racked his brain for some plan of meeting the emergency. Should he run? That would be worse than useless. They would be tearing him to the ground before he got 50 feet.

Throw stones at them? Dick looked around for some, but there weren't any in sight. There didn't seem to be anything else to do, so he took a stand and raised his slender stick to fight it out as best he could.

"The dogs," says Dick," came up to within eight or ten feet of me, stopped suddenly and started to pile up on top of one another, snarling and foaming at the mouth.

"My spine felt like a cake of ice and the muscles of my face twitched with fear. My body seemed to be paralyzed, but I had to do something and do it quick.

"I noticed that while they stayed a little distance away from me, they kept circling—trying to get around behind me.

"That, I knew, mustn't happen. I remembered, too, hearing of the dog drivers handling their dogs by making their long whips whistle through the air, and figured that if they were afraid of a whip, they might be afraid of a stick, too. So I went after them, swinging the stick from side to side.

Dick Battles Exhaustion as Well as Dogs.

"They gave ground, but as soon as I turned to go they came on worse than ever. I couldn't retreat from them—that was just what they were waiting for.

"So I did the only other thing I could. I maneuvered around them until I got them between me and the place for which I was heading and began driving them on before me."

Dick was almost exhausted now from a combination of fright and exertion. But he pushed on after the dogs, striking at them with his stick when they lagged, driving them on toward the settlement.

The dogs retreated before him until he had almost reached his destination, and then they ran off up a trail leading in another direction.

Dick told the story when he got the mail, and the men there told him he was lucky to get out of it alive.

They gave him a gun for protection on the way back, but he made the return trip without seeing even a sign of a dog.

Use Vines Around Homes to Keep Reptiles Away

Negroes in the southern states have faith in various "safe" plants. They plan calabash vines and gourds of certain kinds so that they will grow on their cabins or along the garden fences to keep the reptiles away by their odor. The pungent, fishy smell of the leaves of the horseshoe geranium is another, among the many plants ignorantly regarded as safeguards, or somehow connected with snakes.

Careful investigation shows that such superstitious precautions are useless, and, further, botanists assure us, says a writer in the Montreal Herald, that no North American plant is feared or avoided by any snake, venomous or otherwise. The placing of the ash-tree among these false protectors is probably a forgotten importation from the outworn ideas of former times in the Old World. Early colonists brought here many bits of ancient lore in natural history, but finding that most of them fitted badly in the new circumstances they were gradually abandoned. Now and then a fragment turns up. The pioneer farmers in Massachusetts relied upon a cathartic medicine made of the leaves and bark of the white ash as a cure for snakebite—especially that of the rattler. One historian quotes an old statement that New England birds fly to that tree and bring back leaves to cover their eggs "when the crawling enemy is seen in the neighborhood, since the rattler always avoids white ash."

Black Plague Killed Many

The Black Death (bubonic plague) killed more people than any war, earthquake or flood in history. It is estimated that more than 25,000,000 persons were killed by the plague.

WHAT YOUTH NEEDS MOST

YOUTH is often maligned and sometimes given credit for the trend of the times by some middle-aged pseudo-philosophers. This is avowedly unjust and untrue. After almost two decades of close contact with both generations young and old, I have come to the conviction that the older generation has dodged some definite and fundamental obligations to youth along moral and spiritual lines. If the moral tone is lowered today, and I say "if" since some people think so, I firmly believe it cannot be laid upon the shoulders of youth.

Not long ago a minister in Chicago said to me, "It is surprising and distressing, isn't it, how modern youth looks on love and marriage?" "No," I said, "this is not as surprising to me as how middle age looks on love and marriage today, for the divorces are coming largely from the older generation. What else could we expect from youth with such examples to follow?"

Youth learns largely by imitation. Children learning to talk, speak correctly or otherwise, as they hear it in the home. The same is true of behavior. Because of this fact, one of the deepest needs of youth today is the need for "models more than critics."

A young lad who was once dropped from his college for gambling, made the plea for himself that he had heard his father from childhood speak of his gains from gambling with friends in clubs, races and sports. A young undersized freshman once told me how clever her parents were in securing half rate fares for her through her high school years. This as an ethical question had never even occurred to her. Her parents were her pattern.

There is a deep need in the lives of youth today, as I see it, a need of more enlightened parenthood. Establishment of homes as centers where human life is developed along the highest lines physically, emotionally and intellectually; homes where parents are models, not masters of their children.

If our silver screens would go as far in educating our youth for noble manhood and womanhood as they have assiduously torn down the ideals of our youth about love, marriage and home life, there would be no need today of a crusade of decency against them. One other and greatest of all needs, which looms large as a forgotten responsibility of the older generation to the younger one, is the need of spiritual interpretation of the world today. Some one has rightfully said we are living in the Twentieth century scientifically, but only in the Sixteenth century spiritually. Are we equipping youth to finely manage these scientific forces of the world, for if this power be mismanaged, civilization's light may be extinguished.

YOUTH LOOKS AT MIDDLE AGE

A CHARMING young freshman with bobbed curly hair sat facing me across my desk one morning recently. She had failed in mathematics. "Did you ever fail in high school?" I asked. "Yes, once," she answered, "but that was the teacher's fault." "Why do you think so?" I inquired. "Because she was too old to teach," came the ready response. "Too old? How old was she?" Young seventeen looked out of the window with narrowed eyelids, and thinking a moment, came back with this remark: "If she was a day, she was thirty-five." The surprise was like a cold dip to me, for I, too, was above thirty-five. I drew her into conversation about her teacher, and discovered the following. "She rarely smiled," said the girl, "the students annoyed her and became afraid of her. She not only refused invitations to our parties, but ridiculed them; she was always criticising youth. This is why I am sure she was too old to teach." In my heart I agreed with this child before me, for "age is a thing of the spirit, not years." One can never reach the heart of youth by negative criticism alone. Praise and encouragement warm their hearts and make them grow. For "the way to make a man is to think him one." The process we call "growing old" does not mean withdrawal from joy and happiness. Rather it is fulfillment of life's richest experiences.

We all have seen men and women past the sixties who are twenty years young, whose capacity for deep enjoyment and self-realisation far surpasses that of inexperienced youth. Youth should be taught that life is a progression, of which youth is not the apex. It is wrong to tell youth their "teen time" is the happiest, for this is untrue. Adolescence is the most carefree time, but who wants to live continuously without life's obligations? Just as the sunset brings deeper colors than the dawn, the fall trees and flowers richer shades than spring, so is this growing old, "the best . . . yet to be, the last for which the first was made."

Lives like this grow more radiant as the years pass. When we cease to grow, we begin to grow old. This is the secret, let us keep our hearts young even though our hair grows gray.

NOW HE KNOWS HOW

Charles (Buddy) Rogers insists he isn't thinking of marriage, but he had a lot of week-end experience in watching others take the plunge at Olathe, Kan. Buddy's father, Judge Bert Rogers, announced gleefully he had married 35 couples in two days. He attributed the rush to the presence of his actor-son. They all wanted Buddy for witness.

EATS OATMEAL TO HELP KEEP FIT

● It may be one of Nature's lowest cost foods, but lucky is the boy or girl who gets it for breakfast every morning.

Many are nervous, poor in appetite, system out of order, because their daily diets lack enough of the precious Vitamin B for keeping fit.*

Few things keep them back like a lack of this protective food element.

So give everyone Quaker Oats every morning. Because in addition to its generous supply of Vitamin B for keeping fit,* it furnishes food-energy, muscle and body-building ingredients. For about ½c per dish.

Start serving it tomorrow for a 2-weeks test. Quaker Oats has a wholesome, nut-like, luscious appeal to the appetite. Flavory, surpassingly good. All grocers supply it.

*Where poor condition is due to lack of Vitamin B

IN VITAMIN B FOR KEEPING FIT . . .

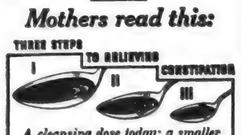
VANITY JUSTIFIED

If vanity is ever justifiable, it is in having a face that lends a reserved and reticent boy to tell his troubles to you.

DOCTORS KNOW

Mothers read this:



A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

Why do people come home from a hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch?

The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives.

If you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the secret of any real relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help. The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara — both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularity.

MILNESIA WAFERS

It's a Season of Glamor and Glitter

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

STYLE prophets predict a season of dazzling effects and sumptuous dress. According to the signs of the times women will sparkle from morning to night this fall and winter.

Their silk velvets will be embroidered with strass. Their wool-like silks will be elaborated with gilt braid. Sleeve ends and collars worked in a solid mass of huge sequins will challenge the supremacy of fur on evening coats. Silk chiffons will be beaded and silk crepes paillette for formal wear either in allover patterning or confining their glitter to belts and angel sleeves or scarfs. Gorgeous silk lame lapels will adorn evening tailleurs with which matching lame turbans and blouses, bags and belts will be worn.

Jeweled ornaments will hold the drapes of harem skirts and clasp shirred and bloused bodices. Seed pearls will make chokers (new high collar fashion) and form passementerie embroidery—thus the story of glitter and glamor might run on ad infinitum.

Fabrics weighted down with beading, embroideries, sequins and jeweled ornamentation must hold and not pull out of shape. Women want their cloky surfaced silks to stay in, their crinkles to remain crinkled. They want to be assured that their taffetas will stay crisp, their chiffons and crepes not to grow sleazy and sloppy and so they are coming to realize more and more that care and discrimination must be exercised in choosing quality-kind fabrics. Which explains the reason why the demand for silks that are pure silk (the inherent elasticity of silk is important) is more insistent this season than it has been in many a previous year. So much for the practical side of the question and now let us turn to the models pictured with a view to studying each individually since they are so charmingly illustrative of the current trend to glitter, glamor and to dazzling effects in the silk parade of fall and winter fashions.

The beauteous model to the left is fashioned of rich silk lame in a delectable tone of blue, shot with silver. The square decolletage is set off by jeweled clips the like of which also form the buckle for the belt. The short sleeves are interestingly cut on kimono lines, giving fullness to sleeves and shoulder.

Eastern influence in evening fashions is most pronounced. Note the sari shawl of gold sequins which envelopes head and shoulders, adding brilliance to the stately black gown pictured to the right, which is made of a handsome silk velvety sheer. A tunic effect is simulated via an adroitly positioned ruffle on the skirt whose princess lines are slenderizing in a subtly sophisticated way. This ruffle ties at the back in a clever pose. The smartest dressed women regard black with the glittering note as first in fashion this season.

Greatest enthusiasm is shown for the cocktail dress or suit that adopts street length, it being a new entrant in the formal realm. The girl seated is wearing such a suit, its formality attested in the silk metal cloky tunic jacket with the now-so-fashionable frog fastening at the waistline. The afternoon dress is of a grainy silk crepe in the same aqua blue shade as the metal cloky which fashions the jacket. A jeweled clip accents the draped neck. The peaked beret with its ornamental veil is high-style in its every detail.

Nature's Ice Box O. K.; Keeps Food 33 Years

Nature's ice box has even the best of mechanical refrigerators skinned when it comes to food preservation. Keeping food in good condition for years is no trick at all for natural cold storage plants such as the Antarctic wastes. According to Dr. Dana Coman, physician and dietician for the Lincoln Ellsworth-Sir Hubert Wilkins expedition, food left in a shack in the South Polar region 33 years ago was found to be still edible when discovered. The long-preserved food supplies were left by a Norwegian explorer, Otto Nordenskjold, in 1902.—Washington Post.

Our Conscience

Conscience is not merely a quality that inspires regret; it is often a principle that removes the faintest desire to do wrong in the first place.

"X" MARKS SPOT

A business man, who enjoyed spending "a night out with the boys" now and then, had a friend to stay with him for the week-end. When the guest was being shown up to his room he noticed that there were faint crosses on several of the steps. He asked the reason. "Ah," whispered the host, "these come into operation after midnight. X means that the step creaks."—Capper's Weekly.

"My baking gets more bouquets—and I save, too!"

SAYS MRS. C. H. McINTOSH, 854 EASTWOOD AVENUE, CHICAGO, ILL.

Lowest Prices Ever on Calumet Baking Powder!

"IT'S certainly good news that Calumet is selling at new low prices," Mrs McIntosh says. "I do a lot of baking, and when I can get a full pound can of reliable Calumet for only 25c, I'm pretty pleased with myself!"

Her son Jack settles down to some of Mother's famous coffee cake, and pays for it with a big smile.

AND LOOK AT THE NEW CAN! A simple twist...and the Easy-Opening Top lifts off. No delay, no spilling, no broken fingernails!

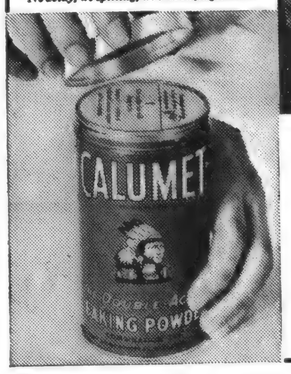
WHY IS CALUMET DIFFERENT from other baking powders? Why do you have to use only one level teaspoonful of Calumet to a cup of sifted flour in most recipes?

Because Calumet combines two distinct leavening actions. A quick action for the mixing bowl—set free by liquid. A slower action for the oven—set free by heat.



New! Big 10¢ Can!...

Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder, is now selling at the lowest prices ever...The new-size can is yours for a dime! And the regular price of the Full-Pound Can is only 25c! A product of General Foods.

TAILORED JERSEY

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Wool jersey comes into its own, in that leading style creators are using it for their practical daytime dresses. The vogue for gray is increasingly apparent. There is a new beige-gray tone which is especially good style. Color accents on gray is fashion's latest message. The gray-beige jersey two-piece frock here shown is contrasted with a gay green and multicolor scarf with belt in matching green tone. The one-piece tailleur buttons down the front. It is fashioned of fine jersey in natural beige tone with trim accents in deep wine.

Matching Gloves

Handbags and gloves that match exactly as far as color is concerned are a smart accessory note. Wine and pine green are two popular colors.

HIGH HAT THE WORD IN FALL MILLINERY

It's a high-hat season.

One of the newest high hats in the fall parade is the domino crown turban, which has a rolled edge and a little square topknot that sticks straight up in the air exactly like an enlarged domino.

It's shown in velours and suede, with a small fly-away bow in front, and is a pretty trick with some of the new fur coats.

Another top-knot idea is developed in a bonnet cap of black felt, with a big frou-frou bunch of black satin ribbon rising impudently from the top-front of the crown. Small scalloped loops of black satin edge the bonnet.

The Tyrolean urge is still with us, in casual brimmed sports hats of velours or felt, with high, peaked crowns and perky quills.

Wool Dress Can Be Worn for Almost Any Occasion

Jean Patou has created one of those all-time dresses which can be worn for almost any occasion.

This dress is in brown wool with the back of the bodice and the sleeves of the taffeta in brown, green and red plaid. The accompanying jacket of brown wool has wide revers of brown caracul and turn-back cuffs of the same fur. The costume is completed by the Patou thimble hat in brown felt. The narrow brim turns way up in back and far down in front and a bright red quill is its only trimming.

Goldfish Used as Buttons

Tiny metal goldfish, with black-tipped fins and tails in approved goldfish style are used to button a knee-length tunic of a tea gown.

Narrow Braid Used

Narrow embroidered braid is set together with gold metal threads to form a colorful and unusual collar and cuff set worn on a black crepe frock.

Composition Feathers

Feathers of composition, in very vivid shades for velour hats, are among novelties seen in the shops.

VOL. L. (50 Years) (In The St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, NOV. 14, 1935 NUMBER 46

HUGE STOCK SHOW TO OPEN NOVEMBER 30TH

Preparations are underway to receive a record breaking entry of live stock and farm crops at the 1935 International Live Stock Exposition which will be held for the 36th year at the Chicago Stock Yards. The Exposition will take place from November 30th to December 7th.

The show will be staged in the mammoth new amphitheatre, constructed last year on the same site as the buildings that had housed this largest stock show on the continent since 1900 and which were destroyed by fire in the Spring of 1934.

Record Show Predicted

Secretary manager B. H. Heide predicts that the Exposition will break its own past records for both attendance and exhibits this year. He bases his opinion upon the notable success of recent State Fairs, many of which established all time records for both number of exhibits and visitors.

In anticipation of the large turnout this year, extensive though the new quarters for the show are, the management is constructing an additional building to be connected with the ampitheatre and which will be used to stable horses. Construction was recently begun on the new building which will be completed shortly before the Exposition opens.

Though a final check on entries in the live stock departments, which close November 1st, has not yet been made, the management feels confident that the tally will be well above 12,000 animals by the time all nominations are in.

Exhibits From Australia

Held in connection with the live stock exposition is the International Grain and Hay Show, largest competitive crops contest in the world. Growers of nearly every state in the Union and province of Canada will be represented in this competition by samples of the past season's harvest. First entries were made by seven farmers from New South Wales who will exhibit wheat that earlier in the year had been awarded prizes at Australian shows.

Railroads entering Chicago have indicated that special excursion rates at attractive low round trip fares will be offered from points along their lines to Chicago during the first week of December for this event.

TWO INTERESTING LETTERS RECEIVED FROM INDIA

Below we reproduce two interesting letters received recently from Miss Agnes Dunn, who is an itinerant health nurse in the M. E. Mission School of North India. Because of Miss Dunn having relatives here, having visited St. Joe community a number of times, and and made addresses in the churches here, we feel more than a passing interest in her letters:

Here they are:

"Vacation days are over. I'm monarch of all I survey medically at Tilaunia as we only have a doctor a couple of days every two or three weeks. In the Dispensary sometimes its teeth to extract, sometimes boils to lance, sore and sore eyes, malaria, rheumatism, heartaches, colds and dysentery are the most common of the every day treatments.

"One day while Mrs. Tobit, the Indian evangelist, was holding meetings here, and I was on duty in the words, little Ruth said, "Sister nurse ban gayi!" i. e. "Sister has become a nurse!" Evidently she thot we missionary nurses hadn't had nurse's training, as we usually just supervise.

One day I had a new experience, giving Antivenom serum for snake bite, also lanced the finger. It couldn't have been a poisonous snake or the man would have been dead before he reached me, I think. In 2½ hours his arm was swoolen to the elbow. The third day it began to go down and he was working within five days.

Two days ago I was called to the village to see a woman who was bruised by a fall. I found a white calf tied out in the "hall," and its mother inside where the parents' bed was. Had to ask some one to make the cow get over by the wall before I could get to the bed. However, the patient was sitting on the floor beside the bed, instead of lying in as she should have done with an injured back such as she had!

One day I was sitting near the outside door in our Padri Sahilo house, and when along came his cow. I had to move to let her pass. In the winter the animals help to keep the houses warm! In summer? ? ! !

Mrs. Tobit was with us a week and many of us were wakened and strengthened by her spiritual messages. I was so anxious that she stress the practical side so the results would be lasting. Of course the missionaries must do their part, leading and encouraging. We are putting before them the girls and workers, several definite points to use as measuring sticks each day—giving them more chance for witnessing, and above all striving to be ourselves better examples of the height and depth and breadth of God's love.

One result I must tell you about. Kallu, our sweeper, Ghisi, his wife, and their four little girls lived in one room. We can't build them another room just now, but two rooms were vacant into which they could move. I told them to move. They said, "No Miss Sahib, we can't do that, the other people wouldn't like it!" Well, after the meetings the people who live nearest the two rooms were willing, and they have moved. For even tho christians they are looked down upon because of their work. We count this a great victory. Do pray for us.

Last night Mary* and I had a delightful moonlight walk around the Hill on which we live.

The moon, white fleecy clouds, mountains, trees and the lights of Mussoorie, just below us, were lovely. It is a boon indeed to have a vacation where Our Father's love is so manifest in nature. Where "the mists roll in splendor from the beauty of the hills." The refreshment for soul and body, which is so sorely needed for the coming "Steamy" days on the plains, is bound to come in such surroundings. It is good to be with Mary even tho she is very busy with 'Urdu.' I, too, am having a teacher an hour a day hoping to improve my Hindustan.

The very day I started to the hills I finished teaching a class in school nursing, of the six nurses in the class four were from Brindaban and two from Brielly. The educational requirements of both hospitals have been raised with the result that we are getting better nurses.

Four wrote their notes and examinations in English, two in Urdu. They were more interested in making posters, I fear, than in learning how to take hard wax out of ears and tartar off teeth, but one can hardly blame them for that. I wish you could see the 'fly and milk' poster in particular. Speaking of teeth—I took the nurses to the 'Ymere School' for two days to learn how to scale teeth. During thae timt I extracted fifteen teeth in spite of the fact that Miss Fernstrom had gone over them in November. In May our Hindu washerman's wife died leaving little Kasturi, seven year old and married, alone with her father and brother.

They live on our compound so I'm trying to mother her a bit—seeing that she has baths and clean clothes, that hair gets combed, that she goes to school and Sunday School and giving her some of the love every little girl needs. I've told her father that if he lets her go to her husband's house before she is 16 he will have to leave our Compound. (He has been with us ten years.)

There is much evangelistic work as well as many other things to be done just on our Compound. Our Sweepers have been lately baptized but cannot read so can only learn more of the Bible and hymns and Chirstian way of life by word of mouth. With this in view I'm having them come to the Padri Sahib's house twice a week, I go also and am learning the Ten Commandments with them, (in Urdu of course.) When I return (to Tilaunia) I want to have Mrs. Tobit, a consecrated woman, come and hold special meetings for all. We need a "stirring." Easter Sunday I spent in Buduan, where a very beautiful service is held in the hours just before dawn—candles, singing, lilies, worship. One enters into the spirit of the day more than ever before, unless it be when worshiping on some hilltop at home at sunrise.

India has just celebrated the king's "silver jubilee," during which time a great deal of money was given for hospitals and social work. No more was this over until Quetta was destroyed by earthquake. It covered only one-half the territory of the "Bihar Quake" 18 months ago, but five times as many people were killed. Figures now stand at 40,000 or more. The thousands of injured are being taken to hospitals 5 and 700 miles away. Our church has work there. The buildings were all destroyed but the Padi and family are all safe. Quetta is on the border and so far away that we felt nothing of the shock.

With this story told at table I'll close.

Litle Soni was eating cucumbers in Miss Sahib's garden, but she could not catch her in the act. So one day after she knew she had been eating them she said, "Soni, I'm going to give you some medicine that will tell me the truth about the cucumbers." Ipecac was the medicine. Nuf sed. For months the children on the Compound were very truthful.

Yours in His Service,
Agnes Dunn.

* Mary. Mary Gordon the girl she too back with her when she returned to India.

 Sweepers the lowest caste.

A FOE TO OUR YOUTH— TUBERCULOSIS

Use of Tubercuolsis Christmas Seals on all December mail is urged by Dr. Stanley Coulter, Seal Sale Chairman for Indiana.

"The official Christmas Seal bears the double barred cross, the international emblem of the tuberculosis movement, and represents hope for the sick. It represents, too, a movement that has played a large part in reducing tuberculosis mortality in this country by almost two-thirds during the last quarter of a century. In Indiana 4,021 persons died of this preventable disease in 1915, whereas in 1934 1,788 persons answered the call of death. Here is real life saving."

Dr. Coulter was Dean of Men at Purdue University for thirty years and since his retirement has devoted his life as a volunteer worker in the cause of health conservation.

"Most patients who come to the sanatorium are in the moderately or far advanced stages of the disease," said Dr. Coulter. "Early tuberculosis is comparatively easy to cure but when the disease is discovered late the process of curing is a long, costly one not always sure of success.

"Although the decrease in tuberculosis mortality has been remarkable, tuberculosis still kills more persons between 15 and 45 than any other disease. It is the foe of youth, and exacts its greatest toll during the prime of life.

"These facts clearly indicate the necessity of a continuous campaign against tuberculosis such as is carried on in Indiana. Christmas Seals are the sole support of this campaign. Upon them depend the chest clinics, the sanatorium consultation service, school demonstrations, public health nursing work, tuberculosis studies in high schools and colleges and the general year around educational campaign on the nature, cause, prevention and treament of tuberculosis."

SCHOOL NOTES

Local Cast Wins

On Monday evening the DeKalb County One Act Play contest was held in the local school auditorium with Ashley and the local school in competition. Miss Carol Dawson of the Auburn High School was the judge. Her decision gave the local cast a score of 92 and Ashley 85.

This decision means that the local school wil represent DeKalb County in the sub-district contest to be held in Albion on Wednesday evening of next week in competition with winning schools from LaGrange, Noble and Steuben Counties.

Ersa Reidenbach and Donald Borthwick played the leading parts in "The Lord's Prayer." Other parts were played by Eileen Gaff, Louise Sechler, Devere Woodcox, Kenneth Richmond, Charles Hart and Wayne Storer. Miss Eloise Bowman directed the play.

Won Two Games

On last Friday evening the local school's basketball teams journeyed to Harlan where they won both games. The St. Joe Reserves scored a 17 to 15 victory while the local regulars battled their way to a 21 to 20 victory over Harlan's best.

Local Season Opens

Friday evening LaOtto High School teams come to St. Joe for first and second team games. A large attendance at the opening home games is assured. Come early and get a good seat.

Beulah Storer and Harriett Yeiser are the local yell leaders this year. They will be assisted by Barbara Stroh and Annabell Stewart.

Special Assembly

At 2:45 on Friday afternoon a special assembly will be held to afford local school pupils the opportunity to see the local cast present their one act play "The Lord's Prayer" since the stormy weather of Monday evening kept so many at home. Parents and friends of the school are also invited to be present. A small admission fee of five cents will be charged to decrease the deficit incurred in connection with the county contest and to pay the royalty fee for the use of the play again at Albion. Help our school send the cast to Albion!

Playground Fund Benefit

Come to the gymnasium on next Tuesday evening and see the magician—Hurd. Buy your tickets in advance for the school realizes forty per cent on advance sales. Two of our teachers saw Mr. Hurd in a program at Angola on October 18 and recommend this program as being much above the average. The school will use the proceeds to purchase much needed playground equipment.

The program to be presented by Hurd is said to be most unique. He does not use one thing back of the front curtain belonging to the auditorium. He carries all his scenery and paraphernalia which is a rich simplicity of elegance, characteristic of the classic performance he has to offer.

Red Cross Membership

Within the next few days you will be invited to become a member of the American Red Cross. The local teachers are conducting the local campaign. If you will send in your dollar with one of the pupils we will see that your membership card, window emblem, and red cross badge reach you promptly.

P. T. A.

Rev. H. K. Schondelmayer, A. M. Baker and Bruce Gerdes provided special music for the P. T. A. meeting on Monday evening of this week. Dr. C. A Meigs was the guest speaker and presented his message by means of a hand operated Magnavox or sound pictures

First and Second

Pupils in our room who have been absent include Patty Chorpenning, Ruby Collins, Edward Casselman, Patty Harris, James Hart and Carrol Wade.

We have an easel and some paints in our room.

We have red, blue, green, yellow, white, brown, and black colors.

We make pretty pictures.

We write stories about our pictures.

We are careful when we paint.

Third and Fourth

The Third Grade children are making a study of Indians.

Beverly Wade has been absent this week with the mumps.

WITH OUR CLUB LADIES

FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF LADIES' LITERARY CLUB

At the regular meeting night of the Ladies' Literary Club last Wednesday evening, the fortieth anniversary of the Club was delightfully celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Leighty in St. Joe. All active members were present for the occasion, as well as many honorary members and guests.

Mrs. Ines Hadsell, chairman for the program, presided at the meeting, which consisted of interesting, well arranged numbers. The program was officially opened when Mrs. Nina Kees read the collect, followed by group singing of the club song, written by Delora Curie.

Mrs. Addie Patterson, of Fort Wayne, gave a charming talk in which she told the story of how the club was organized forty years ago, citing many amusing details and pleasant memories. Mrs. Patterson also read a poem which she arranged in honor of the club anniversary:

Old Years and New

"Old years and new years, all blended into Forty,
The best of what there is to be, the best of what is gone—
Let's bury all the failures in the dim and dusty past
And keep the smiles of friendship and laughter to the last.

"Old years and new years, life's in the making still;
We haven't come to glory yet, but there's the hope we will;
The dear old years were forty long, but now from them we're free,
And what's one year of good or bad, to all the years to be.

"Old years and new years, we need them one and all
To reach the dome of character and build its sheltering wall;
Past failures tried the soul of us, but if their tests we stood,
The sum of what are yet to be may be counted good.

"Old years and news years, with all their pain and strife,
Are but the bricks and steel and stone with which we fashion life;
So put the sin and shame away, and keep the fine and true,
And on the glory of the past let's build the better new."

The gathering enjoyed the music of Mrs. Harriett Koehnlein, who played a beautiful piano arrangement of a tone poem. Preceding Mrs. Delora Curie's part on club reminiscences, Avis Staman, Lora Leighty and Harriett Koehnlein sang "Memories" accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Koehnlein.

Mrs. Curie, with help of members and guests, called to mind interesting meetings back thru the years of club work. A poem was read that had been written by the late Millie Benninghoff to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the club.

Following the program both the present and past members mingled happily to visit, over a two-course supper served by the hostesses to approximately forty people. The guests were seated at attractively appointed card tables. To each place-card was fastened a large cork wrapped in silver crepe paper which held a tiny, button chrysanthemum. Favors for guests and honorary members were small, gay address and note books.

On the committee assisting Mrs. Hadsell and Mrs. Leighty in the evening's entertainment were the Mesdames Mary Schondelmayer, Harriett Koehnlein, Lillian Buckingham, Cora Curie, and Miss Janalyce Rouls.

Out of town guests for the evening were the Mesdames Addie Patterson, Mary Bartlett, Marguerite Hercules, Joy Goldsmith, Lela Northrup and Miss Laura Shutt, all of Fort Wayne; Mrs. Belle Barney, of Hicksville, O.; Mrs. Pauline Baumgartner and Mrs. Winifred Shook, of Spencerville; Mrs. Martha Kennedy, Garrett; Mrs. Carrie Morr and daughter, Mrs. Cleota Crick, of Concord.

Mrs. Florence Goldsmith, a newly elected member and Mrs. Virginia Leighty, both of St. Joe, were also present.

ATTENTION CHURCH SCHOOL WORKERS

The Training Institute for the Children's Division will be held in Auburn, Church of God, corner of 10th and Jackson Sts., Nov. 21st. Afternoon session beginning at 1:30. Evening session at 7:30. Special feature for the evening session a Children's Chorus.

Pastors, Church School superintendents, Leaders of Children, and Parents are urged to attend. Miss Nellie C. Young, State Superintendent of Children's Division, will be with us during the Institute bringing helpful suggestions and inspiring messages.

Let us have the prayers and cooperation of your Church School Workers in making the Institute a success.

THEY ride with greater safety in the new Ford for 1936. It's not so much that V-8 engine power and pick-up whisk them clear of traffic tangles—although this, too, helps make the new Ford a safer as well as a more thrilling car to drive.

But it's mainly because every feature of the new Ford measures up to the standard of V-8 engine quality. The Ford Motor Company was not satisfied to put an engine from the luxury class in a car selling as low as $510. It insisted that everything else be in keeping with the fine-car quality beneath the hood—safety, as well as roominess and comfort.

Your neighborhood Ford dealer invites you to check critically and in detail the Ford's many luxury-class features.

Behind Every Feature of the 1936 Ford Is the Standard of V-8 Engine Quality

- Welded steel body protection
- Suro-acting Super-Safety Brakes
- Safety Glass in every window
- New easy steering, 17-to-1 ratio
- Welded one-piece steel wheels
- Wide wheel rims, wide tread tires
- Double channel, X-type frame
- Solid front axle, radius rods

$510 F. O. B. Detroit. Standard accessory group, including bumpers and spare tire, extra. All body types have Safety Glass throughout at no additional cost. Convenient, economical Universal Credit Company terms.

Mrs. Foster Gee and son, Eugene, spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cook, at Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Foltz accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Buckingham spent Sunday in the Mr. and Mrs. John G. Roos home at Findlay, Ohio, where they were joined by M. E. Foltz, of Cleveland, C. J. Foltz and family of Miller City, O., Mrs. C. C. Phipps, of Los Angeles, Calif., Mrs. Lillian Garno and daughter of Detroit, and Paul Roos, of Kalamazoo, Mich. Mrs. Phipps' visit East made the circle of six brothers and sisters complete.

Due to the heavy freeze last month and the frequent rains, the orchardists of our community suffered quite a loss by way of drops, thus putting many bushels of their heavy crop into the class of seconds instead of firsts. At the Leighty orchards several thousand bushels of York, Stark and Black Twig suffered by this severe change in the weather. The store room down town is filled to overflowing, and is now in process of grading. This supply will be readily exhausted by truckers, which were unable, last year, to meet the demands.

LOCAL LEGION CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

The seventeenth anniversary of the signing of the Armistice was observed Monday evening by Walter Whitehurst Post No. 283, American Legion, with pot luck supper and miscellaneous program for World War Veterans and their families. The following interesting program was rendered:

Music, St. Joe Valley Boys; Duet, Ersa Reidenbach and Louise Sechler; Group singing of wartime favorite songs; Reminiscences of Nov. 11, 1918; Song, Male Trio; Reading, Christine Zonker; Song, Billy Monroe; Remarks on founding, purpose, aims, and accomplishments of the American Legion also the big part of the Auxiliary in this program, Ralph Sechler; Song, Male Quatrette; Dismissal, Walter Coburn.

This being the first organized observation of Armistice Day in this section of DeKalb County and by the newly-formed American Legion Post, it was very gratifying to those in charge to note the interest displayed by an attendance of a large per cent of our membership, and guests, despite the inclement weather.

A Legion Post, the same as a person or any organization is known by its works. Therein lies the great possibilities for Walter Whitehurst Post No. 283 for Community Service and growth in membership. Our Post now has a paid-up membership for 1936, of 21, with a quota of 25, and a goal of 30 or more. With the interest now shown we feel the goal will be easily reached soon and the boys can jump into the big Legion program which lies ahead during the next year.

Excellent arrangements have been made for the use of the local K. of P. Hall and the Post is very appreciative of this accommodation offered us.

Election of officers will be held next Tuesday night, Nov. 19 and a public supper is being planned for Sat. night, Nov. 23.

The American Legion is now a very definite existence right here in our own community. It expects to help you and we of the Legion expect you to help us. With such cooperation we are bound to have a better community in which to live.

NO ARMISTICE

Eighteen yeears ago, on November 11, the greatest war in history came to an end. On that day an armistice was declared for the purpose of arranging terms of peace. But since then, and before, there has been going on a war that knows no armistice. On one side is the enemy tuberculosis; on the other is the human race. The human race has had a winning fight, yet the toll is still high. Last year 75,000 Americans lost their lives in this warfare, a greater number than fell victims of bullets during the entire period of the World War.

The ammunition used in this war consists of sanatorium beds, clinics, school health work, nursing service and health education methods to teach the public how health may be improved and tuberculosis prevented. The means of financing this program is obtained through the sale of Christmas Seals purchased generously by Hoosiers during the month of December.

On Armistice Day it is fitting and proper to give thought to this relentless war, and consider the program for the future and the possibility of an armistice. The soldiers in the front line trenches are the tuberculosis asociations standing shoulder to shoulder in a firm line facing the enemy. And as the troops engaged in the World War were aided by the people back home who supplied the necessities of warfare, so do our tuberculosis workers need the help of the public in making this battle for health successful.

The help asked is that everyone buy Christmas Seals and Christmas Seal bonds which will be offered to the public on Thanksgiving Day and throughout the Holiday Season. Make the season a gratifying one by a liberal purchase of these messengers of health and cheer.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS for LONG LAYING HOURS
and ELECTRIC INCUBATORS
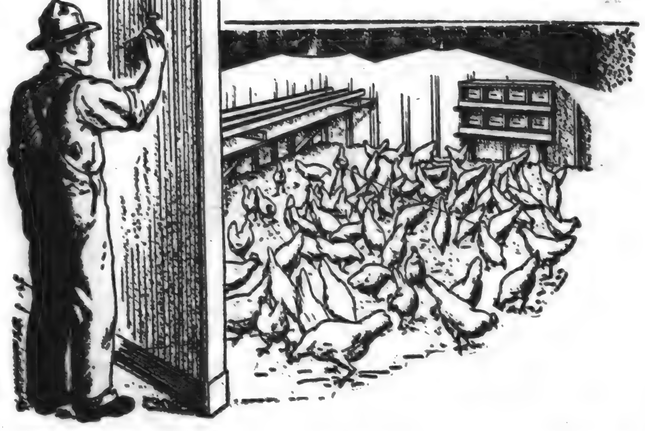
for STURDY CHICKS



SUCCESSFUL poultrymen are using electric lighting to increase feeding periods to fourteen hours. Without the lights to drive them to work, hens consume only enough food to keep up the body weight and heat on winter days, with their short daylight hours. This results in a let-down in production at the very season when prices are highest.

Electric lights solve the problem, effectively and at a low cost. With a simple, inexpensive lighting installation in the hen house, you can make the short days longer . . . longer working hours, more time to eat and drink, all mean greater egg production.

Electric incubators provide the two important elements in hatching chicks—automatic heat control and proper ventilation.

The hen as a mother of chicks is no longer practical or economical. The "electric hen," on the other hand, assures a maximum hatching of sturdier, healthier chicks.

Join all the other successful poultry farmers! Install Electricity and go to town with eggs and chicks!

VALLEY TEAMS SPLIT DOUBLE HEADER

St. Joe Valley's two entrants in the ranks of independent basket ball split even in a double header played at the St. Joe Gym last Saturday nite. The Merchants losing to the Roanoke Merchants by 21-20 in an overtime battle, and the Pickles trouncing the Roanoke Badgers in a fast game, 25-19.

Both games were extremely close and well played, affording the large crowd many thrills, and the moral support resulting was such as has been seldom seen in a game here.

The Merchants opened the evening's hostilities by battling the Roanoke Merchants on even terms throughout the game and losing in the overtime, only by a successful foul shot by a Roanoke forward. Reffner with seven and Woodcox with four markers were high scorers for the Merchants.

In the "night-cap," the Pickles held an early-gained advantage throughout the game and drew away to a six-point lead as the game ended. Irons with nine points, and Kinsey and Quinn with seven each, were leading point getters for the Pickles.

Both teams journey to Roanoke for return games Thursday of this week and would like to see some of the fans from the Valley there to support the boys on a foreign floor.

Red Cross Has Busy Year; Statistics Impressive; Services Varied

Figures gathered at random from the year's report of the American Red Cross reveal the magnitude of the work being carried on by that organization.

Red Cross workers assisted 54,305 veterans; 587 Red Cross Public Health nurses paid 921,455 visits to 186,336 patients; 98,441 first aid certificates were issued while 46,693 persons were trained in life saving. Volunteer workers produced 3,102,843 surgical dressings, with 80,901 volunteers being on active duty throughout the year.

First Aid Treatment Taught Thousands By Red Cross

More than 187,000 certificates showing completion of first aid courses were issued last year by the Red Cross. This shows a gain of 56,000 certificates over the previous year. Approximately 64,200 boys in C.C.C. camps throughout the country passed first aid tests. Since the Red Cross first entered the field of first aid teaching, being one of the first organizations in the world to do so, almost one million persons have been trained in handling emergency treatment.

The annual report of the Red Cross further reveals that more than 327,000 copies of the Red Cross Aid Handbook have been sold at home and abroad.

SEAL SALE TO START ON THANKSGIVING

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 20.—Marching 30 seconds apart, a lot of people could pass before you in 15 hours.

In those fifteen hours you would see the number of persons who died of tuberculosis in Indiana last year, according to figures supplied by the State Board of Health. Approximately 1,800 persons lost their lives to tuberculosis in this state last year.

"More than half of those were people in the most precious and valuable years of life—15 to 45 years of age," Dr. E. M. Amos, treasurer of the Indiana Tuberculosis Association, declared. The Indiana Tuberculosis Association is now conducting its annual Christmas Seal Sale with its affiliated groups throughout the state. Money raised by the sale of the Seals will be used to fight tuberculosis.

"Much has been made of the progress in the battle against tuberculosis," Dr. Amos says, "but when almost 1,800 persons die of the disease each year in this state and when tuberculosis still takes more lives between 15 and 45 than any other disease, it is easily seen that the work is far from done.

"Christmas Seals are the sole support of the organized fight against tuberculosis. Upon the Seal Sale this year depend the chest clinics, the nursing service, the school health work, more sanatorium beds and the tuberculosis studies in high schools and colleges for next year."

The Christmas Seal for 1935 will be on sale beginning on Thanksgiving Day and the cost at one cent each is within reach of everyone. This is a campaign in which all are given an opportunity to participate in the saving of lives and the upbuilding of health.

ASKING COURT FOR CUSTODY OF GIRLS

Hollis Wise, of S. Joe, in proceedings he has instituted in the DeKalb circuit court, seeks to regain legal custody of his twin daughters, June Irene and Joy Maxine.

The children are seven years of age and their mother is dead. John R. Linton and his wife, Minnie, of Jackson township, adopted them last Sept. 6 by an order entered in the DeKalb circuit court, Hollis Wise giving his consent.

Now, however, Wise wants the adoption order set aside. It is understood he has had a disagreement with the Lintons with respect to his right to visit his children. Mountz & Mountz represent Wise, while Sharpless & Gemmill are counsel for the Lintons.

WILMINGTON HOME BUREAU BUYS FIRST HEALTH BOND

The DeKalb County Tuberculosis Association received unsolicited an advance order for a $5.00 Health Bond last Thursday, from the Wilmington Township Home Bureau Club.

The annual sale of Health bonds and Christmas Seals starts the day after Thanksgiving day. Bonds from $5.00 to $100.00 and the little Christmas Seals at 1c each are offered to the public, the proceeds being used in the fight against tuberculosis.

In DeKalb County 77 cents of each $1.00 is used in DeKalb County in payment for the free clinics and for X-Rays when one is necessary to correctly diagnose a case and the patient is unable to pay for it. Health Educational Material is purchased and distributed in the hope of educating the public that an early diagnosis is usually a guarantee of an early recovery.

Mrs. Fred B. Leighty is chairman of St. Joe and Concord Township and will have charge of the Seal Sale this year and in Spencerville and Spencer Township Mrs. Clyde Rectenwall is in charge.

SCIENCE DISCOVERS

the chief causes of Cooking Failures

We have the Newest Electric Range Models. Styled by Individual Designers to Meet the Demands of Modern Women for Beautiful Cooking Equipment.

SCIENCE has sifted the cause of cooking failures and found that it is not necessarily the ingredients you use. Far more often it is the lack of absolute control over cooking temperature and oven moisture.

$15 ALLOWANCE for YOUR OLD STOVE

But science has remedied that with the modern electric range. The oven is draftless and moisture is always under control. The "Chef's Brain" (automatic timer clock) cooks entire meals while you're away.

A YOUNG PIONEER

When several hundred families were sent to Alaska from the Middle West to settle the Matanuska Valley, the Red Cross sent a nurse, Madeleine de Foras, to remain with them for a year to help protect their health. Among the first friends she made were the little pioneer, Arthur Hack, 4 years old, and "Prince," the pup who went with his young master to Alaska.

SCHOOL NOTES

Spencerville Here Friday Night

A packed gymnasium is expected for the basketball games to be played here on Friday evening with the Spencerville boys teams. Robert and Donald Meese, of Monroeville, will be the officials to work these games. Come early and get a good seat.

Split Bill With Wawaka

On last Thursday LaOtto H. S. telephoned that it would be necessary to postpone their game scheduled for the next night due to the fact that their school had been closed due to a scarlet fever scare. Using the telephone we secured Wawaka High School to fill that opening on our schedule. The LaOtto teams will come on January 11th.

St. Joe's second team consisting of Goodwin, Like, Sechler, F. Richmond, Borthwick, Kees and Wiers scored a 28 to 26 victory over the Wawaka reserves. Goodwin was high point man making a total of 16 points.

The final game was quite interesting but Wawaka's veteran team emerged victor by a score of 42 to 30. Two St. Joe boys went out on personals—Frank Monroe and Wayne Storer. Others seeing service in this game were Thornton, K. Richmond, Wyatt, Curie, Woodcox, and Goodwin.

Thanksgiving recess comes on Thursday and Friday of next week.

LaVern Reas has withdrawn from school.

The warm lunch service is being well patronized by pupils this year.

Seniors are now talking "class play." The same will be presented early in January.

Local teachers attended the DeKalb County teachers institute on Saturday of last week.

DeKalb County high schools are being represented by a cast from the local high school in the subdistrict one act play contest being held in Albion. The winner of this contest will go to the final or district contest in Central High School in Fort Wayne next week.

Through pupil contributions 8 subscriptions to the Junior Red Cross News have been ordered.

Have you taken membership in the Red Cross for 1936? The full time teachers are members 100% strong.

Hurd Program Well Attended

The school was pleased with the excellent attendance given for Hurd the magician. Mr. Hurd's program was exceptionally good. Pupils who lead in advance ticket sales were Gerald Gee, Frank Monroe, James Harris, Melvin Zimmerman and Helen Goodwin.

First and Second

Pupils absent in our room are Betty Inlow, Beccy Inlow, Sammy Kees, Glen Epler, Harold Curie, and Ruby Collins.

The first grade boys and girls are making color books.

Third and Fourth

Patricia Carpenter is entertaining the mumps this week.

Marianne Wiers, Donald Yeiser and Mrs. Hull were visitors in our room recently.

On Monday we made Thanksgiving spelling booklets.

Spelling honor roll for this month includes April Bowser, Calvin Hull, Opal Kinsey, Billy Monroe, Leola Sechler, Franklin Shuff, June Strong, Mary Evelyn White, Helen Wiers, Leora Wilmot, Rosemary Yeiser, Gloria Zonker, Patricia Carpenter, Donald Freeburn, Virginia George, George Harris, Jean Hurni, James Kees, Betty Rudolph, Maurice Shuff, and Louise Woodcox.

Fifth and Sixth

We enjoyed the one-act play very much which was presented by the High School Friday afternoon.

Those on the spelling honor roll last week were Walter Fetters, Stella Hart, Candace Loftus, Patricia Maxwell, Frances Reidenbach, Robert Ridgway, Mary Ellen Rude, Marilyn Zonker, Arthur Frank, Mary Hanes, James Hatch, Maurice Hurni, Nelda Kees, Franklyn Sechler, Jacqueline Shuff, Franklin Wiers, Ellen Zimmerman, and Junior Freeburn.

"ACCIDENT-FREE" HUNTING SEASON IS URGED BY SIMMONS

Hope that the Indiana hunting season will be free from accidents and that the thousands of hunters will exercise precaution in the handling of firearms, was expressed by Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation.

A special plea was made that all hunters refrain from hunting when within rifle range of areas where Civilian Conservation Corps members and men engaged in Works Progress Administration projects are employed. Both the CCC and WPA are engaged in many activities which will improve Indiana's hunting, fishing and other outdoor recreation, he pointed out.

Seven "Dont's" for hunters were suggested:

Don't pull a loaded gun, muzzle-first, through a fence.

Don't load your gun until you are beginning to hunt.

Don't point a gun at any thing you do not intend to kill.

Don't place a loaded gun on the bottom of a boat or in a car.

Don't lean a loaded gun against a tree or fence where dogs are loose.

Don't overshoot a covey of quail, leave at least six birds for breeding stock.

Don't hunt on any land without permission. When permission is given don't shoot near buildings, livestock or fields in which men are working.

ITEMS ABOUT ST. JOE

Mrs. Mayola Kinsey and Mrs. J. C. Hull are on the sick list.

Twenty men of St. Joe and Spencerville Lutheran Church were in attendance at the brotherhood meeting here Saturday night. Lunch was served.

J. R. Leighty made a drawing of the Lutheran Church grounds last week, in preparation for landscaping of the property. Men worked for a day in getting the spading done and as soon as shrubbery is available, planting will begin.

The local Post of the American Legion will hold a special meeting next Monday evening, Nov. 25. The supper for the public has been postponed indefinitely.

A Bazaar and Bake Sale will be held at News office, on Sat., Dec. 7. Starting at 9 o'clock A. M. Under auspices of M. P. Ladies Aid. At 8 o'clock in the evening the drawing will take place at which time the cuilt will be given away.

Rev. C. J. Ferster, Hollis Dilley, Ray Reasoner, Ed Pfaumer, Harvey Hull, Joe Hull, Harry Hursh and D. B. Ridgway attended the district brotherhood meeting at Fort Wayne, Sunday. Mr. Ridgway was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

A group of eighty-five people, from the Concord Church and community held a miscellaneous shower for Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morr on Thursday evening at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morr, west of Concord. After spending the evening in a very sociable way, a lunch was served consisting of sandwiches, pickles, cookies, doughnuts, ice cream and coffee. Mr. and Mrs. Morr received many lovely and useful gifts.

Fish and Game Club Information

The Indiana law porvides that all persons must have a license to trap, except upon their own lands. Other statutes make it unlawful:

To trap on any land without the written consent of the owner, occupant or lessee.

To trap on the land of another without a license.

To set a steel trap on the land of another unless it is at least 18 inches inside the entrance of a hole, cave or hollow log so as to be inaccessible to domestic animals, dogs or fowls.

To remove or dislodge or attempt to remove or dislodge any undomesticated raccoon from its den or nesting place.

To take any fur-bearing animal by digging or by the use of smoke, fumes or chemicals, but a person may kill such animals on his own premises in any manner necessary for the protection of his property, provided the killing is reported to the Department of Conservation within five days and arrangement made for disposition of the hide.

Silk Topper Is Doomed; Few Are Learning Trade

The silk hat, unlike its felt competitors, does not lend itself to mass production, notes a writer in Tit-Bits Magazine. Every "topper" is the skillful creation of several experts working in conjunction, who have served a long apprenticeship to the job. They are body-bakers, trimmers, finishers, and shapers. The body consists of a stiffened calico wound around a cylindrical block, and upon this the brim and top are ironed. The plush cover, cut to graded sizes, is sewn together with a diagonal seam, and placed over the body while hot. As it cools it contracts to a perfect fit. The finisher gives the silk hat its beautiful sheen, and the shaper curls the brim and puts in the lining.

The very fact that the "topper" is the production of experts tends to make its doom even more certain than it would otherwise be, for no youth is likely to enter upon a long apprenticeship to a dying trade, and thus the time will soon come when no one capable of making a silk hat will be left. At the present there remain only a few hundred of such men.

Now Science Explains Why So Many People Past 40

Feel That They're Slipping Losing Their "Grip" on Things

Many people 'round 40 think they're "growing old." They feel tired a lot . . . "weak." Have headaches, dizziness, stomach upsets.

Well, scientists say the cause of all this, in a great many cases, is simply an acid condition of the stomach. Nothing more.

All you have to do is to neutralize the excess stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed. That's all!

Try this. Soon you'll feel like another person! Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Hello, Everybody!

"Death in the Dark"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

I KNEW a bird once who had the reputation of being afraid of nothing under the sun. It seemed as though, when they built that bozo, they made him with only one nerve—and that one cast iron. He could crash to the ground in a plane and crawl out of the wreckage laughing—could walk through a hail of rifle bullets without even batting an eye.

They said he was fear-proof, but he confessed to me once that one thing had him scared to death.

"I don't want to die in the dark," he told me. "That's the most horrible thing I can think of."

And I thought of that lad today, when I heard the story of Thomas A. Woodman, who, in July, 1922, stood in a darkened catacomb and faced, not one death, but thirty.

This happened to Tom when he was living on his dad's ranch in Young county, Texas.

He was working for a man who was making a geological survey of the neighborhood, and it was his job to locate limestone strata in the ravines and mountain sides of the surrounding country.

Looking for Limestone in an Abandoned Mine.

He would ride or walk through the country all day until he spotted an outcropping streak of the stone, and then his boss, by the aid of instruments, would follow the course of the stratum in an effort to locate probable sites for oil wells.

It was on one of these walks that Tom came upon the entrance to an abandoned mine, and it struck him that mine would be a fine place to look for limestone. So he got out his flashlight and started to go in.

He was just about to enter when he remembered that there had been rumors of wildcats in that part of the country, and he paused long enough to take a last look at his Colt .44. Then he barged on into the mine.

Tom Decides to Take No Chances With Wildcats.

There didn't seem to be any wildcats in the mine, though. With his flashlight, Tom examined every nook and corner of the old diggings, but he didn't find any limestone, either. He had reached the back of the mine, and started to dig out a specimen of the rock that composed its rear wall, when suddenly he heard a soft, slithering noise behind him.

Tom pulled out his gun and froze in his tracks, listening for a repetition of the sound.

From down somewhere toward the entrance, he could hear something—a queer, shuffling sound as if some animal were sneaking up on him in the dark. The funny thing about that sound, though, was that it seemed to come from several places at once.

Tom's thumb pulled back the hammer of his revolver. He fumbled for his flashlight and got it out—started flashing it about in search of a wildcat. Its roving beam disclosed, not a cat, but something infinitely more horrible. On the floor in front of him, and almost at his feet, were rattlesnakes—dozens of them—writhing and squirming across the entire length of the passage.

They were all over the floor, and still coming—pouring out from behind the timber that supported the roof of the mine. The sight first sickened Tom, and then horrified him.

"I felt," he says, "like praying to God to take away those reptiles and send me a couple dozen wildcats instead."

He backed as far as he could into the rear of the old mine, and his racing mind began to grope for some way out of his unwholesome predicament.

Tom's "Hosts" Were Unwilling That He Depart.

The snakes were between Tom and the mine entrance. And that made it bad. They were hissing and spitting at Tom—plainly resenting his intrusion, and that made it worse.

In another minute they would be moving up on him—striking at him. Tom knew he had to do something before that came to pass.

He flashed his light over the floor again in another swift inspection. The snakes covered the whole floor of the mine but there was one spot—a strip three or four feet wide—where they were few and far between.

Tom took off his straw hat, rolled it up in his bandanna and set fire to it. Then, waving this improvised torch, throwing coal chunks and shooting his revolver, he began an intensive campaign to drive all the reptiles off that narrow, sparsely guarded strip.

He Decides to Try the Death-Strewn Path.

The snakes paused and struck at the coal chunks he tossed, but they squirmed away at the approach of the torch. Those that wouldn't move for the torch, Tom blew apart with his Colt. All the time, he had been edging his way down that clear strip, until at last he was safely past them.

The improvised torch burned down to his fingers and he threw it away. Then he turned and made a wild dash for the entrance.

He came out of the ground with such a rush that his horse, tethered to a tree limb outside, became frightened and tried to break away. He caught him, though, and climbed on his back.

Then he rode back to where his boss was waiting, to tell him what he thought of the geology business, and especially the things you run into while you're working at it.

Cremation Has Been Used in the U. S. Since 1885

Cremation is one of the three common methods of disposing of human remains which antedate history, the others being simple exposure and burial or entombment, states a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Cremation was originally widely prevalent among the Indo-European races. Throughout northern Europe graves of the Bronze age contain not skeletons but urns for funeral ashes. Cremation was the general practice of the Romans for hundreds of years, while the Greeks also practiced it to a great extent. Many of the early American Indians burned their dead; the custom was common of old in England and in Gaelic and Germanic Europe; and in India and parts of other Oriental countries it is regularly followed today.

With the spread of Christianity, however, cremation became a rare thing. Charlemagne is said to have punished with death those who practiced it. Discussions looking toward its re-establishment began a century or two ago, but nothing came of them until Italy sanctioned cremation in 1869 by revoking prohibitory laws. It was legalized in France in 1887, and had been instituted in England two years earlier. It is now practiced to some extent in almost every country.

This method of disposing of the human remains has been in practice in the United States since 1885, the first crematory in this country being established at Buffalo in that year.

Temple of Athena

One of the world's most beautiful buildings is the temple of Nike Apteros, Athena, erected in 433 B. C. to commemorate the famous victories of Marathon, Plataea, and Salamis. More than 2,000 years later, in the Seventeenth century, the temple was destroyed by the Turks and the materials built into a battery. In the year 1836 the battery of the temple was destroyed, the materials of the temple recovered and the temple reconstructed, today picturesquely situated on the Acropolis hillside.

FASCINATING TALES OF LOST MINES

PILLARS OF GOLD

WHEN the Spanish conquerors were following the northward windings of the Rio Grande, they went as far as the northern part of what is now New Mexico. Here, Spanish legend relates, some of the padres, with soldiers at their command, turned to the westward. In the midst of some extremely rough mountains they came across a small valley, and here they saw two great pillars made of large stones.

What these pillars were they did not know, but with the curiosity to which we owe so much of our information about the early southwest, the padres halted to examine these monuments. To their surprise and delight, they found that some of the stones were pieces of rich gold ore, which argued that their source must be somewhere in the vicinity.

So it proved; the lode was rich beyond all dreams, and the party immediately set to work, the soldiers laying down their arms to become miners. They remained in the hidden valley long enough to take out all the gold they could carry with them.

After this time, others who passed that way hunting wealth saw the lonely pillars in the center of the valley, but for a long time no one thought to examine them, and consequently passed on without knowing that their opportunity lay near by, and that a few hours searching might disclose that mine that the padres saw.

At last an old miner by the name of Mike O'Leary, rambling about through this region on a prospecting trip, found the ancient workings, and appeared in Parrot City some time later with enough ore to finance an expensive spree for several weeks. After sobering up he disappeared, only to come into Animas City several months later with more ore.

The old prospector of the western mountains was a wily creature. He preferred hunting alone or with one partner, and if he did strike gold he could be "as mum as a clam" about its location, even though he loved to boast about his good fortune. Knowing the hills as he did the streets of his home town, he usually eluded all those who tried to follow him. He knew only too well that the discovery of his mine would mean a lot of unpleasant neighbors, the theft of his ore, and possibly death to himself. The silence of the old prospectors on the subject of their finds is one of the large factors in the losing of mines.

O'Leary was just such a man. He might show up every now and then with enough gold to pay for a celebration, but he always drifted out of sight before anyone could see where he went. Finally he disappeared for good—nothing more was seen of him, and it is supposed that either he went to some distant city to spend his money, or else the mountains claimed him for the final sacrifice.

With O'Leary's passing, however, the secret of his mine did not remain a secret. Once in a while some miner comes to the front with ore which he claims came from that little valley in the mountains, and there are even said to be maps, made by others who came into sight of the two rock pillars. However, as far as anyone knows, the location of the mine has never been filed as a claim.

SECRET OF THE PRAIRIE

COUNCIL of war!

A party of freighters camped under an old lightning-killed cottonwood, talking earnestly. The year was 1856; the place was Kearney county, Kansas, on the Santa Fe trail. There was $70,000 in Spanish gold in that wagon train, being carried from Mexico to Fort Leavenworth. Would it ever reach its destination?

Indians had begun to follow the wagons in New Mexico. They hung on, making no move to attack, but drawing a little closer day 'y day. Now, as the freighters consulted with each other around the campfire, the Indians lurked out yonder in the darkness, waiting—waiting—

It was decided to bury the gold. Here, where the great dead tree formed a landmark on the trail, was as good a place as any, and there was no time to lose. There was no telling when the Indians might make up their minds to attack.

It was midnight. The full moon shone brightly on the camp and on the cottonwood, and cast a shadow along the ground. Here, where the shadow fell, they buried the Spanish gold.

Next day they moved on. The Indians followed as usual, drawing a little closer. Three days later they attacked, when the train had reached Pawnee Rock. Only one man survived; he reached Fort Leavenworth, told his story, and died.

There was no chance, just then, to send out after the gold. It was safe; it must wait until the opportunity presented. And so a year passed before a party set out on the Santa Fe trail to recover the hidden coin.

But during that year lightning had struck the old cottonwood again, and this time had destroyed it completely. There was nothing left to show where it stood. Only the tall buffalo grass rippled in the wind—grass which had grown closely over all the countryside.

Blind Heroes Guided by Wives in Strange Town

A two-hour journey from Belgrade reveals one of the strangest villages in the world, where all the husbands are blind and the work of the colony is directed by the wives who see.

The town of Vetrenik is the first blind war veterans' colony in Yugoslavia, the first in a program of land settlements for the blind undertaken by the government.

The government institute for the blind arranged many marriages for unmarried blind veterans and aids the couples in the settlement at Vetrenik. The men are employed in useful crafts and the household work and operation of the colony are managed by the wives.

Fake Fingerprints May Divert Police Suspicion

Fingerprints of different people, as we know, are never the same. But it is possible for a crook to imitate a genuine fingerprint so that the suspicion of the police can be diverted, says Pearson's Weekly.

How this can be done has been shown by Dr. Harold Cummins of the Tulane University of Medicine, Chicago. Taking an original genuine fingerprint, he had it engraved, and made a three dimensional negative in wax. Then he took a cast in gelatin on a dummy finger. Twelve of the 32 prints he made with the dummy finger were declared by fingerprint experts to be genuine.

Though this proportion is not very great, the United States authorities believe it is sufficient to allow criminals many opportunities to put the police on false trails.

Whether the Remedy You are taking for Headaches, Neuralgia or Rheumatism Pains is SAFE is Your Doctor. Ask Him

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it — in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

MILNESIA WAFERS

Costume of Suede Is Top o' the Mode

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

STOP, look and listen for it's most important news we are telling you—all about the latest sensation in fashiondom, namely the costume done entirely of handsome, colorful suede. In the perfectly stunning dresses, jackets, swagger coats and many-piece ensembles of all-leather which are stepping out into the limelight this season, an epoch-making chapter is being written into the annals of fashion history.

A significant thing about this intriguing all-leather movement is that designers have discovered that suede adapts itself with equal facility to formal as well as casual sportsy styling. Which is a line of thought to whoich our minds must adjust would we fully appreciate the broad scope covered in the new leather fashions, since hitherto the mention of leather in a style sense meant its use for sturdy sportswear only. In the new order of affairs suede qualifies as aptly and happily as a medium for the loveliest and daintiest of formal evening apparel as it does for the sturdiest of outdoor garments.

To prove to your satisfaction the truth of the above assertion, we invite you to glimpse the "love of a gown" as pictured to the left in the illustration. The lady of the evening as here portrayed is Bette Davis of cinema fame. She is wearing an exquisite gown of white chevrita suede. Which goes to show that Hollywood agrees with Paris in this all-leather vogue now sweeping throughout the style centers of the world. An adorable gown, you will admit, in this beguiling suede formal. It has the slink, suave lines to which so many of fashion followers aspire. A high neckline in front with low backline outlined with braided suede adds further distinction to this charming gown.

Suede evening wraps are also in high fashion, either of the short jacket styling or in loose swagger lines. Capes, too, if you please, some of which are elegantly collared with white fox.

To the right in the picture, Kathleen Burke, another favorite, is wearing a five-piece ensemble done entirely of handsome suede, in a fascinating tone of rich hunter's green. It is one of the hand-laced types (the skirt is sewn together with leather thongs) such as is foremost in fashion this year. In fact, laced leather is the password to high-style in the thrilling suede outfits that are being turned out for fall and winter. For the seams to be laced together as here shown dates your costume as being unmistakably a "last word" creation.

In the instance of the five-piece "set" here shown, lacing is carried out along the edge of the side-front fastening of the form-fitting skirt, also on the collar and revers of the swagger coat and two-buttoned vest. A saucy youthful suede beret together with a miser's drawstring bag completes this perfectly stunning street outfit.

As to the cunning outfit below in the group, it tells at a glance that it has gone decidedly "football." It is Maureen O'Sullivan, of film prestige, who is flying colors is scoring her touchdowns in this hand-lace suede suit of devastating chic. Even the buttons are laced as is also the pigrain leather football hat. Her bag is of the same leather ingeniously shaped like a football. The suit's standup collar is news.

CREPE AND VELVET

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Velvet enters into every phase of the mode this season. The afternoon dress which combines velvet with wool or silk is a highlighted number on the present style program. In the model pictured the designer has introduced velvet very effectively. The flowers at the shoulder are also of velvet. A high military-type neckline accents the chic of this costume.

COLOR PERVADES WHOLE ENSEMBLE

Color is not content this season to be a splash or a dab—it pervades the entire ensemble from tip to toe and has finally invaded the field of woman's most conservative color accessory—silk stockings.

The traditional beige and gray tones have made way for red and green stockings. Wine red stockings are smart with all of the wine tones. Suede green silk stockings are worn with greens and browns, with green suede or antelope gloves, shoes, and bags to match. Very sheer, two and three thread hose in green or red make their debut for dressier wear.

Navy blue hose are high style with a blue town suit collared with raspberry red velvet and worn with a matching hat. With a Veronese green dress accented in brown green silk stocks and brown shoes are news.

Some New Shades Added to Hosiery for Autumn Wear

Hosiery, this fall is here in a variety of new shades. In keeping with a growing feeling of luxury in the evening mode, smart complements will be provided for the gold, silver, and bronze slippers worn with gowns of Eastern influence. For daytime a series of browns will be best liked—golden brown, wine brown, brownish taupe with a rose cast, natural beige and coppery brown—to go with autumn colors.

Smoother Hair Styles

Smoother hair styles are being seen for early fall. Advance styles would indicate that the elaborate rows of curls, popular for many months, are to be laid aside—until we all change our minds again.

Handbag Made of Wood

A smart handbag is large and flat, designed to look like an enormous compact, and it is made of wood in a dark brown natural finish.

Country Stores Keep in Line With Advances of the Nation

Any thought that the coming first of rural free delivery and then of the automobile and the wider range the automobile gives its users has done away with what city people call the "crossroads store" is discounted by a writer in the Nation's Business. This writer, Charles M. Wilson, sings in high praise of the 225,000 independently operated merchandising establishments of the country, situated either at the crossroads or in villages of 500 or less, and credits them with an annual trade volume varying from $3,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000.

That indicates very clearly that the country store has not been nor is it a dying institution, in spite of our preconceived opinions that it should have been on its last legs these many years of good roads and easy highway transportation.

The crossroads and village stores saw to that by improving their stocks and methods of merchandising and meeting competition as competition developed. So the scales were kept in balance apparently. The writer does not give any comparative statistics of country merchants now and before the automobile era and does not discuss what the coming of rural free delivery and the elimination of thousands of purely rural post offices may have done to the crossroads merchant. He merely discusses the up-and-coming methods of country merchants that serve to keep them in line with the advances of the country at large.

Not that there have been no changes, for of course there have. In the last 30 years many unfit general merchandise stores situated along highways in the open country and at crossroads have no doubt folded up and their trade transferred to the nearest village. But the better roads and greater travel have also encouraged new ventures in retailing. Eating places and small groceries, filling and service stations have found their places along the highways and new communities established, each much better and probably doing more business than the poorest of the old crossroads stores they replace. They had to be better and offer more service and variety or there would have been no purpose in their erection.

The 1930 census showed that there were 1,549,168 retail stores in the United States, with net sales of $50,033,850,792 annually. This reflects the importance of the sixth of the total that are to be found at the crossroads and in villages of 500 and less that are in competition with larger retail establishments and that are credited by Mr. Wilson with doing one-sixteenth to one-twelfth of the retail business of the nation. For they have to be good to make such a mark.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

WILL "CENTER LINE" OVER 5,200 MILES OF STATE HIGHWAYS

Plans for marking the center line of more than 5,000 miles of Indiana's state highways were announced today by James D. Adams chairman of the State Highway Commission. The marking o f new pavement and renewing the center line on old pavement will be started as soon as weather conditions permit.

Approximately three and a half thousand miles of state highways were marked last winter by the Maintenance Division using special equipment developed by highway engineers. It is estimated that nearly two hundred thousand gallons o f material will be required for the marking program this year, a majority of which will be done with asphalt.

Tests conducted by the highway engineers show that the black asphaltic stripe is more satisfactory than one marked with paint as the black line results in better visibility at night and in mist and rain when traffic is meeting other lights. It requires approximately twice a much paint for a mile and the painted stripe does not last as long as one marked with asphalt.

Marking center lines on the state highway system is a cold weather job, best results being obtained when the temperature is between 15 and 32 degrees above zero. At such a temperature the material chills quickly and does not track over the pavement when crossed by traffic.

The center line has proven a real factor in preventing accidents as it shows each driver his half of the highway. The four-inch center line, more than anything else, is credited with "curing" motorists of driving in the center of the pavement.

This year the Highway Commission will place yellow stripes along the center line on all curves of three degrees or more and all grades where the sight distance ahead is insufficient for safety. Motorists crossing this yellow line will be subject to arrest for reckless driving. This plan has been adopted to eliminate the practice of passing other vehicles on curves and grades, which has resulted in many accidents and deaths.

METHODIST CHURCH OBSERVES 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Sunday, Otcober 24, 1935 marked the fiftieth anniversary of the building of the St. Joe Methodist Protestant Church. The day opened with Sunday School at 9:30, preaching service at 10:30. The Rev. K. A. Hawkins from the City Rescue Missions in Fort Wayne bringing a very inspiring message.

A pot luck dinner was served at 12:00. At 1:15 the afternoon service opened with songs and choruses. Before the message delivered by Rev. Hawkins, Mrs. Delora Curie gave some interesting facts concerning the early years of the church, naming the pastors and their terms of service also the charter members which were as follows: Margaret Thomas, Rebecca A. Smith, Nancy Culbertson, Matilda J. Widney, Wm. C. Bleeks, Elsie Bleeks, Sol Barney, George Bleeks, Mary Bleeks, Delora Curie, Cynthia Engle.

These members were taken in on January 16, 1885. Mrs. Curie being the only remaining charter member.

Mrs. Chas. Koch and Mr. John C. Hull also gave some interesting reminiscences, they being among the first members of the Sunday School.

Several old pictures were placed on display one being that of the first organist, Mrs. Lizzie Evans.

Sol Barney was the first Superintendent. Sol Barney, Frank Engle and George Bleeks were the first Trustees.

SCHOOL NOTES

Win Three Out Of Four

A slit with Spencerville on Friday night and a double victory at Hamilton on Saturday evening was the accomplishment of Coach Noffsinger and his dozen basketball boys last week end. In the Friday evening tilts the local reserves took Spencerville seconds down the floor for a 24 to 19 count. In the aftermath Spencerville's regulars rolled up a score of 37 to 17 before the timekeeper's gun stopped them. St. Joe was leading at the end of the first quarter by a score of 7 to 6.

On Saturday evening our reserves won their fourth straight victory when they trounced Hamilton seconds by a 23 to 16 score. A few minutes later our first team lead by Frank Monroe started to pile up a score of 38 to 18 against the Hamilton regulars. Monroe was high point man with 14 and Gnagy lead the Hamilton offensive with 9 points. At the half way mark the score was St. Joe 29 and Hamilton 2. McSwane of Fremont was the referee for the Hamilton game.

Wolf Lake on Dec. 6

On Friday evening, December 6, Wolf Lake's H. S. teams come to St. Joe for the last game of this semester. Be sure to see these games.

Playground Equipment

A committee consisting of the teachers of the lower six grades are working to get a set of swings and an outdoor basketball court. The net receipts from the Hurd program of last week was a little over $20.00.

If another school ground fund is made available these two projects mentioned can be secured.

Avilla H. S. Wins Contest

A cast from Avilla H. S. presenting a one act play entitled "The Caravan" won the sub-district contest held at Albion last Wednesday evening. The district finals in which Avilla, Ossian and Silver Lake High Schools are competing is scheduled for Tuesday evening at Central High School in Fort Wayne.

Red Cross Membership

On Monday morning the Red Cross memberships from town and township totaled 33. We hope several more people will identify themselves with membership before Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. Gerdes was out of school Monday with an attack of influenza.

The Seniors received their individual pictures from the Cron Studio on last Wednesday afternoon.

Those from the local community who attended the one act play contest at Albion last week were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Reidenbach and Frances, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sechler and Franklyn, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bowman, Mrs. Priscilla Simanton, Earl Kinsey, Mr. Gerdes and Mr. Munn.

Given A. B. Degree in English

Bloomington, Ind.,—Nov. 26. Beatrice Bowman, of St. Joe, is included on the Indiana University fall graduation list containing the names of 224 candidates for degrees announced by the Indiana University board of trustees.

The fall graduates are counted as members of the 1935 class but did not receive their diplomas at the June commencement exercises since they needed the summer term to finish their work. They participated, however, in the June commencement program.

Miss Bowman was granted the A. B. degree in English.

Rev. Schondelmayer and Kenneth Gonser Speak to Home Ec. Classes

The Rev. Schondelmayer of the Christian Church of St. Joe, on Nov. 14, was a speaker for the home economics girls, group one. He talked about giving and showed that many people spend money selfishly, never thinking where the money came from. Rev. Schondermayer stressed the fact that the people of the United States owned eighty-five per cent of all the wealth in the world.

On Nov. 15 Mr. Kenneth Gonser of Auburn was present to talk to the morning class of advanced home economics students. Mr. Gonser gave an interesting talk on life insurance as a means of saving. The girls enjoyed hearing about the different kinds of policies that are brought and many statistics available from life insurance companies. Both talks arose from the study of giving and saving.

The home economics classes have organized a club which meets in class sections twice a month on Friday. Group one at the last meeting took the study of coffee. Several interesting facts about coffee were given, and various ways of making coffee were demonstrated. The girls also planned, prepared, and served other refreshments with this during their meeting together.

FARM BUREAU

The Tri-Township Farm Bureau meeting will be held in the St. Joe Gym, Tuesday eve, Dec. 3. The following program will be given:

7:30 Music by Spencerville Orchestra, leader Doris Beams.
Community Singing led by Mrs. Clyde Hart.
Devotional, Elder H. K. Schondelmayer.
Talk, "Partnership Farming," Elder Schondelmayer.
Business Session.
Vocal Solo, Miss Virginia Poper.
Reading .....Lavon Hart.
Report from State Farm Bureau Conference ..... Delegates.

We urge everyone from Tri-Township to be present, as we believe you will hear something worth while. Come.

Fred Hart, Chairman.

HOME BUREAU

The Concord Township Home Bureau met Nov. 15 at the home of Edna Morr. Harriett Draggoo, vice president, called the meeting to order with a song and the Lord's Prayer by all. Psalms 100 was read by Beulah Gibford. Thirty members responded to roll call with their "Favorite Thanksgiving Dish." The Origin of Thanksgiving was given by Myrtle Pugsley; two numbers were sung by a trio composed of Ross Watt, Nevada Wyatt and Mary Krise. The Courtship of Miles Standish was reviewed by Gertrude Borthwick; a Thanksgiving contest was conducted by Beulah Gibford; the project leader, Helen Ulm gave some good helps on remodeling the kitchen and some ideas on "Home Arts." Meeting adjourned after committee served refreshments, to meet for an all day Christmas meeting at the home of Doris Yeiser, Dec. 13.

THANK YOU, AMERICA,

for more than a Million cars in 1935

This year Chevrolet has two very good reasons for saying, "Thank you, America."

One reason is that people have bought so many Chevrolet cars that production for the year will reach 1,040,000.

And the other reason is that they have placed a record number of orders for new 1936 Chevrolets during the first few weeks they have been on display.

Chevrolet is indeed happy to say, "Thank you, America," and to pledge continued adherence to the manufacturing and service policies which have won and held this friendship.

American Indians were not the skilled archers that their modern contemporaries are able to become, because of poor quality of bows and lack of proper material for arrows, according to an Indian manufacturer of archery supplies.

Do You Ever Wonder

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Ask Your Doctor and Find Out

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

He will tell you that before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate Bayer Aspirin among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this.

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by asking for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN. Make it a point to do this — and see that you get what you want.

Defective Hearing

Authorities estimate 17,000,000 persons in the United States are "hard of hearing" in some degree and that about 45,000 are classed as deaf.

A Law Every Mother Should Know and Observe

Never Give Your Child An Unknown Remedy without Asking Your Doctor First

According to any doctor you ask, the only safe way is never to give your child a remedy you don't know all about, without asking him first.

When it comes to "milk of magnesia," that you know everywhere, for over 60 years, doctors have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia for your child."

So—always say Phillips' when you buy. And, for your own peace of mind, see that your child gets this; the finest men know.

Lost in the Crowd

In a walk in the woods one "gets rid of himself." More so, in a walk in a crowded city street.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with anything less than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble to aid nature to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Get Creomulsion right now. (Adv.)

FASCINATING TALES OF LOST MINES

©W.N.U. By Editha L. Watson

SECRET OF THE BIG HORNS

A POUCH full of "yellow bullets" which really were big gold nuggets, a "free trapper" of the old times, and a fur company's greedy representatives: mix these well and add plenty of bad whisky, and you have the story of another lost mine.

"Old Man" LaPondre, as they called him, was a stubborn old soul. Years of free trapping had made him "independent as a woodchuck," and he felt beholden to no man. He had found his "yellow bullets" lying in a creek bed, and there were plenty more where these came from. Just where the creek with golden sands flowed, he would not tell. He wanted his little triumph first, of course. He could imagine going to St. Louis, showing the nuggets, and creating a sensation of the first water. Why, he would be rich enough to buy the American Fur company, lock, stock, and barrel! The idea was balm to his soul.

And, then, he planned, he would come back. He would leave St. Louis as ignorant as he found it. If these "yellow bullets" were what he thought they must be, he would cash in on them, buy some of the things he wanted, and come back to Fort Pierre. Then he would ask his friends to join him, and they would head toward the Big Horns and wealth.

Many a man had found gold in the Big Horns, thought Old Man LaPondre. But most of them had lost out, after all. Well, he wasn't going to lose out.

"Stick around, boys!" he said to his friends at Fort Pierre. "I'll be back in the spring, and we'll go out and pick rocks out of the creek." And he winked portentously, and chuckled at his little joke.

So his Dakota friends "stuck around" rather closely, for they believed the old man. And he, in high feather, went down to St. Louis to find out what was what. He found out—the nuggets were valued at almost unbelievable prices, and he, "Old Man" LaPondre, suddenly assumed the most wonderful importance.

The American Fur company, for instance, grew interested immediately. They offered to buy LaPondre, out, or to pay well for information, which would give them a chance at the location. But, "Nope," said the old man. "I'll keep what I've got. Me and my friends get first show." And so stubborn was he that no one could pry a word out of him which might betray his secret.

He was going back in the spring, he was, and his friends who waited at Fort Pierre should have their show.

He had no more chance to get away with it than he would have today. Flushed with the dreams of his vast wealth waiting beneath the waters of that mountain creek, he "let go all holts," and began to celebrate prematurely. He was aided, of course, by the lower element of St. Louis, who clung to him and fawned, and also by men who hoped to loosen his tongue and get the secret location. These men, though they were agents of the fur company, were working for themselves, for if they could discover the secret, they would never pause to tell it to anyone else. They kept the old man filled with liquor—none too good, that it might take effect sooner. And take effect it did, but not as anyone had planned—for Old Man LaPondre grew ill, sank into a coma, and died. With him died the secret of that crystal stream paved with gold, and to this day no man knows where to look for more of those alluring "yellow bullets."

THE RABBIT-HOLE TUNNEL

IN STEVENS GULCH, near Strontia Springs, Colo., was a deposit of ore which the Indians knew of in the very early days. The men mined the ore, the women crushed and washed it, and the gold was placed in turkey quills and taken as far East as the Mississippi river to trade with the white men.

Some years before the Civil war, two young men from St. Joseph, Mo., came West and found this Indian mine. In some manner they managed to get an ox wagon into the gulch, and this they loaded with very rich ore, which they took home and sold. They made a map of the location, marking on it where they had hidden their tools.

In 1861, they started back to the mine. Near Devils Head peak they were murdered, supposedly by the Indians whom they had despoiled.

A relative who had their map sent it to Henry Jackson, a negro, who had lived in the region during Indian days. Jackson recovered the tools from the place marked on the map, but he could not locate the mine.

In 1911 a young man named Johnson found some promising ore in the gulch which, when crushed and panned, showed a rich color. He noticed a rabbit go into a hole of some brush, but at the time he did not pay much attention. Later, when he heard the story of the lost mine, he returned and tried to find the tunnel, but it was no use.

The Grain Coast

The Grain coast is that part of the coast of Liberia, western Africa, which extends about longitude 8 degrees to 11 degrees west; so called on account of the exportation of grains of paradise.

Conestoga Wagon Drivers First to Keep to Right

Why do American drivers keep to the right instead of to the left as in England and some Continental countries? In the new Columbia Encyclopedia drivers of the famous Conestoga wagons are credited with originating the custom because they rode the left wheel horse. The wagons, often called "ships of inland commerce," carted freight over the Allegheny mountains before the railroads were built in 1850.

The Conestoga wagon originated in Pennsylvania before the Revolution, according to the encyclopedists. It was pulled by a six-horse team and was capable of carrying a five-ton load. The bottom of the wagon box was curved, rising at both ends so that in going up and down hills the goods would shift less easily and the end-gate be subject to less strain. The prairie-schooner was a modification of the Conestoga wagon.

Body of Caruso Lies in State; Embalmed in 1921

Because his friends and admirers in his native Italy could not bear to think of the body of Enrico Caruso moldering away in the earth after his death in 1921, they had it embalmed by a special process to preserve it indefinitely. The corpse of the famous singer still lies in a glass-covered casket in a mausoleum near Naples wrapped in an American flag.

Clothing on the body is changed every three years.

CONSTIPATED 30 YEARS

"For thirty years I had chronic constipation. Sometimes I did not go for four or five days. I also had awful gas bloating, headaches and pain in the back. Adlerika helped right away. Now I eat sausage, bananas, pie, anything I want and never felt better. I sleep soundly all night and enjoy life." — Mrs. Mabel Schott.

If you are suffering from constipation, sleeplessness, sour stomach, and gas bloating, there is quick relief for you in Adlerika. Many report action in 30 minutes after taking just one dose. Adlerika gives complete action, cleaning your bowel tract where ordinary laxatives do not even reach.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika checks the growth of intestinal bacteria and colon bacilli."

Give your stomach and bowels a real cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and chronic constipation. Sold by all druggists and drug departments.

Rid Yourself of Kidney Poisons

DO you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination, backache, headache, dizziness, loss of energy, leg pains, swellings and puffiness under the eyes? Are you tired, nervous—feel all unstrung and don't know what is wrong?

Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly for functional kidney disorder permits excess waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They are recommended the world over. You can get the genuine, time-tested Doan's at any drug store.

A Kennedy?

THE origin of the name Kennedy is found in the Celtic word "Ceaunathigue," meaning the head of a sept or clan. The first Kennedys to assume the name as a surname were undoubtedly of Carrick, in Scotland. Prior to the year 1256, Neil, earl of Carrick, granted a charter to Roland of Carrick, who is proved to be the ancestor of the Kennedys. The family afterward bore the name of Kennedy and, according to Scottish custom, the sons of Kennedy were called McKennedy or McKenane, spelled variously.

The story of how one McKenane with his sons and great following of kinsmen overthrew the Danes in Carrick and obtained the stronghold from King Alexander is a thrilling one. It was this stronghold which became their fair castle where the "Chief of the Lowland Kennedys took their stile of for long space and were called Lairs of Donour," because of the Don of the hill above the house.

Kennedy

Gilbert Kennedy was the forebear of two lines of Kennedys in America.

Kennedys began migration with Rev. Thomas, who located in Tyrone, Ireland, in 1642. His son, John, also a Presbyterian minister, of County Donegal, Ireland, was the father of Andrew, who was born in 1747. He came to America and located in Pennsylvania previous to the Revolution. It is recorded that he was a man of property which he used to advance the cause of the American colonies during the struggle for independence. His large estate in Bucks county, Pennsylvania, was long in possession of his descendants. He purchased the house on Market street which had been the temporary presidential mansion in Philadelphia.

There were early Kennedy emigrants to Virginia and Maryland, a great many of them were relatives of the Pennsylvania family. They were among the most successful and distinguished families of the southern colonies and became allied with many notable houses.

A Pendleton?

THIS name, so distinguished in America, originated in England and is derived from the two Gaelic words pendle and dun, meaning summit and hill. It is easy to imagine that the old town in Lancastershire of this name, only three miles from Manchester, which graced the crest of a hill handed the name down to the Pendleton family, which lived there.

Over the door of one of the inns in this town swings the coat of arms of the Pendleton family, exactly the same as brought to this country by the emigrant, Philip Pendleton. Some little distance away is the manor house, still owned by Pendletons. In this old family seat are found the records of glowing achievement of different members of the family and that of the ancestor whose bravery in the Crusades won him the right to place upon his shield the Scollop shells, which are a distinctive feature of the arms.

The Pendletons belonged, no doubt, to the English gentry, in many instances a purer and prouder heritage than many of those of titled fame, whose name and title have changed many times as they came down through the ages.

Philip Pendleton established the southern family of this name in America, in New Kent county, Virginia. This family has produced a great many prominent sons and daughters. Among those of whom the state of Virginia is just proud was Judge Edmund Pendleton, an important influence during Revolutionary days.

Is the Expensive Wife Loved Most?

Ideal Mate One Who Creates Happiness at Not Too Great a Cost.

"I have just learned that in the Belgian Congo, where wives are purchased, a man is afraid to purchase a wife at a bargain price, that is below the prevailing rate, because she will afterwards reproach him with not loving her as he paid so little for her.

"There don't seem to be any individual problems any more. At any rate, here's one we share with the women of the Belgian Congo. From my observation of selfish, extravagant women who keep their husbands' noses to the grindstone, and then others who try to be real partners and helpmeets, I have many times been ready to conclude that men do indeed value their wives, not according to what those wives do for them, but according to what they cost them. The more expensive they are the more they love them.

"What do you think about it?"

The above query was received by a woman writer of note, who answers as follows:

We have all seen cases in point of our reader's argument. We have seen women who apparently gave nothing and got everything; women whose first, second and last thought was of themselves, not only indulged but adored by the men whom they were not giving a square deal. On the other hand we have seen wives who stinted themselves to help their men get on, who worked and saved and slaved for them, who apparently had no appreciation from their husbands, even, sometimes, suffered shameful neglect at their hands.

But it is very difficult to generalize about these things. Sometimes a woman who is selfish and therefore would rate low according to the accepted standards of a good wife, actually succeeds in making a man happy to a greater extent than her self-sacrificing sister who fails in some other quality which her husband requires for content and happiness.

After all, the things which make men and women happy are those which fill the requirements of their individual natures. In spite of the fact that it is not to their best interests, there are men who are willing to spend their lives in the service of the bill collector to come home to a care-free, jolly, amusing woman, and who would be made perfectly miserable by the unselfish though more serious-minded type whom a different man might regard as the ideal wife and mother. The trouble with women who spend their lives on the altar of sacrifice and duty is frequently that they are no less exacting with others. And most men find it irksome to be held to the line of such rigorous standards.

The ideal wife, of course, like the ideal husband, is the one who has the happy and delightful mixture of qualities that is neither too good nor too bad, that makes her fun to live with at a not too great price.

Hefty Chap Omitted Few Items in Simple Modesty

A hefty countryman on one of his rare visits to the big city entered a small restaurant which advertised a special lunch—as much as the customer cared to eat for two shillings.

The waiter showed him to a table.

"Will you take the special?" he asked.

"What's it consist of?" asked the countryman.

"There's tomato soup, oxtail soup, grilled sole, boiled halibut, roast beef, Yorkshire pudding, new potatoes, apple tart and coffee," replied the waiter, reading out the menu.

"That's champion," said the countryman. "Bring me tomato soup, oxtail soup, sole, halibut, beef, pudding, spuds, jam roll, and some cheese and coffee."

"Will that be all?" asked the astonished waiter.

"That's all," said the other.

"Then may I ask," put in the waiter quietly, "what's wrong with the apple tart and cream?"—London Answers.

Pick Good Mother-in-Law for Marital Happiness

If you want to be happy in marriage, pick out a good mother-in-law. The tendency to marital happiness runs in families, according to findings of a survey of California marriages by Drs. L. M. Terman and Paul Buttenwieser of Stanford university, California, published in The Journal of Applied Psychology.

Nearly 87 per cent of the happily married who reported had happily married parents.

IT WORKED FOR ME

Women should take only liquid laxatives

MORE people could feel fine, be fit and regular, if they would only follow the rule of doctors and hospitals in relieving constipation.

Never take any laxative that is harsh in action. Or one, the dose of which can't be exactly measured. Doctors know the danger if this rule is violated. They use liquid laxatives, and keep reducing the dose until the bowels need no help at all.

Reduced dosage is the secret of aiding Nature in restoring regularity. You must use a little less laxative each time, and that's why it should be a liquid like Syrup Pepsin.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if it doesn't give you absolute relief, if it isn't a joy and comfort in the way it overcomes biliousness due to constipation, your money back.

Floyd Gibbons ADVENTURERS' CLUB

Hello, Everybody!

"I Am a Dead Man!"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

AND shake hands with former Corpse Leo Brown. Leo says he had the rare privilege of committing suicide and living to tell about it. He heads his story—as we do the column—with "I Am a Dead Man," and, if you believe everything you see in the newspapers, he's right.

It happened in the summer of '33. The morning of July 17 found him suffering from a strange premonition. He says he had had a bad dream in the night. He dreamed that he was pulling his own hair and, anyone knows, a dream like that might mean anything.

Leo says he was too busy during the day to look up the significance of the dream, but the foreboding that something was wrong persisted all through the day. It was a hot, sultry day and he was glad to get through work and start for home.

He watched his step very carefully on the way home. There's no use taking unnecessary chances when you've had a warning dream so Leo stepped carefully out of the way of speeding cars and made up his mind that he would fool Fate.

How It Feels to Discover You're Dead.

He bought an evening paper at the corner and after waiting for the street car to fully stop got on and opened his paper.

He felt pretty safe on the car and breathed a sigh of relief. But that sigh of relief, boys and girls, was premature. Instead of being safe and sound Leo soon found that he was dead!

Yes, sir, dead as a door nail! There it was right on the front page of the paper! Leo spread the paper out with his cold hands and read it again with his sightless eyes. Here are the headlines.

ROXBURY MAN COMMITS SUICIDE
Leo Brown Cuts Throat and Dies in City Hospital.

There it was in black and white!

Leo looked around him curiously and wondered if anybody could see his form—sitting there as though it were alive. There was no mistaking the Leo Brown mentioned in the news item either.

The Dead Man's Description Fitted Leo.

It told a lot of nice things about Leo that he had never known but it also quoted his own landlady at the place where he lived. She said Leo had gone to work as usual in the morning but had seemed strangely preoccupied.

He remembered the dream and began to wonder if the article were really true. If it were true the thing to do, obviously, was to find his own body. So Leo says he set out to do just that.

It Looked Like Leo—Maybe It Was!

He went right on out to the City hospital. He thought there might be a possibility that the dead man was his brother whom he had not seen in a couple of weeks so he inquired anxiously. No, it wasn't his brother, he learned from an attendant.

"But," the attendant added significantly. "He looks just like you." Leo pinched himself—his worst fears were realized, he says. He himself was the dead man!

Now Leo does not mention whether or not he took a couple of drinks to quiet his pounding nerves and maybe he didn't but he did go looking for his body.

That body, he found out, had been removed to an undertaker's establishment, so Leo went there next and asked to see his remains.

Tough luck again. The undertaker was out of town. So Leo rushed over to the police station and excitedly explained matters.

Two plain clothes men accompanied him back to the hospital. They were sympathetic and tried to convince Leo that he was the suicide! And they did "convince" him.

Leo for the life of him couldn't remember cutting his throat but, according to the information at the hospital, that is just what he had done. The dead man's description fitted Leo like a glove and his landlady had verified his address.

He Begins to Think About Burying Himself.

There was nothing left, Leo says, but to bury himself—but he couldn't find his body!

When he finally did locate his body he found that his relatives had already claimed it and were going ahead with the funeral arrangements. It pleased him to see that they had chosen a pretty swell coffin, but still, he says, he figured that something was wrong somewhere. He examined the dead man closely and breathed another sigh of relief.

The dead man wasn't Leo at all! Leo says it was just a case of mistaken identity. The man's name was Leo Brown and he lived at Leo's boarding house but that was many years ago.

When Leo was sure it was a mistake he had a lot of fun out of the whole thing.

First he walked in on his landlady and frightened that worthy person so much that she almost forgot to ask for her room-rent! His family next got the shock of their lives when Leo appeared in person to collect for the swell coffin.

But the happiest person of them all was Leo and no wonder, he had found his own body and found it wasn't his!

Ancient Prize Fighters Had to Battle to Death

In ancient Rome the gladiators who corresponded to our pugilists were paid nothing. They were usually war captives whom no one would ransom and whom the possessor had no other convenient means of disposing of. He fed them, put them through a course of training, and then armed them and sent them into the arena. They had to fight, willing or not; and, moreover, had to fight hard, for only death ended a match, and unless a man killed his opponent he would be killed by him. It was understood also, comments a writer in the Detroit News, that if a fighter showed cowardice his owner would extinguish him by slow torture.

These regulations lent to the combat an element of sincerity which modern ones sometimes lack. It was very seldom that a gladiator did a rubber leg act, took a dive, or grinned at the audience until he had the point of his sword on his prostrate antagonist's throat.

Frequently a whole troop of gladiators would be engaged at once. Julius Caesar, who had uncommonly large supplies of captives, once put on a show involving 320 pairs.

All this was without any recompense to the fighters, except that if they won in the first contest they could live until they lost in the next. And the promoter, who staged the shows at his own expense to entertain the populace, got no financial profit either, except that when his captives had killed each other he no longer had to feed them.

The Term "Honeymoon"

Harold Malcolm Krebs, supervising etymologist of the California state department of agriculture, traces the term "honeymoon" to ancient Babylon. "It was the custom of Babylonians to smear honey on the bricks over the door of the house of newlyweds," he says. "For 28 days after the marriage the aroma of the honey clung to the house, and the newlyweds were supposed thereby to acquire a sweetness which tempered the remainder of their lives. With the 28 days constituting the length of the four phases of the moon, the period was called 'honeymoon.'"

World Wheat Supply Is Cut 330,000,000 Bushels

This year's world wheat supply will be about 330,000,000 bushels less than in 1934-35, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics report on world wheat prospects.

Production is estimated at about 3,430,000,000 bushels and the world carryover outside of Russia at 800,000,000 bushels, or a total of about 4,230,000,000 bushels. Production last year was 3,459,000,000 bushels and carryover 1,100,000,000 bushels, or a total of about 4,559,000,000 bushels. The short crops this year will reduce world carryover by the end of this season to between 400,000,000 and 500,000,000 bushels, or not much more than normal world carryover prior to 1928.

with ELECTRIC REFRIGERATION from morning until night

COMPARE the small payments that will buy an electric refrigerator with the dividends it pays you three times a day, dividends secured from quantity buying and food preservation. You will find that it is a wise and thrifty investment. This is particularly true in winter when prices of perishable food stuffs are highest. Old fashioned methods of winter refrigeration are unreliable, inconvenient and wasteful. In the kitchen it is always summertime — outside storage means extreme temperature variation which causes rapid deterioration of food and milk.

The only sure, safe way to keep foods fresh and wholesome winter or summer is in the constantly controlled cold of a dependable electric refrigerator.

GROSS INCOME AS BUSINESS BAROMETER

Two more prosperity notes have been provided by the Indiana State Gross Income Tax and Store License division.

First was the announcement that store licenses have been obtained by 3,526 more stores in Indiana in 1935 than during the same period of 1934.

Last year, at the end of November, 61,090 Hoosier stores were licensed, while this year the total was 64,616.

Second indication of improved business was an increase of approximately 16 per cent in gross income tax receipts tabulated for the third quarter of 1935 compared with receipts for a similar period of 1934.

Collections totalled $3,299,772 for the period from October 1, to November 29 this year. From October 1 to December 3, 1934, nearest comparable period, collections were $2,854,254.

CANCER CAUSES DEATH OF JOHN SHILLING AT AGE 72

Funeral services for John Shilling, a retired farmer living one and a half miles northwest of Spencerville, were held Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock from his late home. Rev. Jenkins, pastor of the County Line Christian Church officiated and burial was made in White City cemetery, Spencerville.

The deceased, a lifelone resident of DeKalb county, died on Thursday morning at the age of 72 years from cancer after a moth's illness.

Surviving are the widow, formerly Lavina Keesler, two daughters, Miss Eulalia and Miss Eunice Shilling, residing at home, three brothers, Josephus and Daniel of St. Joe and William Shilling, of Richmond, Ind., and one sister, Mrs. Viena Doll, of Spencerville.

New hunting licenses will be on sale December 14.

WEDDING SOLOMENIZED THANKSGIVING DAY

The marriage of Miss Doris Beams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Beams, of Spencerville, to Rev. F. A. Ruder, son of Mr. Fred Ruder, of Cleveland, Ohio, was solemnized in a very impressive service on November 28th in the Lutheran Church at 9:30 in the morning. Rev. C. J. Ferster, pastor of the Lutheran Church officiated at the nuptial ceremony.

Preceding the ceremony a musical program was presented by Mrs. Pauline Baumgartner and Mrs. Phyllis Beams, of Detroit, Michigan, sister-in-law of the bride. Mrs. Baumgartner played her own arrangement of "Liebestraum" by Liszt. Mrs. Beams sang "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me." The processional was the bridal march from Lohengrin by Wagner and the recessional Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

Miss Doris Rhoads, as maid of honor, attended the bride who was given in marriage by her father. The groom was attended by Rev. Howard J. Brown, of Fort Wayne.

The bride wore a gown of blue velvet and a gold metal turban trimmed in blue velvet. She wore blue kid pumps. Talisman roses and white baby mums formed her bouquet.

Miss Rhoads was dressed in a cinnamon colored crepe gown and brown accessories. Her bouquet was Johanna Hill roses and yellow baby mums.

Following the ceremony the bride and groom, their parents, the maid of honor and best man formed a reception line at the rear of the church and received greetings from the guests.

Mr. Ralph Beams, of Indianapolis, brother of the bride, Mr. Everett Paschen, of Spencerville, Rev. Harold Neel, of Poneto, and and Mr. William Peck, of Anderson, served as ushers.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. Covers were laid for fifty guests.

Out of town guests included Mr. Fred Ruder, of Cleveland, Ohio; Miss Lucy Robson, Mrs. Edith Howard, Miss Winifred Tran, Mr. James Tran, Mrs. Mary Ruder and Carl Ruder, all of Grafton, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Allen Snyder, Miss Mildred Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Smith, all of Mt. Comfort, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beams and daughter, of Detroit, Michigan; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Peck and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Brown, of Anderson; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beams, Rev. and Mrs. Howard Brown, Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Fribley, and Mr. Rollie Genth, all of Fort Wayne; Rev. and Mrs. James Bean, of Kempton; the Misses Marguerite Hammon, Arvada Minnick, Josephine Getz, and Mesdames Berta Williner, Dorea Shultz, all of Hamilton, Indiana; Mr. and Mrs. Anthony, of Butler, Indiana.

The bride received her A. B. degree from Ball State Teachers College. She is teaching music and art in the Spencerville School. She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, national educational fraternity, Epsilon Delta and Kappa Delta Phi sororities.

The groom received his A. B. degree from Ohio Wesleyan University and his B. D. degree from Garrett Biblical Institute. He is a member of the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity. He is now a member of the North Indiana Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

ROBERT SHOCKLEY BEGINS TO TALK

Robert Lee Shockley, aged 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Shockley, Spencerville, who was injured August 11 when struck by an automobile in front of his home, has begun to talk, but can speak only one word at a time, his attending physician stated.

"The boy, who has been one of the grandest little patients I've even seen, can say simple words like 'No,' 'Yes,' 'Mom,' and 'Pop,'" the doctor said. "He is going to have to learn to talk all over again. Apparently there has been some damage done to his speech center. It seems evident that he is slowly regenerating a new speech center.

"His general condition is good. He is bright and cheery. His fractured leg seems to be knitting satisfactorily and he is recovering gradually."

The boy lay in a coma for two months at the Lutheran Hospital after the accident. His consciousness returned by degrees and recognition of members of his family was an equally slow process.

MARRIED 46 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. John Winsland celebrated their forty-sixth wedding anniversary Thanksgiving Day. It was also the first anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McCann. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lester and Miss Ethelmae Freeburn, of Fort Wayne; Mrs. Belle Freeburn, of Woodburn; Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Hollabaugh and children, Spencerville; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Freeburn and family, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wineland and son, Walter Ervin, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Baker and sons, and Mr. and Mrs Donald McCann.

Republican Conference Today

Rebuilding of the republican party from the bottom up through more careful selection of precinct committeemen and convention delegates is set out as one of the objectives of the Fort Wayne Republican conference to be held at Fort Wayne, Thursday, Dan C. Flanagan, chairman of the preliminary conference committee, announced. The district republican editors will meet at 4 o'clock at the Keenan hotel.

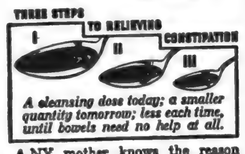
The proper treatment for a bilious child



A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

ANY mother knows the reason when her child stops playing, eats little, is hard to manage. Constipation. But what a pity so few know the sensible way to set things right!

The ordinary laxatives, of even ordinary strength, must be carefully regulated as to dosage.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult.

The doctors use liquid laxatives. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. The liquid laxative most families use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist has it.

For the Meek Shall—

Pray for a little egotism; and don't be meek, whatever you are.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with anything less than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble to aid nature to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Get Creomulsion right now. (Adv.)

Quick, Complete Pleasant ELIMINATION

Let's be frank. There's only one way for your body to rid itself of the waste matters that cause acidity, gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts—your intestines must function.

To make them move quickly, pleasantly, completely, without griping. Thousands of physicians recommend Milnesia Wafers. (Dentists recommend Milnesia wafers as an efficient remedy for mouth acidity).

These mint flavored candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly in accordance with the directions on the bottle or tin, then swallowed, they correct acidity, bad breath, flatulence, at their source and at the same time enable quick, complete, pleasant elimination.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48 wafers, at 35c and 60c respectively, or in convenient tins containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately an adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores carry them. Start using these delicious, effective wafers today.

Professional samples sent free to registered physicians or dentists if request is made on professional letter head.

MILNESIA WAFERS

Designers in a Mood for Pleating

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

PLEATS, pleats and nothing but pleats, is the message of many of the smartest fashions this season. Turn where one will in the realm of costume design, there's an orgy of intriguing pleated effects "carrying on." So let's keep up with the mode while we talk about pleats, pleated and being pleated.

French designers, especially, are not leaving anything unpleated that could, should and must be pleated according to their idea of things. Their pleated mood pertains to daytime fashions as well as those of highest evening formality. The all-over pleated gown reflecting Grecian inspiration is a highlight in evening modes. Evening capes to go with these lovely creations are also completely pleated in waistline or longer lengths. In daytime fashions the all-over pleated dress, has also been received with acclaim.

However, all-over pleating is only one phase of the subject, for the use of pleats is embracing every sort from the tiniest of sprightly pleated edgings which run hither and thither about hemlines and up and down, flanking each side of neat buttoned closings which sometimes extend from head to foot. Some designers there are who make a feature of pleated tiers and apron fronts and pleated sleeves.

The new fabrics are entering into the pleated conspiracy with a noble gesture. Most of them seem made just to be pleated—fairly invite one to pleat them. Take the all-silk black crepe which is so ultra smart for daytime dresses. It pleats to perfection. A statement that does not need a second telling after one glimpses the stunning gown in the center of the illustration. Pleated every inch of the way is this black silk crepe afternoon dress. The pleats are stitched down at the neck, shoulders and waist, giving a fitted well-groomed appearance to the frock. A green clasp at the throat and a suede belt in the same color provide bright contrast. This dress is the much talked-of Molyneaux which is meeting with such outstanding success this season.

An effective treatment of wider pleats in a black silk crepe dress for the young girl, is pictured to the left. The pleats are stitched with tailored precision about the hipline and released half way down the skirt so as to slenderize at the same time that it provides a flared hemline. The bodice is a modified shirtwaist with tiny metal buttons in front.

Speaking of the new materials adapting themselves so readily to the pleated mode, the new silk lame weaves, many of which are sheer and tissue-like in texture, enter into the scheme of things with infinite grace. If you are wanting a lovely gown for prom gayety, here it is at the right in the group pictured. Shirrings and pleats go fifty-fifty in the instance of this ultra chic and adorable evening dress made of silver silk lame. The shirred top is held by narrow double straps, and the decolletage is outlined by a tiny band of pleats. The pleated theme continues in the skirt, held well in place by the crispness of the silk lame. The only trimming is the metal and jeweler buckle of the belt.

Among the pleated triumphs in evening fashions are the perfectly charming airy-fairy floating visions of silk chiffon, most lovely, perhaps, in white but which set your heart throbbing at faster pace in any of the new jewel colors or pastel shades. Sometimes only the skirt is pleated, but when it is, it's done so artfully it flutters out like a fleeting cloud or a mist enveloping the figure.

WEAR TO SCHOOL

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Is the "what to give for Christmas" problem beginning to disturb your peace of mind? If it's Junior or little sister you have in mind, the answer will be found in the picture. To become the happy possessor of a pig-grain three-quarter length coat just like big brother's is enough to bring a big smile to any little boy. Little girls have a liking for leather coats, too, for no doubt they have heard their elders declare that leather's the thing for smart sports wear.

FUR CAPES RICHER; OF MANY VARIETIES

Fur capes are richer than they have been in years. Full-length evening models are made of strips of silver fox running from shoulder to hem—one very elegant one boasting twenty full-sized animal skins. Knee-length day capes are fashioned of mink, silver fox, dyed red fox or moleskin, while any number of shorter capes appear in astrakhan, nutria or broadtail.

Occasionally the fur capes for day wear are cut with broad shoulders and little fullness below so that they hang straight, though more often they have some flare.

New Soft Wool Weaves Are Proving Popular Just Now

With wool increasing in fashion importance, and women's insistence on being comfortable indoors as well as out, something pretty definite has been done in this year's weaves for the interests of all concerned.

This year's domestic weaves are as soft as chiffon, warm enough for all normal purposes, and have taken on an additional silky finish, adding to wearing enjoyment.

Colors have never been more flattering. That day has gone when winter means somber tones, and the "little wool frock" to wear underneath the tweed coat or the fur sport coat may be as gay and colorful as one's temperament demands.

Winter Blouses

White silk blouses should never be hung out to dry as it will yellow them. Wrap them in towels until ironing. If they become yellowed in spite of your precaution, use a little whitening in the rinse wastr.

Sharp Contrast

Paris is wearing black afternoon frocks with billowy white sleeves—a style becoming to many woman.

THE FRENCHMEN'S HIDDEN TREASURE

IN SOUTHWESTERN Colorado near the summit of Wolf Creek pass may be seen a finely-shaped hill known as Treasure mountain. It guards a park where gold has been concealed, and many things have happened in its shadow.

To begin at the known beginning, along about 1827 a band of trappers, gold hunters, and adventurers, most of them Frenchmen, left St. Louis and made their way to this section. They ranged about, looking for a place suited to their wants, and finally settled down. They sent to Taos for supplies, and stayed on for several years.

Then, late one summer, they grew lonesome for the pleasures of St. Louis and packed their accumulated gold for a trip to that city. Just as the pack train left camp, a band of extremely unfriendly Utes came by, attacked the men, and killed about half of them. The rest entrenched themselves to fight, and at the same time they managed to bury the gold and make some maps showing where it was hidden. To further locate the place, they blazed several trees with peculiar signs, and also erected cairns of stones at certain points.

At last they managed to get away from the Utes, when they separated for greater safety and agreed to meet at St. Louis. Only two of them ever reached the rendezvous.

Some time later, a Frenchman appeared in a small Mexican settlement in the region of Treasure mountain. He said that he was merely prospecting, but he had some maps which (those who caught a glimpse of them said) looked queer indeed. He kept as much to himself as possible, but the observant Mexicans thought that he was looking for a definite place. In the light of other events, we may suppose that he was the son, perhaps, of one of the survivors.

Presently he left the region—at any rate, he disappeared and never returned. But the maps came to light in the possession of some Mexicans, not those, however, who knew the Frenchman.

What these men did with the maps is hard to say. Certainly they kept them well out of sight, but the story leaked out and the general location became known.

A man named Asa Poor heard of the strange maps and the marked cache. He recalled that there was a park where the trees bore just such blazes, and he went back to the place to make certain.

The signs were indeed there, but where they pointed Poor did not know. In hopes of getting some information on the general subject, he then asked the Indian agent for information from the Utes, but the tribesmen professed to be ignorant. They had heard of such a happening, they said, but they remembered nothing.

Poor and a party of friends then tried to work out the puzzle themselves. They followed the blazes one way and another. They looked all about. At last they discovered a mound of earth—but on opening it there was nothing to be found.

Then a visitor came into the park, who claimed that he had seen one of the maps. It had directions written out, he said, and one that he remembered read like this: "Stand on this mound at 6 o'clock on a September morning; where falls the shadow of the head, there dig for the buried treasure." Hopefully, the men did as the visitor suggested, but their hopes died when no gold resulted.

The next summer a man from Durango came with a divining rod. It showed no indication of gold at the place where Poor and his friends had labored so long.

And so the search has gone on from time to time, as confident seekers hunt for the Treasure mountain gold.

$60,000 IN SACKS

PEOPLE who bury treasure surely ought to be considerate enough to leave some indication of its location. A map is always enough to start a treasure-hunt; notes are good, also, especially when they give details; and even word of mouth, although it is likely to suffer monstrous changes in the course of time, is better than nothing at all.

It is truly exasperating to read the story of old Ben Marshall, half-white, half-Indian resident of Oklahoma in the '60s. Old Ben was wealthy—he owned more than 500 slaves, and his land holdings measured over a thousand acres.

When the Civil war started, Ben disappeared, and only after peace had been declared did he show up again, this time in the Chickasaw nation. (What he did during the war can only be conjectured, but probably he did service as a spy.) After a while he returned to his old home, just long enough to dig up $60,000 in gold, pack it and load it in a wagon. He then drove back to the Chickasaw nation and somewhere near Stonewall he reburied his gold.

If he ever told anyone the secret of the location, that person did not divulge it. There were no notes among his few documents that shed any light on the place, and most certainly he made no maps.

Make Free and Easy Wrap-Around With a Smart Shirtwaist Air

PATTERN 2396

A work-a-day frock which combines all the best style features of your more expensive frocks, plus some of its own, is the frock most apt to "earn its salt," and your admiration. As popular with the slim figure as it is with the bit-more-plump one, this wrap-around is easy to make, and oh-so-simple and easy to slip into in the morning. The smart collar gives it a tailored look, as do the slashed sleeves, although the collar may be omitted if you're a fancier of the free 'n' easy neckline. It's practically frock and "undies" in one, for no slip is necessary with the generous shadow-proof over-lap.

Pattern 2396 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 takes 3¾ yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 243 West Seventeenth St., New York City.

Duty Is That Which Is Done for Good of Others

What is duty? With regard to ourselves it is to be independent of the senses, and with regard to others, it is to be untiring in giving help and support; help to live well, to will well, to wish well; help by agreement and by opposition, by giving and by withholding, by firmness and by compliance, by praise and by blame, by silence and by words, by what is pleasant and by what is painful.

Dwellers on the same earth, travelers of the same hour, and companions along the same road, we ought to help one another; and when we reach the resting place, we shall have first to render an account of what each has done for the happiness of the rest—for joy, or for goodness. A kind look will win its reward.

Resist for Victory

Every moment of resistance to temptation is a victory.—L. W. Faber.

Household Questions

A little olive oil rubbed over paper that has stuck to a polished surface softens paper and makes it easier to remove.

Rings of canned pineapple browned and sprinkled with chopped green peppers and pimientos make an attractive garnish for steak, chops or roasts.

When potatoes are baked in their skins the moisture in potato supplies the steam that makes the texture of the vegetable soft and mealy, at the same time preserving the flavor.

House palms should not be exposed to the direct rays of the sun nor should they be placed near a radiator.

Always iron ecru linens on the wrong side. Ironing on the right side robs them of their luster.

Varnished dark woodwork will have a fine gloss if washed with warm water and kerosene. Add a cup of kerosene to a large pail of warm water.

Put the fork in the fat of steak when turning it. If put into meat, the juice will escape.

When pressing neckties, cut a piece of cardboard the shape of the tie and slip inside of it. Cover tie with a cloth and press with hot iron. There will then be no marks left by seams and hems.

Some stucco walls may be washed with soap and water, but a coat of stucco sprayed over the whole surface is much more satisfactory than washing.

Find Out

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

Floyd Gibbons ADVENTURERS' CLUB

Hello, Everybody!

"Waterfront Battle"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

IT'S the same old story, boys and girls. Adventure never shows up when you look for it—always pops up when you least expect it. Take the case of Edgar Columbia.

He chased adventure from Canada to Mexico and back again, but the scare of his life came to him when he went into a lunch room one night to get a cup of coffee.

That cup of coffee cost Ed five cents, and came doggone near to costing him his life. It was in the early part of January, 1923, and Ed was in Portland, Maine. Up there he was a member in good standing of the International Longshoremen's union, Local 861, and engaged in the work of loading and unloading the boats that came in and out of Portland harbor.

It was a he-man's job, and Ed says he met up with some pretty hard-boiled characters along the Portland waterfront.

"The men who frequent the dock districts in all seaports," Ed says, are apt to be a pretty tough lot. And Portland was no exception to the rule. Human flotsam passed through there from the seven seas and the five continents. There were toughs—crooks—yes, and murderers—all of them flocking to the shabby waterfront Rialto as beetles flock to a bright light.

Nice People, These Waterfront Folks.

"In Portland these characters could be found on Commercial street, Fore street and the lower part of India street. They hung out in dives, clip-joints, cheap beaneries and in the back rooms of blind pigs."

That was the sort of locality Ed Columbia worked in, and his work was as hard as the neighborhood was rough. When a boat was scheduled to leave in the morning, the longshoremen worked all night to get it loaded.

In the winter those nights often ran a temperature of 15 or 20 degrees below zero, and at such times the men took turns going out for a cup of coffee to keep them warm.

It was on one of these nights, about 2:30 a. m., that Ed started out for a cup of hot Java. He went into one of those all-night lunch rooms of India street, and sat down at the long, wooden lunch counter on one of those round spinning stools. There were 15 or 20 tough-looking eggs sitting around at nearby tables, drinking and playing cards, but they didn't worry Ed any, because Ed was just as tough-looking as they were and weighed 187 pounds in the bargain.

Then—Socko—Ed Let Go a Haymaker.

Ed ordered his coffee and an egg sandwich. While he was eating his sandwich and sipping his coffee, a tough-looking gent came walking into the lunch room and, with a string of curses, flopped himself down on the stool beside Ed. The tough guy had a pretty good cargo of liquor aboard.

He was, as a matter of fact, at that stage of drunkenness where he was getting meaner and uglier by the minute. But—well—that was none of Ed's business. He went right on eating and drinking his coffee as if nothing had ever happened.

Ed Takes Abuse as Long as He Can.

Suddenly, and for no apparent reason, the drunk turned on Ed and began calling him every name he could think of. It seems that some man had stolen his girl from him, and Ed looked like that man. For a while Ed paid no attention to him.

"He was furious," says Ed, "and my indifference didn't help any. Finally, I told him to pipe down and go to h——l. Then he went completely nuts."

The drunk began yelling at the top of his voice, threatening to kill Ed. Then he jumped to his feet and made a grab with both hands for the stool he had been sitting on.

Those stools were just round seats set in iron pipes. On the bottom of each seat was a sort of stem that fit loosely into the pipe—a metal spike protruding about three-quarters of an inch—that the drunk picked up.

Holding the seat with both hands, he raised it high about his head and tried to drive the spike into Ed's skull.

Ed jumped—and none too soon, either. The edge of the seat grazed his head, and as the drunk raised it for another blow, Ed started backing away toward the corner of the room. As he backed away the drunk followed, raving mad and still yelling bloody murder.

"At every lunge," Ed says, "I backed away, until I was caught in the corner. I was afraid to make a grab for that spiked seat, because if I missed it, it meant a broken arm or wrist. I didn't know what to do, and in that corner, with no means of escape, the situation was getting pretty desperate.

It Took a Cool Mind and a Sure Eye.

"Finally, I had to do something. And what did I do? Well, remember how he was holding that stool seat with both hands? Every time he lifted it, he would leave his face and jaw showing between his upraised arms. That was my cue."

And Ed sure took that cue. He drew back his right fist and waited for those arms to go up again. Then—socko—Ed let go a haymaker for that unprotected jaw.

The haymaker landed and the bird dropped. He was lying on the floor, colder than an Eskimo's nose, while Ed slipped out of the door and went strolling back to the docks.

"And in spite of the cold," Ed says, "I was perspiring plenty. I wonder if it could have been the coffee?"

That's the way adventures run up along the waterfront in Portland.

Clever Opossum Prefers to Live in Warm Climes

The expression, "playing 'possum," originally came from a peculiar habit of the opossum himself. He, you see, is a master of the game of pretending, notes a writer in the Boston Herald. Normally, he seeks escape from enemies by running to the woods and climbing a tree. If he is absolutely unable to get away, though, he will feign death and keep up the deception under the most trying circumstances. Kicking or beating him doesn't do the slightest bit of good, for through it all he persists in pretending to be dead. However, if one is really interested in knowing the true state of affairs, he may be thrown into the water. There, the apparently dead opossum will come to his senses more quickly than one can blink his startled eyes.

No creature is more American than the opossum, for he does not exist outside of America. Although he prefers southern and tropical climes, he has been known to wander as far north as New England. The opossum is a rather queer looking little animal about the size of a cat. He has 50 teeth, a bristly tongue and a long scaly tail. His fur is long, fine and wooly and is interspersed with longer, coarse white hairs, except on the head and some of the under parts where the hair is short and close. The tail is not quite as long as the body. He lives wild in the woods and retires to the branch of a tree to devour his food. While doing so, he twines his tail around the branch securing himself to the tree, much in the way a ship secures itself to the pier.

Gentle Frederick the Great

Berliners like to point out that, contrary to other equestrian statues, the statue of Frederick the Great on Unter den Linden shows no spurs. The emperor did not use them because he loved horses.

Roasting the Thanksgiving Turkey

FIRST, select a plump, well-fattened turkey. Either a young or an old turkey can be made excellent eating, but you must know which you have, for it makes a difference in the way you cook it. Allow from one-half to three-quarters of a pound in the weight of the turkey as you buy it for each person to be served—remembering that in the larger kinds you will get more meat in that proportion to bone. With a 15-pound turkey, for instance, you can get 20 very generous servings.

The dealer will usually draw the turkey for you, but certain things have to be looked out for at home. Cut off the oil sac, take out the windpipe and lungs, pull out any pin feathers and singe off hairs. Do this quickly so as not to darken or scorch the skin. Wipe the body cavity with a soft cloth wrung out of cold water. Scrub the outside with a wet cloth and soda or corn meal. Rinse off quickly and wipe the bird dry inside and outside. Never let a turkey or any other poultry soak in water. You lose flavor and food value.

Rub the inside with salt before putting in the stuffing. Slip a crusty end slice of a loaf of bread into the opening near the tail to hold in the stuffing, tuck the legs under the band of skin left for that purpose, and saw up the slit with soft white twine. After stuffing and trussing the turkey, rub the outside all over with butter, salt and pepper and pat on flour. Lay a piece of turkey fat over the breast. Place on a rack in an open roasting pan. Do not put any water into the pan. Water in a roasting pan makes steam, and steam around a roasting turkey or any tender meat draws out the juices.

Have the oven hot (about 450° F.) when you put the turkey in. Brown it lightly for half an hour in this hot oven and after the first 15 minutes turn the bird with the breast down so it will brown all over. Then reduce the oven heat to very moderate (325° F.) To cool the oven down quickly leave the door open a few minutes. Turn the bird from time to time, basting it with turkey fat and butter.

If the turkey is young, continue the roasting at this moderate temperature with no lid on the pan until the bird is done. Baste with pan drippings about every half hour. In turning, be careful not to break the skin. A young 10-12 pound turkey will need about three hours in the oven.

For a turkey a year or more old, after browning in the hot oven, put the cover on the roaster, and continue the cooking in the moderate oven (about 325° F.). You will probably need to allow 4½ hours for a 15-pound bird a year or more old.

To test the "doneness" run a steel skewer or a cooking fork into the thigh next to the breast. If the juice does not show a red tinge, the turkey is done. Make gravy with the giblets and drippings.

The bureau of home economics, United States Department of Agriculture, which gives the foregoing suggestions, also supplies this recipe for a savory stuffing, and one for giblet gravy. For stuffing:

2 quarts dry bread crumbs
¾ cup fat, butter and turkey fat
1 small onion, chopped
½ cup chopped parsley
1 pint chopped celery
2 tsp. salt
1 to 2 tsp. savory seasoning
Pepper to taste

In the melted fat cook the onion, parsley and celery for a few minutes. Add the bread crumbs and seasonings and stir all together until the mixture is thoroughly heated. Pile the hot stuffing lightly into the turkey, but do not pack.

Giblet gravy: Simmer the giblets (liver, gizzard and heart) and the neck in one quart of water for about an hour. Drain the giblets and chop them fine, saving the broth. If there is too much fat on the drippings in the roaster, skim off some of the excess fat and leave about one-half cup. Into these pan drippings stir six level tablespoons of flour. Then gradually add the cool broth from the giblets and enough more cold water to make a thin smooth gravy. Cook for 5 minutes, add the chopped giblets and season to taste with salt and pepper.

Influence Immortal

The men who are gone seem to have left behind them in the world much of their power of vitality; and I suppose hardly a day passes in which we do not do some act, small or great, under this power of inspiration of our predecessors, something we should not have done, or should have done differently, if, even with all the machinery of living and all the truths we know now, we had had no predecessors, had been the first tenants if our earth.—Philips Brooks.

Leaves Over 600 Living Offspring; 5 Generations

Over six hundred living descendants have been left by Engel Dine Janssen, a widow who has died at Esens, East Frisia, at the age of ninety-one years. The old lady had one husband and fourteen children, ten of whom married young, having in their turn an average of ten children apiece. These grandchildren married young in their turn, till at the end of her life Frau Janssen could point proudly to five generations of offspring.

Her family, from children to great-great-great-grandchildren, was spread over the whole region and beyond it.

to invest in* Electric Refrigeration

IT'S ALWAYS fair weather . . . always summertime . . . in your kitchen. The temperature there requires electric refrigeration the year around.

It makes no difference in the annual saving when you buy your Electric Refrigerator. If you buy on the convenient payments plan, as most people do, you will pay through one winter, and when spring comes with its sudden rises of temperature, you will be prepared for adequate food protection with a scientifically correct temperature, always maintained, of below 50 degrees.

EASY TO DRIVE BECAUSE EVERY FORD FEATURE MATCHES THE QUALITY OF THE V-8 ENGINE

THIS is how the V-8 engine makes the new Ford easier to drive. It responds to the throttle like a thoroughbred to the spur. Its smooth flow of power through a wide speed range cuts down gear-shifting.

When gear-shifting is necessary, it is more convenient now. The lever travels a shorter distance. Steering is easier too. A 17-to-1 gear ratio and longer steering arm exert greater leverage on the wheels.

The Ford clutch takes less effort. It uses centrifugal force rather than a stiff spring to maintain contact with the flywheel. Ford Super-Safety Brakes provide extra stopping power with little pedal pressure.

The Ford Motor Company introduced V-8 performance to the low-price field. But it was not satisfied to stop there. It insisted that every feature of the Ford car must be in keeping with V-8 engine quality—driving ease included.

SCHOOL NOTES

Wolf Lake H. S. Friday Night

Teams from Noble County come on Friday evening to play the local high school boys teams. Waltke will referee these games. Since these are tne last home games of the first semester we anticipate a large attendance.

Forty Two Memberships

Teachers of the local school feel very grateful for the response made in the Red Cross Membership campaign. Forty two memberships were included in our report.

Miss Bowman and several members of our junior one act play cast attended the district contest held in Fort Wayne on Tuesday evening of last week. Avilla High School was awarded the decision by a Depauw University judge.

The one act play will go to Ashley on Thursday evening of next week and present their play on a program given by the Ashley High School.

Seniors are rehearsing their play which they expect to present soon after the holiday vacation ends.

We had fire drills in both buildings last week.

Watch for the announcement of the December P. T. A. program. A special program is being planned by Mrs. Haller of the program committee.

James Monroe of the junior class has been absent from school for several days due to severe illness. We hope for his complete recovery soon.

James Harris of the eighth grade has the mumps.

Our senior high school now has a set of the 1935 edition of the New International Encyclopedia. It replaces a "1913" edition and will be a valuable and highly appreciated source of information.

First and Second

Several pupils in our room have been absent this week.

All the children in our room report a fine Thanksgiving vacation.

Third and Fourth

Ima Lee Wade has been absent from school this week with mumps.

We had a pleasant Thanksgiving vacation. On Monday morning each of us told about his most interesting experience during the vacation.

We are going to be weighed in our Health class on Wednesday.

Our Spelling Honor Roll includes April Bowser, Virginia Campbell, Calvin Hull, Opal Kinsey, Bill Mansfield, Franklyn Shuff, June Strong, Marv Evelyn White, Helen Wiers, Leora Wilmot, Gloria Zonker, Patricia Carpenter, Virginia George, Allen Haller, Jean Hurni, Beverly Wade and Mary Louise Woodcox.

A STITCH IN TIME

With the approach of the Holiday Season comes a revival of interest in the steady battle against tuberculosis spurred on by the volunteer organizations in Indiana intent on financing the 1936 campaign against the encroachment of the disease through the sale of Christmas Seals. Through the ninety-two county associations under the leadership of the Indiana Tuberculosis Association sponsoring this sale the fight against tuberculosis has borne fruit in increased knowledge on the part of the public and added facilities for care and treatment. On the curative side are to be found sanatoria, clinics and other similar agencies; on the preventive side is the work among children such as school health, tuberculin testing, and among the general population are nursing and the educational campaign.

Perhaps one of the most important phases of the fight is the Early Diagnosis Campaign that is conducted each spring to impress upon Hoosiers the value of early detection of the disease. Commenting on this campaign Dr. Stanley Coulter, Dean Emeritus of Purdue University and Chairman of the Indiana Seal Sale, says: "No man can be cured of tuberculosis without his consent. Early discovery of tuberculosis is important and the individual should have a thorough examination by his physician that his disease may be located; then he must consent to a prescribed course of treatment for a sufficient length of time that recovery may be effected. The earlier the discovery is made, the better is the hope of cure. One of the goals of the Early Diagnosis Campaign is to set graphically before all, the tuberculosis situation as it exists today. The other main goal is to awaken the citizenship of the country to the dangers of delayed diagnosis. We all too often go to the physician only when we have become so ill that further ordinary activity is impossible. Far better is it, then, to see thet physician periodically, as a mere matter of precaution. The Early Diagnosis Campaign accents this preventive plan."

The money derived from the sale of Christmas Seals is spent in part for this campaign of prevention, and for the reduction of tuberculosis cases in the future. And there are other important and winning phases of the educational struggle that is being carried on every day by the tuberculosis association. Under these campaigns Indiana is showing results. Citizenship at the Holiday Season includes the purchase of Christmas Seals to the limit of ability.

SPORTING NEWS

Administration political chieftains have concluded that an attempt to consolidate townships and make the county the unit of local government in the interest of economy is fraught too much with political suicide to be touched until after the coming elections, it has been learned. As a result of this decision the report of the committee of economy in state government, which would have abolished the office of township trustee and the board of county commissioners and made the auditor the executive of county government has been pigeonholed.

RULES FOR DISPLAYING NATIONAL FLAG

The flag should never be raised or lowered by any mechanical appliance.

Do not raise the flag while it is furled. Unfurl, then hoist quickly to the top of the staff. Lower it slowly and with dignity.

Where used as a banner, the union should fly to the north in streets running east and west, and to the east in streets running north and south.

Where the National Flag is displayed with State or other flags, it should be given the place of honor on the right. Display the flag upon a staff when possible.

Place no objects on or over the flag. Various articles are sometimes placed on a speaker's table covered with the flag. This practice should be avoided.

Always let the flag hang straight. Do not festoon over doors or arches or tie it in a bow knot. Use red, white, and blue bunting for decorative purposes.

When flags are used in unveiling a statue or monument they should not be allowed to fall to the ground, but should be carried aloft, forming a feature of the ceremony.

Take every precaution to prevent the flag from becoming soiled. It should not be allowed to touch the ground or floor, nor to brush against objects that are not thoroughly clean.

Before being placed at half-mast the flag must always be raised to the top of the staff. Before lowering it must likewise be hoisted to the top.

Flags of friendly nations should not be displayed one above the other. They should be placed on staffs or halyards of equal size and on the same level.

VOL. L. (50 Years) (In The St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, DEC., 12, 1935. NUMBER 50

JUDGMENT PASSED UPON THREE THIEVES

Judge Endicott Thursday passed judgment in the DeKalb circuit court upon three men charged with stealing. Two of them were favored with suspended sentences, but the other is required to serve time.

Mervin Conine, of Newville, had been in trouble before for larceny and the court determined that he should serve 35 days at the state farm. He and his brother, Norval, pleaded guilty to the theft of automobile parts belonging to Clayton J. and Chalmer Hough, of Butler. The crime was committed Nov. 25 and the Conines had been in jail ever since. The court suspended a sixty day sentence for Norval and fined each brother $1 and the costs.

The other prisoner to appear before the court was Lloyd Stevens, of Auburn. He admitted collecting and keeping $71.25 belonging to H. C. Hoodermier, Auburn coal dealer. The court passed a sentence of two to fourteen years upon Stevens, but suspended it upon condition that he behave well and make restitution to Mr. Hoodelmier. The defendant also was fined $1 and the costs. The docket was stayed by Lloyd Hoodelmier and Stevens was given his freedom.

Plates Now On Sale

T. E. Myers, DeKalb couty agricultural agent, was the first person in DeKalb county to receive 1936 automobile license plates on Monday, the opening day for the sale of licenses. His number was 437701. At 2 o'clock Clyde Deetz, manager of the Auburn branch office of the state license bureau, reported 93 pleasure car, 10 truck and 110 driver's licenses sold. The number exceeds the sale on the first day a year ago. January 1, 1936, is the deadline and after that date all who have not provided themselves with licenses may be subject to arrest and penalties.

L. L. C. HOLD ANNUAL MUSICAL EVENING

The Ladies' Literary Club last Wednesday evening celebrated its annual musical meeting at the home of Mrs. John Woodcox. Other members of the committee for the evening's entertainment were Grace Dilley, Lillian Buckingham, and Hazel Storer.

At the beginning of the evening Mrs. Parlia Hull sang very appropriately "An Evening Prayer," accompanied at the piano by Lora Leighty. This was followed by a review of words conducted by the club critic, Lora Leighty, and then the meeting was turned over to the committee in charge of the special entertainment.

The group first enjoyed singing together some old favorite Christmas carols, in which all parts were taken quite well. Mrs. Harriett Koehnlein played a piano solo of a specially arranged Irish air, popularly known as "Londonderry Air."

Mrs. John Leighty gave an informal discussion of "Music As An Art." Following this, Mrs. Belle Woodcox presented an interesting sketch of Madame Schumann-Heinck. "The Magnetism and Charm of the True Artist" was an instructive paper presented by Mrs. Mary Gerdes.

Other musical numbers for the evening included a charming vocal duet by Mrs. Katherine Haller and Mrs. Parlia Hull, who sang "The Bells of St. Mary's," and a trio composed of the Mesdames Avis Staman, Lora Leighty and Harriett Koehnlein, singing "I Love A Lassie." Mrs. O. K. Shull also gave a reading by Van Dyke, "America For Me."

A round table discussion in which every member participated was conducted toward the end of the evening. Many constructive opinions were presented on modern musical trends; these were contrasted with the music the members had known in the past. Many quotations and clippings on music were also cited.

Each member was asked to answer roll call with her favorite musical program on the radio. The program officially came to a close by the club song sung acappella. Then the hostess served dainty refreshments.

Most of the members were present for this special occasion, and all thoroughly enjoyed the local talent of which the program consisted. The club adjourned to meet the next week at the home of Mrs. Inez Hadsell.

ST. JOE TEAMS PLAY TWICE THIS WEEK

St. Joe's two fast traveling basket ball teams play two games each this week, after an enforced layoff due to the postponement of games at Markle last week. The rest was quite welcome, as both teams will have two hard games this week end.

On Friday nite, Dec. 13, the Pickles and Merchants will attempt to apply the day's well-known jinx to the New Haven Independents and Merchants, on the St. Joe floor. First game starting at 7:45. The following nite, both teams journey to Zanesville, Ind., for a pair of games with Zanesville's fast stepping Basketeers.

St. Joe's lineups will remain the same for these games as in recent games, with the addition of "Slim" Snyder, the tall rangy lad who made the All-County team as a member of the Leo H. S. team two years ago. Snyder should be a valuable addition to the St. Joe aggregation.

Plan to come out Friday nite, as a pair of close, well-contested games is assured. Same admission prices will prevail.

NEW REQUIREMENTS IN ELECTION LAWS

Referring to the new Indiana election laws, copies of which he has just received from Indianapolis, County Clerk Carl Walter points out important changes in the filing of candidacies before the primary next year.

A candidate for the nomination for congress must file a petition signed by one-half of 1 per cent of the vote cast by the candidate's party for secretary of state in the district at the last general election.

A like procedure applies to nominations for county and judicial offices and the state legislature, the proviso applying to the vote for secretary of state in the county circuit or district.

Candidates for city offices will be required to file petitions signed by one-half of 1 per cent of the vote cast by their party for mayor at the last election and those seeking township nominations must file petitions signed by one-half of 1 per cent of the vote for township trustee.

In no case will more than 400 votes be required to sign any petition.

The primary election in 1936 will be held May 5 and the general election Nov. 3. March 6 is the first day to file declaration of candidacy and April 4 is the last day.

The offices to be filled include president, governor and other state offices, congressman, state senator, prosecuting attorney, state representative, county clerk, county treasurer, sheriff and county commissioner.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Home Bureau will meet Friday, Dec. 13, at the home of Mrs. Doris Yeiser, for an all day meeting. Pot luck dinner. Please bring your own table service.

FOX DRIVE TO BE HELD SATURDAY

Because of the bad weather last Saturday, the St. Joe Valley fox drive was called off, but will be held next Saturday, Dec. 14, weather being favorable.

Persons wishing to have a good time, will please be at St. Joe by 9 A. M., and help in the drive. Plans are all made for a successful round up. No guns or dogs allowed.

Penny Supper and Bazaar

Newville U. B. Church, Thursday evening, Dec. 12, from 5 to 7. Chicken pie, mashed potatoes, gravy, baked beans, cabbage salad, pickles, bread, butter, coffee, pie, cake and peaches. Come. 50t1

The Friends (Quakers) claim that not one of their members has ever accepted government aid.

Mrs. Ray Hart Dies

The funeral services for Mrs. Edna Gertrude Hart, wife of Ray Hart, of Spencerville, who died at her home Friday morning of heart trouble, were held at Hicksville, O., Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial was in the Forrest Home cemetery at Hicksville.

Mrs. Hart was 47 years of age. Surviving relatives are the husband, father and nine brothers.

SON OF FORMER ST JOE BOY KILLED

Mrs. John Wineland received the following clipping taken from a Spokane, Washington, paper:

"Dale Gordon Walter, 6-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Walter of Dishman, was hit by an auto late Tuesday afternoon and died from the injuries shortly afterward. The accident accured on the Apple way at Dishman. The lad was struck by the car of C. H. Comwell, E117 Indiana, who was driving toward Spokane. He told officers he did not see the child until it was too late to stop. The prosecuting attorney yill continue an investigation of the accident. The boy is survived by two sisters and his father, employed by the Railway Express company."

The father, Dale Walter, was a son of the late Frank Walter, who lived here some years ago, and was a school chum of the editor. Sympathy is extended.

FROM ABOUT ST. JOE

Daniel Herrick, Auburn, restaurant owner was 75 years old on Thursday. Born in St. Joe, Mr. Herrick has never been outside of DeKalb for longer than four weeks at a time. He moved to Auburn in 1900 after being elected county recorder. He is hale and hearty and at his restaurant every day.

A number of K. of P's. were at Hamilton Monday evening. Three from St. Joe took the work, namely Albert Martin, Clarence Freeburn and James Musser. Other members of the local lodge present were Clare H. Hull, Harvey Hull, Laney Gee, Chas. Bassett, Chas. Woodcox, Lessie Meek, F. R. Bowman, and Virgil Freeburn. Supper was served after the work.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Buckingham entertained a family gathering at their home Sunday in honor of Mrs. C. C. Phipps, a sister from Los Angeles, Calif., who is visiting the "Buck Home." Those present were Mr. M. E. Foltz, of Cleveland, O., Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Foltz and son, Clyde, of Miller City, O., and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Foltz, of St. Joe. One sister was absent.

In this country election time is coming on; perhaps it is not so much Democrats vs. the Republicans as it is the "Have Nots" against the "Halves." And, if this section of the country is any barometer of the situation, the "Have Nots" are easily in the majority. Vote elements to be considered are those advocating "share-the-wealth," E. P. I. C., Townsenders, and Coughlinites. In times of depression the fault is commonly placed upon the Governments; it is again in this coutr" as it was in 1933—voters are advocating "we need a change."

The Star Over the Barn

By CHRISTOPHER G. HAZARD

(©, 1934, Western Newspaper Union.)

IT HAD been a strange Christmas Eve. The falling snow had changed to sleet and the sleet had turned to rain. The disappointed children had hung their stockings by the chimney with fears that the reindeer and the sleigh of Santa Claus would not be able to bring him over the muddy roads. Their dreams were disturbed by visions of wreckage and bundles scattered about. At the church party there had been a Santa Claus, but when his mask slipped down and he put up his hand to fix it they knew that he was not the real one. There had been three wise men, following a star, too, but their white whiskers and pointed sticks had frightened the girls who were the angels so that they could not sing. And now it seemed as though the real Christmas would be a failure, too.

It looked that way to others on that dreary evening. It seemed to two travelers who were making their way towards the farm house that they could not keep their closely wrapped bundle dry much longer and that the night was very dark indeed. They were very glad to pass the sleeping house and find a refuge in the old barn and a bed on the fragrant hay. Their long and weary journey was forgotten in the dreams that came to comfort them with pictured hopes, and they were all unconscious of the peace and brightness that had succeeded the storm.

In the house, however, unconsciousness had been suspended. Ears strained in vain for sleigh bells, but a gentle voice had fallen upon them with a happy Christmas greeting from Mrs. Rosebud (for so they called her) and she had called them to the joy of a beautiful Christmas morning. In the colder air there lay a light snow over all the bareness of the day before and it was all ready to sparkle back the merry glances of the coming sun. But first there gleamed in the pale blue sky and gathering dawn the light of the morning star, and as the children looked out of the window of their room they saw that the star was resting just over their barn.

Perhaps there never was a merrier Christmas morning than the three wise children enjoyed that day. It wasn't merely because the stockings had grown big and bumpy through the night. It wasn't only because they could even smell the Christmas tree through the crack in the parlor door. It wasn't the new hair ribbons, the Dutch apron, the small pair of scissors tied with blue ribbon and the small pair tied with red ribbon, the angel cake, the box of "Creole" candy, the new skates, the extra doll "Fancy." It wasn't all these or the play house, or the pencil sharpener, or even the writing case that made one of the ecstatic youngsters say, "Next Christmas, when old Sant' comes down the chimney, I'm going to make him kneel down, then I'll whisper in his ear: 'You old Santy Fatcake!'" And it wasn't every blessing of the day that made them thankful enough, for, pulling an orange out of her stocking, one of them was heard to say, "Santa, you're giving me too much fruit." But it was something sweeter, greater and more beautiful, something that was in the under thought of all their hearts and that was presently to be in their experience, for, as they ran down to the barn, carrying their new treasures along to play with them on the barn floor, they heard a movement and a strange cry behind the barn door. And, when they opened the door, there upon the hay were the travelers, the old man with the kindly look, the lovely one who seemed to be his daughter, and the unbundled baby, smiling so deeply and so sweetly. It was the baby that was the best of all. It was the baby that sat by the table in the high chair, with little gifts before him. It was the baby that made the feast so greatly good for them all and caused them to give thanks for the star that, despite the storm and cloud, had led them to their barn. It was the baby that inspired the prayer of one of the children that Christmas night, when she said, "We know you sent your little baby Jesus for us to love. So, merry Christmas, God!"

CHRISTMAS COLD WEATHER

By Martha Banning Thomas

(©, 1934, Western Newspaper Union.)

TO BEGIN with, it's cold. COLD!! Not your gray, pinched, peaked-y backdoor-yard cold where bits of paper dance in a forlorn, forgotten reel; none of your brick-front houses on dismal streets, seeming by the best calculation, to store up a chill bleakness rather than affording protection against it—not that, but a brisk, lively, tingling cold which makes one hurry to feed the wood-boxes before dark; a cold that etches crystal ferns on the window glass, thoughtfully leaving a peep-hole near the top where you can peer out; a cold that fringes the ice-house with an orderly row of icicles that look like white, corrugated carrots, and manufactures thin, papery ice in the hollows on the ground, the sort of ice children like to stamp on, delighting in its noisy crackle and the sunburst of fine lines radiating from the point of contact.

There are waffles for supper! Do you remember how waffles look and smell and taste on a cold night, when you're "holler as a bar-post hole?" Do you, now? "Get out the maple sirup," orders Candice, flopping over the waffle iron and making a particularly neat job of it. "You'll find the jug on the pantry shelf."

Soon we are sitting before a pile of waffles a foot high.

"Now, Peter," remonstrates Candice, "don't give me such an everlasting helping;" but Peter serenely continues to fill up her plate.

"They say Shorty's little shaver ain't so well tonight," he remarks, passing the smoking beauties to his wife. "Got an awful cold. They had the doc this afternoon."

Christmas—and Shorty's little boy sick! He lives across the road and bestows his cheerful chatter and shining eyes upon us without charge and great generosity.

"I had something to give him. Guess I'll run over after supper," says Candice, making the first luscious incision into her layered waffles.

His name is Billy and he's about as big as a grasshopper: he gets "under foot" and is always frolicking at somebody's heels like a puppy. He it was, upon one occasion, who explained to us the nature of his dinner.

"Well, William," we said, apropos of his third cookie in the middle of the afternoon, "Didn't you have any dinner?"

"Oh, yes," he beamed upon us, "We had putting for dinner."

"Putting?" we inquired. "Don't you mean pudding?"

"No, putting!" he insisted, "because we put the flour in, you know!"

Dear little Billy, with his high, clear voice that always reminded one of water running over pebbles.

"His father said he was going to get him a Christmas tree this year," continued Peter. "I saw him dragging it down from the woods day before yesterday. Bill was hoppin' up and down some. I can tell you. Tickled to pieces. Guess that's where he caught cold."

At this point there was a great tramping and puffing in the kitchen. People walk right in on a cold night.

"Only me," sounds the soft, slurring voice of Billy's Italian father. "I jus' come t' say dat boy o' mine all right now. Verra seek dis mornin'—fine by now, an' can I have d' milk?"

A quick light-heartedness flows over us. We had not realized how deliberately cheerful we had striven to be. Billy better! All's right with the world!

It's colder! A careful scrutiny of the thermometer reveals the temperature at six above.

Peter pokes around down cellar and covers up his apples and potatoes against a night of freezing, and brings up some red beauties to be consumed later in the evening with nuts and popcorn.

Cold . . . COLDER!
Sleigh bells jingling by on the road!
Merry Christmas!

Christmas Dinner Centerpiece

An attractive centerpiece for the Christmas dinner is made by cutting a large five-point star out of white sheet wadding. This is placed smooth-side downward. The fluffy upper side is then pulled apart a little to simulate snow and sprinkled thick with Jack Frost powder. In the center of this is placed a bowl or tall glass vase filled with holly twigs and scarlet berries, and the edges of the star are outlined with pieces of holly.

SCHOOL NOTES

Win From Wolf Lake

The local high school basketball teams scored a double victory over the Wolf Lake High School teams on Friday evening of last week. Sechler, Like, Goodwin, Wiers, F. Richmond, Kees, and Borthwick constituted the reserve team which ran up a score of 42 to 20 on their opponents. The local reserves have won five of their six games this year.

Wyatt, Storer, Curle, F. Monroe and Thornton started the game for the regulars. Goodwin also played in the latter part of this game. Wolf Lake took an early lead and held it through the first half. In the second half the locals began to locate the basket and in a spurt tied the score and then ran up a seven point lead which was soon cut to one point. It was almost an "even Stephen" affair from that time on until in the last minute of play Storer scored a field goal and was fouled in the attempt by a Wolf Lake player. He added an extra point on a free throw and the game was over—St. Joe 29 and Wolf Lake 25.

Examinations Next Week

On Wednesday of next week examinations will be given in the elementary grades of all DeKalb County Schools. In the local high school the examinations will be given Thursday and Friday.

More New Books

Using funds received from the last dividend paid to Classes of 1928, 1930 and 1933 three books "Ben Hur," "Alice of Old Vincennes" and "A Hoosier Schoolboy" have been placed in the school library. These books are by Indiana writers and the eighth grade pupils now studying Indiana history and government have first opportunity to read them.

Christmas carols are heard from the music room as chorus classes prepare for the next P. T. A. program to be given on Thursday evening, Dec. 19.

The date set for the Senior Class play is Friday, January 10.

Third and Fourth

Helen Wiers and Opal Kinsey have been absent from school this week.

We made Christmas pictures in our art classes this week.

Mr. Haller was a recent visitor in our room.

Our best spellers this week were April Bowser, Virginia Campbell, Bill Mansfield, Billie Monroe, Leola Sechler, Walter Stewart, June Strong, Mary Evelyn White, Leora Wilmot, Gloria Zonker, Patricia Carpenter, Virginia George, Allen Haller, Beverly Wade, and Mary Louise Woodcox.

Virginia Campbell will be absent from school the remainder of this week.

Fifth and Sixth

MORTUARY

ZIMMERMAN

Alice Victoria Zimmerman, one of a family of nine, was born May 15, 1870, in Springfield Township, Allen County, Indiana. She was the daughter of John and Susan Gibbons. After mony months of suffering from heart trouble and complications, she departed this life on Friday, December 6, 1935, at the age of 65 years, 6 months and 21 days. On February 28, 1888, she was married to Franklin Stimman. To these were born three children, two of whom died in infancy. On May 17, 1891, Mr. Stimman followed his children in death.

On October 18, 1894, she was married to Sylvester Zimmerman. To this union were born two children. Mr. Zimmerman died on January 8, 1924.

Mrs. Zimmerman has been a life long member of the Methodist Church, a loving and indulgent mother, a kind friend, and a good neighbor. Of her immediate family she leaves to mourn her going three children: Earl Stimman, of near Spencerville, Ray Zimmerman, of Spencerville, and Bina Glawe at home, three grandchildren: Vernon and Hazel Stimman and Dallas Zimmerman; one brother, Charles Gibbons, of Spencerville, and two sisters, Mrs. Dos Heffelfinger, of Hicksville, Mrs. Jennie Wilmot, of Fort Wayne, and a host of other relatives and friends. Two children, her parents, four sisters, and one brother have preceded her in death.

She will be greatly missed by her relatives and friends but especially so in the home, yet none would wish her to suffer more.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon from the M. E. Church, Rev. Homer Studebaker, of Geneva, Indiana, officiating. Burial in White City cemetery.

Dearest mother, thou hast left us,
Gone to thy eternal rest;
But we hope again to meet you
In that home beyond the blest.
She has gone to meet her Savior
On that bright celestial shore,
Where no sorrow ever cometh
And where partings are no more.
Cheerfully she bore her suffering
Until death removed her pain,
And the angels came to claim her
Ne'er to part again.
Farewell, mother, we shall miss you,
Miss you o'er and o'er,
But some sweet day we hope to meet you
On that bright and glorious shore.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish in this way to thank our many friends and neighbors for their kind words and deeds in our sad hours.

The Children.

One half of the taxes assessed for state, county and school purposes are due and payable on or before the first Monday in May, 1936.

The second installment is due and payable on the first Monday in November, 1936.

In case either installment is not paid when due, it becomes delinquent and is subject to a penalty of eight per cent. Administrators, guardians, agents, and other, who pay taxes on property in trust and persons whose taxes are complicated, such as undivided estates, etc., are requested to settle such taxes before the last few weeks, as it takes time to make divisions and make seperate receipts therefore. All persons should be careful to examine their receipts and see that all property they wish to pay tares on is included in their receipts.

THE TREASURER WILL NOT BE RESPONSIBLE

For the penalty and charges and delinquent taxes resulting by reason of any omission of the person paying such taxes to state definitely on what property, in whose name and in what township or corporation it was assessed. Persons are liable for taxes on all property owned by them on the first day of March, 1935. Property will appear in the same name for payment of the second install ment as for the first installment e ach year.

Call on the auditor for errors or reductions claimed in taxes. The treasurer cannot make such reductions. No extensions will be given after FIRST MONDAY IN MAY, 1936.

County orders will not be paid to anyone owning delinquent taxes; all persons are warned against purchasing such orders. The annual sale of delinquent lands and lots will take place on the Second Monday in February, 1936.

Auburn, Indiana, December 1, 1935.

ATTEST: FRANK E. LYON,
Auditor of DeKalb County, Indiana.

CLAUDE P. FITCH,
TREASURER OF DEKALB COUNTY, INDIANA.

HARVEY JUDSON, 53, DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Harvey Judson, postmaster of Ashley, died Sunday night at 11:30 o'clock of heart trouble. The well known resident of DeKalb county, a leader in democratic politics and former business man of Auburn, had been in failing health for a number of years. His condition, however, had been considered serious only a short time.

Born in Butler, Ind., on October 20, 1862, Mr. Judson moved to Ashley with his parents, Charles and Lillie Judson when a boy. At the time Ashley was the division point between Chicago and Detroit on the Wabash railroad. His father was an engineer on the railroad.

Harvey attended the Ashley schools. On January 16, 1904, he was united in marriage with Miss Mabel Camp, the daughter of a well-to-do farmer residing near Ashley. For some years Mr. Judson waa on the road as a commercial traveling man and then moved to Auburn where he established a confectionary store where the McBride Co. store is now located on North Main St.

Mr. Judson soon became interested in politics and was secretary of the DeKalb Democratic Central committee during the time Ralph L. Thomas was the chairman from 1914 to 1916. He was also the chairman of the DeKalb County Free Fall Fair association for two years. Mr. and Mrs. Judson resided in Auburn ninnteen years and eight years ago they returned to Ashley where they opened a confectionary store. He was later appointed postmaster.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at Ashley.

A PROPHECY

Significant economic developments to be expected in the next decade are listed by a prominent business writer as follows: (1) Higher standard of living. (2) Continued advances in technical processes of production. (3) Factory built houses, better and cheaper than hand made houses. (4) Somewhat cheaper money. (5) Faster travel. (6) News printed by radio. (7) Mechanical cotton picker, revolutionizing the South. (8) Cheaper electric power. (9) Better distribution of goods; more chain stores. (10) Another depression five or six years hence, preceded by an inflationary boom.

TWO QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Why is it that one farmer raises 100 bushels of corn to the acre, and the other one, on the other side of the fence, raises 25 bushels to the acre? Why is it that one farmer produces 100 pounds of pork on five bushels of corn, and another uses 25 bushels? Not until power machinery, scientific principles of soil fertilization and restoration, rotation of crops, diversification of crops and economical feeding are applied to the farm, will the farmers' problem be solved, says a farm authority.

BANKING READY

NEW YORK. — There is abundant evidence that banks are in an unusually favorable position to finance a period of industrial growth, says the June issue of "Banking" published by the American Bankers Association.

An official survey on June 10 indicated that the Government of the United States, through its loans, was the potential owner of more than half of the existing world stocks of American cotton.

NEWVILLE

Mrs. Laura Washler spent Saturday in Fort Wayne.

Ivan Smith was numbered among the sick last week.

Ray Hart, of Spencerville, was here Saturday afternoon.

A. D. Shaufelberger, of Hicksville, spent Thursday at this place.

Mrs. Ina Traxler and Mrs. Mona Gaff spent Friday in Fort Wayne.

W. L. Strong and Hugh Strong were Sunday afternoon callers in the Van Hadsell home in Hicksville.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Funk and family, of Fort Wayne, were Saturday guests of Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Hubbartt.

Mrs. Charles Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Fay Walters and family, were here Sunday from Hicksville visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Washler and son, Delbert, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Washler and daughter, Garnett, were Sunday guests of C. A. Washler.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Goings and children called on Mr. and Mrs. Roy Keller Sunday at Concord, and then spent the day with relatives in Fort Wayne.

Hello, Everybody!

"Soldier in the Sea"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

YOU know, boys and girls, sometimes it seems there ain't no justice in this adventurous old world of ours and if you don't believe it just ask Benny Graham. Benny has a tale of adventure and injustice that happened in the late summer of 1927 off Fort McDowell in San Francisco Bay, California.

Benny was a soldier stationed at Fort McDowell. He was a "casual"—but his story isn't—awaiting transfer to Schofield barracks, which is located in the place Amelia Earhart commutes to—Hawaii.

Now the fort is on an island in the bay and one day Benny and a pal of his decided to take a swim. One toe in that cold Pacific ocean water and Benny's pal had enough.

"You go ahead," he said, "I'll watch your clothes."

So Benny went ahead and swam straight out from the island. He noticed he was making pretty good speed, but it never occurred to him that a dangerous current was taking him for a ride, until he was miles from nowhere.

Strong Ocean Current Sweeps Benny to Sea.

He headed back and yelled for help but an offshore breeze threw his voice right back at him.

Try as he would, Benny couldn't make any headway against the current so he finally gave up and drifted with it.

"I was pretty cold by this time," Benny writes, "and pretty tired too. The current was carrying me around the island through the open bay. If I once missed the tip of the island I knew I was as good as dead. The cold and exhaustion would soon finish me.

"It was late in the afternoon and to make matters worse the sun quickly sank beneath the waves and darkness settled around me. I began to lose hope—a boat could never find me in the dark, and soon I wouldn't know in which direction to swim.

Lighthouse Haven Is Hard to Approach.

"I was swimming as fast as I could—not against the current but on a slant with it—headed for the fast disappearing tip of the island and wondering how it would feel to drown when I saw something that gave me renewed hope.

"You Can't Imagine How I Felt Out There."

"It was a small lighthouse on the tip of the island miles away but the current was taking me in that direction!

"Beyond the lighthouse was the open bay—and death. But I made up my mind that I wasn't going to miss it. I'll bet no sailor in a storm was ever happier to see a light than I was that night. Each time it flashed off, as lighthouse signals do, I worried myself sick for fear it would stay out.

"You can't imagine how I felt out there in that ice-cold water knowing that my chance lay in hitting the rocks beneath that light. They looked awfully small from where I was.

"Suddenly to my horror I realized that the current was changing and pulling me from shore. If I continued to let the current carry me now I'd end up in the middle of the bay!

"There was only one thing to do and I did it. I buried my face in the water and went into a fast crawl, straight for the light. I remembered that when I learnt the crawl they told me to count 10 kicks to each stroke of the arms—I counted 10 prayers to every stroke instead.

"Hours went by. Despite my efforts I felt myself freezing to death. The light never seemed to get nearer. I began to get numb and not care.

A Rock Never Before Felt So Comfortable.

"And then, just as I was about to sink, my hand hit a rock! I grabbed it and held on and after a long rest was able to pull myself ashore—almost dead from cold and exhaustion."

And now, boys and girls, comes the sad part of Benny's yarn.

Benny was safe, but unfortunately for him he didn't land at a nudist camp because, you see, he was as free of clothes as the bride at a nudist wedding. He scrambled up the bank and along the road without even a barrel. It was pitch dark, but the lighthouse that had once proved such a friend in need was now his worst enemy. Every time it flashed Benny had to run for cover.

But he finally managed, by fits and starts, to reach a house with a light in it and he got up his nerve and rang the bell.

If a servant girl had answered Benny's ring he probably would still be doing a Tarzan on the island, but he was in luck for once that day. His own first sergeant came to the door.

Benny Finds Out How Much He's Missed.

Well, you know how tough those "Top Kickers" can be when a button is out of place, so you can just imagine what this one said when he saw Benny without a button on him! After the storm had passed Ben borrowed an overcoat and the non-com drove him back toward camp.

They picked up Benny's clothes first and Benny was shocked to find that his old pal who had been watching them was gone. He got a worse shock a moment later when he found his pocketbook and watch were also gone!

Alas! for the faithlessness of the human race!

Benny later found his pal spending his money, wearing his watch, and he hadn't even reported Benny's tragic end! And that, Benny says, was the "most unkind cut of all."

But Benny had his revenge. When his pal first saw him that night, the faithless doughboy thought he was seeing ghosts and nearly died of fright.

Walter Damrosch Gives Word Picture of "Music"

"Servant and master am I. Servant of those dead, and master of those living.

"Through my spirits immortals speak the message that makes the world weep and laugh, and wonder and worship.

"I tell the story of love, the story of hate, the story that saves, and the story that damns.

"I am the incense upon which prayers float to heaven.

"I am the smoke which palls over the field of battle where men lie dying with me on their lips.

"I am close to the marriage altar, and when graves open I stand nearby.

"I call the wanderer home, I rescue the soul from the depths, I open the lips of lovers, and through me the dead whisper to the living.

"One I serve as I serve all; and the king I make my slave as easily as I subject his slave.

"I speak through the birds of the air, the insects of the field, the sighing of the wind, the crash of water on the rock-ribbed shores, and I am heard by the soul that hears me in the clatter of wheels on city's streets.

"I know no brother, yet all men are my brothers; I am father of the best that is in them and they are father of the best that is in me. I am of them and they are of me, for I am the instrument of God.

"I am music."—Boston Herald.

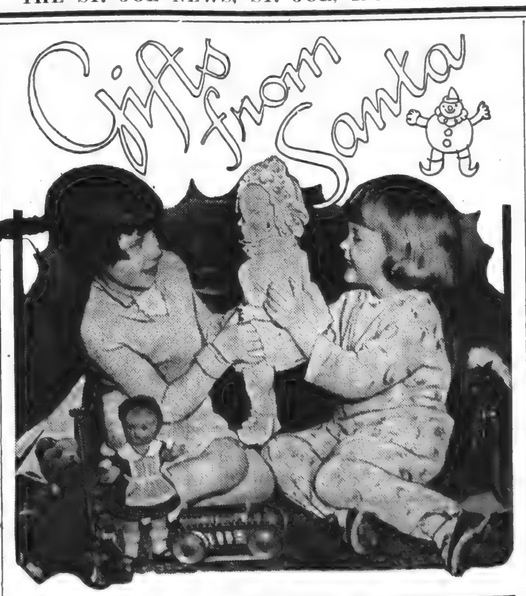
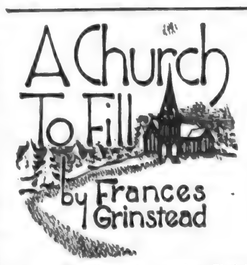
Gifts from Santa



A Church To Fill

by Frances Grinstead



OUR family had attended Christmas services at the church on the brow of the hill.

It is just a "little brown church," but of recent years it has been modernized with a furnace, a basement for church dinners, and movable tables and seats in the Sunday school rooms. The grown-ups like it better since there are more and bigger oil lamps.

"What else are you doing at your church this week?" asked Uncle Joe as he spread his napkin and looked toward the turkey. Uncle Joe is a New England minister, with his eyes usually set on heaven; but he does like turkey.

"What Else Are You Doing at Your Church?" Asked Uncle Joe.

"Why, nothing else," mother answered. "What would we have at the church besides Sunday services and the Christmas sermon, since we've left off Wednesday night prayer meetings?"

"Tell you what I'd do if it were my church," replied uncle, watching father carve. "I'd keep that place warm from morning till late night all this week, with somebody serving tea to any who might drop in, and something going on throughout the holidays. I heard Dave say last night there's nowhere to go but the movies."

Brother jumped. "You wouldn't expect me to go to church every day, sir?"

"I'd fix it so you couldn't stay away. Would you turn down a chance at an old-fashioned taffy pull in overalls and aprons? Would Frances refuse to learn book-binding or candy-making? And don't tell me Billy and Sue wouldn't come in to warm their toes and noses and have chocolate and cookies after coasting down that hill a dozen times! . . . A little of the dark meat, please, Roger.

"Then, since your mother doesn't have to get you off to school this week, why shouldn't she go herself? Mary, you've been telling me about that woman on the next farm who's lonely for someone to talk to about books. Why not call a meeting at the church and let her tell the rest of you about them? And ask the lady who used to teach music to lead you in group singing and explain the origins of the Christmas carols."

"Are you leaving me out, Joe?" asked father, laying down the carving tools.

"Not by any means! This would be a mighty good time to get your county agent to tell you what to raise next year instead of corn and hogs. Or to get your hand in at chess. By the way, I'd have all those big low tables covered with games. I'll bet there are sets of anagrams and cribbage just going to waste in your attic—"

"There are!" cried Dave, "and wouldn't it be fun, mom, to get out our old phonograph to show the fellows? We got some good records."

"Yes, but hurry, so you can wash the dishes while I use the phone. There's going to be so much going on in that church, we'll be falling over each other to get into it."

Christmas Givers

by Agnes Myers

"LUELLA," said her mother with a warning look, "take your hand out of those raisins and finish paring the apples for my pies."

"But, I've done most a bushel already," giggled the guilty youngster.

"Stuff you have! How many pies do you figure you children eat? Besides, Christmas time we have to have extras for folks coming in."

"Mercy me," she continued, "it's time for Joel to be home from the church bazaar! Look at that snow; I shouldn't wonder if we had a blizzard before morning."

Mrs. Dodge opened the cold closet and peered with secret delight at the fast filling shelves. Coffee cans filled with steamed plum puddings, a fine baked ham, frosted chocolate cakes, a whole row of pies—pumpkin and mince; and a big bowl of cranberry sauce, skins and all.

"Sally, you better help Luella with the apples, we're almost finished with the baking; and now if your father would bring the turkey, I could stuff it tonight."

"Mother! Mother!" Shouted Joel, Bounding Into the House.

She glanced toward the kitchen window—

"My stars! Here comes old Emil Cooper! I'll just give him a jug of that new cider and a mince pie, when he's going home."

Mrs. Dodge had a bountiful nature. She anticipated Emil Cooper and the many other hangers-on, who always showed up around Christmas; while the supply of pies and puddings grew less and less as the visitors departed.

"Father's coming!" cried the children and they ran to the door excitedly to meet him, followed by Mrs. Dodge. But a look of perplexity, almost distress, spread over her face.

"Where's the turkey?" she gasped.

"Fact is—" hesitated Mr. Dodge, "I—I gave it to Ned Blake on the way home—for his poor family. Mother—I couldn't, couldn't help it."

"Well," sighed Mrs. Dodge, with a crest-fallen face, "I guess they need it all right—and we still have the ham."

A light quick step sounded on the snowy porch.

"Mother! Mother!" shouted Joel, bounded into the house with a bundle larger than himself. "See! See what I have! I won the big 25-pound turkey at the bazaar!"

"Why son!" exclaimed Mr. Dodge, "that turkey is twice the size of the one we gave away!"

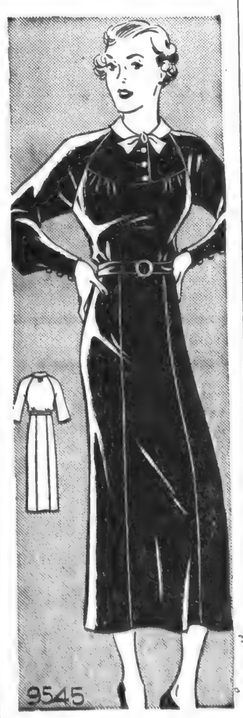
Blooms at Christmas Time

According to tradition the famous thorn at Glastonbury Cathedral was brought and planted there by Joseph of Arimathea and was part of the crown of thorns which was pressed upon the brow of Christ. According to tradition it blooms at Christmas time and the possession of a piece is said to insure good fortune through the year.

A Dressy Frock Fitting Budget

PATTERN 9545



"As easy as pie" to fit between two graceful raglan sleeves, a wedge-shaped yoke is a distinguishing feature of this rather dressy, yet inexpensive afternoon frock. You'll find it hard to decide which sleeve treatment is the more charming, the one that tapers to a snugly buttoned cuff, or the one which stops just short of the wrist. Don't forget to note the very new, gored skirt with its subtle flare. If it's a dressy dress you want, black satin is ideal; but if you're out for color, choose a richly hued novelty synthetic.

Pattern 9545 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3½ yards 39 inch fabric and ⅝ yard contrasting. Complete diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 232 West Eighteenth St., New York, N. Y.

'Twas the Night Before Christmas

Late Christmas Dinner

by Gertrude H. Walton

IMPATIENTLY Louise shoved the steaming pans and kettles into the warming oven. Looking down the driveway as she had done for almost two hours, she exclaimed:

"Of course Horton called that he might be late. But what is keeping sister and Hal, and Aunt Jen, Uncle Jim, Betty and Clyde? Six people invited to a Christmas dinner and all of them late! Accident? Surely not all of them in a heap along the roadside unless each bumped into the other hurrying because they are late to our dinner!" Louise was smiling even before a honk sent her outside.

"Horton, please drive me to Larion crossroads. Maybe we'll meet sister

"Drive Me to Larion Crossroads. Maybe We Will Meet Sister."

and Hal. Maybe they will know why the others are delayed. Sort of a news center at the crossroads, anyway."

"Pshaw! Don't worry. They probably think you will not have dinner promptly at 1 o'clock—"

"But I told each one that we would have dinner promptly because I thought you boys might wish to hear the program at Baxter. Do you suppose they have all gone to the festival before coming here?"

"That's it, exactly! Let's go, too! Then we can all come home together to a grand Christmas reunion dinner," Horton interrupted.

"Come home to cold turkey, dressing, and potatoes reunion dinner, you mean," Louise snapped.

Hurrying home and eating lunch, Horton, with Louise a bit reluctant, started for Baxter, where a special festival of Christmas music and drama, an annual community affair, for many years, between rival towns, would be presented at the Community Center playhouse. Prizes were awarded to best productions from the two towns.

"The guests must have misunderstood my letter. Whatever it is, they have all 'misunderstood together,' Louise whined during applauding for the Edgewood performers in which Horton blistered his hands, clapping for his home community.

He seemed unsympathetic to Louise's further peevish questions:

"But not one of our guests are here that I can see. Do you glimpse Uncle's bald head, or sister's fur, or Betty's red hat?"

After the program Horton and Louise watched every means of exit for their guests, then hurried home, arriving at five o'clock. At sight of the left-over dinner, Louise sobbed:

"Never saw such a frost. What on Adam's earth could have happened? What have we—have I done to deserve such snubs?" She was almost suspicious that Horton had something to do with the absence of their guests. She leaped to the jangling of the telephone. Anything was better than silence—or was it?

"Ye—yes—yes—we'll be there—at once!" The receiver clicked.

"Horton, hurry. Someone needs you—at Herald's Corners. Hal called. No, Hal and sister are not hurt, but someone else. You run on and I'll stay to prepare beds."

Horton, Hal, and Louise's sister soon arrived with a man, woman, and small child who had been buried under an automobile after being struck by a hit-and-run driver. When Hal found them, hours before, they were unconscious. After return to consciousness the doctor had consented for Hal to drive them to Horton's for the night, as no hospital was nearer than one hundred miles.

While administering to the injured ones in the spotless beds Louise provided, Uncle Jim and Aunt Jen arrived with Betty and Clyde, son and daughter-in-law, at exactly six o'clock!

"We were determined to be on time for dinner," Aunt Jen called innocently.

"Yes, you are in time—to help nurse these injured strangers," Louise answered, trying not to look discomfited.

"Jim had too bad a cold to go to the program at Baxter. So Clyde said he would drive our car and we would all come together. Clyde could not get away from the store until noon. We thought you would probably go to the program if we were not here to hinder during the afternoon. And we'd get here in time for your six o'clock dinner. Let us help make these injured ones comfortable. Or, we'll get the dinner on the table while you attend them," Aunt Jen rattled on.

"Yes, You Are in Time—to Help Nurse These Injured Strangers."

"The date of the dinner's coldness seemed not to matter. One thing I've learned, that a cold dinner is no less palatable after eight hours, than for two hours' wait. It's all because of two times—two dates for dinner—12 o'clock—and six o'clock! Two things learned today!" Louise recited to herself the text of the letter sent to her guests, and as nearly as she could remember it was worded:

"Can you come for Christmas dinner? Come early if the men wish to go with Horton to the program at Baxter. We women will gossip the afternoon away until the men return. Dinner promptly then!"

"Dinner at six—for six late guests! But it all turned out right. The poor people were rescued by Hal's coming in the afternoon. Hal said that since he had the afternoon for driving he would leisurely drive by way of Herald's Corners to see the new viaduct just completed. You and I, dear, attended the program together. Uncle Jim needed a driver. Next time I'll make it plain which dinner hour to expect my guests—at one o'clock or at six o'clock on Christmas!" Louise smiled the next day after the injured strangers were on their way, and the guests had returned to their homes.

His First Christmas

by Earle Hooker Eaton

RING up the Pole and telephone
Without a moment's pause,
Or by the wireless make it known
To dear old Santa Claus,
That Papa's Boy and Mama's Joy,
And Sister's Precious Mite,
While glad bells clang will gaily hang
His stocking up tonight!

"Ting-ling! Ting-ling! Hello, hello!
Is that you Santa, dear?
Be sure your reindeer hear your 'Whoa'!
When you are passing here.
What's that? You'll come and bring a drum,
A jumping-jack and ball,
And other toys for little boys?
Dear Saint, you're best of all!"

'Tis Christmas morn, and to his shop
Old Santa homeward flies;
'Tis five o'clock, but open pop
The baby's roguish eyes.
We're dead for sleep, but out we creep,
And dress at once to get
What Santa kind, has left behind
For Toddlekins, our pet.

From Pole to Pole there's surely not
A babe more pleased than he.
And how he crows, the happy tot,
And gurgles in his glee.
The jumping-jack, the ducks that quack,
The drum, the horns, the ball,
The chicks that peep, the horse, the sheep,
He tries to eat them all!

On this his first glad Christmas lark,
The toys with blocks he pelts,
He makes old Noah wish the Ark
Had landed somewhere else!
A soldier blue he breaks in two,
A puncture gives the drum,
He fills the air with legs and hair,
And then—he sucks his thumb!

The Sand-Man's surely come to town,
And soft in mauver's lap;
Clear up the wreck and snuggle down,
'Tis time to take a nap.
Then rock-a-bye, close each blue eye,
Rest, my darling, rest!
(He's fast asleep, with baby sheep Hugged tight against his breast!)

Who Are You?

The Romance of Your Name

By RUBY HASKINS ELLIS

A Grant?

THIS surname was taken from the old Saxon word grant, which meant crooked or bowed; or else the French grand, meaning great or valorous; or perhaps the Irish grant (or ciar), which had the same meaning as the Saxon grant. In the Irish the letter d was sounded quickly and consequently the spelling was finally changed to grant.

The first person of great prominence of this name was perhaps Richard Grant, who was made archbishop of Canterbury in 1229.

One of the first settlers in America by the name of Grant was Matthew, who came from Devonshire, England, in 1630, on the good ship Mary and John, bringing with him his wife, Priscilla, and infant daughter, also named Priscilla. On this ship there were 140 other emigrants seeking the New world, and after a voyage of seventy days they arrived at Nantucket.

Matthew Grant first settled in Dorchester, but later removed to Windsor Conn., where he became the first survivor of the town and also served as town clerk.

Gen. Ulysses Simpson Grant, famed in Civil war days and as President of the United States, was the eighth lineal descendant of Matthew Grant.

A great-great grandson of Matthew Grant was Judge Robert Grant, of Boston, a man of eminent literary achievements.

There were a number of other Grants who settled in America at an early period, especially in New England. Among them were Alexander, Peter and James (it is not known if they were related) who were among the founders of the Scots Charitable Society of Boston in 1657.

Caleb Grant, a mason, located at Watertown, Mass., in 1670; Christopher, a glover, born in England, 1608 settled in Watertown, Mass., 1634; Edward, a shipwright, married in Boston, 1658; James was a resident in Charlestown, Mass., 1658, and took the oath of allegiance at York, Maine, 1681; another James was a resident of Dedham, Mass., 1664; Robert lived in Ipswich, Mass., 1625; Seth lived in Hartford, Conn., 1647.

The arms given were found on a topaz seal belonging to Patrick Grant, but the arms used as a bookplate by Rev. Roland D. Grant, of Boston, differ from the above.

A Wharton?

WHARTON is an English name and was taken from a locality. The original Wharton estate in England was situated on the Eden river. In 1409 Henry Wharton was the head of the house and married the daughter of Sir Thomas Musgrave. Their son married the daughter of Sir Thomas Lowther, and through them the lineage can be traced as far back as 761 B. C.

In the reign of Henry VIII, Sir Thomas was governor of the town and castle of Carlisle and was active in the warfare against the Scots and for his services was knighted Baron Wharton.

It is a singular fact that five centuries later the descendants of Whartons and Scots were united in America in the marriage of Joseph Barton and the granddaughter of Ann Wharton.

Sir George Wharton had an interest in the Virginia company and one of his sons married the daughter of Sir Henry Lee, ancestor of the Lees of Virginia.

The founder of the Wharton family in America was George Whaton, who came to this country in 1635. He was the son of Sir Thomas Wharton.

Modes for Mother Versus Daughter

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

BETTER look to your laurels, daughter, for mother is about to outmode you in the matter of chic and swank in dress. At least it can be truly said that fashion is seeing to it that older women keep in perfect step with those younger in the style parade.

The current modes all go to show that the same fashion influences are important for both mother and daughter, their difference being only in their interpretation which tunes to a nicety to type and to years or less years.

With all the world wearing metallics this season, mother follows suit in afternoon or dinner gowns which have discreet touches of metal for trimming. Sometimes insets of metallic silks are set down the middle of full sleeves. Then again bands of gold or silver silk lame border necklines and accent deep graceful armholes or are draped to soften the bustline. Notice this treatment in the handsome gown worn by the smart and attractive matron centered in the illustration. Here is a restrained, at the same time most effective, use of gold silk lame on a gown of black velvety silk sheer, with a group of tucks molding the gown at the hipline.

As a rule mother does well to avoid entire gowns of metallic silk, leaving the joy to gleam from head to toes in glamorous silver or gold to the young girl. The debutant age wears dinner gowns of scintillating silver silk lames, with shirtwaist bodices softened by bishop sleeves slit underneath, as you see in the model pictured to the right in the group. Crinkled silver silk lame is used for this dinner gown, the bishop sleeves of which are split from shoulder to wrist.

Youthful, too, are the cocktail suits fashioned of heavy silk lames. These have contrasting blouses of silk satin or silk velvet. Lame jackets are also worn over harmonizing silk crepe frocks. Formal evening gowns are made of soft silk lames which seem like liquid gold, silver or bronze—often with finely pleated skirts in the Grecian manner. Stiff silk metallized brocades or moires are also quite the "last word" for gowns with slim lines that gradually flare into billowy skirts.

The draped mode interpreted in soft, supple silks in a variety of interesting weaves, is a favorite theme for both mother and daughter. The more mature woman usually prefers modified draped treatments.

Soft fullness in the bodice is also favored for the older woman, and is much in vogue, achieved through shirring, soft folds and unpressed pleats. Cowl treatments, shoulders with softly draped armholes, inverted tucks at the waistline which release their fullness gracefully in the bodice section, as illustrated in the model to the left in the picture, are all modern treatments which are flattering to older women. In the softly draped gown referred to, which, by the way, is of a handsome American beauty silk sheer, unpressed pleats give the new front fullness to the skirt, also developing into a flattering soft neckline that achieves a conservative decolletage for the older woman.

The silks which are especially favored by the more mature woman for dresses draped and shirred are heavy silk sheers and soft velvety silk sheers. Larger women particularly appreciate the advantage of pure silk fabrics because they need the dependability of silk's natural elasticity at points of strain such as across the back of the shoulders, around the armholes and through the bust and hips.

STURDY SUEDE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

By all means if you are interested in voguish leather fashions you must have a sturdy suede jacket. These jackets, in rich stunning colors, are leading the field for winter sports. The model at the top has gridiron checks patterned via embossing, on the mosaic rust suede leather. Virginia Reid wears this new vogue which originated in Hollywood. The jacket below, also checked in gridiron fashion, has triangular shaped pocket flaps which button with an all-around belt and a trick collar that can be worn up or down.

BEAUTY IS HELPED BY STYLE OF HAIR

The girl what wants to make the most of her best features and to draw attention away from not-so-good ones should study her face carefully and experiment with hair styles and cosmetics.

The right coiffure can make a too-long nose seem shorter, or an extremely thin face appear plumper.

If your nose is long and pointed, never part your hair in the middle. If it is short, by all means do wear your hair with the part in the center.

If you have a long thin face, a coiffure that fluffs out slightly at the sides will be most flattering. Girls with short plump faces can very well go in for slicked-back hair styles, perhaps even the types that show both ears.

Pert curls that fly across the forehead and in front of ears generally are best for youthful, rather small, piquant faces.

Treat Furs Roughly

If you are lucky enough to get a silver fox wrap, for goodness sake learn to care for it correctly. The fur never should be stroked with the hands or touched with a brush. Instead, when you want to fluff it up and remove dust, shake it vigorously. Don't treat furs gently. On fox ranches where the little creatures are bred and reared to enhance feminine beauty and in large fur houses, fox pelts are beaten with a stick to make them fluffier and more luxurious looking. Strong men shake them as hard as they can.

Ingenious Scarf

"Personality" scarfs that can be tied seven different ways are a challenge to your ingenuity. Perhaps you can find another way to drape them. They're made of splashing prints in the form of a V. The point of the V forms a triangle and the long ends may be tied in a bow, knotted or draped in many ways.

You can wear the V in front with a cowl neckline, tying the ends in a bow in back, or bringing them around to the front in a smaller bow.

One half of the taxes assessed for state, county and school purposes are due and payable on or before the first Monday in May, 1936.

The second installment is due and payable on the first Monday in November, 1936.

In case either installment is not paid when due, it becomes delinquent and is subject to a penalty of eight per cent. Administrators, guardians, agents, and other, who pay taxes on property in trust and persons whose taxes are complicated, such as undivided estates, etc., are requested to settle such taxes before the last few weeks, as it takes time to make divisions and make seperate receipts therefore. All persons should be careful to examine their receipts and see that all property they wish to pay tares on is included in their receipts.

THE TREASURER WILL NOT BE RESPONSIBLE

For the penalty and charges and delinquent taxes resulting by reason of any omission of the person paying such taxes to state definitely on what property, in whose name and in what township or corporation it was assessed. Persons are liable for taxes on all property owned by them on the first day of March, 1935. Property will appear in the same name for payment of the second install ment as for the first installment each year.

Call on the auditor for errors or reductions claimed in taxes. The treasurer cannot make such reductions. No extensions will be given after FIRST MONDAY IN MAY, 1936.

County orders will not be paid to anyone owning delinquent taxes; all persons are warned against purchasing such orders. The annual sale of delinquent lands and lots will take place on the Second Monday in February, 1936.

Auburn, Indiana, December 1, 1935.

ATTEST: FRANK E. LYON,
Auditor of DeKalb County, Indiana.

CLAUDE P. FITCH,
TREASURER OF DEKALB COUNTY, INDIANA.

FOX DRIVE WAS SUCCESSFUL SATURDAY

The fox drive Saturday, participated in by 500 men and boys, resulted in the capture of a red fox, which weighed 12 pounds, while 4 others escaped from the ranks before the close-in started.

Men from Deleware Bend and Hicksville, Ohio; Hamilton, Corunna, Auburn, Garrett, Butler and Fort Wayne, participated in the drive and they were all enthused over the fine time that the local Conservation Club had provided for them.

The round-up was staged about a mile and a half south of Hadsell's bridge on the Howard Northrup farm.

Another drive will be planned for the last of January, and at least 1,000 will be expected to participate. It has been discovered that the more men helping, the less danger of a water haul.

COBURN'S CORNERS

Bible School attendance 86, collection, $4.25.

Mr. J. S. Shull spent Sunday with O. K. Shull and family.

Coburn's Corners residents are now equipped with electricity and all are enjoying it, too.

Bob Kopfenstein, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Hart, had the leading role in the Freshman play entitled "Growing Pains," given by the Garrick dramatic club of which he is a member, under the direction of C. L. Tomilson. Klopfenstein is also afflicted with the publicity service and has been pledged to Phi Pi Epsilar fraternity, at Lake Forest, Ill.

The Home Builders class enjoyed their annual Christmas party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lehr Wilder Sunday, following Bible School. A carry-in dinner was served at the noon hour to all the members and their families, only two being absent. The home was prettily decorated with the Yuletide season's greeting. In the afternoon Santa Claus arrived with presents for all. At a late hour all returned to their home thanking the host and hostess for a very pleasant time.

ITEMS ABOUT ST. JOE

Harry Shuff arrived home last week from the C. C. Camp at Nashville, Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson, of Butler, were in town Monday calling on friends.

Pink eye is spreading among the school children, and will probably mar the holiday vacation for some.

Hollis Dilley is at Clear Lake this week plastering a cottage for a Mr. Stonebraker, who is a contractor.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hull and son, Calvin, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rob Nicholls at Orangeville.

The News will print early next week because of Christmas on Wednesday. See that your news matter reaches us early.

Mrs. J. Lester Perry, of Birmingham, Ala., C. F. Thayer and Mrs. C. J. Hadsell, of Hicksville, were Sunday afternoon callers of Mr. and Mrs. Laney Gee.

George B. Hart, administrator, has petitioned the DeKalb circuit court for authority to sell 54 7-100 acres of land in Newville township belonging to the estate of the late James Wesley Hart.

Joe Martin is carrying his left hand in a bandage. Monday he lost the end of his fourth finger accidentally. In testing a car motor he had his left hand on the door and when it shut caught his finger taking it off back of the nail. He was taken to Butler where stitches were take nto close the wound.

F. B. Leighty and wife drove to South Haven, Mich., Sunday morning, returning Mrs. Emma Hull-Slentz to her home, after spending six weeks in Indiana and Ohio, visiting relatives. She was called here by the death of her brother, William Hull. Mrs. Vina Quance accompaned them to Benton Harbor, Mich., and visited her daughter, Mary, and family for a few hours.

FASCINATING TALES OF LOST MINES

©W.N.U. By Edithe L. Watson

THE LOST FIND

THE Funeral range of mountains, east of Death Valley, conceals a lost mine known as the Find. A man named Smith was its discoverer, and he went to New York with the first of his new wealth, spent it lavishly, and at the end of two months died of apoplexy.

He left a map, a fairly accurate one, showing the eastern part of Death Valley, and in the northernmost range of mountains a canyon had been drawn in detail. Near the head of this canyon a red cross marked the Find.

Basing their itineraries on this map, many people tried to reach the mine, but with no success. Then a "location notice," written peculiarly and apparently designed to give clues only to those who knew which were real and which false directions, was unearthed from beneath a location monument where the copper camp of Greenwater stands. The notice read as follows:

"Notice is hereby given that we, the men that wrote this notice, is over the age of twenty-one and are citizens of the United States, Cuba, and the Philippines; we do this day locate one gold mine. Known as the Bryfogle, and more particularly described as follows:

"Commencing at this big monument of stone on a cold rainy night and running 35 hours with Indians after him, come to a big canyon that leads up to the north with two big rocks on one side of the mouth of the canyon, the one on the right round and smooth, and the one on the left rough and rugged. These rocks stand 20 feet high. Follow up this canyon about five hours on burros or one and one-half hours on horseback you will come to the fork of the canyon. Take the left hand one and ride hard for two hours and you will come to an old stone corral. Go to the right of this about 9,000 feet and you will come to a small gulch leading up to the right. Go up this about one-fourth of a mile you will come to a small water hole. Sometimes its a dry hole. If it's a water hole when you get there, water your animals, fill your canteen and then go on until the gulch forks again, then take the right hand one until it forks, then lead up the left one just a little ways and you will discover the find we have been unable to locate. The canyon is yet, and we take this means of locating the big find. The map of the above described property will be furnished to anyone on application to the undersigned. Located this first day of January, 1902.

"Locator,
"J. W. Trotter."

"P. S.—Don't look for this mine in the summer time, as it is dangerous.
Doc."

That the monument where the notice was found formed the starting place, is apparent. But so far no one has managed to run as if chased by Indians until he finds the canyon with the two big rocks. Plenty of men have tried it, though.

SWIFT SILVER MINE

THERE seem to be three distinct eras in America during which mining was most important. The first was during the Spanish occupation, the second after the Civil war, and the last the present time. But the Swift silver mine belongs to none of them; it produced its silver shortly before the Revolution.

Swift was the captain of a sailing vessel of those times. He met a man who had been adopted into an Indian tribe, and this man revealed that the Indians had discovered a fabulously rich deposit of silver in Kentucky.

The mine was in a cave, well hidden from the casual searcher. It was all that had been promised, and Swift set to work mining and smelting the ore, running it into molds and stamping it with a dollar die which he had brought with him. When they had made as much of this money as they could carry, they concealed the place as the Indians had done and started eastward—none too soon, for the tribesmen discovered that their mine had been plundered and started on their trail. In fact, pursuit grew so hot that the white men were forced to bury a large proportion of their spoils, escaping with enough, however, to be put into circulation. This money was known as "Swift's dollars."

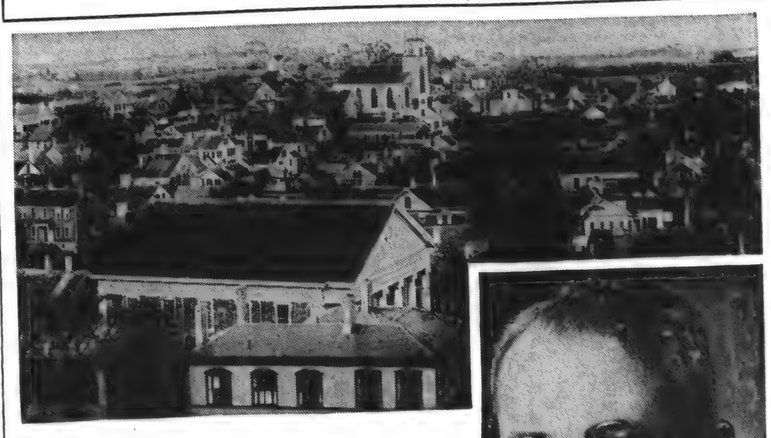
Then came the Revolutionary war, and Swift was busy with many matters. We next meet up with him when he came into Kentucky with Boone, and told the story of the Indian mine at Boonesborough.

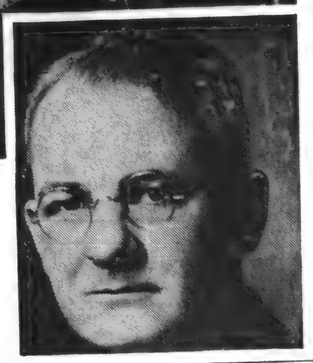
He said that he could find the place again, although his sight was failing, and a company was formed to go with him. He led them truly, and at last toward evening one day he recognized the location. The night was spent in dreams of great fortune, and at daybreak everyone was eager to uncover the hidden shaft—but alas! during the night Swift's eyesight had left him completely, and he could not see even the sun as it poured its rays against his face.

He tried to tell the men where to go, but it was useless. They were forced at last to abandon their search and return home empty handed.

That mine has been hunted ever since those days, but it remains hidden.

Nantucket Island Talks About Secession





RESIDENTS of Nantucket Island are talking of secession, if not from the Union, at least from the state of Massachusetts. They say they are "disgusted with the present operations of government" and would manage better if left alone. Bassett Jones, at right, a New York electrical engineer and summer resident of the island, is one of the proponents of autonomy or a territorial status for Nantucket, which he says was never legally joined to Massachusetts. Above is a view of the densely populated island.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

LIGHTFOOT HEARS A DREADFUL SOUND

DAY after day Lightfoot, the deer, played hide and seek for his life with the hunters who were seeking to kill him. He saw them many times though not one of them saw him. More than once a hunter passed close to Lightfoot's hiding place without suspecting it.

But poor Lightfoot was feeling the strain. He was growing thin and he was so nervous that the falling of a dead leaf from a tree would startle him. There is nothing quite so terrible as being continually hunted. It was getting so that Lightfoot half expected a hunter to step out from behind every tree. Only when the Black Shadow wrapped the Green Forest in darkness did he know a moment of peace. And those hours of safety were filled with dread of what the next day might bring.

In a Panic of Fear, Lightfoot Bounded Away Again.

Early one morning a terrible sound rang through the Green Forest and brought Lightfoot to his feet with a startled jump. It was the baying of hounds following a trail. At first it did not sound so terrible. Lightfoot had often heard it before. Many times he had listened to the baying of Bowser the Hound, as he followed Reddy Fox. It had not sounded so terrible then because it meant no danger to Lightfoot.

At first, as he listened early that morning, he took it for granted that those hounds were after Reddy and so, though startled, he was not worried. But suddenly a dreadful suspicion came to him and he grew more and more anxious as he listened. In a few minutes there was no longer any doubt in his mind. Those hounds were following his trail! It was then that the sound of that baying became terrible. He must run for his life. Those hounds would give him no rest. And he knew that in running from them he would no longer be able to watch so closely for the hunters with terrible guns. He would no longer be able to hide in thickets. At any time he might be driven right past one of those hunters.

Lightfoot bounded away with such leaps as only Lightfoot can make. In a little while the voices of the hounds grew fainter. Lightfoot stopped to get his breath and stood trembling as he listened. The baying of the hounds grew louder and louder. Those wonderful noses of theirs were following his trail without the least difficulty.

In a panic of fear, Lightfoot bounded away again. As he crossed an old road, the Green Forest rang with the roar of a terrible gun. Something tore a strip of bark from the trunk of a tree just above Lightfoot's head. It was a bullet and it had just missed Lightfoot. It added to his terror and this in turn added to his speed.

So Lightfoot ran and ran, and behind him the voices of the hounds continued to ring through the Green Forest.

Pique Buttons

The striking feature of this black wool crepe street frock worn by Virginia Reid, screen actress, is the clever pique buttons which trim the bodice. The pique, a waffle-weave, is corded to form the round buttons which are themselves ornamented with pique "wings." The same fabric forms the muffler collar. Though the frock is cut in one piece, it is styled to give the effect of a jacket in the back. With the frock she wears a peaked hat made of a ribbed black crepe.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

WINTER ENTERTAINING

FOR the average housewife elaborate entertaining is not to be thought of, not only because of the expense but because of the amount of labor involved.

When serving an informal tea for club or committee the wise woman will provide herself with plenty of the good sized heavy paper napkins to use instead of the cherished linen, which is used for more formal occasions.

Napkins of paper now come in large sizes and one may even have an initial to make them more personal. Nobody enjoyed the small and elusive paper napkins, for they never "stay put," but these are such a comfort and saving on linen.

There are so many kinds of sandwiches that may be served with tea or some other hot drink, that one might have a different one every day for years.

Small cookies and cakes are always popular, make them unusual, either by filling them with some soft rich filling of fruit or custard, or sweetened and flavored whipped cream.

The very small cream puffs filled with good thick sweetened and flavored whipped cream are most attractive and universally well liked. Serve them on a lace paper-covered plate in twos or threes; when accompanied by a cup of hot cocoa, what could be more dainty for a light afternoon refreshment?

There are so many food accessories now which add to the enjoyment of serving simple foods. The frying basket for potato meats—they are so simple to make, using a fine shredder in the form of a flat grater, making the fresh potato in such fine shoestrings that the basket when cooked even looks like a nest. These may be made and heated before serving. The baskets may be filled with the most delicious sweetbreads and mushrooms, or creamed chicken, or with any creamed vegetable one desires.

"There should be a Pulitzer prize or something of the sort," says goofy Gertie, "for that one person that makes the first page of a newspaper during the year without the aid of the police."

Old Street Car Is a Good Clubhouse

THIS unique clubhouse is a discarded street car in which members of the Home Makers' club of Atlanta, Ga., hold their regular meetings. The car is located on a plot of ground donated to the club by the city. The ladies have made good use of the paint brush and have added curtains, shades, pictures and wall vases. A completely furnished kitchenette may be seen at the back of the car.

A SCHOOL

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I WOULD have a school
A place for labor,
Yet I would always have
Play for its neighbor:
Touch this thing with romance,
And that with glamour,
The history of France,
A Latin grammer.

I would have a school
A place for dreaming,
Not only teach the true
But teach the seeming:
The world needs dreamers, too,
As well as heroes,
And Shelleys something do,
As well as Neros.

I would have a school
A place for winning
More than a little lore—
But the beginning
Of many books to read,
And much endeavor,
A school a thing to lead
The mind forever.

ACROBATIC MATCH BOX

AN EMPTY match box is the apparatus required for this surprising trick. The magician exhibits the box; then places it upon the palm of his left hand. It lies there until he says the magic word.

Then the box slowly rises upward. It sinks again at command. Then it rises. Finally the wizard removes the box and passes it to the baffled spectators. They find it to be an ordinary match box.

Here is the secret: In placing the box on his left palm, the magician sets it upside down. Moreover, he pushes out the drawer a trifle forward. In closing the drawer, he pinches a bit of flesh at the base of the fingers.

The simple process of stretching the fingers or loosening them causes the match box to rise and fall. At the finish, the right hand moves over and opens the drawer as it removes the box from the left.

Think to Our Utmost; Then We Can Seek Help

Thinking is only one aspect of mental activity and mental activity is only one aspect of vital activity. Life must go farther than mere thinking can carry it. It cannot stop where thinking stops. Then what is to be the guide of life when thinking fails to be a sufficient guide? Is there to be no guide at all? A negative answer is too often given, and hence the confusions of the hour. But there is no justification in thought or anywhere else for the negative answer. Thinking stops very often before it needs to stop. It ought to proceed as far as it can, and when it does so it sees the reasonableness of seeking help beyond itself.

Fairy Story Is Told on Danish Postage Stamps

A fairy story from the post office is very unusual, but the Danish post office is sending them out in millions.

It is a hundred years since Hans Anderson was born, and running through the leaves in the books of stamps that bear his picture is the famous but sad story of the little girl who sold matches and struck the last three or four she had to try to keep warm before she died.

BEFORE BABY COMES

Elimination of Body Waste Is Doubly Important

In the crucial months before baby arrives it is vitally important that the body be rid of waste matter. Your intestines must function—regularly, completely without griping.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—much pleasanter to take than liquid. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system, and insure regular, complete elimination without pain or effort.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

In Their Madness They Go to War

Mussolini (left) and Hitler, addressing vast throngs, give evidence that great masses of people are carried away mentally and emotionally by public speeches.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

WHOLE nations go mad, and in their madness they go to war. They are moved to terrible deeds with equally terrible consequences by powerful forces of suggestive propaganda at the hands of leaders who are themselves mentally out of balance. Only mental hygiene, universal and ceaseless in application, can save mankind from the horror and degradation of war and, indeed, as military science advances, from utter extinction.

This is the ominous warning given in a document sent to the statesmen of the world by the committee on war prophylaxis of the Netherlands Medical association, and signed by 330 prominent psychiatrists of 30 nations. It was a modern reiteration, scientifically prompted, of the old maxim that the pen is mightier than the sword, that suggestion is more powerful than sound logic in its influence on human instincts inherited from the dark caverns of the past.

The danger which confronts the world now was named by Prof. William James, noted psychiatrist, at a medical meeting in London.

"There are at the present time individuals holding prominent positions and influencing the destinies of whole countries who are known to be mentally unstable or who have actually had attacks of mental disorder."

People are excited by the fire and emotion of unbalanced, but powerful, personalities, and by the evilly-inspired speeches of public heroes, until they themselves are hypnotized and carried away. Then, and only then, are they capable of doing acts which, if they were in their normal state, would shock them and fill them with loathing, the psychiatrists say.

Even in this advanced age of civilization man still possesses somewhere in him that dangerous instinct to destroy and kill. When they believe their community is in danger of being attacked or is being wronged by another community, these instincts break loose. In a state of war, such instincts are looked upon as heroic and are rewarded. Speeches urging that there is real necessity for military action, cries of "Save the world for democracy!" "Down with the enemy!" and similar catch lines, can throw such nations emotionally out of control. They can make a man who wouldn't hurt a fly, ordinarily, be ready to run a bayonet through another man with the greatest satisfaction and with the knowledge that he is actually to be condoned for such an act.

Force Is Enormous.

"The suggestive force of speeches made by statesmen is enormous, and may be dangerous," is psychiatry's conclusion. "The warlike spirit so easily aroused by the cry that the country is in danger, is not to be bridled, as was evident in 1914."

A catch phrase or a slogan shouted by a great leader can do more to bring a nation up in arms than all the systematic recruiting and logical approach to sense of duty can hope to do. Recall "54-40 or fight!"? "Give me liberty or give me death!"? "They shall not pass!"?

Even the sand-lot baseball game provides a parallel. A pitcher who has hurled a beautiful ball game allows a man or two to get to base and, although the spectators know he probably has control of the situation, a solitary heckler, unstable in his logic and poor in his judgment, starts crying, "Take him out! Take him out!" Soon the cry roars forth with the mighty volume of the entire crowd—who really know better—and the pitcher actually does get "rattled" and "blows up."

Great leaders are often suffering from suppressed fears or hates or unconscious desires for power. These emotions may cause them to believe that their countries are threatened by danger from other countries and that they must lead their peoples to protect themselves. They may be totally unbalanced, but the flame inside empowers them to sway entire populations from the norm.

These leaders don't for a minute fool the psychiatrists, who say:

"Our science is sufficiently advanced for us to distinguish between real, pretended and unconscious motives, even in statesmen. The desire to disguise national militarism by continual talk about peace will not protect leaders from the judgment of history. The secret promoters of militarism are responsible for the misery a new war is sure to bring."

Need Control of Instinct.

All of us have the warlike instinct. It is only when we are swayed into losing control of it that we make war. Professor James says:

"We inherit the war-like type . . . Our ancestors have bred pugnacity into our bone and marrow, and thousands of years of peace won't breed it out of us. The public imagination fairly fattens on the thought of wars. Let public opinion once reach a certain fighting pitch and no ruler can withstand it."

You can test yourself on your inherited love for fighting. Get a pencil right now and write the names of the 10 men you consider outstanding in the world's history. Now look them over. How many of them are—or were—fighters?

The inborn instinct for war is not impossible of control, however, says science. Dr. John M. Fletcher, professor of psychology at Tulane university, was given some light on this subject in the answers to a question he put to members of the American Psychological association. This was the question:

"Do you as a psychologist hold that there are present in human nature ineradicable, instinctive factors that make war between nations inevitable?"

Of the 528 members of the association, 378 answered. Three hundred and forty-six responded with an unqualified NO. Only 10 said YES. There were 22 indefinite answers. Most of the negative replies were emphatic, underscored and elaborated with argument and reiteration.

Co-operation Called Solution.

"Primitive man fought over roots and berries; we over markets," said Dr. S. M. Ritter, whose teachings in psychology are known in America and China. "Co-operation, founded on equally innate sympathy and gregariousness, seems a possible solution—when leaders are sane."

"Positively not," said Dr. A. S. Otis. "Any one who thinks so is densely ignorant of political affairs. Wars are artificial, commercial, strategic, political, trumped-up and forced upon us."

And Dr. Adolf Meyer, Johns Hopkins university psychiatrist, said:

"The abolition of duels in Anglo-Saxon society is a striking and suggestive fact worth remembering."

The only solution to the problem of how to end war is to restrain the warlike spirit, not to stir it up by propaganda. And how a clever propagandist can stir it up, say the psychiatrists. Why cannot it be used to destroy war?

"Publicity is replacing powder in settling international difficulties," said Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford university and former secretary of the interior. "And publicity means attacks through and upon the mind.

"More Fatal Than Bullets."

"War is an old, well-established and emotional state, often artificially created, which will carry individuals and groups of people through degradation and misery almost without limit, and yet in war we have found that propaganda is more fatal than bullets.

"Propaganda, organized, played a large part in the last great war, and organized propaganda is now on its way in case there should be another great war.

"World control must come, not through the mass soldiering of men, but through the minds of men, so that mental hygiene, sound thinking, the control of the emotions, becomes the outstanding problem of the world today."

Often it is important to the cause of the propagandist that the source of information in an account be played down or even omitted entirely. Doctor Wilbur warns that when you feel yourself becoming excited by a statement or a news story or a magazine article, you should check it for the source of its information. If you have trouble finding it or cannot find it at all, there is ground for suspicion; you should take time to think it over and weigh its arguments carefully. Above all, don't hurry about taking its suggestions.

In reading accounts of this kind it is well to keep in mind that propaganda has been developed as an art, and the men who make propaganda their business are real artists. But they have their art which if they are known by their victims, would make propaganda much more easily recognizable.

The rules may be summed up in this manner:

(a) Avoid logical argument, and appeal to emotion alone.

(b) Always fit the situation into a pattern of "we" versus "the enemy."

(c) Reach entire groups as well as individual persons.

(d) Keep hidden the source of the propaganda.

The "fighting spirit" in itself is not something to be deplored. It is only potentially bad. Actually it is an American tradition and the spur to progress and activity. But like criticism, it can be destructive or constructive. The great opportunity awaiting science—and government—is that of putting such a vital force to admirable use.

Values Military Training.

Professor James believes that martial training has its virtue, and does not necessarily have to have war as its objective. He would like to end wars, but believes something can be saved out of them.

His plans along this line cannot help calling to mind the Civilian Conservation corps. For he would like to see young men drilled to develop their strength, their courage, their manhood. No digging of trenches to train them in the art of killing their fellow men. Rather let them dig ditches. The sweat and the muscle is there, and the discipline can be, but the violence, the degradation are missing. This force, says Professor James, would be applied to man's battle against nature, not against his neighbor.

He sums up his own idea:

"Instead of military conscription, let us have a conscription of the whole youthful populations to form for a certain number of years a part of the army enlisted against nature.

"To coal and iron mines, to freight trains, to fishing fleets in December, to dish-washing, clothes-washing and window-washing, to road-building and tunnel-making, to foundries and stokeholes, and to the frames of skyscrapers, would our gilded youths be drafted off, according to their choice, to get the childishness knocked out of them, and to come back into society with healthier and soberer ideas.

"The martial type of character can be bred without war. Strenuous honor and disinterestedness abound elsewhere. Priests and medical men are in a fashion educated to it.

"Let our young men go to war against flood, earthquake, famine, wind, pestilence and ignorance. Let them go into a scientific war."

How long it will be before governments can be persuaded to take up the cause of mental hygiene as the only sure way of saving mankind from war is a question to which hardly anyone would be willing to guess the answer. Certainly not very soon, with conditions what they are in Europe and the Far East.

Individual effort can help. If only everybody would STOP TO THINK. That is the psychiatrist's answer. Then mentally unbalanced leaders would lose their sting.

Records of Achievements

More names, dates and records of achievements are carved in the rocky cliffs of the Dog river near Beirut, Syria, than in any other spot on earth. For the past 3,000 years this gorge has been a favorite pass for armies marching between Africa and the East and few conquerors, from the pharaohs of Egypt to the marshals of France, have failed to leave inscriptions on its rocks.

Intermarriage of Normals Strengthens Race, Claim

Dr. Olga Bridgman, of the California university clinic, claims to have made studies which prove that intermarriage does not weaken the race but strengthens it. If cousins who are both mentally and physically normal marry, she says, the children will tend to be even better mentally and physically than the parents. But, on the other hand, if the parents are below normal mentally and physically, then the children will be even less intelligent and less healthy than the parents. Intermarriage increases the predominent traits and so either improves or weakens the race dependent upon the original stock.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Irish Lads Find Black Paint Conducive to Rest

Two Irishmen roomed in an eight-story apartment, on the top floor, and could not sleep on Sunday morning as the sun would shine in the widows and wake them up. They bought some black paint and painted the windows and lay down to sleep. When they woke up, they realized they would be late for work, as it was 7:15. They rushed to their jobs, and the foreman looked at them in bewilderment. Pat says:

"Faith, and what's the matter, boss? We're only 20 minutes late."

Says the foreman: "Twenty minutes? Where were you Monday and Tuesday?"—Wall Street Journal.

Freedom Is Right and Power to Do Your Duty

Those who are crossing the threshold of manhood or womanhood should meditate on the two paradoxes which seek for solution—the paradox of Authority and Freedom, and the paradox of Right and Duty.

I should sum up the first by saying "Freedom is not the right to do what you like, but the power to do what you ought," and the second in the words "No man has any rights save one—the right to do his duty."—Sir H. Stuart Jones.

SCHOOL NOTES

Fremont High School Defeated

On last Friday evening Coach Noffsinger took his basketball teams to Fremont and annexed both games. The second team had an easy time in scoring a 32 to 20 victory. Like, Sechler, Woodcox, Wiers, Goodwin, Kees, Borthwick and Hart played in this game. The first team was clicking and overwhelmed Fremont's best by a score of 51 to 19. Monroe and Storer playing the forward positions accounted for 22 and 17 points respectively. Curie at guard scored six points. Wyatt and Thornton accounted for the other markers.

LaOtto H. S. on January 11

The game originally scheduled with LaOtto for November 15 but postponed because of a scarlet fever scare at that place will be played in St. Joe on Saturday evening, January 11. The game at ASHLEY has been changed from December 27 to January 31. On January 24 Fremont returns games at St. Joe.

Superintendent Stallman delivered the semester examination booklets on Tuesday of this week. Grades up to and including the eighth had examinations on Wednesday. The upper four years will have examinations on Thursday and Friday.

The county board of education voted to have one week of vacation. This will be from December 21 to December 30.

Attend the P. T. A. meeting on Thursday evening of this week. Mrs. Haller of the program committee will be in charge. Mrs. Haller, Prof. Harshman, Miss May, Mrs. Furnish and Mrs. Crick have spent considerable time in preparing the pupils of the first six grades for this pageant. The minister from the local Lutheran Church will assist by relating the Christmas story.

Senior Class Play comes on Friday evening, January 10th.

The advance Home Economics classes spent the afternoon of last Friday at the County Farm northwest of Auburn. The classes made Christmas candy last week, and thought it would be kind to take some to the people there.

After arriving there, the girls were shown around the home by the superintendent, Mr. Sam Morr, and the matron, Mrs. Rogers. The ladies went to their sitting room and the girls sang several Christmas carols. Alice Strong accompanied the class, and gave a reading, then sang a carol. The classes visited with the ladies until they had to leave.

Treats were left for each inmate. They were the candy made in the home economics classes last week, consisting of chocolate fudge, penuchi, banana and peanut butter fondant, and candied orange peel. Each was wrapped in white paper, tied with a large red bow, and contained a Christmas greeting from some girl in the class.

The girls feel that they left behind a bright feeling that did the inmates good as well as the girls themselves.

The ones who drove to take the girls were Mrs. George Strong, the Misses Janalyce Rouls, Harriett Keller, and Harriett Yeiser. The girls who went beside those mentioned, were: Wilma Blackwell, Eloise Coburn, Jean Hanck, Donna Hindman, Berniece Madden, Ruby Madden, Anna Richards, Jean Ridgway, Edith Stewart, Florence Thomas, Clara Wiers, Blanche Strong, Frances Bishop, Pauline Donley, Alta Inlow, Marguerite Sechler, Garnett Washler and Vivian Richmond.

The freshmen class of home economics students planned to have a regular Christmas party Tuesday afternoon, December the 17th. The refreshments were arranged so that the girls might make the candy and cookies ahead of time during their food laboratories.

Garnet Cook read a Christmas story. Three children from the third and fourth grade came to practice their Christmas readings. There was a contest to see who could get the most words out of Christmas. The winners of this game played Santa Claus and opened the gifts.

Instead of exchanging gifts this year, the girls brought little presents that were needed in the home economics department. These were attractively wrapped and turned out to be such useful articles as spatulas, measuring cups, egg beaters, and paring knives. Everybody enjoyed it very much.

Tea was correctly served near the close of the hour with light refreshments consisting of candied orange peel and date bars.

The seventh and eighth grade girls also gave a Christmas party last Friday during the noon hour. Each brought a small useful gift for the department that was appreciated very much.

These girls ate their lunches in the home economics room. The eighth grade girls had set and arranged the tables attractively and made oatmeal cookies and cocoa to supplement each girl's lunch, while the seventh grade furnished some games.

Hot Lunch has been doing remarkably well this year. During November the daily servings averaged at forty, which is higher than the same time last year.

Anyone wishing to donate food or to send in food for tickets, should get in touch with Mrs. Grace Sheffer, Mrs. Helen Wade, or Miss Janalyce Rouls.

BASKETBALL SCHEDULE 1935–1936

FROM ABOUT ST. JOE

The St. Joe Filling Station will be closed Christmas Day after 9 o'clock.

Chas. Bishop and wife, of Cleveland, were in Auburn Sunday and they took Mrs. Mahlon Baker home with them for the winter.

Out of a flock of 16 sheep, 14 were killed and injured Tuesday night at the Merritt Sechler farm. This is the second raid on his sheep this fall.

Harry Junior, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shuff, was buried Monday afternoon in Riverside cemetery. The child was still born Monday morning.

Have your glasses fitted by Benj. F. Griest, Eyesight Specialist, Office in American Bldg., Hicksville, Ohio. 28tf.

Merritt Sechler, B. E. Widney, Jack and Roscoe Sechler, arrived home Saturday evening from a trip to Pennsylvania. The latter two brought home a deer apiece and report a fine trip.

A marriage license has been granted to Chas. DeWitt, 25, farmer, of Auburn Junction, and Ellen Rowe, 19, St. Joe. The bride is the eldest daughter of Levi Rowe and wife, north of town.

Mrs. Emmett Armstrong, of Jackson township suffered a stroke of paralysis last week and today is some improved. Her daughter, Mrs. Ray Farver, of Angola, was with her until Wednesday.

Last week Fred Hart backed his car into a 4-foot ditch and then was compelled to call for help. Those who assisted him out of his trouble could give no cause for such an accident and those who did not see it are sure they understand.

Mrs. Don Burley, of Princeville, Ill., came Wednesday to assist in the care of her mother, Mrs. G. W. Woodcox, who is quite poorly at the home of a son, C. C. Woodcox, and wife. Mrs. Burley will remain indefinitely.

According to a report received from Washington, five persons will be taken from DeKalb county relief rolls and given jobs of four to six months' duration as enumerators, taking the new census of business and manufacturers in the county.

"By the People"— Or by Politicians?

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

During recent weeks America has heard a swelling volume of protest against interference by numerous political Boards, Bureaus and Commissions with the lives and affairs of citizens.

The protest comes from various sources—from merchants, in communities both large and small; from many growers and consumers of our food products; from increasing numbers of men and women in the professions and in business.

What is the explanation?

One answer might be that such interference can seriously affect the citizen's means of earning a livelihood. But many keen observers of the current American scene suggest a deeper and more fundamental motive.

The protests, they believe, reflect a surge of resentment against usurpation by political jobholders of powers which American citizens are convinced belong only to officials chosen by the people.

They represent, in other words, a spreading antagonism to Bureaucracy which after expanding swiftly during several decades has achieved an unprecedented growth and power during the past few years.

When one considers the many powers now assumed by the hundreds of Boards, Bureaus and Commissions which crowd the office buildings of Washington, the protests seem more than justified. That such usurpation of authority constitutes an abridgment of the political power of the people is equally obvious.

Under our Constitution the people delegate to Congress—not to appointed Bureaus—the right to make our laws.

Under it we delegate to the Executive Branch of Government—not to appointed Bureaucrats — the power to enforce those laws.

When these powers are usurped by jobholders in whose selection we have no choice and over whose activities we exercise no control, then "Government by the People" becomes an empty phrase.

In its place we get Government by Bureaucrats—which means not only waste of the people's money in unnecessary public payrolls and public expenditures, but a frank surrender of the people's right to govern themselves.

Cecil Likes, who was taken to Garrett hospital last week for treatment, was removed to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Likes, north of town. His condition is reported as about the same. He is not himself at any time and is thought he may be removed for treatment.

Lester Casebere, of Stafford township, Albert Yoder, of Jackson township and Orlo Deetz, of Fairfield township, have been appointed by the board of directors of the DeKalb County Farm Bureau to act with A. D. Foust, Lloyd Hoodelmier and H. E. Hart of Auburn, representing the Auburn Chamber of Commerce, to organize the 1936 DeKalb County Free Fall Fair association.

SPORTING NEWS

The St. Joe Valley Pickles continued their winning streak by defeating the strong Zanesville Hoosiers at Zanesville Saturday night by a score of 40-46. This was Zanesville's first defeat of the season and they felt that they had met a real team when the game was over. The basket shooting of the Pickles was most spectacular and kept the Zanesville fans thrilled thruout the game. If you have not been following the Pickles it will be worth your while for the players are all masters of their trade and the price admission is very reasonable. There will be two games at St. Joe Saturday night the Merchants playing the Precious Blood Team of Fort Wayne and the Pickles playing the Westminster A. C's.

TAX DISTRIBUTION MADE BY AUDITOR

County Auditor Frank E. Lyon, Saturday mailed checks for the semi-annual distribution to the various units of the county that aggregate 18 per cent more than the December remittances of 1934.

The amount this year is $366,175.75, as compared with $310,738 a year ago. The increase is due chiefly to the delinquent tax, the collections this fall being $74,909.42 against $30,490 a year ago.

The distribution made Saturday includes $361,659.60 in general property tax, $3,466.82 in tax from banks, $553.27 in tax from building and loan associations and $496.06 in moratorium tax collections.

More money is distributed this year to the state, the county general fund, county road bonds and interest and township road bonds and interest, Auburn schools, Garrett schools, Altona, Ashley, Corunna, and St. Joe towns, and Concord, Jackson, Newville, Richland and Spencer townships all get more money. The other units receive less.

Consideration for the increases was taken into account when the tax levies were made for 1936, making significant reductions in some of the rates.

The settlement follows:

TO EXTEND ROAD 8

Viewers have been appointed in the Noble circuit court at Albion to appraise land wanted for the improvement of the new route of state road 8 in Noble county. Some objections have been filed by landowners. The plan is to increase the width of the right-of-way from 40 feet to 80 feet. The state will take the road over when the right-of-way is secured.

Work on getting the needed right-of-way in DeKalb county is under way. The proposed route is to start at intersections of roads 27 and 327 a mile north of Garrett hence proceed west to Avilla, thence north on state road 3 to Fairbanks corners and then west to Albion. A portion of the latter stretch is pavid on one side of the road.

STRUCK BY AUTO CROSSING STREET

Mrs. Julia Stallman, 73, mother of Carl F. Stallman, DeKalb county superintendent of schools, suffered bruises Wednesday afternoon at 4:40 o'clock when she was struck by an automobile. She was removed to the Dr. Bonnell Souder hospital in the Dilgard Bros. ambulance and after an examination Mr. Stallman took his mother to his residence at 315 W. Second St. It was thought Thursday no bones were broken.

Mrs. Stallman went up town to meet her son and was crossing Seventh St. between Bishop's confectionery store and the court house. J. R. Leighty, of St. Joe, was driving east. He did not know he had hit any one until his attention was called to the fact and he found the aged lady on the front bumper. Mr. Leighty ordered an ambulance immediately.—Star.

Later word is that Mrs. Stallman was able to be up Saturday. No bones were broken and outside of being badly bruised up, will soon recover from the shock.

L. L. C. ANNUAL CHRISTMAS PARTY

The Ladies Literary Club held its regular meeting of the week last Wednesday evening, December eighteenth, at the home of Mrs. Ed Storer and daughter, Miss Hazel Storer. Although this was scheduled to be a Christmas get-together, the details of the evening were left a complete surprise, except the gifts and candies which were brought by each member in order to fill a box for several children.

Before the guests could settle themselves too comfortably, it was announced that some of the members were unable to attend and the club would go to their homes to sing Christmas carols. This proved most delightful. The Club stopped at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hull, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Buckingham, and Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Woodcox, to serenade in true Yuletide spirit with the favorite old Christmas hymns.

Glad to be back to the fire after the cold tramp along the streets, the ladies held a short business session with the president, Mrs. Cora Curie, presiding and Miss Janalyce Rouls serving as secretary pro tem. Then the meeting was turned over to the direction of Mrs. Grace Dilley.

Miss Hazel Storer presented a very interesting article discussing ably the customs and precedents of our Christmas season, explaining just how they originated. Miss Violet May read a Christmas story that was enjoyed by all. Mrs. O. K. Shull then read " 'Twas the Night Before Christmas," which brought back many a childish memory.

Games were then in order. A slip of paper was given to each member with instructions to write the name that she would like to have chosen for herself. These names ranged from Sally Rand and Mae West to Mahali and Sabina. Each member was called her new name for the rest of the evening, much to the merriment and memory work of all.

In the very midst of the games a loud pounding was heard at the door, and in bounded a jumpy, jerky Santa Claus who presented favors to everyone present. There were attractive packages of candy adorned with miniature, snowy Christmas trees. Although the members surmised that one of their own crowd impersonated Santa Claus just to fool them, they were never able to get the suspected person to confess.

More games of Christmas nature kept everyone busy every second, and the time passed rapidly. The Mesdames Katherine Haller and Harriett Johnson were two prize winners for the contests.

At the close of the evening the hostesses served dainty refreshments with a predominating color scheme of red and green, after which the guests took their leave, heartily expressing to each other cheery greetings for the season.

This party closed the year 1935 for the Ladies' Literary Club. The next meeting will be January eighth, at the home of Mrs. Katherine Haller.

Mrs. Grace Dilley was chairman for the evening's program, and assisting her very ably with the entertainment were Mrs. Parlia Hull, Mrs. Millie Shull, Miss Violet May, Miss Hazel Storer, and Mrs. Belle Woodcox.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, says:

"The American people will not stand for the use of 300,000 young girls as barmaids in taverns and night clubs of the nation, as is true now. A revulsion against this and many other hurtful practices of the liquor sellers is sure to occur as soon as the people sense their demoralizing power."

The relatives of Mrs. Orange Herrick will hold their annual holiday dinner with Mrs. Herrick this year on Christmas Day.

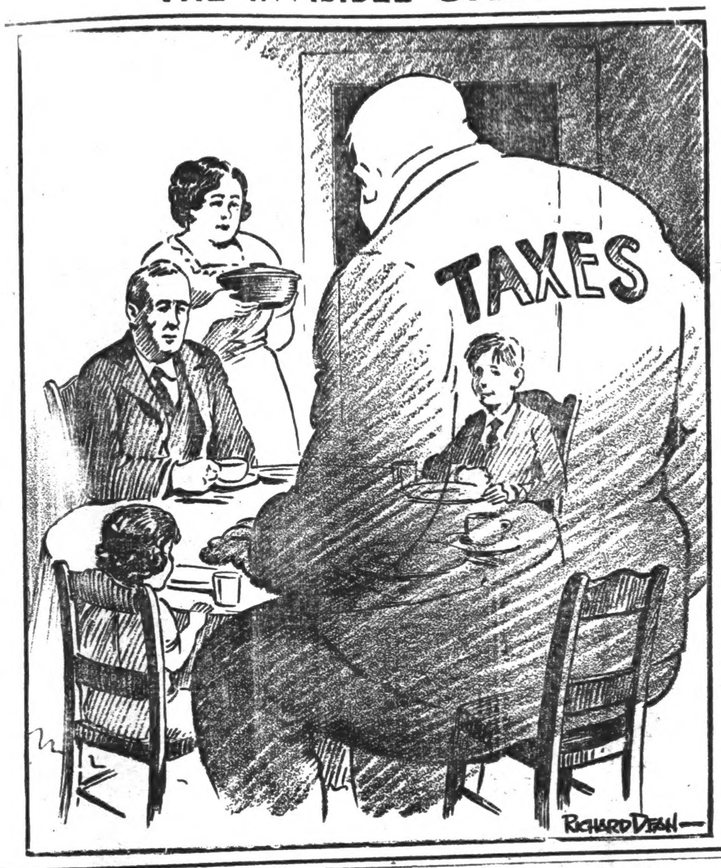
THE INVISIBLE GUEST



PLEADS GUILTY TO DRUNKEN DRIVING

Two Spencerville men were fined and one given a thirty-five day penal farm sentence Monday morning in Auburn for drunken driving and public intoxication.

John Shutt, a World War veteran plead guilty to driving an automobile while intoxicated Saturday night and was sentenced by Judge Endicott to thirty-five days, fined $1 and costs and his license was revoked for a year. Robert Rhodes entered a plea of guilty to being intoxiated in the court of Justice of the Peace Chester Hodge and was fined $1 and costs.

Night Policeman Henry West arrested the two Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock at the intersection of Main and Tenth Sts. Rhodes at the police station succeeded in getting away from the officers and Chief of Police Dan Kreamelmeyer started after him. Rhodes was sprinting east on Ninth St., with the officer in pursuit. The latter shot in the air, but it only caused the fleeing man to run faster. At Union St. the officer shot again. Rhodes outdistanced the chief, who arrested him Monday morning when he reported for work at an Auburn factory.

Shutt served time several years ago for alleged bootlegging. The car belong to his wife.

THE POINSETTIA SYMBOL

By G. E. Meyerand

As familiar a holiday symbol as holly or the fir tree, the poinsettia has become associated with Christmas from one end of our country to the other. It has its place on Christmas cards and Christmas seals and wrappings, in Christmas wreaths, and as a motif in the decoration of homes, schools, and churches. Yet, common as it is, few people know the story of the origin of the poinsettia.

During President Van Buren's administration in the last century Dr. Joel Roberts Poinsett was appointed American envoy to Mexico. An experienced traveler and an enthusiastic nature lover, Dr. Poinsett spent much time roaming about the hills and valleys of Mexico. It was here that he noticed a flaming vermilion blossom, which grew profusely in Mexico and was called "fire flower" by the natives. It was such a dazzingly beautiful flower and so unlike anything he had seen growing in the United States that when he returned home Dr. Poinsett took a few of the plants with him.

Florists immediately recognized the possibilities of such a brilliant red for the Christmas season, but their efforts to grow the plant were at first discouraging. The stems grew too long and rangy, the vivid color failed to develop, and the whole plant withered and drooped just when it should be at its best. After years of experimentation, however, strains were perfected—with the result that we now have the gorgeous, velvety red blossom with which we are so familiar. Fittingly the new flower was named for Dr. Poinsett, its finder.

Winter arrived officially last Sunday.

J. H. Leighty was in Garrett, Monday.

The school teachers are all enjoying their vacation.

Mrs. Foster Gee spent a few days last week in the Walter Gee home at Hicksville.

Mrs. Cleota Crick is spending the holiday vacation with her husband at Anderson, Ind.

W. D. Yeiser and family will attend the family Christmas dinner at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Yeiser.

Glen Cole was helping Carl Carpenter buzz wood Thursday eve, and he cut the little finger on his left hand so that he will be laid up for two or three weeks, in fact it cut to the bone.

Mr. and Mrs. Hasell Crothers, of Ligonier, Ind., Miss Evelyn Woods, of South Bend and Steve Murphy, of Fort Wayne, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Weaver.

JAN. 1 TO 30, GROSS INCOME TAX PERIOD

Supplies of gross income tax return forms of all types—more than 800,000 of them—are in the hands of the state auto license branches and at St. Joe News office in preparation for the annual gross income tax paying period which extends from January 1 to 30, according to Clarence A. Jackson, director of the gross income tax division.

Blanks include those for individuals, partnerships and corporations and also information return forms on which employers will report to the tax division the amount paid during 1935 to all persons who received more than $1,000. Information returns will be used to check against taxpayers' returns.

Taxpayers who received more than $1,000 during the year are required to file annual returns and report all income received in 1935, regardless of previous quarterly returns filed. Tax is computed on income for the full year, then the amount of tax paid on quarterly returns is deducted to find the amount due wih the annual return.

In addition to the 142 auto license branches, return forms will be available to taxpayers at some two hundred distribution points operating in connection with the branches, and at the Gross Income Tax division offices in the State house.

Due to improved business conditions, officials are anticipating an increase in number of returns this year over last, when 302,600 tax reports were received by the division.

SPORTING NEWS

The St. Joe Pickles added another game to their list of "games won" by defeating the Westminster A. C's. by a score of 53 to 28, Saturday night. The game started like it would be a good, close one, but after the first quarter it was all Pickles.

On Saturday night, January 28, the Pickles are to play the fast Zanesville Hoosiers on the local floor, and this promises to be one of the real games of the season. The Pickles defeated the Hoosiers at Zanesville and the Hoosiers are coming up for devenge.

The local Merchants will also play the Zanesville Merchants in the preliminary. Games called at 7:30 and 8:30. Come and see them.

DRIVES AUTOMOBILE INTO SIDE OF TRAIN

Ray Engle, aged 21, an automobile mechanic employed at the Smith garage at Spencerville, is in a serious condition in the Sacred Heart hospital in Garrett as the result of an automobile accident Saturday night at Spencerville.

He drove his Ford V-8 car while blinded by the snow storm into the side of a Wabash freight train at about 8 o'clock. He was going into the country near Spencerville for his brother, Woodward Engle.

Dr. B. O. Shook, of Spencerville, took the injured man to the hospital where it was found that he had a skull fracture and three bad head and face lacerations and a broken right arm. It was thot at the time that he had slight chance for recovery, but Monday he was doing as well as might be expected, it was reported.

Engle is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Elden Engle, of near Albion, Ind.

SHOCKLEY BOY TO REGAIN SPEECH

Robert Lee Shockley, aged 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Shockley, of Spencerville, is expected to regain his speech and the use of his legs, the attending physician stated following an X-rav examination of the lad made at the Lutheran Hospital.

The boy was struck by an automobile in front of his home August 11 and for two months lay unconscious in a hospital bed, suffering from a skull fracture, a broken leg and other injuries. The doctor feared for a time the lad would not be able to speak, but now believes the youngster will completely recover the power of speech.

The boy's general condition is much improved and he is looking forward to Christmas with all the anticipation of any child. He has asked Santa Claus to bring him a wagon.

Indiana has had only two bank holdups this year. In 1931 and and 1932 there were 26 for each year, in 1934 only 12 banks were raided.

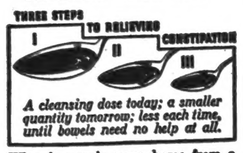
PIGS AIN'T PIGS

"Pigs is pigs, maybe," observed Farmer Julian Brown of Kinston, N. C., "but mine ain't." His pigs, Brown said, "regard cleanliness next to godliness." That is why he rigged up a shower bath for the sow and her litter of six. "The pigs keep sleek and clean," he said, "and enjoy the shower immensely."

DOCTORS KNOW

Mothers read this:



A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

Why do people come home from a hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch?

The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives.

If you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the secret of any real relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help. The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara — both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularity.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes; feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay? Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

Crush-Resistant Velvet Good News

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IN VIEWING the current fashion picture it appears as if velvet is about to "run away with the mode." Not that velvet is news to any of us, for women who keep pace with fashion have become so thoroughly and enthusiastically velvet-conscious by this time, they go about town, they dine, they dance, they even sleep in velvet.

However, comes some news that is news, exciting news, news that is joy-radiating. It's crush-resistant velvet, with the emphasis on crush-resistant. In the way of good news, what could be better?

Now, please do not jump at the conclusion that the new crush-resistant velvet is absolutely non-crushable. No such claim is made by members of the Velvet Guild who are sponsoring it, but they do say that its resistance far exceeds any endeavor in that direction up to date, thus bespeaking a greater, more dependable serviceability for this new type of velvet. Anyway it's a comforting thought to know that there's a velvet to be had that is definitely more resistant to crushing than any velvet heretofore known.

Speaking of the overwhelming predominance of velvet in the present mode, some style leaders go so far as to declare that this is the most important season from a fashion angle that velvet has ever known. From accessories of all kinds through the entire gamut of clothes goes velvet on the fall and winter program.

For daytime wear the vogue for velvet suits and coats, fur-trimmed or otherwise, is established. For afternoon, for formal as well as superb plain weaves in velvet. The heavy classic Lyon velvet is an excellent medium for gowns of like pomp and dignity. It is a staple, too, for tailored suits.

Beside the well-woven yarn-dyed costume velvets, interesting variations have been devised with mixtures of metal and cellophane threads which answer the call for glitter this season. Crinkled velvets which look as if shirred are also much in evidence. Then, too, delicately woven transparent velvets hold their own. This type shirs and pleats beautifully.

A smart new note is the use of velvet with tweeds and woolens. Tweed skirts with velvet blouse, tweeds with velvet belts, collars, cuffs and scarfs. Tweed coats detailed with velvet are all featured fashions, as are also the new gilets, waistcoats and complete cape linings of velvet as used with colorful woolens and tweeds.

The costumes of the trio of fashionables here pictured are made of the new crush-resistant velvet. A slight touch of the military is expressed in the red tape and buttons of the black velvet street dress centered in the illustration. It is topped with a self-velvet soldiers' hat with gold cord.

To the right in the group is a black velvet dinner dress with full three-quarter sleeves of silver and multi-color embroidery in a Chinese design. The evening hat has a net crown and a velvet visor.

Cross fox lavishly trims a smart suit of crush-resistant velvet as shown to the left. The jacket is belted and the skirt is the new cocktail length. The blouse is gun-metal lame. Velvet gloves, bag and beret complete the costume.

IN HIGH STYLE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

In this charming two-piece afternoon dress we see fashion at its smartest. Antique gold is the color of the silk lame overblouse. One of the gestures of fashion this season is to make up rich materials as simply as possible so as to throw the emphasis on the elegance of the fabric. The skirt is of plum color silk crepe. One of fashion's whims this season is for young girls to wear the very deep plum purple color which used to be considered "oldish."

PARIS HATS SHAPED LIKE BASE OF IRON

High hats for sports, but flat for dress.

The latest and flattest hat shown in Paris is shaped exactly like the base of a large flatiron, with the felt doubled and squared to make an inch-thick plank. It is worn well forward on the head, over a black bandeau, and has two hat-pins, one red and one black, as trim.

Nearly all of the newest hats have a forward plunge. Velvet toques are draped so that one part falls over the forehead and the other is cut in a narrow, rounded back line to keep the hat on the head.

Fur hats, or those fur-trimmed, also dip forward.

Off-the-Face Tendency in Hats Is Stronger Than Ever

There is a sudden and definite backward movement in the early fall hats. The off-the-face tendency is stronger than ever, and the new hats seem to have added height as well, conveying the idea of a sort of combination halo and bonnet.

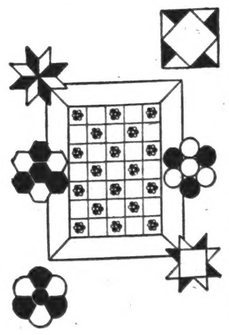
The combination of felt and velvet promises to be smart for fall, as will the combination of velvet and grosgrain. The new halo hats consist of a tight-fitting little skull cap, usually of velvet, with an upturned felt brim which is wider in front than in back.

Short Veils, Long Trains

The bride who marches to an altar bedecked with chrysanthemums and gladioli will wear white satin, velvet or moire. Her train will be long, her veil quite short and her bouquet decorations will furnish the color for the scene. It is possible, of course, to order exquisite bridal dresses in any shade under the sun from the deep Renaissance blues to rich marigold yellows. But the discriminating bride doesn't. She sticks to white for herself and puts rich-toned fabrics on her maids.

Inexpensive, Easy Patchwork Quilts

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK



Patchwork quilts as a rule are elaborate, cost quite a bit and represent many days of tedious work. This work and cost can be cut down to a minimum as shown in the illustration. Any of these designs can be used on eighteen nine-inch blocks and so arranged to make a full size quilt. About three ounces or one yard of prints is all that is required for the patchwork. Folder No. 536 in colors illustrates four ways to assemble these different designs, also cut out diagrams for six different patches like the picture. Information about yardage required for back, border and blocks is also given.

The folder No. 536 and folder No. 0 with other quilting information will be mailed upon receipt of 10 cents, or send us 10 cents and we will send folder and sufficient beautiful patches to make up the patchwork on one of these simple quilts.

Riksdag Votes by Electricity

Votes taken in the Riksdag, the parliament of Sweden, are counted by electricity. On the desk of each deputy are three buttons. When a vote is taken the deputy presses the button which records his opinion, and within a minute the total results appear in luminous figures behind the seat of the president.

We're Still Getting Mad On as the Savages Do

When Tom Sawyer and the new boy first met and took one another's measure they worked themselves up to the point of combat by passing insults and dares. In the Arabian desert, when the tribes feel the urge for battle, they prepare for it by dispatching impudent verse back and forth. When one side feels that the impertinence can only be atoned for in blood the shouts give way to blows.

All very childish, of course. But is it so much different from the civilized methods? Young Italians threaten the British embassy in Rome and break the windows of British places of business. The British hurry troops to Egypt. The inspired press of Italy is as contemptuous of all things British as are the Bedouin versifiers of their tribal enemies. And Britain moves up warships from Gibraltar to Malta, in the very shadow of the Italian toe, as though to pinch it. The principle is the same all the way through, and even the practice does not increase greatly in dignity.

Capacity for Improvement Even in Worst Character

Every wrong propensity may be finally subdued or considerably corrected; every right one may be assisted by additional motives and carried on to yet higher perfection. Even in the worst characters some capacity for virtuous improvement, of which no vestige has yet been observed, may be discovered or drawn forth.—Blair.

Who Are You?

The Romance of Your Name

By RUBY HASKINS ELLIS

An Allen?

THE name Allen has passed through many changes in spelling, but the present well-known form has been in general use since the Thirteenth century.

The name has been found in a very early period, even before the Christian era, spelled Ala, from the Aryan word "al," meaning mountainous. The first-place name was Mount Alannus, north of the Caspian sea, and the people of this locality were known as the Alani tribe.

Later, this name is found in Britain, then it was transferred to Brittany, where it flourished for many centuries, and finally brought back to Britain by Alan I, a general in the army of William the Conqueror, who, after the historic battle of Hastings in 1066, was created Earl of Richmond. At his death this title passed to his brother, Alan II, and from him was handed down for many generations.

One of the first members of the family to use the name, as it is now spelled, was Henry Allen, Lord of Buckenhall, Staffordshire, England, in 1272. Robert Henry Allen, high sheriff of County Devon, 1851, traced his descent in a direct line to Henry. Most of the branches spelling the name, Allen, Allyn, Alleyn and Alleyne can trace to Henry.

John Allyn, a canon of Windsor, was born 1372. William Allen, born 1532, was made a cardinal in 1587. Henry Allen was bailiff of Yarmouth, 1271. Johannes Allen was a member of parliament from Yarmouth, 1314.

An English writer states that in 1851 there were 32,000 persons in England by this name distributed over 32 counties.

In London, 1246, Pyers Alleyn was Lord Mayor of that city. There were many of this name with titles of high degree, dukes and lords, who are found in every period of England's history.

There were many "first settlers" of this family in America. Too many to recount here, but one of the earliest arrivals was Edward, who left London in 1690. His vessel was attacked off Portsmouth, N. H., by pirates, a common occurrence in that day, but he effected his escape and made his way to Nantucket, R. I., where he settled. He served his community as juror, constable and trustee.

The great number of the Allen pilgrims who settled in New England in the earliest days of the colony is sufficient evidence to warrant the vast number of descendants in every part of the United States today. There were Allens who were of the Virginia colony also.

From the earliest days of heraldry this family has been generously honored by the bestowment of coats of arms, a signal mark of distinction "when knighthood was in flower" and a custom which continued through the years.

A Bigelow?

THE original home of the Bigelow family was in the county of Chester, England. It was there that the family lived and flourished for many generations. The name was first spelled Baguley, and by some curious process it finally became Bigelow as it is spelled today.

Richard de Baguley was the first ancestor known to the family. He was the head of the house at Chester. Many generations later there lived in Suffolk county a descendant of the family called Randall Baguley. It is through him that American Bigelows claim descent.

The first American Bigelow was John, who was born in Suffolk county, England. He came to America and settled in Watertown, Mass., in 1632. He was loyal to the colonies and served in the early wars.

There are, today, Bigelows scattered to the four winds in this country but most of them are descendants of John, of Massachusetts.

Floyd Gibbons ADVENTURERS' CLUB Hello, Everybody!

"Cave Man Stuff"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

I'VE got a yarn here, lads and lassies, that is just another illustration of the fact that you don't have to go to the far corners of the world to find adventure. This yarn comes to us from Donald Adams, and by golly, the adventure Don ran into is too strange to have anywhere but right here in our own amazing United States.

You'd never expect this sort of thing to happen in Darkest Africa or in Wild and Woolly Asia. It just couldn't happen in Europe.

But it did happen right in Boston, in the year 1917—and what's more, Don Adams can prove it.

Don is a carpenter, and he's done work all over New England. He hopes, though, that he never has to do another job for anybody who even remotely resembles that big stiff he ran up against in Boston.

Don will never forget his name, but relaying it on to you is a job I don't want to tackle, because that bird's monicker was about two feet long, and full of z's and k's, and neither Don nor I can pronounce it, and only two people in the whole world outside of Einstein could spell it.

More Muscles Than Letters in His Name.

The fellow, himself, was about as big as his name, and two or three times as hard to get along with. He hadn't been in this country very long and he spoke darned little English. Don Adams didn't know very much about him, but he had a carpentering job to be done, and Don went to work and did it for him.

It was a contract job, and the price agreed upon was a hundred and seventy-five dollars. Don finished it up in about three weeks, and during that time he hardly ever saw the big fellow, although his wife and eleven children were home most of the time.

When he was all through, Don gave his bill to the man's wife and left, expecting to receive his money before long.

Don waited a couple of weeks but no money came. Then he began to get short of dough and went around to the big fellow's house to see what was the matter. He rapped at the door and the big fellow himself opened it.

"What you want?" he said, as Don stepped into the hall.

This Was a Reception, but No Tea Party.

The big fellow was scowling darkly. He stood facing Don with his chin out-thrust, his arms held out from his sides in a menacing attitude. Don didn't quite know what to make of it.

"Why," he said, "I've come for my money."

Without saying a word, the big fellow picked up a chair, raised it high in the air and brought it down on Don's head. Don reeled and fell to the floor.

The chair had caught him a nasty wallop.

"If I know what is coming," says Don, "I can generally manage to take care of myself. But the thing happened so unexpectedly that I didn't have a chance. I got to my feet again, frightened and surprised. I started to call for help, and immediately the chair crashed down on me again."

"Standing Over Me With a Knife in His Hand."

This time Don tried to dodge the chair. He turned so that it missed his head but it hit him in the shoulder and knocked him down again. A sick feeling came over him but he didn't lose consciousness.

From what seemed to be a great distance away, he heard the big fellow roaring at him.

"Get out of this house," he was bellowing, "and if you ask for money again I cut your head off and burn you up in the stove."

Don struggled to rise—managed to prop himself up on one elbow.

"I looked at him," he says, "and could see him dimly, standing over me with a long curved knife in his hand. I was so overcome by fear that I thought I must surely collapse. I crawled to the door, got crazily to my feet and tried to go out the door. But the door was locked."

Don Would Have Sold His Life Cheaply.

Don looked at that door with the blank stare of a dazed man. He wouldn't have given a nickel, then, for his chances of getting out of that house alive. Then, from somewhere outside he heard some one yell:

"Wait a minute, buddy—I'll help you."

And at that point, Don collapsed and fell to the floor.

"I can't remember much after that," Don says. "Two policemen broke down the door and nabbed the big fellow, and then everything went black. The next thing I knew, I was in my own bed, with a doctor and my wife taking care of me."

For three weeks Don lay in that bed, unable to walk. When he had recovered enough so that he could hobble about a bit, he was summoned to attend the big fellow's trial.

Just Give Him Another Chance at That Guy!

And that was where the big stiff got a swell taste of justice. The judge just did a little figuring, adding up Don's bill, and his doctor's bill. Then he added some more for the suffering he had caused Don, and made the big fellow pay it.

And on top of that, he sent him to prison for a year. And Don—well—all he hopes is that if he ever runs into the big bruiser again, he has a chance to get set before the hostilities start.

It may sound unbelievable, that yarn of Don's, but it's only one of the many strange and thrilling adventures that are happening in America every day.

Irrigation Nothing New; Evidence of Use Ages Ago

Irrigation is nothing new. In the southwestern United States there are evidences of a race of people before the Mexicans, who used irrigation. Their ditches, evidence of which is still to be found, were built on the same lines that the engineers of today would use. Then in the days of the Gold Rush to California in '49, water from the streams was used to wash gold and later to irrigate gardens. The Mormons went out about that time to Utah and diverted some of the streams down the furrows of their fields. The gold seekers also carried the idea with them as they returned from California, but most credit for irrigation is given to the Mormons.

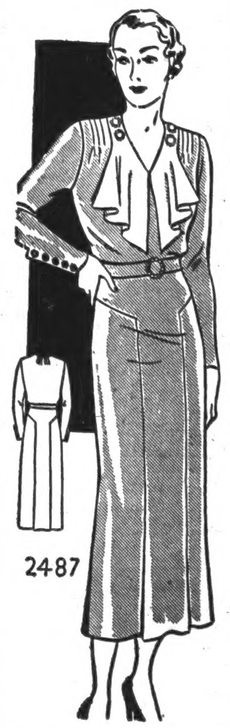
In the early days irrigation to provide moisture for hay meadows was as important as water for humans and animals. Alfalfa is intimately related to irrigation everywhere. The Monks brought this plant from Spain in the early days. The history of the small irrigation projects is that they usually paid, but the large ones went through a lot of grief. In the nature of things, the large water projects defeated their own purpose till population caught up. Small projects to irrigate gardens and meadows to supply produce and hay for the requirements of the miners and settlers were valuable. The large schemes oversupplied the market and became a glut on the market.—Montreal Herald.

Wild Species of Bananas

There are about 60 wild species of bananas, varying in many characteristics, along with some 200 cultivated varieties. The wild ones are widely distributed over tropical Africa, Asia, Australia, and many islands. They range in stature from four to forty feet. Some are without edible fruits; others are beautiful in foliage. Some leaves are green with red mid-ribs and veins. One has leaves striped with rose and white while another is blotched with irregular patches of brownish wine-color. However, the large Abyssinian type may have been the first of note, for it is represented in ancient Egyptian sculpture.—Los Angeles Times.

A Frock With Slender Lines for Matron Who Wears Size Forty-Six

PATTERN 2487



Here's a real "find" for the woman who's a size forty-six, and has been seeking a dressy frock that will ably conceal extra pounds, yet allow her to look as young as she feels. Then, too, there's also a wealth of slenderness to be gained by center panels, front and back, which hold a wide box pleat in seam. Deserving of the title "bosom friend" is that dressy, graceful twin jabot that so successfully conceals too ample curves. The matron will do well to choose a smooth, sleek silk, satin, or crepe for her "very best" frock, let the jabot contrast, and bright buttons do a little "highlighting."

Pattern 2487 is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 3⅛ yards 39 inch fabric and ⅞ yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 243 West Seventeenth St., New York City.

Why Vote?

At Greenville, Ind., Farnsley Burkhardt, Democrat, won the clerk-treasurership of the town by outguessing Republican Clarence Homburger. Burkhardt guessed the date on a penny was 1918; the other party to the tie vote said 1926. The date was 1919.

Grandmother Believes Health and Wealth Responsibilities

Asserting that their grandmother is "old-fashioned and ignorant of modern methods of life," the two grandchildren of a famous financier publicly asked for her removal as their guardian.

The shortcomings of which these children of sixteen and seventeen complain on the part of their grandmother are not with reference to knowledge of financial affairs.

It is not her faults as an investor of which they complain in asking to have her removed as their guardian. No. The matters in which she is "too old-fashioned" doubtless come closer—in their opinion—than that!

Probably she is old-fashioned in such annoying matters as health. At her age she may be foolish enough to imagine that at sixteen and seventeen one is still growing mentally and physically, and that wholesome living is of paramount importance. Probably she cannot see the benefit of burning the candle at both ends. Faced with a choice between dancing and sleep, she is probably unreasonable enough on occasions to rule out the dancing.

And perhaps she is old-fashioned in money matters. Having been accustomed to wealth long enough to have a true sense of values, she probably objects to extravagance. Too old to see clearly, she probably feels that merely having money is no reason for dissipating it. Indeed she may even feel the possession of wealth as a responsibility, and try to train her grandchildren to self-respecting handling of it from that point of view.

Being old-fashioned, she may feel, too, that having money is not enough to bring one complete satisfaction in life. She may be urging them to sow the seeds of future usefulness—and therefore content and happiness—in study and serious thought about taking their place in the world as the grandchildren of a man who from humble beginnings became the ruler of millions. That, of course, would seriously interfere with their preoccupation of having a good time.

Yes, the grandmother is doubtless old-fashioned in all of those ways. And they are ways which can be very annoying when one is sixteen or seventeen with plenty of money and no dearth of people who are quite willing to let one be one's own master.

Smiles

A FRESH ONE

A college professor and his wife entertained at dinner a few weeks ago. In the midst of the gayety at the table a child's voice was heard coming from the floor above.

"Mother!"

"What is it, Archie?" she asked.

"There's only clean towels in the bathroom. Shall I start one?"

Hardly!

"My dear," said the professor's wife, "a truck ran over your best hat."

"Really?" answered the professor. "Was I wearing it?"

One half of the taxes assessed for state, county and school purposes are due and payable on or before the first Monday in May, 1936.

The second installment is due and payable on the first Monday in November, 1936.

In case either installment is not paid when due, it becomes delinquent and is subject to a penalty of eight per cent. Administrators, guardians, agents, and other, who pay taxes on property in trust and persons whose taxes are complicated, such as undivided estates, etc., are requested to settle such taxes before the last few weeks, as it takes time to make divisions and make seperate receipts therefore. All persons should be careful to examine their receipts and see that all property they wish to pay tares on is included in their receipts.

THE TREASURER WILL NOT BE RESPONSIBLE

For the penalty and charges and delinquent taxes resulting by reason of any omission of the person paying such taxes to state definitely on what property, in whose name and in what township or corporation it was assessed. Persons are liable for taxes on all property owned by them on the first day of March, 1935. Property will appear in the same name for payment of the second installment as for the first installment each year.

Call on the auditor for errors or reductions claimed in taxes. The treasurer cannot make such reductions. No extensions will be given after FIRST MONDAY IN MAY, 1936.

County orders will not be paid to anyone owning delinquent taxes; all persons are warned against purchasing such orders. The annual sale of delinquent lands and lots will take place on the Second Monday in February, 1936.

Auburn, Indiana, December 1, 1935.

ATTEST: FRANK E. LYON,
Auditor of DeKalb County, Indiana.

CLAUDE P. FITCH,
TREASURER OF DEKALB COUNTY, INDIANA.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Hart are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Glen Hart and son, Richard, of Goshen and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hart at a Christmas breakfast, Wednesday morning.

Rev. and Mrs. J. N. Scholes will have as their guests during the holidays, their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Scott Scholes, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Miss Gertrude Lewis, of Indiana, Pa.

R. H. C.

The ladies of the R. H. C. and their families held their Christmas party at Cheesetown school house Friday night, although a stormy night, a good attendance was present. The room was nicely decorated with the Yuletide season colors and a Christmas tree, was the main attraction, as there were gifts and a treat of home made candy and pop corn balls for all. A good program and entertainment was given with singing of carols.

All returned to their homes at a late hour wishing each other a Merry Christmas. Fred Hart tried to make it a New Year's party by getting home at a very much later hour. Why? He got in the ditch again. Elwood Hart, who had retired for the night and John Crothers were called to pull him out. Fred has the sympathy of the entire community.

Mrs. Murial Ealy, daughter of Mrs. Bert Woodcox, of Columbus, O., is critically ill with peritinitis, according to word received last week by Mrs. Edith Cole.

Chas. Miser, of Stronghurst, Ill., was in town Tuesday greeting his many friends. Charles and family are spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Miser, in Garrett. He is now employed by the Standard Oil Co.

There is talk of a peace agreement between Italy and Ethiopia, along lines approved by England and France. Hostilities are to be suspended, and there will be no oil embargo in the meantime. Italy will keep the territory she has taken, and perhaps receive more. Ethiopia is to get a seaport and a "corridor" leading to it. Speaking of corridors, it looks as tho when all is over, Selassie will find himself out in the hall, tho he hardly can be considered the bad boy to whom such punishment generally is accorded.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Hull spent Christmas Day with their daughter, Mrs. Alta Freeburn, and family.

The Armstrong family dinner was held Sunday at the Delvin Armstrong home in Auburn. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Armstrong and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Ridgway and children were there.

Mrs. Inez Hadsell is at Richmond, spending the week with her son, Paul Hadsell, and family. She will also go to Columbus, O., to see her daughter, Mrs. Portia Hough, and family.

Leon Kees came home from Nashville, to be with his family until Thursday. He likes the camp life very much and is provided with every comfort needed after working hours.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cook, of Auburn, spent Saturday night in the Foster Gee home. On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Charley Cook and family and Mr. and Mrs. Foster Gee and two sons, were dinner guests in the Walter Cook home.

Christmas programs were given in the schools Friday. The P. T. A. opened the week's celebration with a splendid program on Thursday night, followed by the churches of St. Joe on Sunday morning and evening. Treats for the children were numerous and they ought to be good boys and girls hereafter.

Cecil Likes was committed to the Richmond state hospital Saturday by Judge Endicott. The court acted upon recommendation of Dr. B. O. Shook, of Spencerville, Dr. W. W. Swarts and Harry M. Covell, of Auburn. Cecil had been employed at the flour mill until recently when his health broke. His family will continue to live here so the daughter can be in school.

The drawing of the Thanksgiving turkey some weeks ago by Herman Kessler, has caused much comment and Herman decided that he would wait until Christmas to have a turkey dinner. We were afraid that the bird might either be stolen or die before Christmas, and sure enough he passed out Saturday. Not to be entirely outwitted, Herman decided that Sunday would be a good time to have the dinner, so the Scholes children and families were all invited in for the day, and they sure did enjoy the feast of turkey. Herman said the turkey had to die before they could have a Sunday dinner anyway, so he just killed him Saturday. And that is the end to the turkey.
